Candidate claims Election Board decision is biased

By CHRIS LAMOUREAUX

of the Daily Barometer

Lori Huff, candidate for ASOSU vice president for senate and ASOSU business senator, is raising ethical questions concerning a decision made by the ASOSU Elections Committee and Jeff Huntington, ASOSU vice president for senate.

Huff claims that the decision made by the Elections Committee to allow Eric Forrest, a write-in candidate running for the same position as Huff, to place his statements in the ASOSU Voter's Guide was based on personal biases rather than professional judgment.

Huff filed a request for review with the ASOSU Judicial Board that claimed the Elections Committee's decision was made in favor of her opponent because he was a member of Theta Chi Fraternity.

There are seven people on the Elections Committee and five are members of Theta Chi, according to Elections Committee Chairman Mike Vanderbeek. Vanderbeek, who is a member of Theta Chi, told Huff he wouldn't allow write-in candidates to have their names or statements published in the Voter's Guide if they don't appear on the general election ballot, which Forrest's name does not.

Later, Vanderbeek informed Huff that he and the Elections Committee had decided to permit write-ins to be published in the Voters Guide. Vanderbeek said he couldn't find a rule that would prohibit write-ins from being in the Voter's Guide. Three members of the four-man committee that made the decision were Theta Chi's.

"I think we tried to be as unbiased as possible," Vanderbeek said. "I've always tried to remain at least fairly unbiased."

Huff said that Vanderbeek initially didn't want to let write-ins appear in the Voter's Guide because he knew it was wrong. He later reversed his decision because Forrest, his fraternity brother, pressured him.

Vanderbeek said other candidates who had asked to be in the Voter's Guide were initially denied the privilege. They accepted his decision. Forrest, he said, continued to hound him because they were fraternity brothers and thought he could use this to his advantage.

"He was real pesky about it," Vanderbeek admitted. Although the decision to include write-ins in the Voter's Guide is primarily the Elections Committee's, it had to be approved by the committee's overseer, Huntington, to be made official.

He said he approved the committee's decision because he could find nothing to keep the write-ins out of the Voter's Guide. He said his decision had nothing to do with Eric Forrest.

Police breakup brawl at armory

By ELLEN AUSTIN

of the Daily Barometer

A member of the OSU football team was arrested during a fight at the National Guard Armory at 1315 SW E Avenue early Sunday.

Linebacker Eric Davis was cited for interfering with police because he intentionally gave a false name when questioned.

According to the Corvallis police record, Davis said he wasn't fighting, but was trying to break up the fight. He said he gave a false name to the police because members of the football team can't get into trouble.

The police record states that 16 law enforcement officers from the Corvallis Police Department, Benton County Sheriff's Office, Oregon State Police and Campus Police were called in to stop the 25 to 30 people who were throwing punches, pushing each other to the ground and kicking each other.

Officer Fieman of the Corvallis Police Department reported that while he was pulling Davis to the police car for questioning, people in the crowd kept insisting someone had pulled a gun on Davis.

Davis told Fieman during questioning that the gun incident happened in February when he was working the door at a dance. He said when he refused entrance to a man from Eugene the man pulled a gun out of his waistband causing Davis to walk away.

Davis admitted the same person was at the party in the armory Sunday.

Fieman reported there appeared to be two distinct groups fighting, one group wearing black sweatshirts with a thin black rope tied around their necks, and the other group in regular T-shirts and jerseys.

According to the report of Sergeant Boldizar of the Corvallis Police, several different stories about how the fight started were given by those present. One account said the fight was between members of the OSU and University of Oregon football teams, but the accuracy of that account was unknown.

An athlete who was at the party, but wished to remain anonymous, said the incident was just a "normal bar-room fight" started by people who came to the party drunk. He said there is a good relationship between athletes from OSU and U of O.

Sgt. Boldizar reported about 175 people were standing around observing the fight when the police arrived.

Davis will appear before the Corvallis Municipal Court at 8:30 a.m. on May 4.

Powwow celebrates flow of life

By BRENT ZUPP
of the Daily Barometer

NASA had a powwow. The Native American Student Association held its 12th annual Spring Powwow in the MU Ballroom Friday evening. Expressions of Indian heritage ranged from wearing an elaborate tribal costume to eating Indian food and admiring Indian crafts.

For the largely non-Indian audience, the opportunity to "O-Yate-Ki" —think Indian — began with the beating of the ceremonial Indian drums. Starting softly at first, four or more drummers circled around a large drum and pounded out a deep, steady rhythm. The drummers added a higher pitched chant that produced a mesmerizing effect in concert with the low-pitched drumming.

The "Grand Entry" dance came next. Aply named, this ceremonial procession added a visual display to the already entrancing drumming and chanting. Members from many tribes in the region dressed in a variety of feathered headdresses, colorful, woven materials, beads and leather. Those participating strutted their stuff in the slow circular procession.

Soon, men and women, boys and girls, young and old, Indians and non-Indians joined the procession to produce the most harmonious sight and sound of all — smiles and laughter.

Native American art and crafts complimented the festivities as vendors from across the region showed off their wares of hand-beaded pieces, sandpainting, leatherwork, featherwork, colorful, woven blankets and more. Kids and adults gawked over the obsidian arrowheads and ornate, handcrafted tomahawks and knives.

Food was not left out of the powwow. Before the official festivities began, a filling meal of frybread tacos was served. The hearty fuel was needed by those participating in the exhibition dances later.

Much of a powwow centers around ceremonial dancing. Many of the symbols of the Indian culture are represented in these displays.

The circle is a particularly strong and recurring symbol. It represents the cycle of existence, life flowing into death and back into life, the cycle of seasons and eternity.

The Indian Eagle Feather Staff was another symbol. It was placed alongside the American flag — an unexpected pairing considering what the American flag must have represented to some of the Indian ancestors of those attending this powwow.

But, as Richard Leaton, treasurer of NASA and chairman of the organizing committee for the powwow, said, "We've got to learn to live together. This can be done if people start opening their eyes."

Ag. Sciences seeks 'Ambassadors'

By KIM BEELER
of the Daily Barometer

The "Ambassadors" from the College of Agricultural Sciences are in the process of improving their committee to benefit OSU and future students wishing to study science.

They have two goals. "First we promote agriculture and try to give a better awareness; it's not just farming and plowing," said Mitch Coleman, an ambassador and senior in agricultural education. "Secondly, our function is recruiting new students to OSU." The Ambassadors want to show what OSU is doing through their presentations, but they have to be careful not to promote OSU because Oregon has strict rules about that, said Ken Willett, an ambassador and senior in agricultural and resource economics.

"The program has changed a lot this year. In the last five years (Ambassadors) died down because faculty didn't have the time to put into it," Willett said.

