Registration Open To 4 P.M. In Ballroom

Registration for summer session at Oregon State University will be held today from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. in the Memorial Union Ballroom.

Admission to the MU Ballroom will be regulated according to alphabetical order of students' last names. The schedule will be:

8:00	A-D
9:30	E-K
11:00	L-R
1:30	S-Z

Students who wish to register after 3 p.m. this afternoon will be admitted as they arrive. Late registrants will be accepted until July 5. Materials for late registration will be available for students at their academic deans' offices.

Late Fee

The last day to register for classes without paying a late fee is June 23. The late registration fee is $5 for the first day and $1 for each succeeding day.

Dates for dropping and adding classes for each course sequence are listed in the Summer Session Catalogue.

The registration fee for summer session is $110 for students taking 8 to 12 hours. Part-time students taking no more than seven hours pay a fee of $14 per term hour.

Classes Tomorrow

Classes for summer school will begin tomorrow. Programs offered include six-week courses, eight-week courses and eleven-week courses.

The maximum credits that a student may earn during summer session are 12 hours of 8 week courses. Students may take only 6 more hours if they are taking an 11 week sequence. Students must petition their academic deans for permission to take extra hours.

Earn Credits

Oregon State's summer session offers undergraduates and graduates the opportunity to earn credits toward degrees. The session is also open to people who wish to audit courses without credit.

An ability to work is the only requirement for admission to OSU's summer school. However, students who want to receive credit toward a degree must be officially admitted.

MU Open House

Open House chairmen Robert L. Phillips, director of Summer Session and Mrs. Phillips examine posters promising recreation, a buffet and get-acquainted program for students and faculty, Thursday, in the Memorial Union.

Parking Permits Available Today

Students may register their cars and obtain campus parking permits for $3.50 during registration today in the Memorial Union.

Permits provide access to all parking areas designated for use by students, announced Arthur H. Freundt, campus marshal. Fines are assessed for parking on campus without a permit. Instructions for attaching permits to the car are printed on the reverse side of the stickers.

To register a car and obtain a permit, a student must have his car license number at registration, it was noted.

Students and faculty members who bought campus parking stickers earlier for the 1964-65 school year need not register their cars again. Their present stickers are valid until the end of summer session.

Visiting Faculty

Visiting faculty members who wish to park in staff areas on campus may obtain a staff parking permit, also $3.50, at the car registration office in Home Ec 12.

Persons attending workshops only, will be issued courtesy permits by their instructors. Use of these permits are restricted to student parking lots.

Maps Available

A brochure, "Your Car On The Campus," that includes a map of all designated parking areas may be obtained at the campus entrance information centers, from any campus policeman, or in Home Ec 12.

A fine is assessed for parking in an improper area, Freundt said. He added, however, that if students will study the brochure there will be no problem.

"No Parking" zones are clearly marked and areas of limited time parking are posted with signs.

Open House Set Thursday At MU

Students and faculty will have an opportunity to meet and mingle Thursday evening, June 24, at the Summer Session Reception and Open House in the Memorial Union.

Dancing, movies, games and a bowling tournament are among activities being planned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Phillips and their committee.

The program from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. will be on the main floor and the ballroom of the MU.

Buffet

A buffet of Oregon food products is being readied by the MU Food Service under the direction of manager Baker Bokorney and Fannie Haskins. Baked salmon, strawberry tarts, roasted filberts, cheese and crackers, are among the items to be served to partygoers during the evening.

There is no charge for any of the evening activities. Campus dress is in order. Married students and faculty are invited to bring their spouses and single persons are welcome with or without dates.

Heading up the welcoming committee will be Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McClintock. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chick are chairmen of the hosts and hostesses at the buffet table.

Entertainment

Cards and other table games will be set up in the game room under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Leeland. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hayes are planning to show films on travel and fishing opportunities in Oregon.

Arrangements for dancing to the Terry Trio Plus One orchestra are being made by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Coleman. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Gibbs are directing decoration of the ballroom.

Decorations on the main floor are being done by Mr. and Mrs. Alan Munro and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Wiprud.

An abbreviated bowling tournament with a humorous prize for the winner is being arranged by Jeannette Masilionis. The tournament will run from 9:30 to 11 p.m.

