PRESIDENT BALLARD

President Ballard

First Oregon State graduate to become president of the college was the distinction gained by Frank L. Ballard when he took over the duties of that office July 1. As a student of the college, Ballard began his years of service as Barometer editor. In this capacity he was the driving force behind the establishment of the first journalism course at Oregon State.

He was a field agent in marketing for the state college. ⒸRapid advancement found him successively assistant county agent leader, state county agent leader, vice director of extension service, professor of extension methods and a member of a committee of three from the land grant colleges named to conduct negotiations with the budget director and before congress. In state affairs Ballard has played a leading role in many forms of agricultural development. National recognition places him as a leading administrative and organization expert. In naming Ballard as president, the state board gave Oregon State an open-minded, courageous leader who combines driving force with perseverance and the courage of his own convictions.

Governor Sprague

Popular with his associates and well-known throughout the state for his speaking and writing ability, Governor Sprague has shown a lively interest in the development of education in Oregon. Publisher of the Oregon Statesman since 1929, he took office in 1939. With an excellent public record, Governor Sprague looks forward to two more years of service to Oregon.

Chancellor Hunter

Coming to Oregon from the University of Denver in 1935 to be chancellor of the state board of higher education, Dr. Frederick M. Hunter has played a prominent part in the growth and development of Oregon State college. "For providing schools such as OSC the State of Oregon asks the loyalty of each student to our democratic ideals."

State Board of Higher Education

A law passed by the state legislature in 1929 created the state board of higher education to provide unified management, control, support and operation of the state institutions of higher education. Since July 1, 1931, the board has administered all funds for state-supported higher educational activities. Board members are

Willard L. Marks, Albany, president; C. D. Byrne, Eugene, secretary; E. C. Sammons, Portland; Mac Hoke, Pendleton; F. E. Callister, Albany; R. C. Groesbeck, Klamath Falls; C. A. Brand, Roseburg; Beatrice W. Sackett, Marshfield; Edgar W. Smith, Portland, and Robert W. Ruhl, Medford.

Administrative Council

Created for the purpose of deciding upon the questions of institutional policy and administration, the Administrative council is the legislative body of the faculty of Oregon State college. Recommendations are made to the council by standing or special committees through which are coordinated the suggestions of faculty and students. The Administrative council includes the president of the college, the deans of the several schools or divisions, a professor of military science and tactics, the executive secretary, the registrar, the librarian and such other members as the president may designate.

Dean of Women

Each year, new and old students are welcomed by Oregon State's beloved dean of women, Mrs. Kate W. Jameson. With the college for 17 years, Mrs. Jameson is noted for her nearly infallible memory. She reminds us that "Life at Oregon State is not all work. There are many opportunities for play and recreation."

Dean of Men

"The campus is a mighty busy place and you will have to watch your step if you are to succeed," cautions Ulysses G. Dubach, Oregon State's efficient dean of men. Instructive advice to the students and fairness in his dealings are outstanding in his personality and character. American national government is one of the dean's major interests.

Agriculture

Weighing up some feed.

Alice Hamilton and Gloria Philippi judge some stock.

Organized in 1908, Oregon State's school of agriculture is the oldest branch of instruction on the campus. Since the first courses in soil analysis, stock breeding, fertility, farm planning and horticulture were given in 1869, the school of agriculture has expanded to include major curricula in general agriculture, agricultural economics, animal industries, horticulture, plant industries, agricultural education, agricultural engineering or soil conservation engineering and agricultural technology. Dean W. A. Schoenfeld stands for progressive leadership. Training is available for 180 specific agricultural occupations. Annual activities of the Agricultural club include a smoker with rural sports competition, publication of the Journal and exhibits.

DEAN W. A. SCHOENFELD

Forestry

Paul Bunyan is prominent at the Foresters' ball.

Mural in the forestry building.

With enthusiastic leadership and the unlimited forest background of Oregon, the school of forestry, now directed by Dean Earl G. Mason, has become one of the outstanding large forestry schools in the nation. Eighty-five percent of the graduates find employment in their chosen field, to become instructors, rangers, nurserymen and U. S. Indian service workers. Conspicuous on Wednesdays are the red ties of the Forestry club. A weekly newspaper, Hi-Lead, and the school yearbook, Annual Cruise, are published by the club and a weekly radio program is put on over KOAC. Foresters go social at the "Fernhoppers" banquet and ball each year. One day of spring term club members gather at the Peavy arboretum to clean and polish that sylvan showcase.

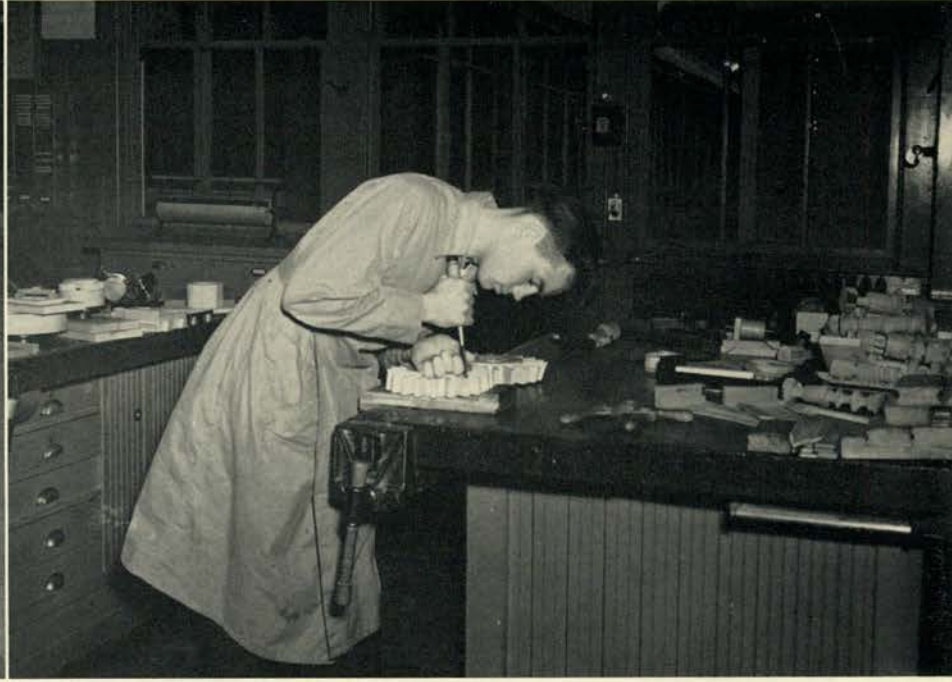

DEAN EARL G. MASON

Engineering and Industrial Arts

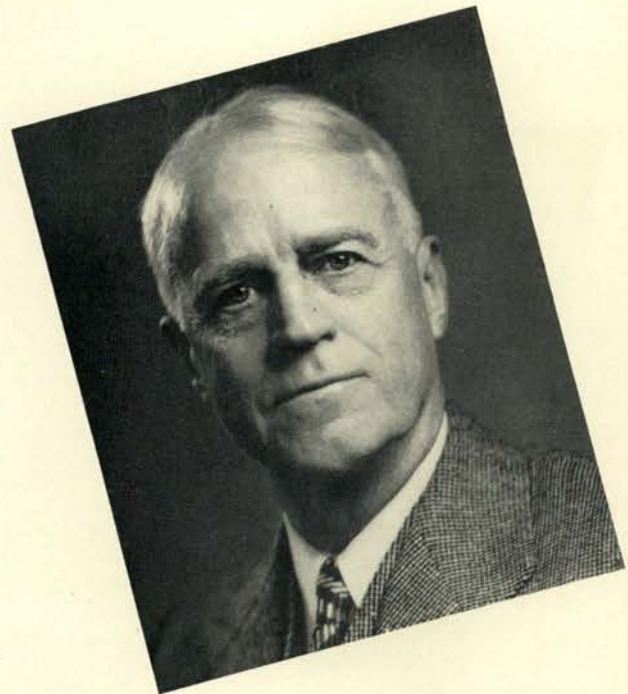

Surveyors are familiar figures on the campus.

Turning out a wood product in the industrial arts shop.

With a steadily increasing enrollment now amounting to 1091, as compared with 856 in 1937-38, the school of engineering and industrial arts, under Dean R. H. Dearborn, is largest of the eight major schools. Here students are trained for technical work in five fields, chemical, civil, electrical, mechanical engineering and industrial arts. The department of mechanical engineering has conducted the CAA pilot training course since the fall of 1939 and graduated 83 full-fledged pilots. Recent tests for the Willamette Valley project and improvements in road materials for the State Highway commission have given this department further notice. The OSC engineering school is accredited by the National Engineers' Council for Professional Development, so that our graduates rank with the best.

DEAN R. H. DEARBORN

Education

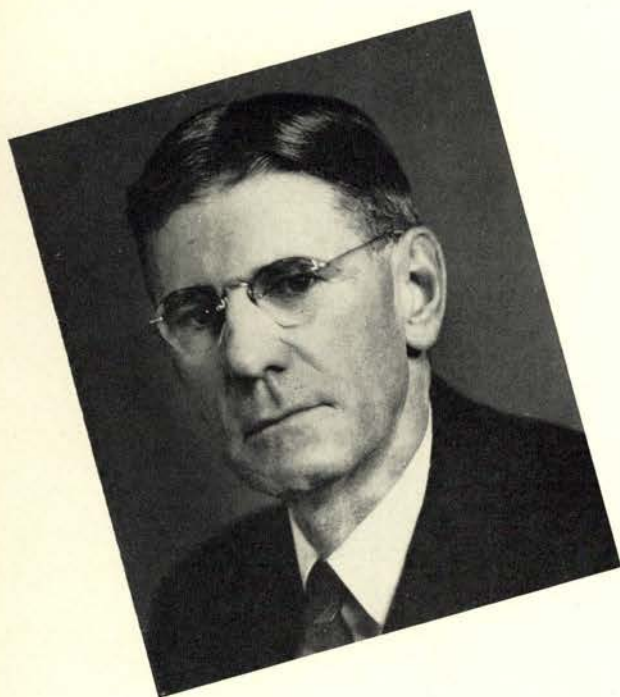

Student teacher in action at Corvallis High.

Taking a test in the education lab.

Because of increased enrollment, the school of education shifted from Shepard hall to the second floor of the newly-remodeled "chem shack" of past years, now renamed "education hall". Located there is the nucleus of a school, headed by Assistant Dean Carl W. Salser, that reaches out everywhere on the campus and into the junior and senior high-schools of Corvallis, Philomath and Albany, where practice teaching proves classroom theory. In guidance and counseling, many of the graduate students find a broad scope of interesting courses. Professional degrees of E.M. and Ed.D. are granted in education, as well as M.A., M.S., B.A. and B.S. for completion of the regular requirements. About one-third of all advanced degrees are awarded in this department.

DEAN CARL W. SALSER

Home Economics

Measuring for a dress.

Home ec students have modern equipment with which to work.

Lead by Dean Ava B. Milam, 600 girls study the art and science of home economics in this school. The curricula vary widely, including courses dealing with family life, nutrition, cookery, clothing, textiles, child development, household management and institutional economics. With two units of the three-unit home economics building, two practice houses, a nursery school and a tearoom in the Memorial Union building, home economics is well-housed. Graduates of OSC's home economics school find themselves fitted for many positions; the progressive staff continues to uphold its fine national reputation. Three different undergraduate curricula lead to the degrees of M.A. and M.S.

DEAN AVA B. MILAM

School of Science

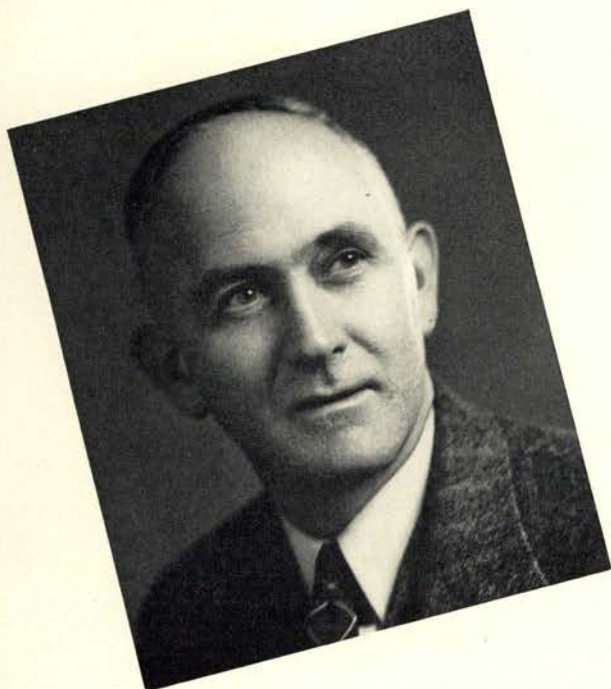

Models are a big help in studying zoology.