This is the first term a two-credit class has been offered for the Ambassadors, and Coleman said he can see a difference.

"The program is more organized," Coleman said. "Instead of just hit and miss, (the class) gives us the chance to practice our demonstrations. I've seen a lot of improvements."

The Ambassadors' activities revolve mainly around speaking at high schools and junior highs throughout Oregon. These presentations are often given in pairs for about an hour.

"Agriculture has many different fields. We want to (show) how multi-faceted agriculture is," Coleman said.

Willett said his past experiences giving speeches has helped with his role as an ambassador.

"I have the gift to gab," he said. "I'm never intimidated."

Because the program is expanding, anyone interested in applying should realize there is a large time commitment, and students need a flexible schedule, communication skills and the ability to work with others, Willett said.

"It's good training," Willett said. "I'm working on my speaking skills, meeting people in agriculture industries, learning more about what agriculture is and how it operates."

This year there are six ambassadors: Lisa Charpiloz, senior in agricultural and resource economics; Dennis Connell, graduate student with a degree in agricultural education; Roberto Sanchez, senior in poultry science; Ernest Kuenzi, senior in agricultural and resource economics; Coleman and Willett.

"I'm real excited for next year," Willett said. "This year we've been trying to get set up for next year ... next year's group should be able to do a lot more."

Applications for the 1989-90 Ambassadors will be available on April 26. For more information call 754-2211.

OSBHE tabs Brand

By staff and wire reports

Myles Brand, provost and vice president for academic affairs at Ohio State University, was chosen as the new president of the University of Oregon by the Oregon State Board of Higher Education Friday.

Brand, who was offered the president's job Wednesday, will replace retiring UO president Paul Olum. Olum was forced into retiring this June.

Brand's salary of $100,000 is higher than Olum's $95,760 by an "appropriate percentage," according to Vandermyn. Brand made $121,000 at Ohio State.

Before moving to Ohio State University, Brand was the coordinating dean and dean of social and behavioral sciences of the University of Arizona College of Arts and Sciences.

OSU to adopt new admission policy

By GERALD VAN ZANDT
of the Daily Barometer

The new admissions policy approved by the Oregon State Board of Higher Education (OSBHE) will not significantly change the number of students enrolled at OSU next year, according to OSU Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost Graham Spanier.

In a Friday meeting at Western Oregon State College in Monmouth, the OSBHE passed an admission policy for the 1990-91 school year, a selective admission authority for all Oregon colleges and universities in 1989 and an enrollment management policy for the 1989-91 biennium.

The admission policy will affect OSU's admission of freshmen by discontinuing the use of the Scholastic Aptitude Test/Test of Standard Written English as an admission requirement.

It will also affect students transferring to OSU by increasing the minimum GPA required for residents from 2.00 to 2.25 and from 2.25 to 2.50 for nonresidents.

Other small changes for transfer students include increasing the required quarter credit hours of college-level work from 30 to 36 and giving special preference to applicants with a 2.00 GPA and holding an Associate of Arts degree from Oregon community colleges.

"This policy affects us less than any other institution in the state," Spanier said, "although our current flow of applications is up this year." At last Wednesday's MUPC Coffee Talk in the MU Lounge, OSU President John Byrne said applications are up by 1,000 over this time last year.

Spanier said next year's enrollment level at OSU will be quite comparable to this year's, but could possibly decrease by a small amount.

"We will have to introduce some change in the deadline (for admission applications)," Spanier said. "That's something we will be considering in the next week or two."

The selective admission authority for 1989 and thereafter means that although a student qualifies for admission to a state institution, admission is not guaranteed to that student. Currently, the University of Oregon is the only school in the state system authorized to selectively admit students.

"We are trying to look at a balance of goals for quality in the system (of higher education) as a whole," OSBHE Chancellor Thomas Bartlett said. "What we seek to do we must do well."

The goal of the enrollment management policy for the 1989-91 biennium is to begin to limit enrollment at institutions as required by budgetary restraints placed on the OSBHE by the Oregon Legislature.

The policy is a two-year plan for the institutions to get their size down to levels prescribed by the OSBHE. "We believe we can accommodate all first-time students or high school graduates as well as students transferring from community colleges," Bartlett said. In the next few years the number of high school graduates will be going down as the population begins to decline, he said.

The admission and management policies passed by the OSBHE are necessary to make Oregon's system of higher education "better, not bigger," according to Bartlett.

Byrne spoke of the importance of an institution's student retention rate and how OSU has managed to increase this rate.

"Retention is something that we have focused on very hard at Oregon State. We find that much of the education that takes place at a university is student to student," Byrne said.

Although Huntington claims to be unbiased in his decision, his endorsement appears on Forrest's campaign posters posted on campus.

"I think he (Forrest) would command more respect in the senate meetings, not to say that because Lori is a girl she wouldn't because she's definitely an outspoken person," Huntington said.

Forrest said, "I suppose you could say it's a conflict of interest but you could also say that Jeff's viewed the candidates and he's not in my fraternity ... I regret the fact that Jeff had to make that decision, but I don't regret the fact that he endorsed me. Of course that might create a conflict, but everybody has their biases and views on situations."

"The fact that they're (the Election Committee) making these exceptions for him, it's not fair to anybody who's running for positions that he gets away with these kinds of things," Huff said.

Oregon ranks high in crime rates

United Press International

— Three Pacific Northwest cities turned up Sunday on top 10 lists of the nation's largest cities registering the most serious crime rates per capita, according to a copyright computer analysis of FBI statistics. Oregon led the nation in bank robberies per capita last year, with one for every 7,326 residents, according to FBI statistics issued Sunday. The reasons why were not very clear, but officials pointed to drugs and crowded prisons.

Oregon recorded 363 bank heists in 1988, a number exceeded by only three other states — California, Florida and New York. Portland recorded 238 bank holdups, far more than cities including Chicago, Detroit, Atlanta and Cleveland.

Bankers, FBI agents and others note several factors, including Oregon's crowded prisons, the drug crisis and the high number of user-friendly branch banks, which are seen as easy prey.

Baron Sheldahl, chief criminal assistant U.S. attorney, said about 85 percent of the bank robbers arrested in Oregon were on probation or parole from state charges or wanted on state charges.

"If Oregon didn't have a unique jail overcrowding problem, those people would be serving sentences, not robbing banks," Sheldahl said.

Meanwhile, Portland ranked third in the nation last year in serious crimes per capita, the Detroit Free Press reported Sunday in a list using FBI crime and population data. The newspaper ranked crime rates for 191 of the nation's largest cities.

Portland ranked third in the nation in larceny thefts per capita and seventh in burglaries but did not make the top 10 in other crime categories, according to the Free Press statistics.

