Joel Palmer

Dear Sir:

It was with some surprise that I heard you had gone into, what is usually called, the Astoria RR enterprise. Supposing from your genl knowledge of the Geography, & Topography of our State, that you had taken a very wild & improper step for the real good of the state.

And being confident that you were patriotic, I knew that you must be deceived in your estimate of the different points for a commercial city, & home market for the state.

But being informed by Mr. Giltnar, who saw you at Portland, that you had not, heretofore, any knowledge of "Columbia City" on this river, the eligibility & beauty of the city site, the depth and width of the water, the ease with which it can be approached by R.R., and every other way, etc. etc., but that you had recently become somewhat posted on these matters, I take the liberty of writing you hastily.

We ask you to come down and see this accomlike river, our city site, and its great advantages.

Portland is so emious at any place, that no pains are spared to keep the facts from being known. and now, the property holds are doing all in their power for the Astoria R R or against this place.

And now, if Judge W can prevent it, as I suppose he can, we shall get no grant of land; while Astro-ria is almost sure of a grant by his efforts. And altho' he is positively instructed by a memorial in our favor by the State Legislature, yet he will not hear. This is my opinion of the Hon Judge, and we shall see what we shall see.

Knowing the extreme envy & jealousy of Portland, I did not apply to any of their papers, through which ^{to set} the facts of the eligibility, and advantages of this, as a location before the people; but I did apply to S A Clark of Salem. He promptly refused; stating that it moved him too much affection to Portland.

Then, supposing the "Pacific Blade" being a west side paper, and ours being a west side measure - though not opposing the east side, but the editor refused to publish my essays. Altho, I offered no other place on the globe, but simply pointed out some facts, in the advocacy of our own.

'Tis hard that even the editors, on the ^{natural} west side did not allow the resources, the west of our part of the state to be published. I had been of opinion that it was the entertaining business of a news paper in a new & undeveloped country, to give to the public all possible information of commercial sites, improvements, & the various local advantages.

I have gone in person and visited every locality within the limits of our State, that seemed to have any merit, as a commercial point, where we could have ocean steam navigation, and I give my preference to this, as to far superior, that there is no comparison at all.

And but for this conviction, I should not have been here. Many in Portland say that if we get a RR here, that the property in P. will be worth comparatively nothing, and that it would soon become populous with owls & bats.

They say that this would so over shadow it, it would be no longer a commercial city.
Ocean steamers can come here with perfect ease & safety;

The true policy of the state is, to select the most suitable place for a commercial city for the State, and concentrate all the RRs in that direction.

This would give us some 50, or ~~1000~~ one hundred thousand inhabitants in it within the course of time, and then the State would have a home market for every thing produced, and also a foreign commerce.

Then we could get full price for our produce; now, we send it out of our State, & get about half its real value. Californians get just about double what we do. Portland never can become a com. city; Astoria never can become a com. city. Nature has marked out this place, and in my opinion it is the only ^{place} in this State, and instead of aiding other states and territories, we should help ourselves to a com. city, and a home market.
Give ^{your true}