Microscopes are important in science work.

Established at Oregon State college in 1932, the school of science offers both undergraduate and graduate courses and degrees of B.A., B.S., M.A., M.S. and Ph.D. to its students. Courses vary widely in the nine major divisions, which include bacteriology, botany, chemistry, zoology, geology, pre-medics, pre-nursing, physics and mathematics. Dean F. A. Gilfillan assumed his office in 1938. Through the fact that science is basic to industrial progress, great opportunities exist for those who have completed only the regular curriculum. The Science club, composed of students in that school, gives the Sciomix each fall for all OSC students.

DEAN F. A. GILFILLAN

Department of Secretarial Science

Academic office procedure in a more practical setting.

Vance gives counsel to a pair of future secretaries.

The school of secretarial science has for 32 years shaped students to be valuable assets of industry—particularly for their secretarial and accounting services. Under the able leadership of Dean Herbert T. Vance, students are trained with completely modern equipment. Secretarial science graduates have great opportunity to adjust promptly in the business world through the many types of work available in business and professional offices. Radio shorthand contests and the annual state typing contest for high school students are conducted by Phi Chi Theta, honor society for women in commerce. Women who have a grade point average of 3. or above are eligible for membership in the society.

DEAN HERBERT T. VANCE

Lower Division of Liberal Arts and Sciences

Copy editors in action under the watchful eye of Prof Mac.

The Dean and Miss Fulkerson talk it over with a student.

Students undecided on their vocations are encouraged to register in the lower division of liberal arts and sciences school, which provides education as a supplement to later special training. Divided between Oregon State and University of Oregon, the lower division's major work in biological and physical sciences is located here, with the social sciences at the university. This school is maintained on a broad basis through registration of students in non-specialized lower division for their first two years. Dean and director of the lower division, M. Ellwood Smith, has held his title since 1932. Forum discussions on current topics and school meetings comprise lower division activities.

DEAN M. ELLWOOD SMITH

School of Pharmacy

Preparing a prescription.

Arranging a display in the model drug store.

Largely composed of men but including a few women, the school of pharmacy offers students thorough training in their own model drug store, a fully-equipped unit. Here they get actual practice in making up prescriptions and medical formulas. Two curricula are given, practical and professional pharmacy, leading to degrees of B.S. and M.S. Adolph Ziefle, dean of the school of pharmacy since 1917, has played an active part in its development. Many graduates enter practical drug store work, others represent manufacturing drug firms, while many of the women become pharmacists in hospitals. A member of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy, the school is accredited by the American Council on Pharmaceutical Education.

DEAN ADOLPH ZIEFLE

Graduate Division

Assistant Dean Weniger talks it over with a couple of graduate students.

Graduate student Dick Highland at work on his thesis.

Graduate study at Oregon State college includes all that beyond the bachelor's degree. It endeavors to develop scholars capable of original thinking and of creative achievement in the continuance of knowledge. This division of instruction was placed under the administrative control of the graduate school in 1899-1900.

In 1933 all graduate work in the state system was coordinated under the graduate division, though the graduate offerings of this institution are in science and its applications. Of the advanced degrees, a master's degree requires a minimum of two years' study beyond the bachelor's degree. Outstanding scholastic accomplishment must be shown by graduate students.

HARRY SMITH, Treasurer

Senior

Efficient combination of leading the class of '41 and holding down a position for Ralph Coleman's varsity baseball team was the record of the seniors' leading man, Sigma Chi Lyle Specht. Sweeping in as a political figurehead in an all-Greek year, Specht carried out his executive duties with a democratic method that made him the most popular four-year student leader in recent years. Best-liked move during the year was his policy of dressing up drab but necessary meetings with mixer dances. ¶Secretaryship of the eldest class was invested in the hands of Gloria Philippi, vice-president of Alpha Xi Delta and co-editor of the senior section in the Beaver. Miss Philippi brought a long line of activities well-done to a close in her post as record-keeper. Jo Schwab, Mortar Board woman from Kappa Delta way, gave the class adequate "protection" for possible vacancy in the presidency in her position as vice-president. ¶Lambda Chi's Harry Smith kept class dues in such good shape that no last-minute assessment was necessary to graduate. Smith combined his class duties with editing the Student Directory. Floyd Johnson, husky AGR ag student and cadet major, was sergeant-at-arms.

"Cooperation" was the terminology that Dan Poling, assistant dean of men and class advisor for four years, used to describe the success of the senior class in carrying out its objectives of the four years during which he guided the organization. This year's class was the first senior group to start the year with enough money to carry on its activities in several seasons. Four-year students in 26 living groups were reported as 100 percent paid class members at a "booster dinner" held at the Lambda Chi Alpha house winter term to plan activities for the remainder of the year and end a "blitz" dues drive conducted by the treasurer. Ⓒ Defense plans colored the planned affairs of a large percentage of the male members of the elder class as a mid-year military department order bade more than 100 ROTC graduates to immediate duty for one year. Many other class members will go into defense industries. Foresight marked class activities as careful plans were made for the senior gift, senior ball and senior bust. Smaller than last year's record, the group excelled in many lines of work.

BUD HINKLE, president

KAY SEBERG, vice-president
 JACK SATHER, treasurer

JEAN DYKEMAN, secretary
 E.D. SIDOR, sergeant-at-arms

Junior

A well-planned path for President Bud Hinkle to follow after his fall term election made generalship of the junior class a rather routine one. The SAE Portlander worked with Chairman Jim McAlister in the task of putting on a dance fitting for the atmosphere provided by Bob Crosby in the biggest activity of the year for the group. Only trouble with an otherwise smooth-functioning year was the unexpected mixup caused by the mad rush for Prom tags. ☪ Kay Seberg, Kappa choice for popularity girl of the campus, received the hearty approval of the '42 class not only as Prom queen, but as vice-president of the juniors. As acting president for nearly a term, she formulated many of the Prom plans as well as directing other class activities. Jean Dykeman, rally girl and bundle of vitality for Sigma Kappa, took notes in her clerical post of secretary. A tough task was that of Jack Sather, Alpha Gamma Rho grade-getter. Taking over the vacant treasurer post at the middle of fall term, he put the class finances in top shape for the $850 orchestra expense of the Prom. Delta Chi's Ed Sidor was a brawny sergeant-at-arms.

Two magical words that put the campus in a temporary state half-way between happiness and hysteria describes the event that stands out in the juniors' 1940-41 class year. Bob Crosby and his famed "Bobcats" caused a near-riot when ticket sales to juniors the first day exceeded the total class membership. More students attended the affair ruled by Kappa Queen Kay Seberg than any other formal dance in the school's history. ¶ The organization felt the pinch of the new defense program when they were forced to replace President-elect Bob Fletcher at the beginning of fall term. The national guard order to a year of active duty took Fletcher to Fort Lewis instead of Corvallis. ¶ New method of choosing the Junior Prom queen saw class men vote in the selection of princesses and dance ticket-buyers choose the Beaver ruler for a night. The six princesses were Laura Jean Elliott, Alpha Gamma Delta; Betty Simpkin, Kappa Alpha Theta; Marion Graham, Gamma Phi Beta; Dorothy McArthur, Alpha Xi Delta; Phyllis Dewey, Pi Beta Phi; LaVerne Whitehead, Delta Delta Delta.

DON FREDERICKSON, president

SOLVEIG STORKERSON, vice-pres. DOROTHY NOWOTNY, secretary
MANNING BECKER, treasurer DOUGLAS MARTIN, sgt-at-arms

Don Frederickson, Phi Delt moleskin-wearer, groomed himself for a political future when he combined personality with efficiency in directing sophomore activities. A mid-year engagement attracted notice to Theta girl Solveig Storkerson, class vice-president. Class of '43 secretary was Dorothy Nowotny, Gamma Phi Beta woman-of-the-world. Manning Becker, Sigma Phi Sigma, encountered the usual dues-collecting difficulties with the school's largest class in his post as sophomore treasurer. Doug Martin, Chi Phi varsity basketball player, kept order as sergeant-at-arms. ¶ One of the school's well-liked profs, chemistry's W. E. Caldwell, was the faculty sparkplug of the sophomore engine. Calvin Schmidt, Delt Thane, worked with Frederickson to provide one-night round-the-world voyages for dancing sophomores at the Cotillion. Plenty of entertainment encouraged second-year students to come out to business-like class meetings that planned the year's activities in time enough for smooth-functioning of the various class events. The incoming cord-wearers leave a good record in the books.

Much to establish favorable status for the class of '43 was done by the successful staging of the Sophomore cotillion under the guidance of Chairman Calvin Schmidt and Ruth Durham, assistant. A moderate crowd, a novel theme and a peppy gang of negro swingsters added up to one of the best dancing expeditions of the season. ¶ A round-the-world trip in formals was the lot of those attending the sea voyage provided at the year's first class dance in December. Floyd Ray's orchestra provided musical energy for the trip. ¶ Daisy Maes and Mitzi Mudlarks pursued Li'l Abners and Hairless Joes at an "On to Dogpatch" Sadie Hawkins' Day Whiskerino rally dance that saw the women of the sophomore class take command. Sig Ellingson, good joe from SAE, was chairman of the affair. Carl Peterson was adjudged to have the longest beard by Chief Appraiser Jean Sutherland, Gamma Phi Talon. ¶ A follow-up on last year's sophomore class activity file plan this year distributed appointments on a fair basis. Solveig Storkerson, class vice-prexy, had charge of the keeping of individual class-member records of service.

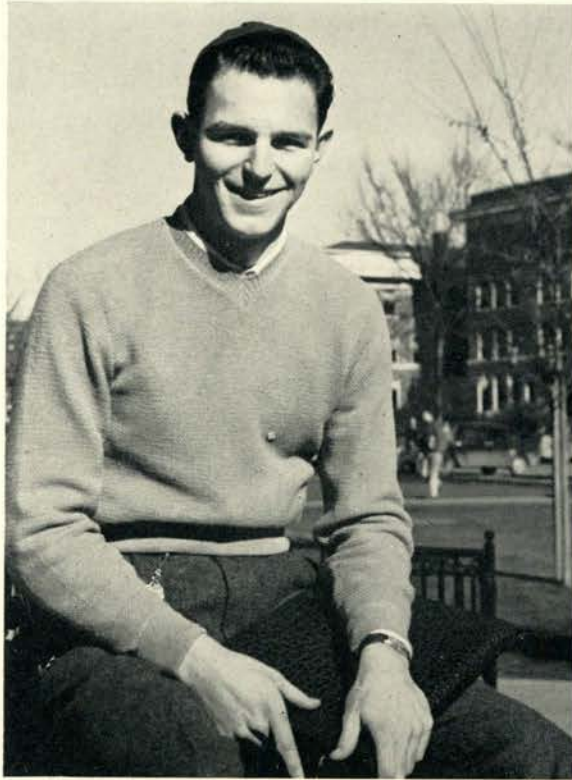

Class

Some real beards were grown for the Whiskerino.

Ray's orchestra pleased cotillion goers.

BILL GIBSON, President

PATRICIA NORTHRUP
EDWARD YADA

ELMA HUTTON

Phi Delt rushing felled Bill Gibson, only independent class president, to give the 13th streeters command of not only the sophomore organization, but the lid-wearers as well. With remarkable fortitude, Gibson stood the test of guiding a freshman class with more women registered in it than ever before. Personality matched with beauty brought two top honors to Pat Northrup, prize pledge of the Pi Phi house. She was vice-president of the freshman class and sweetheart of Sigma Chi. She joined her ability with Gibson's to carry on class duties with real teamwork. Elma Hutton, only independent girl to hold a major elective office all year, recorded the doings of the freshman class as secretary. Bryce Brisbin, Fiji, had a tough time with his collecting of class dues, but managed to hold the first-year organization in a workable financial shape. Ed Yada, Japanese freshman from Salem, had the honor of being the only man among the independents to hold an elective political office during the year. He was sergeant-at-arms of the group. Official activities were supervised by Dean of Men U. G. Dubach. Peppy class meetings kept interest in class activities at a maximum all year.