Portland's overall crime total as reported by the FBI Sunday rose to 67,681 in 1988, from 64,802 the previous year, despite a drop in murders from 66 to 45. The big jump was in motor vehicle thefts, from 5,159 in 1987 to 8,158 last year.

Eugene reported a drop in overall crimes, from 10,419 in 1987 to 8,892 last year.

Bill to offer bounty for spotted owls

United Press International

SALEM — Anger over logging delays caused by the northern spotted owl has boiled over into a new proposal in the Oregon Legislature — pay people a bounty to capture the animals.

Rep. Bill Markham, R-Riddle, introduced a bill Friday that would require the state Fish and Wildlife Commission to pay $500 for the live capture of a spotted owl.

The owls would then be released in wilderness areas where logging is not allowed, or kept for breeding at a state game farm.

"I'm trying to do something positive about the problem," Markham said. "I'd give $500 for the first one (owl) brought in myself."

Environmentalists claim the owls are endangered by logging of old growth timber. As part of a lawsuit designed to protect the owls, a federal judge has temporarily halted about 140 Northwest timber sales on federal land.

Several Oregon lawmakers have angrily said the delays threaten the state's economy, and earlier this week Sen. Peg Jolin, D-Cottage Grove, said spotted owls "belong in one's frying pan."

Markham said his bill is designed to move the owls out of areas where timber can be harvested while protecting the animals.

But the Oregon Natural Resources Council, which has led the drive to stop logging by protecting the owls, harshly criticized Markham's plan.

"His bill could just as well order their release at sea or in the desert, for either are as suitable for the owl to live as most of the designated wilderness lands in Oregon," said ONRC spokesman Andy Kerr.

Interest in agriculture careers is increasing

United Press International

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Forty-four percent of Northwest and Great Lakes-area young adults polled in a Cenex-Land O'Lakes survey said they plan to pursue a career in agriculture.

More than 3,000 rural young people from the Pacific Northwest to the Great Lakes responded to the survey released this month. About 80 percent of the respondents live on farms, while the rest reside in towns. Ages targeted by the survey were from 13 to 22 — about 55 percent of the response was from those aged 16 to 19.

"The number of young people indicating an interest in agriculture careers is encouraging, especially at a time when the need is so great," said David Johnson, Cenex-Land O'Lakes vice president for Agronomy and Transportation.

Of the respondents attending higher education institutions, only 35 percent are majoring in an agricultural field, reflecting the U.S. Department of Agriculture's forecast of a national shortage of 4,000 graduates with agriculture and life sciences degrees through 1990.

The decision to find a career in agriculture was more popular with the 16- to 19-year-old group at a rate of 49 percent.

Vickers claims medalist honors leading Beavers to third

By MIKE BARRETT
of the Daily Barometer

Oregon State's men's golf team finished a disappointing third, but Beaver sophomore Warren Vickers captured the medalist honors shooting a final three under par 68 at the Nike Northwest Collegiate Classic played at Trysting Tree Golf Course in Corvallis.

U.S. International University from San Diego, won the team title, firing a tournament total of 879. California also shot 879, but by the result of a tie breaker, the title was given to U.S. International.

"I got off to a good start and just kept playing hole to hole, not letting up."

WARREN VICKERS

Because of the drizzly, windy weather during most of the first two rounds Saturday, players were somewhat cautious and the scores reflected that. But as the rain held off Sunday, many players caught fire and rolled through the third round of the tournament.

One of the golfers that came out smoking was Vickers. He started the day off by birdieing hole number one and that seemed to set the pace. He continued on from there to eagle hole five and birdie number six and nine. When dust cleared after the front nine, he walked away with a five under-par 31.

The back nine was not so kind to Vickers, as he was warned with his first bogey of the day on hole number 10. He managed to mix two birdies with three more bogeys as the wind picked up along the tough back stretch on the Willamette River.

Vickers finished round three by putting a tough 18th green to take a disappointing bogey, but was immediately soothed with an individual championship trophy.

"I didn't think I would shoot this low," said Vickers, after putting a lid on his third tournament victory of the year. I got off to a good start and just kept playing hole to hole not letting up."

Vickers had been looking forward to this tournament and was happy with his performance. Vickers played in Friday's College-AM with PGA touring pro Peter Jacobsen and it seemed to rub off on his play Saturday and Sunday.

"After playing with Peter, I felt it really helped me out," Vickers said. "I was getting into bad habits, Friday, which I always get into, and he was helping me with them. He helped me all day and was really pleasant to golf with."

For the rest of the Oregon State team in the tournament, Vickers' individual victory was the bright spot. The team had a great chance to win the tournament after being three strokes out of first going into the final round, but it wasn't to be, as the Beavers finished third overall, four strokes behind California.

Oregon State, Cal and U.S. International were really the only teams vying for the title, as even the Beavers were seven strokes ahead of fourth place Long Beach State.

"I was happy that we stuck it out till the end, but still disappointed we didn't win it," OSU coach Rick Garber said. "The guys were really fighting, but it just didn't happen."

The individual title wasn't the only thing on Vickers' mind either. "I'm disappointed, I thought we would win," Vickers said. "We have as much talent as any school in our division."

"I was happy that we stuck it out till the end, but still disappointed we didn't win it."

