Campus Plans World Preview For April 16-19

Ellison Chairman; Speakers, Lectures To Follow S.F. Meet

Campus world security conference preview arranged for April 16 to 19 will feature Dr. Linden Mander, professor of political science at the University of Washington; ex-governor Charles A. Sprague, editor of the Salem Statesman; Quincy Scott, cartoonist on Oregonian; and Justice James T. Brand, Oregon supreme court, as speakers on the program, Dr. Joseph W. Ellison, chairman of the preview, said yesterday.

Members of the general committee arranging the series of lectures, forums, luncheons, and discussions are Dr. Ellison, chairman; Dan W. Poling, vice-chairman; Mrs. Mabel Winston, Stan Sackett and Eleanor King.

Progress to Be Followed

The preview here will be designed to educate students to follow the progress of the San Francisco conference for United Nations world security on April 25, E. B. Lemon, dean of administration, said Wednesday. The administration favors furthering citizenship responsibility and student participation in world affairs, he

The preview program will open with an all-college convocation April 16 at 7:30 o'clock with Dr. Mander addressing the students and faculty. The final session scheduled for April 19 will be a forum with Mr. Sprague, Justice Brand, President Strand and Dean U. G. Dubach constituting a panel to open the discussions.

During the week local members will present different phases of the world security problem in dinner sessions with all living groups and at paper bag luncheons on the campus.

Bates Appointed To Army Board

Albert W. Bates, '29 in commerce and now a public relations staff member of Swift and company, Chicago, was just selected by the army air corps as an evaluation board member for the southwest Pacific area headquartered in Mr. Bates was one of the recognized student leaders here on the campus, E. B. Lemon, dean of administration, said yesterday. Bates was particularly active in the field of journalism. He is a member of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional fraternity for men in journalism. He was national executive secretary of that fraternity for a number of years. The evaluation board to which Bates has been appointed is a part of the new army air crops set up. Five evaluation boards in different sections have been created with air crops officers and civilians who are specialists in their particular fields but not necessarily informed about airplanes, air transport, or the air corps serving on the boards.

These specialists include lawyers, engineers, business executives, economists, publicists and psychologists. These boards study air corps operations, analyze and prepare material that may later be the basis for air corps textbooks following the war.

Books Donated Will Change Theme Of Prisoners, 'Time on My Hands'

By June Guesser "Time on My Hands" is the theme of war prisoners. Everyday enemies capture some men of the allied armies. These men need something to keep them Many of the allied prisoners are college graduates or have had some college training. As one picks up a trigonometry book he may wonder why anyone would like to study such things on his own time. Men in prison camps, do want to study so that they can return to their campuses and jobs knowing more than when they

Mental Advancement Neglected The Geneva conference provides that prisoners should be treated fairly when it comes to food and clothing, but the mental advancement of prisoners is neglected. World Student Service Fund was organized in 1937 and at that time functioned mainly in helping the Chinese. Now American boys need help as do the other allies. The book drive on this campus sponsored by war board through Round Table will help to supply this need. Every Oregon Stater is expected to give three books to the drive.

People Contribute Throughout the war people have been called upon to contribute in various ways. College students have participated in most war activities. Here, though, is an activity that every college student can take part in. All those bookcases laden with books can be relieved. Textbooks are most popular with prisoners and are the books that college students have.

Have you noticed the seniors taking advantage of that extra half-hour they get every night? Ten o'clock comes and off they go to the corner for a coke and a cigarette. Yes, at last, the seniors have discovered that their four years of hard work is drawing to an end, but with it comes all of those extra privileges.

Spring term rushing takes the highlight for this week's events. Just think three days of rushing back and forth from one house to another! Sounds like the rushees and rushers will be busy, but there is always the rest of the term to recuperate.

There's a concert Monday night, too; Anna Kaskas of the Metropolitan Opera company will be the artist. Best to put lyceum on your "must list" for Monday night.

Sunday was the day for the Easter parade, but on the OSC campus Monday was the bright colorful day when many campus coeds and buddies came out with bright spring fashions as well as sun-tanned faces.

While mentioning sun-tan faces -Mr. Eiler certainly did himself well over this vacation.

Colleen Roberts has a very eyecatching plaid skirt, and to top it off she wears a white cashmere. Dick Burger insists upon rolling his pant-legs to show off his loud bobby sox. They are a bit on the bright side, Dick-Wow!

Looking mighty smooth on the campus the other day was Betty Hendrix in her white pleated skirt and brown cardigan jacket-and -new white Spaldings. And while I mention new shoes-have you noticed all the Armishaw saddles. Oh, those lucky girls who stood for hours in pushing lines to get and oh those lucky girls with a shoe stamp. Speaking of pushing reminds me of the peddle pushers that Charlotte Bohle was wearing out at Avery's the other

On top of the Easter parade list seem to be the toppers. Shirley Bailey and June Guesser have sported very classy looking yellow toppers the last few days.