A sizzling duck atop a bonfire that class leaders claimed had the largest volume of flame ever produced characterized the vim and vitality that the first-year class put into their year's doings. Dick Lahti took the rook bonfire chairmanship and put up a mass of trash that was equal in volume, if not in height, to any preceding rook pyre. ¶ Pat Northrup, general chairman of the freshman dance, showed 1,100 rooks and rookesses the meaning of the democratic tradition of the annual rook social event when Paul Seibert's orchestra blended with dance-mixer activities by committee members at the non-date affair. Entertainment, freshman style, was rendered by several rooks not escorting rookesses home from the affair. This activity was carried out at the suggestion of supervising Thanos. ¶ Faced with the task of keeping pace with last year's larger class, the freshmen showed up well in their neophyte standing. The group became well-vested in OSC tradition during the year's time and will don moleskins with true Oregon State pride come next fall. The class of '44 carried out its activities in an orderly manner.

Tyrone Power, the Judge

In the following section are special photographic studies of the 10 most beautiful girls on the Oregon State campus as selected by Tyrone Power, 20th Century-Fox motion picture star. Power made his selections from a group of 20 girls voted as being the most beautiful co-eds on the Oregon State campus by the men students. The only factor that was considered in this contest was beauty. In commenting upon his selections Power said, "It was highly difficult to select any 10 girls from such a charming group."

Activities

Educational Activities Board

Practical application of a new and completely changed organization of the educational activities board saw its first year of operation carried out successfully. The entire membership of the student body executive council, with the exception of the yell king, was added to the membership. This change gave a student majority of eight on the 15-member body for the first time in recent years. Another new phase of the body's work was administering the funds of $2-a-term student activity fee, which divorced the student body from athletics. Control of sub-committees of publications, concert series, forensics and music in addition to direct supervision of funds for rally committee, homecoming and student body offices are in the scope of the board's duties. Paul Petri, head of the department of music, was chairman for the year and Fred M. Shideler, head of the journalism department, secretary. Petri, Shideler, W. A. Jensen and Carolyn Wolcott, as student representative, composed the group's executive committee. Percy P. Locey carried out the organization's edicts in his capacity as director of educational activities.

Educational Activities Office

Paralleling the college business office in organization, the Educational Activities office is the business office for all student body activities. In addition to work in direct connection with the student educational program, various students assist with the distribution of tickets to athletic contests.

The Barometer is a part of educational activities. Such artistic performances as Serge Jaroff also are staged by the Educational Activities board.

ASOSC Officers

Biggest political surprise of recent years came in the wake of the student body election last spring when a flurry of handbills brought Doug Chambers from Kappa Sig into the student body's highest office by the write-in method. A well-integrated list of leadership activities included the presidency and treasurer-ship of the class of '41. John Stanley Fisk, popular Fiji, served as Chambers' first assistant in the admin-istration of student affairs. Ⓒ Jean Steimle, comely Chi Omega house prexy, had the top co-ed position of second vice-president. Dorothy Ericson, Pi Beta Phi, kept tab on ASOSC happenings as secretary. Beta's Bill Hunter served as yell king until the start of winter term when he resigned because of scholastic difficulties. Subsequent with his resignation came the announcement of his selection as a member of the college All-American yell king squad. Bill Morgan, another Fiji senior, succeeded Hunter as chief noise-maker. Ted Gardner from Sigma Phi Epsilon was third vice-president. The officers, all Greeks, were the result of an all-affiliated party. Difficult task of the ASOSC leaders was keeping harmony in a situa-tion where one group of students could be classified as "haves" and another "have nots." A system of im-partial committee appointments achieved a smooth-running administration.

ASOSC Activities

ASOSC's last-minute choice for a student body president proved to be a good one for all concerned as Doug Chambers guided the nearly 5,000 members of the organization through a year that will be marked on the positive side of ASOSC's political ledger. Faced with administering the student body in its first year of "divorce" from athletics, student leaders turned in a good performance in keeping the two groups in a desirable coordination. and Ralph Floberg conducted athletic membership drives as representatives of the student body. The problem of proper election of a yell king was brought before the executive committee in view of a situation resulting in three yell kings for the year.

Closer supervision of dance comp lists and ticket-selling was also effected. The trend to keep up cooperative relations with the administration continued.

Fisk and Chambers inspect recently hung pictures of former "Shots" in ASOSC office.

Memorial Union Board

Organized as a controlling body over the use of the Memorial Union building, the Memorial Union board of directors regulates and supervises all the activities of this building and prescribes rules and regulations consistent with the constitution of the Memorial Union to govern all activities in the building, to govern the time and place of its own meetings and to govern members of the Memorial Union and guests while in the building. It may fill vacancies in the membership of student-held offices in the Memorial Union and has power to appoint all standing committees and all other authorized committees participating in Memorial Union activities. Before April 15 of each year, this board submits a financial budget for the ensuing year to the Board of Governors for approval. Members of the Board of Directors each year are the president of the Memorial Union who is a student elected each year by ASOSC, the ASOSC president, the ASOSC secretary, the Barometer editor, the Educational activities director, an alumnus appointed by the board of directors of the alumni association and a member of the faculty appointed by the college president.

Associated Women Students

Central governing body for Associated Women Students is the Executive council, composed of the six AWS officers. The group cooperates with the Legislative council in formulating plans and guiding the activities of women's groups. AWS officers for the year were Carolyn Wolcott, president; LaVerne Whitehead, vice-president; Jeannette Sims, secretary; Dorothy Kibbe, treasurer; Virginia Gates, sergeant-at-arms; and June Mathisen, publicity chairman. ☞ Responsibility for the AWS activities lay with Carolyn Wolcott who guided the group through a particularly successful year. Carolyn was well prepared for her position, for as vice-president during her junior year she received the training that qualified her for the presidency. Besides being prominent in AWS and class activities, Carolyn was queen of the 1940 Junior prom.

Associated Women Legislative Council

Vice-presidents of every women's non-social organization and representatives from the AWS radio, activity file and etiquette committees comprise the AWS Legislative council. The group begins its work early in the fall before the opening of college at a retreat at Yachats. Policies for the coming year are decided and a complete schedule of women's activities for the year is outlined. During the school year the council meets regularly, and because of its wide representation it has become a powerful force in forming a more unified activity program.

Associated Women Students

Since their innovation in 1932 the most successful money-raising events sponsored by AWS are the Nickel hops. Women's living groups hold open house for the evening, and men may dance 15 minutes for a nickel. Fall term men paid 10,771 coins, with AWS netting $538.55, and winter term AWS again made a sizeable profit. ☞ Alpha Chi Omega received permanent possession of the gold rotating cup, given to the living group taking in the most money per woman, having won it for the third time fall term. Kappa Alpha Theta placed highest winter term. Money from the events was used for the AWS loan fund. Hop chairman fall term was Peggy Johnston with Sally Watt as an assistant, and co-chairmen winter term were Helen Hamacher and Nancy Renne.

Associated Women Students

Activities sponsored by women's groups during the past year were numerous and varied widely in their scope, several teas, parties and dances rounding out the social program. Phi Chi Theta, commerce honor society for women, honored freshmen women in secretarial science who made a 3.00 GPA or above during their first term. Three-way exchange dinners among women's living groups were devised by the Standards committee and successfully carried out winter term. Highlighting women's social affairs was the Mortar Board ball. The Reversia dance was held March 1 with women dating and escorting the men. Increased enrollment brought the Co-ed band to the front this year in music activities and the group made several appearances.

presented new fashions. The Home Economics show centered around a playlet with members of the fall term clothing classes modeling their own costumes. Garments for the AWS show came from a Portland store, and both professional and college models participated. A new event this year was the Home Economics club party honoring freshmen women. "Convention" was the theme of the party and each living group was identified by a placard. An international revue was featured on the program. Members of the Home Economics club and Omicron Nu, honor society for women in home economics, also assisted with the Home Interest conference program.

Associated Women Students

Nominations of new AWS officers and the presentation of a style show were the chief business of the AWS mass convocation winter term. Mary Boals was chairman of the event and Carolyn Wolcott presided. Another important integrating group is the Etiquette committee which advises students on etiquette problems through a weekly question box in the Barometer and a "Save Your Blushes" pamphlet. Jean Meyers was chairman of the group.

Yell Leaders

Plagued by a series of troubles of one sort or another, the office of yell king became some sort of a jinx. Three different cheer leaders held the post during the past year. Bill Hunter was initially elected, he dropped out at the start of winter term after being named on the 1940-41 national yell king squad. Bill Morgan succeeded him, but was forced to give up his job for two weeks of the basketball season due to a case of measles. Bob White was temporary cheer king.

Rally Committee

Rally committee members made themselves quite prominent in half-time diversions at football and basketball games as well as keeping the "chatter" up and assisting the yell king put over yells and cheers. Bill Smith managed the group, with Rosemary Sloan acting as secretary. Rally committee supervision was tossed around a bit this year due to the shift to compulsory student fees. First the supervision was by the athletic board, but later educational activities took it over. More effective control of stag lines at rally dances was achieved by the group.

Thanes

This year saw the start of the reorganization of Thanes, men's service honorary, from a junior and senior-tradition enforcing unit to a sophomore society with upper-class supervision. In two years more, upperclassmen will disappear entirely from the organization. ¶Thanes is primarily a tradition enforcer for the erring Orange rook. Its members are particularly adept at guiding and punishing rook offenders. As quickly as he steps out of line, just as quickly is he gently, or firmly, as the case may be, put back into line by a Thane. Punishment is not their sole aim, however. ¶The Thane trophy award, presented to the organization by Phil Small, is given to the first-year members of a living group who are outstanding in their behavior under Thane rules and their participation in class and school activities. The presentation of this award is an event looked forward to by all Thanes. ¶New members of Thanes are selected on the basis of leadership, scholarship and all-around campus activity. Don Porterfield, Theta Chi, had the task of supervising all Thane activity by being in the president's chair for the year.

Talons

Talons, service honor society for women of the sophomore class, is the hope and goal of almost every freshman girl. Talon members are chosen from outstanding freshman women on the basis of leadership, scholarship, cooperation and school spirit shown. Under the watchful eyes of these women, green ribbons become a part of the head-dress on Wednesdays and always the conscientious rookess avoids overlooking Oregon State traditions lest she receive an "invitation" to Talons court. As president of Talons, Helen Karamanos undertook the job of directing the checking of attendance of freshman girls at convocations. Ushering at recitals and other campus programs also kept these girls busy. A joint dinner and tea with the Thanes and a similar meeting with Kwamas, sophomore service honorary at University of Oregon, highlighted the year's activities. New members of Talons are announced at women's honor convocation spring term. Talons is the successor to Spurs, national service society which went off the Oregon State campus in 1933.

Members are chosen by the present members from leaders in church groups and Round Table's activities, which included Rook and Rookess counselors, campus speakers, relief programs, International week, luncheon forums and others.

Religious Leaders' Council

Including as its members the presidents of all student religious groups, the Religious Leaders' council coordinates the programs of all the groups, makes each more vital and gives them united and all-campus emphasis. Under the leadership of Myrl McKee, president, the group has sponsored the Religious Emphasis week and the impressive Easter Sunrise service on the front steps of the Memorial Union building during the last year. Nine church groups are cooperating members of the organization.

