From the Foreword by

May Hill Arbuthnot

"Frances Frost has left children a precious legacy in her poetry and her stories which record so delightfully her own joyous love of earth and of its inhabitants. THE LITTLE NATURALIST speaks especially of her surprising and often humorous experiences in the outdoor world. . . . These are poems to turn any child into a young naturalist and to make him forevermore a lover of life in all its entrancing variety."

"When I look at our green hill
Beneath the sunny sky,
I'm pleased to have such friends inside —
And glad I live nearby!"
