May 1982. xxxviii, 259 pp. Jakarta, Indonesia. In Eng, Ind.

This publication contains preliminary results from the 1980 census of Indonesia. The results pertain to a 10 percent subsample of the detailed questionnaires, which were distributed to 5 percent of the total population. Most of the data are at the national level, although cross-classifications by island and province, rural and urban area, age group, and sex are provided in some cases.

Data are included on population by age, sex, marital status, and relationship to head of household; place of birth and of previous and present residence; educational status and school attendance; language; literacy; female age at first marriage; fertility, including average number of children ever born and still living by mother's age; contraceptive usage; economic activity; and households.