Publicity chairmen are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Patterson.

1965 Session Growth Noted

The 1965 Summer Session reflects a 14 per-cent increase over last year in the number of courses and staff members. This year our staff exceeds 260 — of which 50 are visiting professors, reports Robert L. Phillips, director of summer session.

Enrollment last year was 3273 by the end of the summer. In the absence of pre-registration and admission requirements, there are no clear ways of knowing how many students to expect in 1965, Phillips said. In the past five years, however, enrollment has increased an average of 15 per-cent.

OSU plans for a minimum of 3600 this summer, an increase of about 10 per cent over last year.

The program this year involves all 10 schools of the University and consists of an 8-week session, an 11-week session and various workshops, ranging in length from 4 days to 6 weeks. There will be no post-session this year.

Administrative changes having most direct effect on students and faculty this year are the shift to Friday as the day off (for courses meeting four days a week) and the use of the 11-week session, primarily for the presentation of year sequences.

There are no admission requirements in summer session, and no out-of-state tuition is charged. All courses carry credit toward graduate or undergraduate degrees.

Willamette Valley Area Tour Scheduled as 1st of Summer

A Willamette Valley tour and a picnic at Silver Creek Falls State Park, Saturday, June 26, will be the first of eight trips and tours included in Oregon State University's recreation program for 1965.

Ralph O. Coleman, director of the program, said the series will cover a wide area of Oregon ranging from the coast to the Cascade mountains and Columbia river. All trips are made in private cars at a minimum cost.

The party for the valley tour will leave the MU parking area, east of the Coop, at 1:15 p.m. Students participating should bring their lunch and a cup for coffee which will be served at the picnic. Persons with cars are invited to bring them to help transport paid passengers at $1 each paid to the driver.

Persons interested in making the tour are asked to sign information sheets placed around campus including Coleman's office, Men's Gym, room 129. Reservations may also be phoned to his office, Ext. 476.

Silver Creek Falls, 35 miles from Corvallis, has good hiking trails and waterfalls ranging up to 178 feet high.

Details of other tours and trips will be announced later in the Barometer. They include deep sea fishing, July 10; tour of the Direction Center Portland Air Defense Sector, July 16; weekend trip to Mt. Hood and Columbia River points of interest and an overnight stay

Marine Science Center

Million-dollar OSU Marine Science Center at Newport, dedicated Saturday, will have related research programs underway by fall in fisheries, marine biology, oceanography, zoology, wildlife, and water quality. Designed in rustic "seaside" motif, the rambling structure houses laboratories, offices, a 200-seat auditorium and an aquarium. Dedication visitors also toured OSU's $2 million research vessel, Yaquina, docked just 200 yards from the Center.

That Fleeting Moment

Editor's Note: The following editorial is a welcome from Robert L. Phillips, director of the summer session.

When an infinite number of straight lines are distributed randomly, the result is chaos. Or at best, the result is an orderly bundle of straight lines. But when those lines are arranged in a certain exquisite order, the result is a circle.

Similarly, when the "straight lines" of a college education are gathered randomly, the result is chaos — or at best, an orderly bundle of term papers, exams, credits and grades.

A funny thing about straight lines, though . . . with effort and a bit of luck, they begin to fit together in a meaningful way, and you begin to sense the reality of the promise that all knowledge is unified.

As you proceed with your work at Oregon State University this summer, I earnestly hope the straight lines you gather will arc into a meaningful and unified whole.

You'll know the feeling when it strikes you because your heart skips a beat and for a fleeting moment at least you know what education is all about.

Present Enrollment

The preceding information was printed on the front page of the first Barometer published in 1896. Since that time both Oregon State and the Barometer have changed tremendously. One of the elements of the expanding university is the growing summer session program.

The Summer Session will have a predicted enrollment of 3,600 students while in 1896, the enrollment for the normal school year was only 393. In 1896, the number of professors was 22 as compared to the 250 staff members teaching this summer.

Because of the increasing importance of the summer school program, a Summer Barometer is being published for the first time to serve the growing student population. The paper is a five column tabloid, about half the size of the regular nine column paper.

