My dear Mr. Barker:

Speaking of the finances that we are undertaking to swing next Fall, it has suddenly occurred to me that I have two hundred dollars to the good in the administration office. This is the way it has come about: Mabel Klockars Garner's brother, Virgil Klockars, has been at the University on a scholarship from me at the rate of two hundred dollars a term. Just before the beginning of the last term something happened at his home that necessitated his leaving the University. While I greatly regret that he should have to leave before completing his year, it has released the two hundred dollars that was to have been used as a scholarship for him during the Spring term. I am going to transfer this money to the fund for Mr. Harada's salary. I thought you might like to know that I have made a start toward covering my next year's indebtedness.

The party last Thursday went off very well, I think. My only regret was that everybody could not sit next to our Japanese friends.

As for that other matter you wrote me about - please do as seems best to you.

With kindest regards,

Sincerely yours