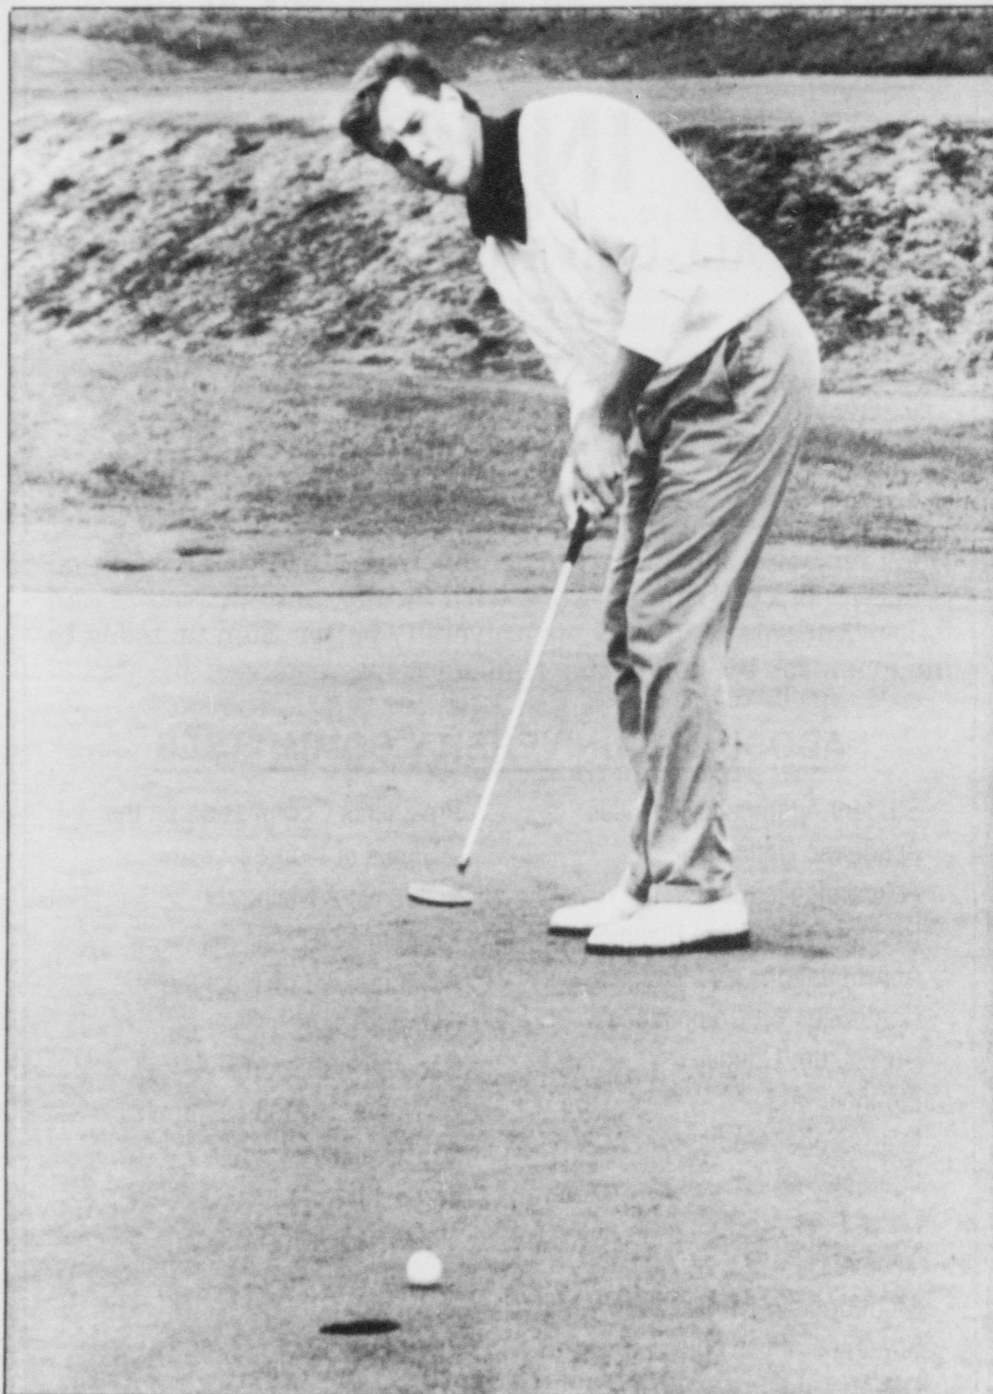

RICK GARBER

Overall, the tournament was considered a great success. It was the first big tournament even held at Trysting Tree Golf Course, and definitely not the last. Garber and the rest of the staff and team were constantly complemented on the organization and professionalism of the tournament.

The Beavers are taking this week off to tune up for the Pac-10 Conference Championships being held May 1-3 in Seattle.

TEAM SCORES: U.S. International 879, California 879, Oregon State 883, Long Beach State 890, Oregon 891, San Diego State 896, Cal-State Northridge 896, Boise State 903, British Columbia 904, Washington State 907, Columbia Basin 915, Oregon "B" 919, Oregon State "B" 920, Portland State 930, Idaho 935.

OSU SCORES: Warren Vickers 208, Mark Bolton 226, Steve Altman 227, Alan Cockerham 229, Kirby Krupka 235.

JOE MILLER/The Daily Barometer

Alan Cockerham, a junior in business at OSU, sinks a putt on the 18th green to finish with a 76 in Saturday's first round of the Nike Northwest Collegiate Classic at the Trysting Tree Golf Course. U.S. International won with a score of 879, California was second 879, Oregon State third with a score of 883, and Long Beach State was fourth with 890.

Super Bowl runner-up selects Wilhelm in third round

By RICH PETERSON
of the Daily Barometer

The wait is over for Oregon State's record-setting quarterback Erik Wilhelm.

Sunday Wilhelm was selected in the late third round by the Cincinnati Bengals in the NFL draft. Wilhelm was the 83rd pick overall—the fifth quarterback selected in the draft. The lefthander from Lake Oswego was selected sooner than many national publications had predicted.

OSU wide receiver Robb Thomas was not selected in the first three rounds Sunday, but hopes to be picked today in the later rounds.

Wilhelm was selected behind Troy Aikman (UCLA), Mike Elkins (Wake Forest), Billy Joe Tolliver (Texas Tech) and

Anthony Dilwey (Duke). Quarterbacks Steve Walsh of Miami and Washington State's Timm Rosenbach will be eligible for selection in June's supplemental draft. USC's Rodney Peete was not selected in Sunday's first three rounds.

The top Oregon player selected was University of Oregon linebacker Scott Kozak, who was picked in the second round by Houston. The 6-3, 221 pound Kozak was the 50th pick overall. Oregon defensive end Matt Brock was selected No. 58 by Green Bay. The University of Florida provided the most players in the first round when three of their players were chosen. Florida State, Miami, Arkansas, Oklahoma State, Pitt and Michigan State had two selections each in the first round.

Dallas pick Troy Aikman—the first player chosen—was the only quarterback picked in the first round. Five running backs, six linemen and three wide receivers were the offensive choices. On defense, five linebackers, four linemen and four backs were first round picks.

Top picks were Aikman, Michigan's Tony Mandarich (Green Bay), Oklahoma State's Barry Sanders (Detroit), Alabama's Derrick Thomas (Kansas City) and Florida State's Deion Sanders (Atlanta).

UCLA dominated the early picks with Aikman, Carnell Lake (No. 34, Pittsburgh) and Eric Ball (35, Cincinnati). Other Pac-10 selections were: Arizona's Joe Tofflemire (44, Seattle), UCLA's Darryl Henley (53, L.A. Rams), California's Dave Zawatson (54, Chicago), Washington State's Mike Utley (59, Detroit) and Arizona's Derek Hill (61, Pittsburgh).

Washington's All-American guard Mike Zandofsky, who played prep football at Corvallis High School, was selected in the third round by the Phoenix Cardinals with the 67th pick.

Inclimate weather stops crew streak in Richland

By DENNIS NELSON
of the Daily Barometer

Oregon State's crew team placed second in the Tri-Cities Sports Festival in Richland, Wash., Saturday.