During previous summers, a newsletter, the Summer Session News, has been printed.

The Summer Barometer will differ from the newsletter in that it will be partially supported by advertising. The summer paper will also include an editorial page with editorials voicing the opinion of the paper on current matters. Readers will have a chance to air their views in the student letters to the editorial column, "Fencing." The paper will concentrate on reporting campus news which concerns the university and its students.

Eight Barometers will be published weekly during the summer. They will be distributed on Wednesday except for today's issue and a Thursday issue printed July 8.

Both the Barometer and the university have progressed considerably since 1896 when the first paper was published and publication of the first edition of the Summer Barometer today is still another step toward making Oregon State an outstanding university.

Free Chest X-Rays Offered July 8 at Mobile Near MU

Free chest X rays will be offered on campus, July 8, at a mobile X-ray unit to be located near the Memorial Union.

In addition to being an effective method of finding early pulmonary tuberculosis, an X ray will often show other chest disorders such as tumors, cancer and certain heart conditions, stated Dr. Peter H. Rozendal, Benton county health director.

The program is co-sponsored by the Willamette Tuberculosis and Health Association and the Oregon State Board of Health in conjunction with the Benton County Health Department.

Public school teachers attending summer session may take this opportunity to receive their X rays that will be required for their school year, Dr. Rozendal noted.

8 Parks Offer Sports Program For Children

When mothers start panicking in summertime — all the children underfoot with nothing to do — they should call Robert Robertson, director of the Corvallis Park and Recreation Department.

Robertson, head of the department for four years, has all the answers for a boy or girl of any age.

There is always swimming, tennis, golf, or archery if your child is an enthusiastic outsider. For the creative, there is drama, or music.

Robertson and a foreman plan and schedule all the activities for the season. They set up the programs and work closely with the schools, especially in summer, when baseball season is in full force.

There are eight city parks under the supervision of Robertson. Avery Park is the oldest and also the largest.

Besides being the scene of many individual activities, the parks are used for community get-togethers such as band concerts and the like.

The Park and Recreation Department publishes a seasonal schedule of events in cooperation with the activities at the high school, where the facilities like tracks and baseball fields are better equipped.

Liberal Arts Program Will Open June 23

Two lectures and two recitals have been scheduled for the week of June 23-29, of summer session. The events are part of the special liberal arts program to continue through the summer.

Featured lecturer for the first event will be William R. Duggan, speaking on "The United States and Africa: Problems and Prospects." Duggan is a member of the Policy Planning Council, Department of State, Washington, D.C. and has been in Foreign Service and with the State Department since 1945.

Duggan is currently a member of the American Political Science Association and the African Studies Association. He will appear Wednesday at the Home Ec auditorium at 8 p.m.

Henri Temiaka, violinist; and Julian Musafia, pianist; will present a Beethoven recital June 27 at 8 p.m. in the Home Ec auditorium.

A professor of music at California State College, Long Beach, Temiaka is a distinguished recitalist and conductor of the California Chamber Symphony. A reception on the Home Ec patio will follow his performance.

The following evening, June 28, Dr. Robert Hladky, cellist;

Henri Temiaka

and William Woods, accompanist; University of Oregon faculty members, are slated to present a Sonata Recital.

Besides teaching cello and courses in music literature, Dr. Hladky performs with the University Trio. The musician has appeared extensively throughout the United States as a solo and chamber music recitalist and has played as soloist with several leading symphony orchestras including those in Rochester, N.Y.; Columbus, Ohio;

Oklahoma City; and Portland.

The recital is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Home Ec auditorium.

Lecturer Dr. H. L. Ansbacher will conclude the first week of liberal arts programs, speaking on "Alfred Adler, the Original Alternative to Freud."

Dr. Ansbacher is a professor of psychology at the University of Vermont. He is editor of the Journal of Individual Psychology and past president of the American Society of Adlerian Psychology.

The New Englander will lecture June 29 at 8 p.m. in the Home Ec auditorium.

The liberal arts program will offer similar presentations each week throughout summer term.

