

December 10th, 1936

My dear Robert:

Thank you for sending me a copy of your letter of November 22nd to Sam. Sam has sent me also a copy of his letter to you. I realize how much work it will be to divide up the estate and I am sorry that I am unable to help you. I hope that the strain will not be bad for your health. I remember very well when our father divided the Foster estate. It was quite a task and I remember that he told me that nobody thanked him. I hope we will not have such an ungrateful state of things this time. Papa did a very good job and was entitled to thanks. It took him two years to do it.

I was surprised to hear from Harry that Edith had been in a sanitarium. I hope that she was there because the family was away and that she would have been lonesome so far from town. Please keep me posted as to how she is, as well as any news of the children.

Next Thursday I am going up to Portland for a couple of weeks. The regular University vacation begins then and so the Museum will be closed. It is a good time to be away.

I stay at the Heathman Hotel and I have heard that I can probably have the same rooms that I had last year and the year before when I was there. My friend Mrs Lyon, who has been with me up there before, is going with me. When I am in Eugene, Mabel Klockars Garner divides her time in three parts: her work in the Museum proper, her work here with me at the hotel, more or less connected with the Museum, and her time at home with her husband in North Bend, Oregon.

I have been in much better health this winter than I have been for the last couple of years. The work in the Museum gives me a diversified interest. It is astonishing the things there are to attend to. For example the wife of the Vice-president of the University while in England last summer

December 10th, 1933

My dear Robert:

Thank you for sending me a copy of your letter of November 23rd to Sam. Sam has sent me also a copy of his letter to you. I realize how much work it will be to divide up the estate and I am sorry that I am unable to help you. I hope that the estate will not be bad for your health. I remember very well when our father divided the Foster estate. It was quite a task and I remember that he told me that nobody thanked him. I hope we will not have such an unpleasant estate of things this time. Papa did a very good job and was entitled to thanks. It took him two years to do it.

I was surprised to hear from Harry that Edith had been in a sanitarium. I hope that she was there because the family was away and that she would have been someone so far from home. Please keep me posted as to how she is, as well as any news of the children.

Next Thursday I am going up to Portland for a couple of weeks. The regular University vacation begins then and so the museum will be closed. It is a good time to be away.

I stay at the Westman Hotel and I have heard that I can probably have the same room that I had last year and the year before when I was there. My friend Mrs. Lyon, who has been witness up there before, is going with me. When I am in Eugene, Isabel Klochka Garner divides her time in three parts: her work in the Museum proper, her work here with me at the hotel, more or less connected with the Museum, and her time at home with her husband in North Bend, Oregon.

I have been in much better health this winter than I have been for the last couple of years. The work in the Museum gives me a diversified interest. It is astonishing the things there are to attend to. For example the wife of the Vice-president of the University while in England last summer