The loss to Washington State marks the first time that the Beavers have not won the combined trophy at the festival. Bad weather conditions on the lake put an end to the streak that the Beavers started in the first festival in 1982.

"We did not handle the conditions well," OSU women's coach Roger Payne said. "We have no way to be prepared for gusty winds and white caps on the race course because we never have those conditions on the Willamette River."

Washington State's women won all of the races that count toward the team trophy (novice 8, lightweight 8, JV 8, varsity 8). The Cougars also won the men's varsity 8 and JV 8 to clinch their victory. OSU didn't have a men's JV 8 and its men's varsity 8 was disqualified prior to the race.

Oregon State's men's varsity 8 crew was disqualified from the regatta when bad weather pushed the them onto the race course on their way to the starting line.

In the races that the two men's crews did compete against each other, the two teams tied in team points with four each.

"I'm a bit surprised at the outcome of the regatta," OSU men's coach Dave Emigh said. "I would have not predicted this outcome before the racing, however, practicing on the Willamette River doesn't prepare us for bad conditions because we seldom have rough water."

Gaining victories for the Beavers were the men's varsity 4 "A", men's freshman 8 and the women's novice lightweight 8.

The Beavers will return to action Saturday at 8 a.m. at the Alumni Day races in Corvallis. OSU will also be christening their four new boats on Saturday.

McClouskey hired full-time

By OSU Sports Information

Former Beaver guard Andy McClouskey has been named to the full-time assistant coaching staff of Oregon State basketball, it was announced Thursday by OSU head basketball coach Jim Anderson.

McClouskey returned to Corvallis last year as a part-time assistant after three years as the head coach at Mount Hood Community College in Gresham, Ore. There, he improved the struggling program each of the next three years — 5-19 in 1985, 11-15 in 1986 and 12-13 in 1987.

"...I'm excited to have the opportunity to pay my alma mater back."

ANDY McCLOUSKEY

He now joins another OSU graduate, former NBA star Freddie Boyd, as a full-time assistant to Anderson. Anderson will be entering his first year as OSU head coach after 30 years on the staff himself and succeeding retiring Hall of Famer Ralph Miller.

"I'm very happy to announce the promotion of Andy McClouskey within our program," Anderson said. "Through his outstanding work this past year and his overall abilities in the coaching field he has earned a spot on our staff. His addition to our full-time staff should greatly benefit the program."

The 1982 OSU graduate played as a walk-on with the Oregon State basketball program lettering in both 1978 and 1980. Injuries diminished his playing time, and his career ended after his sophomore season. He began his coaching career as a student assistant at Oregon State from 1980-1982.

"All my contacts, experience and background in the game of basketball are due to my relationship with Oregon State and now I am excited to have the opportunity to pay my alma mater back," McClouskey said. "The advancement is something I've obviously wanted for a long time and I'm looking forward to helping maintain the high level of OSU basketball that people have come to expect."

McClouskey starred at Lebanon High School in basketball scoring 1,709 points, which at the time ranked third in the state of Oregon's all-time scoring list behind ex-UCLA star Richard Washington and former OSU standout Swede Holbrook.

McClouskey walked on in 1980, the same year that OSU recruited Ray Blume, Mark Radford, Jeff Stout and Bill McShane. Even though McClouskey amassed the third-high prep point total in Oregon history, he was not a first team all-state selection.

Brauning keeps hitting streak alive as OSU wins pair

By DENNIS NELSON
of the Daily Barometer

Brent Hahn's bases loaded walk capped a three-run ninth inning rally, as Oregon State defeated Eastern Washington 12-11 in the nightcap of a Pac-10 North baseball doubleheader Sunday. The Beavers won the first game 14-2.

OSU senior second baseman Jeff Brauning got hits in both games extending his hitting streak to 27 games, one shy of the Pac-10 record set by Arizona's Jack Daugherty in 1982.

In the first game the Beavers recovered from deficits of 4-0, 9-6 and 11-9 to win the contest. The game was delayed after the sixth inning for 45 minutes because of rain.

The Beavers rallied in the ninth behind three singles and three walks. Freshman Bret Anderson got the win for the Beavers on the mound.

In the first game the Beavers tallied nine runs in the first inning behind a three-run double by Hahn and a three-run triple by Brauning.

OSU pitcher Jeff Otis got the win striking out seven, while only giving up four hits.

Saturday the Beavers dropped a double-header to Gonzaga losing the first game 6-5 and the nightcap 12-9.

In the first game OSU rallied from deficits of 3-0 and 5-3 to tie things up in the bottom of the seventh and eighth innings, before losing in the ninth. Dave Schoppe led a 10-hit attack for the Beavers with his third homerun of the year, in the eighth inning. Every OSU batter had at least one hit during the game. Ken Nielson took the loss for OSU, his season record dropped to 4-5.

In the nightcap the Beavers spotted the Bulldogs an early five run lead, before they came back to score three runs in the fourth inning to cut the lead to 5-4. OSU let Gonzaga get ahead again in the middle innings, before scoring four runs in the seventh to cut the lead to 9-8. Ben Johnson led the seventh inning rally with a two-run triple to the left centerfield gap. The Beavers couldn't come up with one last rally in final two innings, as they let the Bulldogs score three more runs.

Scott Sanders, Hahn and R.A. Nietzel all had two hits in the Beavers 10-hit attack. Todd Ledbetter picked up the loss for OSU. Ledbetter's record dropped to 3-4.

Oregon State, 5-7 and 14-19, will continue league play when they travel to University of Portland Wednesday.

Blazers grab last playoff spot with win

PORTLAND — The Portland Trail Blazers clinched the final berth in the Western Conference playoffs with a 126-120 overtime victory over the Sacramento Kings Sunday night.

Clyde Drexler led the Blazers with 40 points, four of them in overtime. Terry Porter added 25 points, 15 assists and eight rebounds as the Blazers made the playoffs for the 12th time in the past 13 years.

The victory edged out the Dallas Mavericks for the right to play against the Los Angeles Lakers in the best-of-five first round series which starts Thursday night in Inglewood.

The Blazers were in a must-win situation after Dallas beat Denver 113-96 earlier in the day. Portland blew a 13-point lead in the final six minutes regulation. Waymon Tisdale sank two free throws with 13 seconds remaining to force overtime.

The Blazers scored first five points of overtime to clinch the victory. Jerome Kersey added 25 points and 15 rebounds to help lead Portland. Caldwell Jones scored a season-high 11 points in the victory.

Portland ends the regular season with a 39-43 record.

Fifth-ranked Ducks sweep OSU

University of Oregon held Oregon State to five hits in two games as the fifth-ranked Ducks swept a softball doubleheader 6-0 and 10-0 Saturday at Ropes Field.