Co-Op Managers' Association

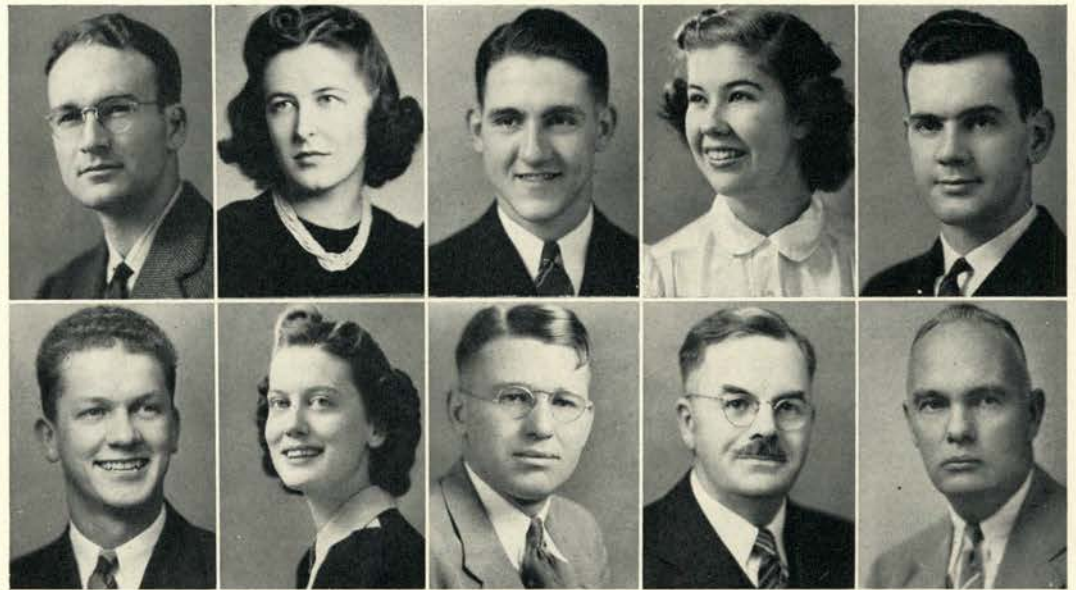

For 21 years the Co-op Managers' association has served Greek living organizations on the campus. Only fraternities and sororities are members. With its purpose being the maintenance of lowest possible prices to its members, the organization renders a distinct service to each house by centralizing and coordinating the purchasing power of the Greeks by quantity buying and contracting. ☞ In addition, the association is run on a non-profit basis so that after the operating expenses are deducted, each house receives dividends on the basis of its individual expenditures. The association holds monthly dinner meetings at the various houses to approve purchasing contracts for milk, laundry, bread, wood and other necessities. They also discuss problems pertinent to all organizations. ☞ Officers for this year were Bill Winslow, president; Harold Cason, vice-president; Doris Anderson, secretary; and Kay Seberg and Lester Copenhagen, members of the board of directors. G. R. Hoerner acted as faculty adviser and E. E. Seibert, as head of the co-op headquarters located in the down-town business district.

Co-op Board

A student-owned and operated business, the Co-op book store, located in the east end of the Memorial Union building, has been returning profits made on the sale of textbooks to student members since its organization in 1914. A board of directors, composed of seven students and two faculty members, has complete control over the affairs of the association. Directors for the year included Chuck Schumann, president; Bill Freed, vice-president; June Mathisen, secretary; and Doug Carter, Doris Pingel, Dave Baum and Jeannette Sims. G. R. Hoerner and S. H. PUBLICATIONS

Publications Committee

Organized in 1936 to foster efficiency in the editorial and managerial policies of student publications and to recommend for the approval of the Educational Activities board appointments for the editor and manager positions of the Barometer, Beaver and Student Directory, the Publications committee works toward the best interests of the students and their publications. Fred M. Shideler, in charge of the department of journalism, is chairman of this committee which includes as members representatives from the staffs of the Barometer and Beaver, from the Associated Students and from the Educational Activities board. Personnel this year included Berlan Lemon, Barometer editor; Stan Coates, Barometer manager; Irwin Harris, Beaver editor; Bob Hirstel, Beaver manager; Shideler; E. T. Reed, faculty editor of publications; Stanley Fisk, first vice president of the ASOSC; and Prof. Paul Petri, chairman of the Educational Activities board. The committee interviews each candidate for the top publications positions and reviews the past record of each carefully before making its recommendations to the Educational Activities board. In recent years, the Activities board has always approved these recommendations.

Publications

Publications at Oregon State are a major activity, with the three student-operated staffs of the Barometer, Beaver and Student Directory involving the interest and work of more than 500 persons during each school year. Earmarked as the easiest way to get into the swing of campus activities and be "in the know," the Barometer and Beaver offer a pseudo-social type of work and experience which proves to be a magnet to many students besides those actually appointed to staff positions. ¶ This year, more than ever before, the Barometer is potentially the most vital student force on the campus, due to the fact that the former restrictive element that required the purchase of a student body ticket has been modified. This new system has made every student entitled to a copy of the Barometer, hence the publication reached every man and woman on the campus. ¶ The Beaver also greatly increased its student scope and influence when it sold out more than 2500 copies within its 9-day campaign limit to climax total sales for any one previous year.

Beaver Editors

Due to the work of a very capable and efficient staff, the 1941 Beaver was able to stay ahead of schedule all year with the result that there was plenty of time for last minute corrections and it is therefore comparatively free of errors. By using the lithographing process it was possible to use more pictures in the Through the Year section than in previous years. Two nationally known figures contributed to the book to give it added prestige. Tyrone Power, 20th Century-Fox movie star, picked the Beaver beauties and Taylor Poore of Chicago did the art work and designed the cover.

In spite of an untimely case of measles which cut two days from his campaign, Bob Hirstel, Beaver manager, came from the infirmary to push sales over the top with an all-time record of more than 2,500 yearbooks sold in nine days. Breakage fee was again utilized, and 50 cents was lopped off of the purchase price of the book this year, the Beaver selling for $4 instead of $4.50 regardless of purchase method.

Formation of a new editorial board appointed by Editor Lemon winter term to supply comment on campus topics on the basis of "subject" rather than "space-filler" was a step in vitalizing the Barometer this year. Highlights in the publication were the many special editions featuring agriculture, engineering, art, etc.; a new system of printing exam schedules in the paper for use of students; more pictures used in the paper which were taken by a special Barometer photographer and supplied by others. Statement by Berlan Lemon upon his appointment to editorship that "horrible examples" of journalism had been used in preceding terms brought many "letters to the ed." and created an irate audience.

A two-to-one numerical preponderance of women over men on the Barometer managerial upper staff apparently caused Barometer Manager Stan Coates no worry, for he promoted nine special editions of the paper planned this year to contact national advertising. The specials included issues for the schools of agriculture, science, secretarial science, forestry, engineering and art. The Memorial Union, Junior prom and Mortar Board dance were also featured. Development of an entirely new policy in women's page advertising created greater income when the managerial staff began selling numerous one-inch ads in place of the long "reader" types of copy used in previous years.

Student Directory

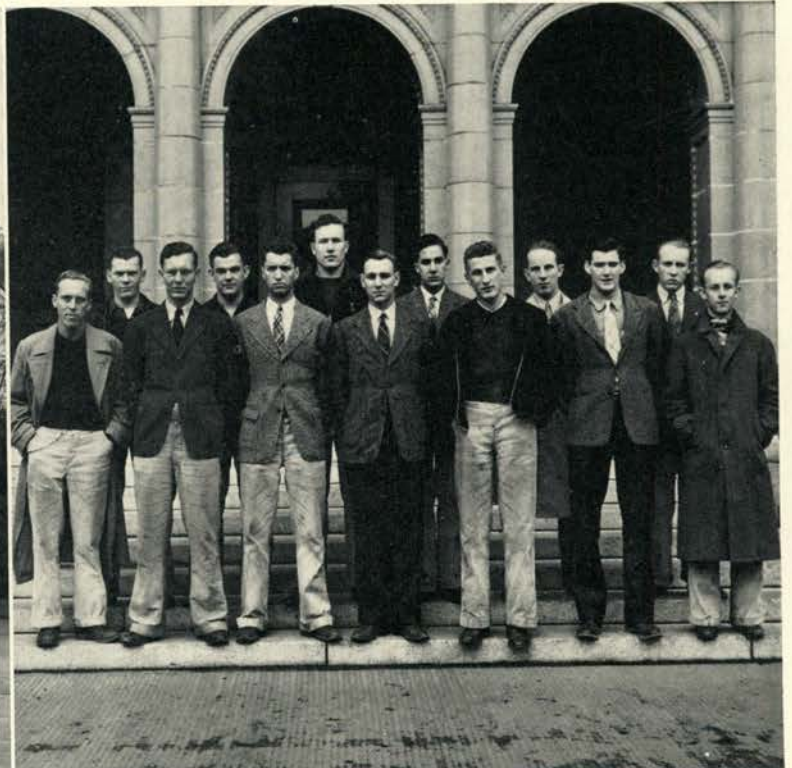

Edited by Harry Smith and managed by Dean Barnes, the two issues of the Student Directory this year had several new features including a calendar of all-college activities and a list of the members of all faculty committees. The largest sale of any year since the directory has been published was carried out by representatives in each group with Betty Anderson's prize-winning slogan, "Lonely? Call Your One and Only," as the keynote. ☞ Assisting Smith in editing the book were Frances Graef as associate and Alice Hamilton, Todd Bailey, Marjorie Bainter, Evelyn Oliphant, Bill King and Mary Magruder as assistants. Ruth Brandeberry and Jeanne Marie Johnson were in charge of organizations. Faculty editor was Eloise Persinger. In charge of the managerial departments were Dale Dennis, Bill Matson, Henry Matson, Albert Perrot and Luther Davis. Lamplighter

Getting down to work on a Lamplighter.

Approximately 50 students help with the publication of the Lamplighter, students' literary magazine, which gives student writers besides the journalists a chance to develop their talent. Editor-in-chief of this year's magazine was Alvin Harber, sophomore in lower division. Business manager was James Hanley, freshman in engineering. The staff is distinctive in its carrying out of the self-sufficient spirit of the college by printing the monthly in the basement of the home of Dr. Sigurd H. Peterson, head of the English department. ¶ Each of the eight issues published annually contains about 15 articles giving to 120 persons each year the opportunity of having their material accepted. The organization of the magazine generally includes 12 or 13 short stories or articles and two or three poems. Issues are sold at the Co-op book store, Stiles', in the men and women's dormitories, by subscriptions from living groups and by canvassing the downtown area. The actual work of publication is done by students, members of the Lamplighter club, under the supervision of a faculty adviser chosen by them.

Tech Record

Edited and published by the students of the school of engineering, the Oregon State Technical Record carries the work of the engineering school to the students and to all parts of the country. This year's editor is

Ed Jacoby and manager is Jim Warnock. It ranks high among the national magazines of its type. Published at Oregon State college for 18 years, it is now a member of Engineering Colleges Magazines Associated and is issued four times each year. The make-up of the publication is always attractive and includes a large amount of pictures.

To promote interest among students and alumni in agriculture and to acquaint them with the work done by the school, members of the Agriculture club publish each term their Agricultural Journal. Edited this year by Quentin Zielinski and managed by Don Hallberg, the book provides journalistic experience for a staff of nearly 20 ag students. Five faculty men offer their help to the publication as advisers. All work in assembling the material and printing the magazine and responsibility of meeting deadlines is in the hands of students.

Concert Series

Bringing an array of unusually talented artists to the campus this year, an exceptional concert series was presented for Oregon State students under the new arrangement by which every student may attend free. ☞ Startlingly soprano-like tenor notes and unbelievably deep bass tones thrilled a capacity audience in the men's gymnasium at the start of winter term as diminutive Serge Jaroff led his nationally-famous Don Cossack chorus in the third concert of the year's series. Every reserved seat had been sold out for days in advance of the concert. The military bearing of the little director in leading his giant singers was especially pleasing to the audience. ☞ A month later, reserved seats were again sold out days before a concert and the men's gymnasium was again filled to capacity as Richard Crooks, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, sang before an enthusiastic audience of students and townspeople. "Schubert's Serenade" was a number especially well received by the audience.

Concert Series

An audience, so large that hundreds of students sat on the floor before the stage and hundreds more stood on the balcony and at the back of the gymnasium, was held spell-bound as Paul Robeson, great negro bass-baritone, opened the year's concert series with a thrilling performance in the men's gymnasium. A thousand students were turned away as formal-wearers braved a threat of rain to turn out in unusually large numbers. ¶ The second concert of the year and the last of fall term brought Emanuel Feuermann, known as America's outstanding cellist, to Oregon State. Feuermann was the only artist of the fall and winter term series not a singer to visit the campus. ¶ Concluding the winter term concerts, Dorothy Maynor, Negro soprano soloist with the well-known Boston Symphony orchestra, acknowledged the spontaneous applause of her audience with a complete surprise when, as an encore, she came on the stage without Arpad Sandor, her accompanist, and sang, "Where Were You When They Crucified My Lord?" Miss Maynor rose from an unknown young soprano to her position with the Boston Symphony orchestra in two months.

Stanley Jones, missionary to India, in his talk on "The Part of Religion in International Affairs." ¶ Speaking on "Tuning Up For Success," Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker corporation, told students that the responsibility of preserving democracy lies with the young people of this country and they can meet it only if they have healthy bodies, disciplined minds, sturdy characters and understanding.

