Dear Gertrude:

A few days ago I received a letter from William Bass which I send you herewith. Of course under the circumstances it would be foolish to send any further money. I am therefore closing the account and am returning to you herewith check for $112.50 which is the unexpended balance of your contribution to this fund.

After talking with Robert I have written Mr. Bass acknowledging his letter and advising him that if conditions should change at any time in the future that you and Robert trust that he will not fail to advise you as it is your desire to be of any assistance you can when it is needed. We thought that this was about all that we could do.

The Government has made an adverse ruling in our Estate tax matter, and we are going to have quite a vigorous fight. Sam called me on long distance last week with the result that I got the Century for Boston on Wednesday. I had meetings Thursday and Friday with Mr. McLane, Sam and Robert, in which we laid out our program and on Friday Robert, Perkins and I left for Chicago. We have been very busy ever since, and I know it is Robert's desire to get away for Arizona tonight. Perkins is going to stay on with me for several weeks. I am going to try to make a real estater out of him.

Sam and Helen looked quite well. I saw Murray only for a second and that was in his father's office. Dear old Boston was full of rain. The only subject of conversation was the Yale-Harvard game. I hope things are going nicely with you.

Sincerely yours,

Harry Edmunds.

The Government has made an advance ruling in our State tax matter, and we are going to have quite a vigorous fight. We called me on long distance last week with the result that I got the Secretary for Boston on Wednesday. I had meetings Thursday and Friday with Mr. Holmes, Sam and Robert, in which we laid out our program and on Friday Robert, Perkins and I left for Chicago. We have been very busy ever since, and I know it is Robert's desire to get away for a business tonight. Perkins is going to stay on with me for several weeks. I am going to try to make a real matter out of this.

Sam and Helen looked quite well. I saw Murray only for a second and that was in his father's office. Don't get too far off of him. The only subject of conversation was the late Harvard case. I hope things are going nicely with you.

Sincerely yours,

W. C. Edwards