J. Gilbert Knapp, assistant professor of music, has been named director of the series.

SCRAMBLED EGGS

By Johnny Eggers

Athletic Publicity Director

A lot of interest has been shown in these "Beaver Caravans" touring the state this summer on behalf of the athletic department. Charlie Van Sickel, sports editor of the Tri-City Herald at Kennewick, called it one of the most unique ideas he has seen in a long time and predicted plenty of new friends for OSU as a direct result.

Staff members for the athletic department already have hit Baker, La Grande, Pendleton, Pasco, Kennewick, The Dalles, McMinnville, St. Helens and Astoria and still ahead is a swing through southern Oregon. It's golf in the afternoon, plus a meeting and dinner at night with interested alums or boosters of OSU. Slats Gill thought this was an especially opportune time, since there has been a real turnover in the coaching staff.

Dee Andros is one who really enjoys such meetings, for he loves to meet people — and talk with them. There's a personal warmth about him that you don't often find in head football coaches and it's sure to reap some huge dividends on the football field as well.

Judging from early results, Oregon State may well have one of its best recruiting years in a long time and it wasn't restricted merely to football and basketball either. Track and baseball came up with some real prizes . . .

When Beaver assistant football coach, Sam Boghosian, was a youngster, he had polio and was bid-ridden for a full year. Made a remarkable recovery, though, and became one of UCLA's greatest guards in 1951-52-53-54. He's a smart one, too . . . was on the Academic all-America team.

That 40.9 clocking in the 440-relay event at the Oregon meet tied OSU's all-time school record for the event. Butch Lumby, Harry Wright, Gregg Macy and Rusty Brown wheeled it off . . . one rabid prep baseball follower tells us that pitcher Jon Baker from Sunset high's state A-1 champions will become one of Oregon State's best ever. Same fellow predicts Beavers will be northern division champions within two years.

Most popular local radio program we've ever listened to in Corvallis is the "Toast and Coffee" show each morning at 8 a.m. on KLOO. Mimi and Bob Houglum do the honors and cover everything from sports to sex to old movies . . . Paul Valenti has a new basketball recruit in town, by way of Texas. Name is Harry Gunnar and he can stuff the ball.

The 4-H session at OSU this time of year has many great benefits to the youngsters visiting, but on occasion it has also aided the school and athletic program. All-America track star Darrell Horn first developed his interest in OSU at a 4-H session on campus and decided this was the place he wanted to go to college.

Jerry Wille, only a junior, is Oregon State's first all-American swimmer, and it shows what hard work and determination can do. He swam over 400 miles from June of 1964 until the recent NCAA meet. That's a lot of practicing . . . one of our favorite sports writers, Dwain Esper of the LA Herald-Examiner, is the new editor of Sports Review, a national sports magazine . . . Dwain was our press box P.A. man at each of the last two OSU Rose Bowl games.

Jimmy Jarvis and Gail Goodrich of UCLA will team up at guards for the U.S.A. team that goes to Europe later this summer.

Beaver grid aide, Gene Felker, when an end at Wisconsin, once was given the nickname "The Wildman" for his magnificent defensive performance against Ohio State and Vic Janowicz. At Arizona State, they called him "El Gino," he of the loud voice and warm heart.

OSU To Hold PE Workshop For Teachers

The third annual physical education workshop for elementary and secondary physical education teachers will be held at Oregon State University campus, Aug. 16 to 20.

Sponsoring the four-day meeting is the Oregon Association of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation. The program is under the administration of the Corvallis Continuation Center of the Division of Continuing Education. Lois Pye, instructor of women's physical education at OSU is coordinator.

Methods and techniques of teaching both beginning and advanced levels of aquatics, body conditioning, gymnastics, individual sports, rhythms, and team sports will be offered.

Specific activities will include beginning swimming, synchronized and competitive swimming, skin diving, body conditioning for both men and women, beginning tumbling and apparatus, competitive gymnastics (free exercise and advanced apparatus), and educational gymnastics.

Games, rhythms, and movement education, tennis, badminton, golf, bowling, track and field, archery, wrestling, and ballroom dancing will also receive emphasis.

Faculty will include guest lecturers from Canada and from California.

Two to three hours of college credit may be earned by participants, at $14 a credit hour. Special residence accommodations will also be offered at moderate cost.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Miss Pye, 105 Women's Building, Oregon State University.