Convocation Speakers

As the first of an outstanding array of convocation speakers brought to the campus this year by the Convocation committee, Bill Henry, noted news analyst and radio commentator, gave sidelights on world famous personalities in his talk on "Front Page People" at the beginning of fall term. ¶ The power of aviation in the European war was explained by Sir Hubert Wilkins, world-known explorer, in a later convocation. Wilkins said that aviation bombing would never entirely subdue a nation and that he believed Germany could not win the war by bombs alone. ¶ Japan's

Music Committee

Representatives from the various music organizations on the campus comprise the Music committee. Groups represented on the council include the ROTC band, the Glee club, Madrigal club, orchestra and Co-ed band. The council was formed three years ago as one of the subsidiary divisions of the Activities board, and Professor Paul Petri, chairman of the Music committee, represents this group on the Educational Activities board of which he is both a member and the chairman. Formulating plans for the music organizations and directing the activities and policies of their respective groups is the chief duty of the Music committee. Recent enrollment increases in music courses have made membership in the organizations large, and leaders felt the need of one body which would assume the responsibility of coordinating these groups. Student representatives on the committee are George Bulk, ROTC band manager; Peter Larson, Glee club president; Frances McGinnis, Madrigal president; Roger Christeson, manager of the orchestra; and Mildred Perman, president of the Co-ed band.

Madrigal

Concluding its thirty-fifth year on the campus, Madrigal club again appeared many times in concert. Members sang at the Home Interest conference and during Women's weekend. They combined with the Glee club to present several concerts and to sing at baccalaureate. Over 120 women were enrolled in Madrigal and because of the large response to tryouts for the group, a second chorus for Madrigal club was formed.

After a year's work in the second chorus, women are eligible for the first Madrigal. Tryouts are held yearly under the direction of Prof. Paul Petri and members for both groups are selected on the quality of their voices. Both choruses meet twice a week for separate practices and the first chorus meets once a week to practice with the Glee club. Frances McGinnis is president of Madrigal; Marjorie McCallister, vice-president; and Elizabeth Zeller, secretary.

Glee Club

About 60 men were enrolled as members of the Glee club which was on numerous programs during the school year. The group sang at convocations and also performed on the radio, once being featured on the Homecoming broadcast in November. One of this year's outstanding performances was the winter term presentation, in combination with the Madrigal club, of "Ballad for Americans," popularized by Negro baritone Paul Robeson. ¶ The two groups also joined to present Christmas and Good Friday concerts and followed tradition in singing at baccalaureate. Members of the group are selected at tryouts which are held yearly by Professor Paul Petri. Glee club meets twice a week for practice and is joined by Madrigal club in a third weekly practice, a rehearsal of College chorus. Men who have been members of the group for six terms are awarded gold keys, a custom started this year. Peter Larson was president of the club and Roger Cochran, secretary.

ROTC Band

Led by Captain Harry L. Beard, members of the ROTC band made frequent appearances before the student body during the year. The band played at football and basketball games, at several convocations, and gave weekly broadcasts over KOAC. Though the ASCAP strike threatened to prevent the band from playing at basketball games which were broadcast, the difficulty was overcome when members procured several original compositions and received permission from officials to play these numbers. During spring term the band went on its annual concert tour, travelling through Southern Oregon. At the end of the year members who had been in the band for three full terms and attended a specified number of concerts were awarded letters. Drum majorettes who appeared with the band at football games were Barbara Bixby and Doris Trachsel. Student band leader was Edgar Blake and George Bulk was manager.

Orchestra

Another music organization that has noted a rapid growth is the orchestra, which during the last six years has doubled in personnel. It is now composed of 55 pieces. Each term the orchestra gives at least one concert, and this year it combined with the College chorus for concerts at Easter and during the Home Interests conference. As is traditional the orchestra played for baccalaureate services, too. Members also presented a program at Monmouth for students of the Oregon College of Education. Smaller divisions of the orchestra played several times for college dramatic presentations or banquets and separate rehearsals were often held by the string section for these performances. Delbert Moore, professor of stringed instruments, is the conductor. Manager was Roger Christeson and Charles Kellmer was librarian.

Co-ed Band

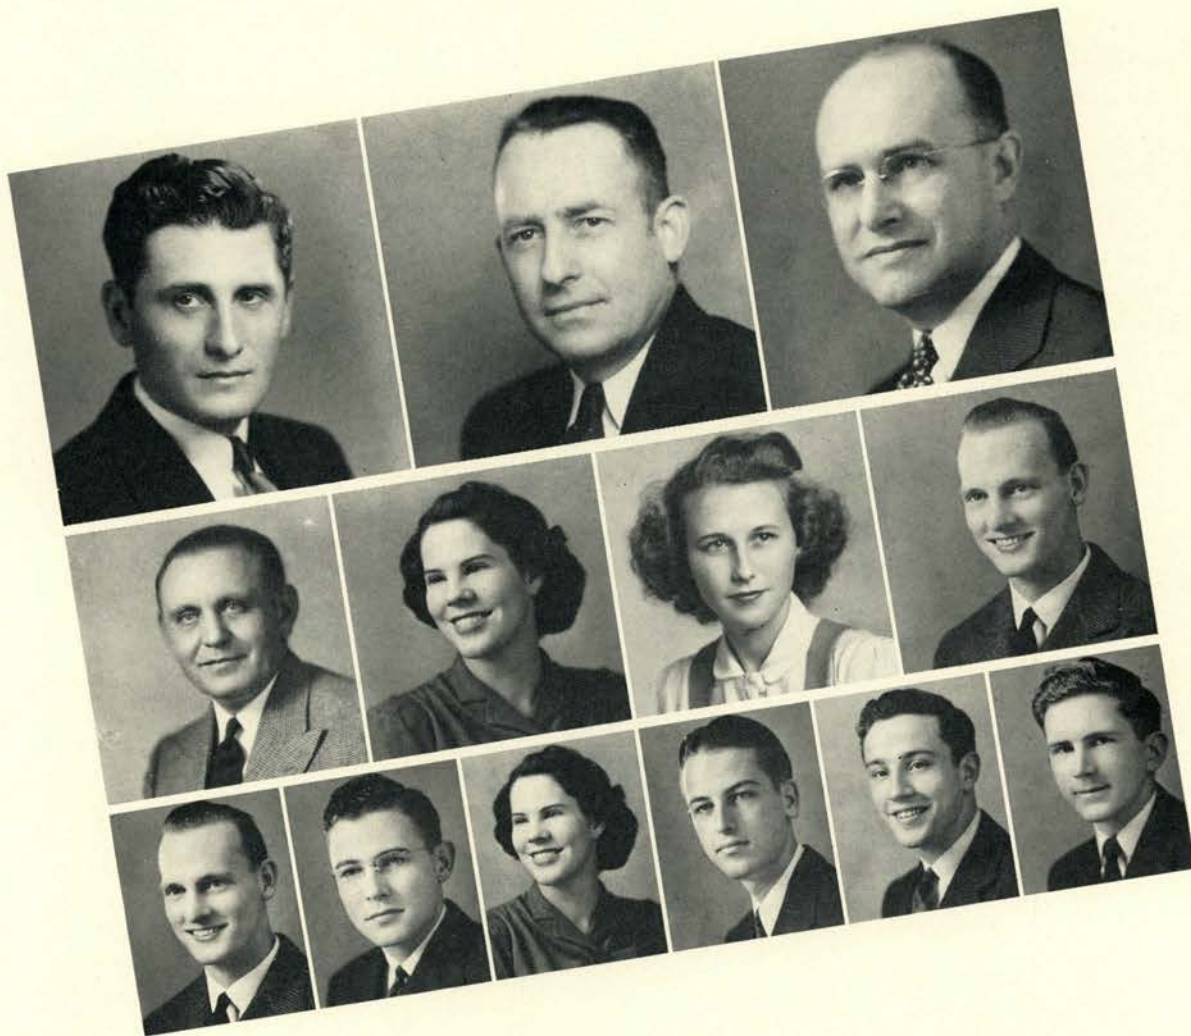

Most rapid increase in enrollment attained by any music group is that of the Co-ed band, which started four years ago with nine pieces and now boasts 47. When the band was organized, it was a new venture for Oregon State college or for any similar institution in the United States. At present there is only one other co-educational institution with a co-ed band. The band was organized for women who have participated in such work in high school and wish to continue their activity in college. Under the leadership of Professor Delbert Moore, the group presented concerts winter and spring terms. Members also played for women's convocation winter term. Band officers are Mildred Perman, president; Betty Adam, manager; Doris Mae Paulson, treasurer; Rosalind Moore, secretary; Elizabeth McCluskey, treasurer; and Betty Schwiening, librarian.

Forensic Heads

The forensic directors, Earl W. Wells, oratory and after-dinner speaking; Paul X. Knoll, debate; and Carlyn Winger, extempore and impromptu, are responsible for the training of student members of Oregon State's speech squads. Under their direction student speakers have achieved recognition in the various intercollegiate forensic contests entered this year. ¶ The forensics committee, responsible to the educational activities board, plans the forensic events for the year and is in charge of fostering this phase of extra-curricular work. Members include Prof. C. B. Mitchell, head of the Oregon State speech department; Eugene White, student forensic manager; Adele Knerr, women's debate manager; and Jean Steimle, student body second vice-president. ¶ Forensic managers are appointed by the committee to supervise each field of forensic activity. Coordination of the various divisions is stressed. Managers for 1940-41 include White; Miss Knerr; Robert Weibel, men's debate; Graham Stephenson, oratory; John Nietert, extempore; and Robert Stutz, intramural.

Men's Debate

Debate teams from Oregon State represented the school at four major intercollegiate tournaments this year and showed their colors by winning 103 decision debates and losing only 75. Kenneth Robinson and Hugh Fleming, number one men's team, traveled south to Pepperdine college at Los Angeles for the tournament of the Western Association of Teachers of Speech, and took second place honors. They also represented Oregon State at the College of the Pacific at Stockton, California, where they had three wins and three losses. ¶ Teamed with a debater from Willamette university, Robinson made a "barnstorming" tour of the state and up to the Inland Empire association at Spokane, debating against two picked debaters from Linfield college and Pacific university. ¶ Round table discussions of timely questions made up another activity of the debate teams this year, and a series of these discussions was broadcast over station KOAC. ¶ Second year varsity debate sweaters were awarded to Kenneth Robinson, Hugh Fleming, Bob Weibel and Quentin Zielinski; Donald Dill, Don Short and John Southworth received their first sweaters. Freshman numerals went to Carl Fitts and Hartphey Haller. Prof. Paul X. Knoll is director of debate.

Women's Debate

Oregon State's women debaters entered three major intercollegiate debates this year—the Pi Kappa Delta invitational tournament at Linfield college, the College of Puget Sound at Tacoma and the Pi Kappa Delta invitational tournament at the College of the Pacific at Stockton. With 11 out of 106 debate teams, Oregon State had the largest representation of any of the 22 colleges entered in the Linfield tournament. ¶ At the College of Puget Sound, Dorothy Watson and Betty Smith placed second among the teams entered on the question, "Resolved that the Nations of the Western Hemisphere Should Form a More Permanent Union." Miss Smith and Miss Watson also represented Oregon State at Stockton, where they had three wins and two losses. ¶ Varsity debate sweaters were awarded to Esther Weibel, Rodena Krebs, Dorothy Watson, Florence Mae Rosholt, Eileen Holden and Adele Knerr. Betty Smith was awarded a freshman numeral. Paul X. Knoll, assistant professor of speech, is director of the squad.

Extempore Speaking

Extempore speaking squad members won honors for Oregon State this year by placing in several state and interstate contests. Jeanne Popovich entered her third branch of speech work and won second prize in the state extempore speaking contest held at Portland. From the general subject, "Great Americans?" Mrs. Popovich drew and discussed "American Career Women." ¶ Howard Holt placed fourth in the men's division of this contest with his speech, "To Eliminate Communism, Eliminate the Causes." ¶ Kenneth Robinson was a finalist at the Pacific Forensic league tournament at Stanford university with his topic, "A Pay-as-you-go Policy to Support National Defense." ¶ Betty Smith, freshman member of the squad, won second prize in extempore at the College of Puget Sound and second in impromptu at the Linfield tournament. ¶ For each contest extempore speakers are given general subjects on which they may prepare themselves. One hour before they are to speak, they draw subtopics on specific phases of the question. ¶ Varsity letter-winners this year were Howard Holt, Jeanne Popovich and Kenneth Robinson. Freshman numerals were awarded to Betty Smith and James Hohn. Carlyn Winger, assistant professor of speech, is director of the squad.