Some have been wearing their new spring apparel and were caught with chilly weather. Isn't that right, Jo Tate? When it comes to wearing ties, Dr. Peterson seems to set the fashion with a variety of plaid ones. We like 'um, Doc.

Metropolitan Opera Star Says Day Is Never Long

The day is never long for Anna Kaskas, the glamorous young contralto of the Metropolitan Opera, who sings here Monday, April 9, at the gymnasium.

During the opera season, on a day when rehearsal is scheduled for 11 o'clock in the morning, she rises at 10, has a bath, a quick breakfast and a short period of vocalizing before appearing at the Metropolitan at 11 sharp for rehearsal. After a brief luncheon rehearsal is resumed. The latter part of the afternoon is spent at the piano and then

First among the rules followed rigidly during the opera season is "no social activity." The few hours that might be spent at a party are too valuable, and should, she feels, be devoted to study.

On one of those rare afternoons or evenings when Miss Kaskas is free from rehearsals and study, she goes to the movies.

Serious reading is deferred until the summer season, when time is not so involved. Shopping is a real menace that she wishes she could avoid. In buying clothes she relies on special shops and sales people who are friends of long standing to advise her. She is slim enough to wear the most severe of fashions and is considered one of the best dressed women in the opera company. "Black is worn too much by singers," complains Miss Kaskas, and, although she has worn black often, she prefers white.

Fortunately, her weight isn't a problem, and Miss Kaskas can and does eat three good meals daily if ming and canoeing. With the lat- time and performances permit. Still trying to kid themselves that there are not enough men on the campus, the athletic department refused to switch the green light on spring baseball and decided to have no spring college sport whatsoever. The real reason for cancellation of baseball seems to be that baseball is not a paying proposition as basketball is, so the department decided not to have competitive baseball. It seems queer that Idaho, Washington State and even little Whitman are looking to the interests of students who love the sport rather than to the financial angle of it and have decided to continue the sport this spring. When will Oregon schools realize they have a grave responsibility to the school and also to the students. The men in the armed forces LOVE the attitude taken by Oregon State since the outbreak of team the past season, was picked by Southern California athletic news bureau as a forward on the all-star Pacific coast basketball team. The team that the bureau believed to be the five outstanding boys on the coast were Rocha, Oregon State, and Vince Hansen, Washington State, as forwards; Jack Nickols, Southern California, center; and Rankin, UCLA, and Bob Hamilton, Oregon, as guards. The southerners were right fair about the whole thing in placing three northwest men on the five.

PCC Meeting in June

At Pacific coast conference meeting coming up at Spokane in June the big topic will be football. The question will hang on the attitude of the northwest schools. Will they continue to hold up the parade or will they think of the sport and of the interest to the students and return to the great fall sport. What they will have as an excuse if they refuse is somewhat of a mystery because that old cry of Washington having navy trainees has gone up in smoke as they have decided to field a team of 17-year-olds and discharged veterans next year. Surely we won't let schools like Willamette outdo us in athletics. Their total enrollment is barely over 400. The success of Oregon State football for the next few years may be in the balance at this meeting.

College Economist Gives Farm Land Data

Oregon's general farm land price level has reached the same height as at the peak of the World War I boom, according to an analysis of farm real estate data by L. R. Breithaupt, extension agricultural nomist at OSC.

The figures show that average prices for farm land in Oregon are up to 165 per cent of the 1935-1939 evel, just equal to average prices of farm land in Oregon in 1920-

Fewer farm transfers are being reported in many areas of the country, another significant fact about the farm land situation that is shown by data received by the extension economist from the U.S. department of agriculture. Apparently, the number of farm sales eached a peak during the first nuarter of 1944.

The figures indicate 15 per cent fewer farm transfers during the last three quarters of 1944 than durng the same period in 1943.

Dubach Emphasizes

The Dumbarton Oaks proposals which will be considered at the United Nations international conference at San Francisco are not perfect, but even with their imperfections they warrant serious consideration of the American people, Dr. U. G. Dubach, head of the political science department at Oregon State college, told a dinner meeting of the Corvallis United States department of agriculture club here this week.

Dr. Dubach emphasized that any type of organization which would tend for better understanding and unity among nations would be a start toward outlawing war in the future.

A new bulletin, written by Dr. Dubach for the OSC extension service on "United Nations Proposals for World Security" was used as the basis of his talk. This brief leaflet, which outlines in understandable language the major pro-Kenneth M.