The Ducks scored four first-inning runs in the opener without getting a hit. OSU starter Cheryl Reeder struggled from the mound, walking four and hitting one batter.

Sandra Schoonover relieved Reeder with one out in the top of the first. Schoonover held the Ducks scoreless until the sixth inning when they recorded two runs putting the game out of reach.

Oregon starter Karie Wiese held the Beavers to two hits over seven innings, striking out two.

Oregon State also had trouble in the beginning of the nightcap, giving up five first-inning runs. Patti Russell started the game as the Ducks used five hits and one OSU error to take a 5-0 lead. The game was called after the fifth-inning because the Beavers trailed by ten runs.

"We're really frustrated right now," said OSU coach Vickie Dugan. "The Ducks really took it to us. Sandra Schoonover did a good job of pitching but by the time I got her in the first inning it was too late. We don't play well when it's raining and cold but obviously that needs to change because we play in Oregon." OSU will return to the diamond Friday when they play a doubleheader against Arizona State at 1:00 p.m. on Ropes Field.

Bird on playoff roster

United Press International

BOSTON — Larry Bird, who played in only six games before undergoing heel surgery in November, Sunday was placed on the Boston Celtics' playoff roster.

All 16 NBA teams in the post-season were required to submit their final 12-man rosters to the league office by midnight Sunday, the last day of the regular season.

Boston, 42-40, did not clinch a playoff berth until Sunday. The Celtics defeated the Charlotte Hornets 120-110 while the Washington Bullets, who finished ninth in the Eastern Conference at 40-42, lost 115-106 to the Philadelphia 76ers.

Bone spurs were removed from both of Bird's heels during the operation. The league's three-time MVP practiced with the team last week but has expressed concern that a pre-mature return could affect him next season, or have a permanent effect.

Seahawks settle for Notre Dame's Heck in first round

By DENNIS ANSTINE
United Press International

SEATTLE — The Seattle Seahawks settled for Notre Dame All-American tackle Andy Heck as their first-round pick in the NFL draft Sunday when the two defensive ends they coveted went earlier.

Coach Chuck Knox called Heck, 6-foot-7, 285 pounds, a quality player and a potential Pro Bowl offensive tackle. However, Heck wasn't the Seahawks' first choice.

"As we mentioned before," said Seahawk president Tom Flores, "we were looking for defensive help. We wanted Burt Grossman, but we couldn't trade down. Then Trace Armstrong went. Andy Heck was one of the possibilities we discussed if we didn't get an end, so we took him."

When Heck's name was announced, there was stunned silence among the assembled media at the team's draft headquarters since Heck had never been mentioned as a possible choice by the Seahawks, who picked 15th in the first round.

Heck's stock rose rapidly during the off-season, although he made many All-American teams in the Irish's national championship season. He was shifted to tackle for his senior year after playing tight end his first three years.

"We got a quality player in Andy Heck, who is a great athlete with Pro Bowl potential," said Knox. "We think he can play left tackle, which is the guy who usually goes against the best pass rushers. Since he played tight end he's got good quickness and agility for that position."

Heck, 22, talking from his apartment in South Bend, Ind., said he was surprised he went midway through the first round.

"This is a dream come true for me," Heck said. "I guess my stock has really risen. It's just unbelievable to be going to a solid team like the Seahawks."

Heck said he has been pumping weights and living on a high-carbohydrate diet since February, gaining about 15 pounds. He said he weighed 240 pounds after finishing his junior season as a tight end and 270 in January.

Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz also was surprised "Andy's stock has risen so high since the season ended. But you all got yourself an excellent pick."

"He's a class act in every respect," said Holtz. "He's intelligent and has exceptional morale values, and he's a very positive person. He's also very durable and has tremendous work habits."

Seattle's starting tackles last season were Ron Mattes, who played on the left side during his third year in the NFL, and veteran Mike Wilson, who will be entering his 12th season in 1989.

Kareem says goodbye with win

By MIKE BARNES

United Press International

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Magic Johnson scored 29 points and equaled his season-high of 21 assists Sunday to send the Los Angeles Lakers to a 121-117 victory over the Seattle SuperSonics in the final regular-season game for Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

The Lakers, owners of the best record in the Western Conference for the eighth straight year, tied Cleveland for the NBA's second-best record at 57-25. They begin their quest for a third straight NBA title Thursday night at home against either Portland or Dallas.

The Sonics, 47-35 after their eight-game winning streak was snapped, meet either Houston or Denver in their first round series beginning Friday at the Seattle Coliseum.

Xavier McDaniel led the Sonics with a season-high 39 points and Dale Ellis contributed 27. James Worthy added 24 points and Byron Scott had 19 for the Lakers.

Abdul-Jabbar, saluted at the Forum before the game on the final stop of his season-long retirement tour, had 10 points and finished his 20-year regular-season career with an NBA record 38,389.

The Sonics scored 8 unanswered points to close to within 102-99 with 6:18 left, and they trailed by only 108-105 with four minutes to play. But the Lakers put together an 8-2 burst, climaxed by Johnson's feed to Abdul-Jabbar for a dunk with two minutes left, and the Sonics never threatened again.

The Lakers, who have won five straight games, trailed 67-65 at halftime but used a 24-12 burst to take their largest lead at 89-79 with 3:36 left in the third quarter. Scott canned a 3-pointer and A.C. Green tipped in a rebound to conclude the spurt, and Los Angeles carried a 92-88 edge into the final period.

Johnson, who broke his 2-year-old team record for assists in a season and fell just 1 rebound short of his 18th triple-double this season, poured in 18 points in the second quarter to help the Lakers recover from a 13-point deficit to trail by only 2 at the break.

With McDaniel and Ellis each scoring 6 points, the Sonics had closed the first quarter with a 17-9 burst to take a 38-29 lead. Seattle then expanded its advantage to 42-29 on Derrick McKey's hook with 10:35 left before intermission.

However, Johnson collected 6 points and 2 assists in a 15-6 burst that got Los Angeles to within 48-44 with 6:34 left. The Laker playmaker then struck for four 3-pointers in a 3:15 span to keep the champions close.

Women getting less sun

United Press International

BOSTON — American women have apparently sharply reduced the amount of time they spend in the sun trying to get a tan, primarily because they are afraid of getting skin cancer, a survey released Thursday said.

The nationwide survey of 500 women ages 25 to 35, conducted by Opinion Research Corp. for SELF magazine and the American Academy of Dermatology, found:

—62 percent of the women surveyed said they get less sun now than they did 10 years ago, when the government first advised protecting the skin from the harmful effects of the sun.

—69 percent of the women cited fear of skin cancer as the main reason they had changed their habits, although less leisure time was a factor for an equal number.

—Only 27 percent of young women plan winter vacations to get a suntan.

—68 percent of women still believe they look more attractive and 69 percent think they look healthier with a tan.