Oratory

Members of Oregon State's oratory squad won acclaim this year by taking top honors in every forensic event which they entered. At the State Old Line contest Clifford Culley and Jane Steagall walked off with first prize money in the men's and the women's divisions respectively. ¶ Eugene White placed second in the annual state Peace Oratorical contest. ¶ Maxine Chin, a first-year member of the squad, was awarded first place trophies at the College of Puget Sound in Tacoma, Wash., and in the junior division of the Linfield tournament, and was declared third place winner at the College of the Pacific at Stockton, Calif. ¶ Alnora Pierce and Jane Steagall were second and third place winners in the senior division at Linfield, and Miss Pierce was also ranked third at the College of Puget Sound. ¶ Graham Stephenson placed fourth at the Pacific Forensic league tournament at Stanford university. ¶ After-dinner speaker Frank Tourtellotte was awarded second prize at the state contest held this year at Pacific college. Dr. Earl W. Wells is adviser for the oratory squad.

With a total of four first places and five seconds including every phase of intercollegiate forensics, Oregon State has a record this year of which it may well be proud. Maxine Chin led in both Linfield and College of Puget Sound oratory tournaments. Jane Steagall and Clifford Culley carried off top honors in both divisions of the state Old Line oratory contest. Frank Toutellotte placed second in state after-dinner, as did Jeanne Popovich in state extempore, and Eugene White in the Peace contest. Both men's and women's debate teams chalked up second places.

Mask and Dagger

Organized originally as a literary society, Mask and Dagger works on the campus to foster and encourage dramatics. The society offers its services each year to the speech department for the sponsoring of the three major productions, and members aid in stage craft, acting, publicity work, ticket selling and other duties involved in play production. ¶ The local organization has adopted a point system for eligibility to pledging and membership, whereby students may qualify by working with costumes, managing, acting, lighting, properties or any special field of interest. Pledging is maintained throughout the year. Plans were developed this year for a masquerade dance for pledges and members of the club spring term. D. Palmer Young, assistant professor of speech and Elizabeth Barnes, associate professor of speech, acted as advisors to the organization. Officers this year were Lewis Hayes, president; Peggy Piper, vice-president; Beatrice Leonard, secretary; and Keith Mealey, treasurer.

Susan and God

Acclaimed unanimously as the outstanding play given in recent years by the speech department, the Mask and Dagger dramatic club's spontaneous performance of "Susan and God" was presented in the Majestic theatre on December 6 and 7 under the direction of D. Palmer Young. ☞ Jeanne Hetherington, sophomore in lower division, appearing in her first major production, did a remarkable portrayal of Susan Trexel, the over-emotional wife too busy "saving the souls" of Their daughter Blossom, given too much insight into the emotions of elders for a child, was delightfully presented by Heloise Lee. ☞ The supporting cast included Jean Floyd, David Bourassa, Donna Beckman, Tom Hart, Joanne Wells, Jim Buman, Jeanne Nonken and Robert Kellogg. The settings were designed by Mr. Young and constructed by stagecraft and lighting classes. Earl Meeker was assistant director.

Liliom

"Liliom," a Hungarian fantasy by Ferenc Molnar wherein the hero commits suicide in the fifth scene, is taken to Heaven in the sixth and brought back to earth in the seventh, was given March 7 and 8 by the speech department under the capable direction of B. M. Marshall. Don Field, portraying Liliom, did an exceptional job for an amateur. Virginia Moe as Julie was the feminine lead. In the supporting cast were Heloise Lee, Bob Kellogg, Dorothy Wilson and Florence Ayers. D. Palmer Young was designer and technical director.

Commandant and ROTC Staff

A mid-year shift of command in Oregon State's commissioned staff of officers added to the instructors' tough task of getting the Beaver cadets polished up for an increasingly important position in the national defense program. With a war department order compelling senior officers to spend a year serving the colors as second lieutenants immediately after graduation closely following his arrival, Lieutenant-Colonel Samuel J. Heidner took the commandant's post in January after the position was vacated December 15 by Colonel Charles A. Sampson. Chief task of the regular army officers was to inculcate the details of the army's new organization into OSC cadets' theoretical training. The new triangular division, popularly called the "streamlined" division, justifies itself on the basis of an increase in maneuverability, fire power and defense against mechanization and aircraft through the use of three infantry-artillery combat teams.

Cadet Officers

Increased prestige of senior cadet officers, combined with increased responsibility of training, brought a more serious attitude to the 105 men qualified for second lieutenants' commissions during the year. A cadet training program "to give the senior the greatest possible responsibility so as to develop potential leadership" was installed. The largest graduating group since 1923 was headed by Cadet-Colonel Jean W. Hollstein, infantry, who was corps commander. Executive officer for the 1,683 ROTC cadets enrolled during the year was Cadet-Major Floyd L. Johnson, field artillery. Corps adjutant was Cadet-Major Robert S. Hampton, engineers. Cadet-Lieutenant-Colonel Ralph E. Vandervort, headed the largest unit of the corps as colonel of the field artillery regiment. Cadet-Lieutenant-Colonel of the infantry was William B. Wootton. Cadet-Lieutenant-Colonel Henry Jacobsen handled the engineer regiment. Army officers conducted the theoretical classes and supervised the practical work, but cadet officers took over all the actual conduct of drills and ceremonies in order to train for leadership. Each senior officer was slated to take over as a regular officer in real-life for one year immediately upon graduation.

Infantry

Teaching the theory of increased fire-power in the tables of organization of the new "streamlined" division, was one of the main instructional duties of classes in the infantry unit. The use of the automatic rifle in as small a unit as the platoon was explained to infantry cadets. Captain Edward

J. Daly was unit commander of the outfit that graduated 31 second lieutenants during the year. Jean W. Hollstein became Cadet Colonel of the corps to give the unit a student corps head for the first time in several years. Close and extended order drill were studied in detail during drill periods. The connection of the infantry regiment with the new army combat team was a problem for the unit. Summer camp for junior officers was shifted this year from Vancouver to Fort Lewis.

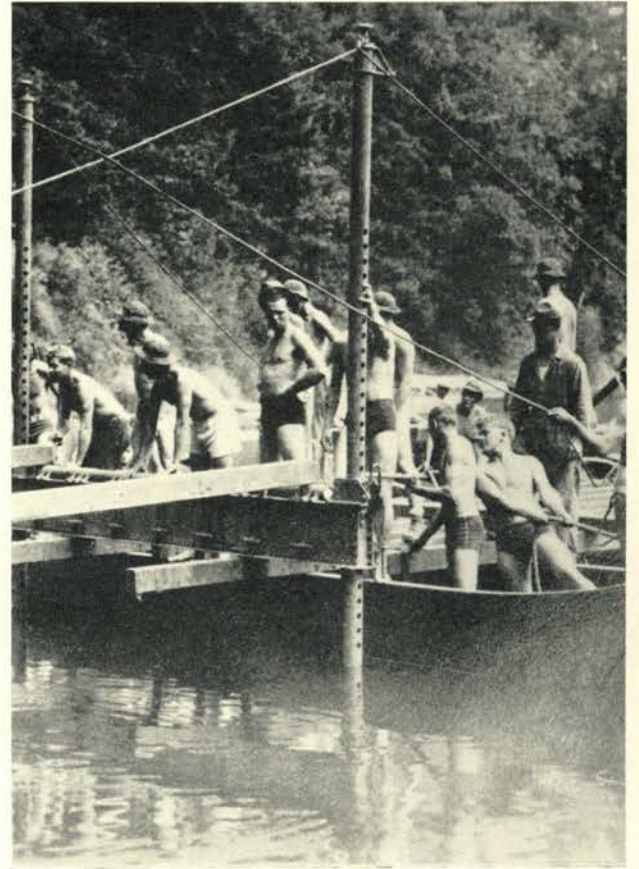

Rifles are important to infantrymen.

Engineers

With the increased mechanization of the army, the function of the engineers has become increasingly important. This unit must keep the roads open for combat teams to roll forward and block roads against enemy approach. To accomplish these objectives new power equipment has been added to the engineer battalion, including power augurs, air compressors, dump trucks, bulldozers and anti-tank mines. These new elements were introduced to cadet engineer classes for the first time this year under the direction of Major Henry J. Hoeffler, unit chief. Twenty-seven second-lieutenants are listed as graduates of the course for the year. Working out the details of such necessities of warfare as barb-wire obstacles and pontoon bridges are other learning activities of the cadets enrolled in the most technical unit of the local corps. Mastering drill fundamentals is no small part of the training program of the outfit that is required to be fitted for service as a soldier, as well as an engineer, during war-time.

Field Artillery

Forty-four second lieutenants were given field artillery commissions from OSC's unit during the year. The class was the largest of any unit. Mastering the technique of firing in accord with "blitzkrieg" swiftness was the instructional problem of the staff headed by Lieutenant-Colonel

Arthur M. Sheets. Chief task of cadet officers was to acquaint freshmen and sophomores with the elements of gun teams and the intricate firing problems of the "seventy-fives" hauled out for practical teaching. ¶ The mechanized equipment of the unit is seen touring about the campus often when senior officers are directing the movement of the materiel to some theoretically strategic position at the outskirts of town. The study of how the light artillery battalion fits with an infantry regiment to form the combat team, essence of the new "streamlined" division, was a top academic task of the unit. The organization of the new medium artillery battalion, which is general support for the division, was also studied.

Athletics

Athletic Board

To establish policies which will govern the athletic program at Oregon State college and to act as an advisory or counseling body to the Director of Athletics, the Board of Intercollegiate Athletics was inaugurated under "New Deal" policies of retired President George W. Peavy on July 1, 1936, when he found an urgent need for such a controlling board. C. V. Ruzek, head of the department of soils, is chairman of the board, and as such, is automatically the representative of Oregon State college to the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate Athletic conference, which is composed of one representative from each school participating in the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate athletic program. For the past two one-year terms, Ruzek has been elected president of the conference. Percy P. Locey, as Director of Athletics at Oregon State college, holds the position of executive officer of the board. The Athletic board holds three regular meetings annually, one each term. Present members of the board are Ruzek, G. R. Hoerner, Dr. W. T. Johnson, Hal Hutchinson, Warren Reid, Allan Rinehart, Lowell Stockman, Ted Cramer, E. M. Smith, Doug Chambers and Berlan Lemon. Reid and Rinehart were added to the board two years ago. The editor of the Barometer and the president of the ASOSC are the student representatives of the board.

With their major project of last year, that of making swimming a major sport, a reality, the number of letter-wearers with memberships in Varsity "O" swelled to over 60 during the year. Other major sports whose letter-winners are eligible for membership are basketball, baseball, track and football. ☪ President of the group was John Tsoutsouvas, Kappa Sig football center. Don Vaillancourt acted as secretary with Jim Busch as the vice-president. Bill Smith was treasurer of the group. ☪ The Lemon-Orange squeeze, distinguished this year by the "escape" of some 20 initiates scheduled for participation in "exhibitions" at intermission, the rook-soph tug-o-war and opening day baseball game ceremonies are on the group list of activities. Oregon State 41, Idaho 0

Coach Lon Stiner's 1940 gridiron machine got off to a flying start September 28 with a one-sided 41-0 victory over the University of Idaho Vandals. Six touchdowns were the total, the first in less than nine minutes and the others following about as fast as two or three different sets of backs could turn on the power. Fullback Jim Kisselburgh scored the first touchdown after Gene Gray had galloped deep into Idaho territory. A few minutes later, Kisselburgh again scored after receiving a punt on his own 24 and running 76 yards for a touchdown. Late in the second period, with Kenny Dow leading the offensive, the Orangemen worked the ball down to the Vandal two and from this point Bob Dethman scored. Ⓒ The Orangemen staged a field day in the third quarter, getting three more touchdowns with Kisselburgh hitting center for one, Joe Tomich passing to Norm Peters for another and Dow plunging for the final one. Left end Johnny Leovich converted three attempts for extra points while Dethman and Don Durdan each made one conversion. One important feature of this game was the savage down-field blocking of the Orange interferers.

Following the Idaho contest the Orangemen journeyed to Los Angeles where they battled Howard Jones' vaunted University of Southern California Trojans to a 0-0 tie. Each eleven had one great scoring chance. Oregon State's chance came in the closing minutes of the first half when Gene Gray caught Bob Olson's pass in the end zone after it had bounded off the finger tips of a Trojan. Gray, however, was ruled offside on the play and the score was nullified. Southern California's opportunity for victory came in the closing minute when Quarterback Woods' pass in the end zone was knocked out of the receiver's hands by another Trojan. The Orangemen did themselves proud in this game in spite of the fact that they were outgained statistically in gains from both scrimmage and passes. The Orange line gave an excellent account of itself with Johnny Leovich, Vic Sears, Leonard Younce and Bud English repeatedly breaking up the Trojans' running attack.

Following the USC game the Orangemen returned home for a non-conference game against the Portland University Pilots. Having things pretty much their own way the Beavers ran up a 26-0 victory over the visitors. On the first play following the kickoff, big Vic Sears recovered a Pilot fumble on the Pilot eight-yard line. Four plays later, Kisselburgh scored. In the second quarter, Sophomore Joe Day ran 25 yards through the entire Portland team for the second Orange touchdown. The remaining two touchdowns were made by interceptions, both in the fourth quarter. Bob Rambo, guard, made one of the interceptions, going 20 yards to score, while Frank Chase made the other, going 23 yards to paydirt. Statistics were overwhelmingly in Oregon State's favor,—261 yards from rushing to the Pilots' 61.

The following weekend the Orangemen received their first defeat of the season at the hands of the University of Washington Huskies by a score of 19-0. The Husky victory broke the three-year winning streak of the Orangemen, who failed to register a score against Washington for the first time in eight years. The teams fought to a standstill through the first half. The Huskies scored once late in the third quarter and twice in the fourth. Their final touchdown came as a result of a 61-yard run by Walters, substitute back. Kisselburgh and Gray were the outstanding backs for the Orangemen while Sears turned in an excellent game in the line. Twice Kisselburgh's kicking rescued the Beavers from back of their own 15-yard line. His punting average totaled 39 yards.

Oregon State 7, UCLA 0

Oregon State hung up their first conference victory of the season October 26 when they downed the UCLA Bruins by a score of 7-0 in Los Angeles. Achieving victory in the second quarter, the Beavers ran and passed 57 yards for the lone touchdown. Bob Dethman put the Beavers in scoring position with an 18-yard pass to Gene Gray, and two plays later, with the ball on the Bruin 26, shot a hard pass to Leovich. Leovich caught the ball on the 17, sidestepped two Bruin defense men, and raced across the goal. Leonard Younce booted the extra point. Twice again the Beavers drove into UCLA territory. Once they reached the ten-yard line only to be held by the big Bruin line. Again in the last quarter, Jim Busch intercepted a pass and returned it 30 yards. The Bruins never seriously threatened to score. The closest they got was the Oregon State 28-yard line. They were on the Beaver side of the field but four times. Oregon State's big line, sparked by Younce, Sears and Halverson, smothered the Bruin backs most of the afternoon. The Orangemen made a total of 181 yards from running plays against 90 for UCLA.

The next weekend, the travel-weary Orangemen journeyed to Berkeley to meet the University of California Bears. In this contest the Beavers combined a stunning ground attack with an effective aerial game, to defeat the Bears 19-13. The game was a bruising battle from start to finish. Each team scored a touchdown in the opening quarter and Oregon State got another in the second to hold a halftime lead of 13-7. The initial Beaver score came in the first four minutes of play as a result of a Bear fumble, recovered by Bob Saunders on the California 26. A few plays later Dethman whipped a pass to Gray for the score. Late in the second quarter an Orange drive, featuring a 43-yard run by Dow, placed the Beavers in scoring position. Olson's pass to Gray gave Oregon State its second touchdown. In the final period the Beavers went 64 yards for a score. Five line plays and two successful passes turned the trick. Bob Dethman, starting in left half, tossed the winning pass to Don Durdan, good for 24 yards and victory. California evened the score in the third quarter after a Bear back recovered a Beaver fumble and ran for a touchdown.

Before a Dad's Day crowd of 8,000 the Beavers trounced Babe Hollingbery's Cougars of Washington State by a score of 21-0, November 9. Halfback Bob Dethman, in the second quarter, dove over the Cougar line for the initial touchdown after a 68-yard power march, which saw the big Beaver line, completely in charge, move the ball to the Washington State two-yard line. Dethman's brilliant running and passing time and again pulled the Orangemen out of tight holes when the Cougars threatened, which they did no less than three times. ¶ In the fourth quarter, with the ball on the Cougar 40, Dethman with some excellent blocking by Jim Kisselburgh, circled left end for 38 yards. Kisselburgh went over on the next play for the Beavers' second score. There was less than a minute to play when Dethman intercepted a Washington State pass and returned it to the Cougar 16 to set up the third score. A play later he dropped back and tossed a pass to right end Norm Peters in the end zone. ¶ The Cougar line gave an excellent account of itself at times, but lacked the consistency of the Oregon State forward wall, sparked by big Leonard Younce, who also converted the three attempts for extra points. The Cougars' big chance came in the second period when they went to the Oregon State two.

In their final road trip of the season, the Beavers made the trip to Palo Alto to meet Stanford University's wonder team, revivers of the famed "T" formation. The Indians trounced the Beavers 28-14. Stanford scored on the first series of plays on a 71-yard march. The Beavers retaliated with a march of their own of 58 yards to tie the score. In the third period Stanford crashed over with three touchdowns, as a result of a 50-yard drive to break the deadlock, pounded 33 yards after recovering a fumble, then hit the turf on a 61-yard thrust after an intercepted pass. The Beavers got their second touchdown in the fourth quarter when Vic Sears recovered a Stanford fumble on the Indian 19. In two pass plays they scored. Dethman tossed both of them, one for 11 yards and one for eight. Younce made good both attempted conversions. Frankie Albert was the leader of the Indian offensive.

An underdog University of Oregon football team unleashed a smashing ground assault on Bell field November 30 to defeat Oregon State in the traditional battle between the two schools by a score of 20-0. With Isberg setting the pace the Webfoots scored in the first, second and fourth periods. Their first score came after Isberg returned a kick to the Orange 31. From here end runs and off-tackle slants placed the ball on the two, from which point Isberg scored. In the second period, Isberg together with Roblin worked the ball down to the Oregon State 10 from where he again scored on the fourth down. This drive included a 33-yard gallop. The final Webfoot touchdown in the fourth quarter came as a result of a 37-yard run by halfback Mecham. Oregon State came near scoring in the first period, moving first to the Oregon 10 and then to the nine. But the Oregon line, which played its best game of the season, bolstered each time to stave off the threats. The game was the 44th annual meeting of the two elevens and was the first Oregon victory over the Beavers in five years. Statistics show that Oregon made 220 yards rushing to 205 for the Beavers.

Varsity Basketball

Winning nine and losing seven, Oregon State's defending Northern division basketball champions finished in second place at the close of the 1941 season, under the leadership of Coach A. T. (Slats) Gill. The Orangemen played the major part of the season with a lineup composed of sophomores and juniors leaving the prospects bright for an excellent ball club for the 1942 season. Coach Gill recommended the following for awards at the close of the season: Sam Dement, Don Durdan, Don Hall, George McNutt, Captain John Mandic, Jack Mulder, Clayton Shaw, Paul Valenti and Manager Gene Sharp.

OREGON STATE'S defending northern division champions concluded their pre-season schedule with a record of 10 wins against two defeats against non-conference opponents. ¶ THREE CONSECUTIVE BASKETS by George McNutt gave the Beavers a 45-39 victory over Washington State in the season's opener on the local court. The next night, Slats Gill's hoopsters made it two in a row over the Cougars by defeating them 44-42. The visitors held a 26-10 lead at halftime and led until the closing five minutes of the contest when Jack Mulder and John Mandic pumped in the winning points. ¶ JANUARY 17 marked the beginning of the traditional series with the University of Oregon. In this contest the Webfoots downed the Beavers by staging a last-half drive to get a 41-31 win. The game was a see-saw affair until the last seven minutes when the towering Ducks finally pulled away to a safe lead. ¶ THE ORANGEMEN then journeyed to Seattle for the first Washington series. The Beavers suffered their first conference defeats here by scores of 40-34 and 34-33. The first game was Washington's all the way until the closing minutes. Mandic led the Orange scorers with 10. In the second game Oregon State led until the final four minutes when the Huskies staged a scoring bee to knot the count and win out on the conversion of a foul, 34-33.

Mandic and Dalthorp of Washington led the scorers with 14 and 16 points respectively. ¶ THE ORANGEMEN avenged their disastrous Seattle invasion by turning tables on the Huskies in a two-game series here by downing them 36-23 and 34-28. Using a "slow 'em up" defense, the first game was 11 minutes old before the visitors scored a field goal. Mandic and McNutt again were high point men for Oregon State. The second game was a much harder-fought battle with the score being either tied or one team holding a one-point lead most of the way. Paul Valenti was the big Orange scoring threat in this game, getting 13 points. ¶ FEBRUARY 8, the University of Oregon Ducks made it two in a row over the Beavers, winning 36-35 in a thrilling overtime contest. Tied with the score 31-all at the end of the regular game, the two clubs went into the overtime period and the Beavers surged into the lead, but Anderson's shot put Oregon out in front 25 seconds before the end of the contest. ¶ FEBRUARY 17 AND 18 the Idaho Vandals invaded the Orange court for a two-game series. The first game was a runaway for the Orangemen, winning 43-19. Valenti started the Beavers off with a lead which they never lost and had increased it to 29-10 by half-time. The Vandals gave the Beavers a scare in the second contest but lost 41-35 when Oregon

State pulled away to a safe lead in the closing minutes. ¶ OREGON STATE got revenge, in part at least, in their third of the Civil War series with Oregon when they defeated the Webfoots 24-23. Paul Valenti's converted free throw with six seconds remaining in the game meant an Orange victory. Oregon started off to an early lead and had held it most of the way up to the tie count and Valenti's free throw. ¶ THE FOLLOWING WEEK Oregon State's hopes of overtaking the high-flying Washington State college Cougars were lost when Oregon scored a close 37-36 win over Oregon State. This game was the third one Oregon State lost by a one-point margin. The Beavers held a 22-18 lead at halftime and had completely outplayed the Ducks up to this point. In the second half, the lead changed hands several times until Andrews' pair of free throws gave Oregon victory. ¶ FOLLOWING this game Oregon State prepared for the Moscow and Pullman invasions for return series with the University of Idaho and Washington State respectively. Idaho scored their first win over the Beavers, 42-35 in the initial contest. The Orangemen started strongly but before the first period was half gone Idaho had the lead which was 24-16 at halftime. Slat's Gill's courtmen came right back the following night to complete the Vandal series with a 41-32 victory. Oregon State grabbed the lead five minutes away from the opening whistle and held the margin until the end. Early in the second period, Oregon State stretched the lead to seven points momentarily, with Idaho soon taking up the gap to three points, where it remained during the majority of the time. John Mandic was high point man again in this game, bringing his total scoring to 147 points with two games with Washington State remaining to be played. THE ORANGEMEN divided their final series with Washington State's Cougars, losing the first game 42-37 and winning the second 50-45. The Beavers went ahead at the opening of the first game but the teams battled evenly from then until Lindeman's field goal broke a 22-22 tie late in the first half. WSC ended the period with a 30-26 lead and managed to stay ahead during a slow second half. The Orangemen won their final contest of the season, stopping the Cougars for the third time during the season for the only three defeats WSC received during conference play. After a tight first half, Oregon State grabbed the lead and was tied only once during the second period. In this game John Mandic topped all Beaver scorers for any single game during conference play by sinking seven field goals and six free throws for a total of 20 points.

Ⓒ Louis Beck, with 91 points led the Rook scoring column followed by Atwood and Warren. BASEBALL

RALPH COLEMAN, Coach

Varsity Baseball

Oregon State's varsity baseball nine clinched their second consecutive Northern division title by winning twelve out of sixteen circuit games. ¶ The pitching burden was carried by Clayton Shaw, righthander, and Glenn Elliott, sophomore lefthander. This pair divided the Orange victories with six wins each. Another factor playing an important part in the Beavers' pennant-winning drive was the catching and hitting of John Leovich, a sophomore who is regarded as one of the finest catchers in Oregon State's diamond history. ¶ The '40 season marked Ralph Coleman's third season as head coach with two division pennants and one tie to his credit.