ENDORSEMENT

V.P. for Senate not endorsed

Eric Sorem is best qualified for V.P. for Committees

We endorse Eric Sorem for the position of vice president for committees. He is the best qualified in terms of his knowledge of how the system operates and his goals for change.

He presents himself as a candidate that is genuinely interested in the welfare of ASOSU and is well-informed of the responsibilities of the vice president for committees. Sorem has stated that as a member of the ASOSU Executive Committee, he will be concerned with the issues of increased lighting on campus, grade averaging policy, increased parking on campus and campus security. We believe these issues need to be pursued and that Sorem will see that they receive the attention of the committee.

His goals include increasing the visibility of ASOSU to help fight the apathy so apparent on this campus, as well as make a stronger effort at recruitment, so that more students can become involved. In addition, he said he plans to redefine the role of the vice president in order to better supervise the various committees. Sorem also would like to start the committees up earlier during fall term, so that more can be accomplished.

His opponent, Linda King, is interested in increasing the diversity of the ASOSU senate and the amount of school spirit within the campus. As an older-than-average student, she has a greater amount of outside experience, but lacks the tangible goals that Sorem presents in his campaign.

Overall, we believe that Eric Sorem would be the best choice for the position of vice president for committees.

In the race for vice president for senate, we, the editorial board, have decided not to make an endorsement.

We do not support Lori Huff on the basis of her views on campus issues, nor do we feel compelled to endorse write-in candidate Eric Forrest. We believe Forrest should have made his intentions known earlier in the election process.

Arriola for Science Senator

To the editor:

Awareness, responsibility and assertiveness are three qualities that have enabled Darcy Arriola to become one of the most productive members of Senate. Despite being the youngest member of Senate, Darcy has demonstrated a level of competence and leadership which I feel greatly exceeds that of some of her ASOSU colleagues.

Darcy was selected by the Science Council during fall term, when the position of Science Senator became vacant. Since then, she has been an integral part of the Educational Activities Committee, and has spearheaded a number of legislative efforts, one being a campaign against the proposed tuition hike. When I learned that Darcy would be running for Science Senator this spring, my optimism for the future of ASOSU was greatly increased. We need someone with her awareness of the issues; her sense of responsibility to act accordingly; and the assertiveness that has allowed her to do so this year. We need her experience.

I urge you to vote for our most qualified candidate for Science Senator, Darcy Arriola.

Huff for Student Fees Committee

To the editor:

I endorse John "Johnny" Huff for the position of Student Fees Committee member. I know he will do the best possible job he can. He has a great personality which helps him to get along with most everyone. He has committed to representing the students of OSU in a fight against tuition increases. I know he will represent OSU students fairly. Vote John "Johnny" Huff for Student Fees Committee.

Vote Lori Huff for V.P. of Senate

To the editor:

I am proud to endorse a candidate with as much experience as Lori Huff. She has served on the appropriations and budget committee, search committee for V. P. of University Relations, ASOSU Business Senator, and has actively participated 100 percent in the senate. She is currently working on a resolution to sponsor the Governor's proposal to STATE fund Kerr library.

10 - The Daily Barometer, Monday April 24, 1989

She has proven to be a great asset to ASOSU and I would like to see her serving as Vice President of Senate. I know that when she gets into office she will represent the students of OSU. I encourage you to vote for Lori Huff for Vice President of Senate.

Tim Wood for ASOSU president

To the editor:

When we students go to the polls to elect our ASOSU leaders for the coming year, we want to vote for people who understand how ASOSU works. We want to choose those who can effectively work with the Oregon Student Lobby to help convince the State Legislature of student needs. And we want someone with a proven leadership record. It is for these four reasons that Tim Wood should be our next ASOSU President.

As the current ASOSU State Affairs Task Force Director, Tim has worked closely with the ASOSU Senate, the other Task Force Directors and the ASOSU Executive Committee. From these efforts, Tim has come to understand how each segment of ASOSU works. Since Tim is already familiar with the structure of ASOSU, he won't have to spend an entire term getting acquainted with the procedures.

In his capacity in the State Affairs Task Force, Tim serves as our lobbyist. As such, he has spent many days at the Oregon State Legislature testifying to committees and talking personally with legislators about issues affecting students. Also, Tim is very actively involved with the Oregon Student Lobby and is a well-respected voice in their organization. Clearly, Tim is the only student on this campus with such an important network in Salem.

Finally, Tim has a record. Tim developed a voter's forum program last November to encourage student participation at the polls. He also fought extensively against semester conversion. Tim has made student government one of his top priorities and would continue to do so throughout his term as president.

Obviously, Tim Wood is the candidate who meets our needs. He deserves our vote and we deserve him.

Johnny Huff for V.P. of Finance

To the editor:

We hereby endorse John "Johnny" Huff for Vice President of Finance. Not only will Johnny bring dedication and commitment to ASOSU, but he brings much practical experience. He has had three years of experience working with banks on real estate loans. He understands the budgeting process and will see to it that the students are fairly represented. With his experience and dedication, we feel he is the best candidate for the position. Vote John "Johnny" Huff for Vice President of Finance.

Perkins for V.P. of Finance

To the editor:

Cory Perkins would make an outstanding Vice President of Finance. I have worked with Cory many times in the past and know that he is capable and willing to work hard for ASOSU.

This last year Cory served as a dedicated member of the Senior Class Council. Cory did much more than just attend the meetings, he was always willing to contribute his time and expertise to the council. Cory chaired two Senior Class projects.

During the past five years I have been involved in almost every aspect of student activities and have seen what qualities make a good student leader. It is without hesitation that I recommend Cory Perkins for Vice President of Finance.

ENDORSEMENT LETTERS

Vote Tim Wood for ASOSU president

To the editor:

Strong leadership, innovative ideas, and a sincere desire to work in the best interests of OSU students, these are qualities that must be present in the ASOSU president. Tim Wood has these qualities, and more, that make him your best choice for next year's top student leader.

Tim's experience as this year's State Affairs Task Force director, and as an influential member of the Oregon Student Lobby clearly qualifies him as the most experienced candidate on the ballot. Tim worked successfully to prevent semester conversion. He is currently leading the campaign against the proposed 10 percent tuition increase. He has voiced his support of several issues at the State Legislature: campus security and funding for a childcare facility at OSU are just two examples. Tim is one of the most well-known and well-respected student leaders in Oregon at this time.

Tim's qualifications and experience will provide students with exactly what they need for 1989-90: strong, caring and dedicated leadership. Remember to vote, and when you do, mark your ballot for Tim Wood as next year's ASOSU president.

Durham for liberal arts senator

To the editor:

This letter is to serve as the United Black Student Association's formal endorsement of Mischa Durham for the position of College of Liberal Arts senator.

Mischa has a strong capacity to succeed in a position such as this. She is very goal-oriented and finishes what she starts. She also has a willingness and ability to work hard and do a good job.

In the past she has shown strong sensitivity toward the needs of all people. She is serious-minded, honest and dependable. Above all, Mischa is sincere in all her endeavors. I strongly endorse her in this effort.

Sincerely,

Lupe Garcia for liberal arts senator

To the editor:

This letter is to serve as the United Black Student Association's formal endorsement of Lupe Garcia for the position of College of Liberal Arts senator.

In the past, Lupe has displayed leadership qualities in his efforts with the Hispanic Student Union and on the Cinco de Mayo Committee. He is currently a writer for the Barometer and a journalism major at Oregon State University.

I have found Lupe to be a good listener. He is also very dedicated and dependable. He has developed a strong interest in politics and a desire to support an agenda for a wide range of students. I know that he will equally and fairly represent the needs of all students. Lupe has my strongest endorsement.

Sincerely,

April J. Law

Liberal arts needs Kelly Munger

To the editor:

The College of Liberal Arts (CLA) needs a hard working senator, and Kelly Munger is such a person. In the two quarters he has been at Oregon State University, Kelly has facilitated several changes for the betterment of all students. As a resident of West International House, he championed a drive to designate specific alcohol consumption zones within the house. He single-handedly established the Oregon State Field Hockey Club Sport program. Included in this task were compiling rules and information about the game, recruiting members and organizing competition across the nation and international borders. Additionally, Kelly has participated in ASOSU meetings as a gallery observer, and he is familiar with the in's and out's of ASOSU.

Kelly's open personality, insight and organizational abilities would bring added depth to the Senate. Support Kelly Munger for ASOSU CLA senator.

Cory Perkins a dedicated candidate

To the editor:

Student Government works for the students if the right people are elected to the positions. The vice president of finance oversees ASOSU's budget, which is well over $200,000. As an executive officer, he must be dedicated and able to communicate. As vice president of finance, he must be responsible and experienced.

In the three years I've known Cory, he has exhibited the maturity, responsibility and dedication that is essential for an executive position on ASOSU. His knowledge of financial administration is an asset supremely suited for the position of vice president of finance. I give my whole-hearted support to Cory Perkins for the position of vice president of finance.

Outlawed party says US bases must be dismantled

United Press International

MANILA, Philippines — The outlawed political arm of the communist guerrillas who assassinated a U.S. Army colonel said Sunday it would join any group or party in ousting the U.S. military presence from the Philippines.

The National Democratic Front (NDF) issued its offer Sunday pressing for a U.S. withdrawal. The NDF is an outlawed alliance of 13 left-wing organizations, including the Communist Party of the Philippines and its military arm, the 25,000-strong New People's Army.

Meanwhile, police said they have no leads into the assassination of U.S. Army Col. James (Nick) Rowe Friday, an official of the Joint U.S. Military Advisory Group and highly-decorated Vietnam War hero. The communist guerrillas, who have been battling the Manila government for 20 years, Saturday claimed responsibility for the slaying.

Army Col. James "Nick" Rowe, spent five years as a prisoner of the Viet Cong and was one of only 34 Americans to escape captivity in Vietnam. A Green Beret member of U.S. Special Forces, the highly decorated Rowe detailed his 1963 capture, his years of captivity and his escape on New Year's Eve 1968 in his book, "Five Years to Freedom."

He was awarded, among other decorations, the Silver Star, the Legion of Merit, two Bronze Stars and two Purple Hearts.

A military source Sunday said six people, including three policemen, were killed in separate clashes between rebels and government troops over the weekend.

The rebels accused the United States and its personnel on the island of aiding President Corazon Aquino's counterinsurgency campaign.

"It is Aquino's regime — instigated and supported by U.S. imperialism — that is pressing for war," the NDF's statement said.

"Major traditional political parties and independent groups could form an alliance with the National Democratic Forces for the immediate dismantling of the U.S. military bases and total opposition to U.S. intervention in the nations affairs," said the statement, signed by spokesman Satur Ocampo.

Farmers near goals for soil conservation plans

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Conservation plans have been written for 78 percent of the highly erodible cropland in the nation and Dec. 31 is the deadline for the rest of the plans, the Soil Conservation Service said Friday.

Wilson Scaling, head of the agency, said plans have been written for 105.4 million acres of the 139 million acres of highly erodible cropland.

The agency said plans have been followed on 21 percent of the acreage. The 1985 law set a 1995 deadline for making changes, which could range from changing tillage methods to installation of soil-saving terraces and grassways.

Scaling said the agency estimated that 1.4 million plans will be written, compared to the initial estimate of 800,000. The increase is due to decisions by farmers to write plans for tracts rather than a single plan to cover the entire farm.

Survey shows 22 states would restrict abortions if Court ruling overturned

United Press International

WASHINGTON — A state-by-state survey released Sunday showed that 22 states would severely restrict abortions if the Supreme Court overturned the landmark Roe vs. Wade decision legalizing abortion.

The survey, conducted by Newsweek magazine, also found that at least 12 states and the District of Columbia would opt for few restrictions on abortion and 16 other states shaped up as definite battlegrounds, with opinions too tough to predict.

The Supreme Court is scheduled Wednesday to hear oral arguments in a Missouri case, Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services, that may reverse or revise Roe vs. Wade. A decision is expected this summer.

In a state-by-state breakdown, the survey found:

— Those states likely to restrict abortions included Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, West Virginia and Wyoming.

— Those states likely to maintain legal abortions included Alaska, California, Delaware, Hawaii, Iowa, Maine, Maryland, New Mexico, North Dakota and Oregon. The District of Columbia is also included in the group.

— Those states likely to serve as a battleground included Colorado, Connecticut, Georgia, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, Virginia and Wisconsin.

Animal rights protestors hit US Surgical

By LOIS FECTEAU

United Press International

NORWALK, Conn. — Animal rights activist Cleveland Amory led hundreds of chanting protesters Friday outside U.S. Surgical Corp., demanding the company halt the use of live dogs to demonstrate its products.

"They are stapling and torturing thousands of dogs, not for medical advances but for profit," said Amory, president of the New York-based Fund for Animals.

U.S. Surgical contends the use of live dogs is necessary and vital for research and to train surgeons in the use of the company's surgical stapling products which replace the need for stitches.

"In my opinion, Leon Hirsch would staple his mother if she was on four legs," Amory said, referring to the chairman of U.S. Surgical.

The protest was the first of several by animal rights groups across the country to mark "World Week for Laboratory Animals," said Priscilla Feral, president of Friends of Animals of Norwalk.

"Inside these walls, commerce is king," said Feral, whose group organized the demonstration.