The Beavers held a field day at the plate in their opening conference game against the University of Oregon in Eugene April 19. Bespectacled Glenn Elliott scattered seven hits over the Ducks while his mates were hammering out a total of 14 to win a 10-3 victory. High spots of the Orange offensive were Leovich's getting four hits in five times up and Ken Bradley's ninth-inning home run. ☞ The next day, the Orangemen formally opened the baseball season on their home diamond by trouncing the Ducks again, this time to a score of 10-7. Clayton Shaw, just returned from a basketball trip to Hawaii, was on the mound and though troubled by a streak of wildness had the Ducks well in hand, giving up nine hits. Coleman's nine had a big third inning, driving in four runs including a home run clout by second baseman Arland Schwab. ☞ On the weekend of April 26 and 27, Buck Bailey brought his ever-colorful Washington State college Cougars to Corvallis. Elliott's pitching performance in the first game was one of the season's best and the Orangemen won the contest 7-1. He struck out 13 and gave up only three safe blows. In the second game the Beavers made it two in a row over the Cougars, winning by a close 4-3 score. Rodney Sims, veteran right fielder, was the hero of the contest. He slapped one over the fence to make the score 3-all in the eighth inning and then got a single with two on in the ninth to drive in the winning run. Shaw pitched an excellent game, giving up five hits. He allowed but one hit in the last six innings.

The Orangemen won their fifth straight conference victory in downing the University of Idaho Vandals in the first of their two-game series here by a score of 9-4. It was Elliott again pitching and getting a total of 13 strikeouts. The Beavers really won the game in the seventh when a Vandal error coupled with singles by Loffer, Specht, Leovich and Sims were good for four runs. Specht led the Orange attack with two doubles and a single in five times at bat. The following day, however, the Vandals handed Ralph Coleman's team its first conference defeat. Shaw hooked up in a ten-inning pitching duel with Dick Snyder, Vandal ace, with the Idahoans winning 3-1. The only Beavers able to touch Snyder were Schwab, Bonney, Leovich and Younce, each getting one hit apiece. The winning run came when Shaw walked Price, Vandal catcher, to push Ramey across the plate. ¶ Following the Idaho series, the University of Washington Huskies came to the local diamond. Elliott was even better against the visitors than in any of his previous games, allowing two hits and striking out 14. Specht drove Bradley home for the winning run in the fifth to end the scoring for both teams. A 7-5 victory over the Huskies in the second game of their series concluded the Beavers' home stand with the exception of the remaining Oregon game. Coleman's men took a two-run lead in the opening frame and never were headed. In this inning Schwab blasted the only home run of the contest. Pitcher Shaw got in trouble in the ninth when he loaded the bases but came back to force out a possible run at home to end the game.

Some of the pros take their baseball seriously.

The Beavers left Corvallis May 14 for a hazardous road trip into the Inland Empire for a return series with Idaho and Washington State to be followed by a series with Washington at Seattle. Ⓒ Behind Shaw's five-hit pitching, the Orangemen walloped Idaho 9-3 in the first game of the invasion. The Beavers pounded two Vandal pitchers for a total of 15 hits, their biggest burst coming in the seventh when five hits netted four runs. Except for the first inning when the Vandals got two of their three runs, Shaw was in control of the situation at all times. In the second game, Coleman's aggregation again blasted 15 hits off three Idaho hurlers while southpaw Elliott was giving only two hits and striking out 19 to win 9-1. After a scoreless first inning, the Beaver sluggers found Snyder, Idaho's starting hurler, for three hits and six runs before he was taken out. Elliott had only one bad inning, that being the fourth, when the Vandals pushed across their lone run. Ⓒ Following the Idaho series, the Beavers went over to Pullman to cross bats with Buck Bailey's Cougars again. The Cougars trounced the Orangemen 8-0 in the first contest. Gene Williams, making his first start, although he was touched for 11 blows, had only two bad innings. Bailey's gang got four hits in the third and three in the sixth. McCollum, Cougar ace, held the Beavers to two hits. Ⓒ The Cougars came back the next day to defeat the Beavers again, this time by a 6-3 score. Schwab, regular Orange second-baseman, pitched for Coleman's nine and gave a good performance, only three of the Cougar runs being earned. Besides his pitching, Schwab hit a home run to drive in two of his team's three scores. ¶ Following the Palouse invasion, the Beavers moved over to Seattle to complete their series with Washington. The Beavers clinched the Northern division championship in the first game by defeating the Huskies 2-1 in a hurlers' battle between Glenn Elliott and Tom Baker. Each pitcher allowed only four hits and the win was Elliott's sixth of the season. The next day in another tight pitchers' battle Oregon State's Northern division champions downed the Huskies 4-2 to make a clean sweep of the Washington series. The game also closed the road trip with a record of four victories against two defeats. Shaw pitched six-hit ball to win his fifth conference victory of the season. Oregon State got its first run in the fourth but the Orange sewed up the contest in the fifth with two more counters. Washington got its final run in the eighth. ¶ The Orangemen then returned home for their final home game of the season, against the University of Oregon. Behind the three-hit pitching of Linn, Duck hurler, the visitors defeated the Beavers 5-0. Specht, Bonney and Leovich were the only Beavers to hit Linn's offerings, all getting singles. Walden, Duck catcher, led the opposition with a single and a double. Glenn Elliott gave up a total of nine safe hits. ¶ The Northern division champions completed the 1940 season in Eugene by defeating the Ducks for the third time by a score of 4-1. Winning the diamond series from the Ducks gave Oregon State the record of winning every major sport series from Oregon during the year 1939-40. Ⓞ The game was scoreless until the fifth when the Beavers chased three runs across the plate. Outfielder Norm Peters drove in two of the runs with a double. The Beavers got their final run in the seventh. Oregon got its sole run in the eighth when Pitcher Shaw got into hot water for the only time in the game. With bases full and two away, Shaw bore down to strike out a pinch-hitter.

BUD FORRESTER, Coach

Freshman Baseball

Bud Forrester's freshman baseball stars braved torrents of rain and driving winds to pile up eight wins, six losses and one tie for their 1940 hardball season. The yearlings started things rolling with an airtight pitching staff consisting of Olmstead, Yackey, Weaver and Trayle, backed up by a whole team of heavy hitters. The babes lost only two games up to the eve of the Beaver-Duckling civil war but their batting eyes went berserk and Oregon went home with four straight wins while the Rooks smashed Sweet Home 16 to 1 for a grand finale.

Topped by a pair of victories over the University of Oregon, Oregon State's track and field team, under the leadership of Coach Grant Swan, had a better than average 1940 track season. ¶ With a fair assortment of lettermen returning, together with a few experienced men and sophomores, the Beavers were entered in meets with Portland University, University of Idaho, University of Washington, Oregon, the Northern division meet and the Pacific coast conference meet held in Los Angeles.

The Beavers opened their season in a three-way meet with Portland University and the Rooks. Paced by a record mark in the high jump by Ed Woodcock, the Beavers ran up a total of 107 points to Portland's 38 and the Rooks' 13. Doc Swan's cindermen captured every running event with ease but ran into trouble in the field events. Enzler, Portland, took the shot put, while Findlay won the broad jump and the Pilots won both the discus and pole vault. Don Vaillancourt turned in a creditable performance in the mile, while Russell Graff, half-miler, won his event easily. Woodcock was high point man for the meet with 10. ¶ The Orangemen then journeyed to Moscow for their annual meet with the University of Idaho Vandals, whom they defeated 77-56. Howard Carlson took the honors for the meet, scoring first in the high hurdles, second in the low hurdles and a tie for first in the 100-yard dash for a total of 12 points. Another standout for the Beavers was Woodcock, who went 6 feet 5 1/2 inches to win the high jump and took first in the javelin with a throw of 178 feet. Captain Bill Hampton took first honors in the 220 and 440 yard dashes for another 10 points. ¶ Next on the Beaver schedule were the University of Washington Huskies.

Up and over successfully.

Weakness in the field events and the sprints proved the Beavers' downfall against Hec Edmundson's charges and the Huskies triumphed 79-51. For the Orangemen, Woodcock salvaged the only firsts Oregon State made in the field events by taking the high jump as well as the javelin toss. ☞ Bright spot for the Beavers was a clean sweep in the 880-yard and mile run with Graff leading the way at one minute 59.1 seconds for teammates Brice Hammack and Jack Gilpin in the 880 and Don Vaillancourt scoring an easy win in the mile with Nelson and Hammack also placing. ☞ May 14 was the high mark in the Beavers' season when they trounced the University of Oregon 70-61 for the first time since 1932. Vaillancourt gave his teammates a rousing start by outpacing his opponent and going on to set a dual meet record-breaking 4:19.6 performance in the mile run. Ed Woodcock hung up another record by topping by an inch the Beaver-Duck record in the high jump with a 6 foot 4 inch leap. Highlight of the meet was the relay. Hampton took the lead in the first quarter only to have Oregon's ace sprinter narrow the gap in the second. Then Russell Niblock widened the distance too much in the third for the Oregon runner to catch Oregon State's Tom Blair in the last lap. First places did not win the meet for the Beavers but rather a bevy of second and thirds piled up the winning margin. ☞ Next the Beavers made their second trip to Seattle, this time for the Northern division meet. Doc Swan's cindermen wound up in a tie for third place with Idaho. As expected, Washington State's Cougars walked off with first place. Bill Blackledge and Woodcock were the outstanding Orange entrants. Blackledge took second in the shot put and third in the discus, while Woodcock tied for first in the high jump and took second in the javelin toss. Four men qualified for the annual Pacific coast conference track and field championships in Los Angeles. Those entered were Vaillancourt in the mile and two-mile; Woodcock, high jump and javelin; Blackledge, shot put and discus; and Carlson, hurdles. Vaillancourt was the only man to place in this meet. ¶ At the close of the season, awards were made to Bill Blackledge, Tom Blair, Howard Carlson, Frank Chase, Russell Graff, Jack Graves, Jack Gilpin, Brice Hammack, Bill Hampton, James Holloway, Bill Lowery, Jim Miller, Willard Nelson, Russell Niblock, Jim Rogers, Eberle Schultz, Bill Smith, Don Vaillancourt and Ed Woodcock. ¶ Next year, Vaillancourt, Nelson and Graff are the outstanding men returning. On the whole, the 1941 team will probably not top their predecessors very much. This season was a milestone in Oregon State's track history in that Grant Swan finally broke the spell of Oregon's Colonel Bill Hayward in dual competition.

Don Vaillancourt comes in first as usual.

Lowery heaves the javelin for the Beavers.

The freshman track team, coached by "Gloomy" Doc Swan, participated in three meets, one with Portland university, and two with Oregon's Frosh. The Rooks blanked the Duckling relay team 5 to 0, taking firsts in every scheduled event. But on their second encounter the Beaverites came out on the losing end with Oregon scoring 67 points to Oregon State's 55. High scorers for the freshmen were Don Findlay, high jumper, broad jumper and sprinter, and Jesse Truax, also a sprinter. These men should see action on the varsity track team during the 1941 season.

Beautiful form!

THIS YEAR marked the first season that Oregon State competed in swimming with the sport being classified as a major one. Under the leadership of Coach Reg Flood, the Orange mermen completed the season with a record of three losses, two victories and captured third place in the annual Northwest conference meet. ☞ THE University of Washington Huskies downed the Orangemen in their initial meet by a score of 56-19. Dick Ebeling was the only Oregon Stater to win a first in this meet, that being in the 440-yard free style. ☞ FOLLOWING the Husky meet the Orangemen entertained the University of Oregon Ducks here and came out on the short end of a 42-32 score. Ebeling and Jack Stark were the only Beavers to win first places in the first of two meets with the Ducks, Ebeling winning in the 220 and 440-yard free style events while Stark won the 50-yard free style. Oregon State's Bill Burgess won the fancy diving event. ☞ THE following weekend, Oregon downed the Beavers again, this time by a 50-24 count. Burgess and Ebeling again were the only Beavers to win first honors, those being in the fancy diving and 220-yard free style events. ☞ THE BEAVERS hit their stride February 14 when they rolled up an impressive score of 54-21 over the Washington State Cougars. Oregon State captured firsts in eight of the nine events. Gene Hofsted, Jack Schwartz, Howard Sidwell, Ebeling, Burgess and Louie Gelbrich were the Beaver winners. ¶ THE ORANGEMEN made it two victories in two days following the win over the Cougars when they sank the University of Idaho by a score of 51-15. Here again, the Beaver mermen won every event but one, that being the 440-yard free style. In addition to the firsts, Oregon State won four seconds to dominate the meet all the way. A pair of new Orange winners in this meet were Steve Eyman and Bob Morrison in the 150-yard back stroke and 200-yard breast stroke respectively. ¶ MARCH 1 the Orange mermen journeyed to Seattle for the Northwest conference meet in which they placed third out of six schools competing. Those placing in the meet were Burgess, fancy diving; Hofsted, breaststroke; Stark, free style; Eyman, backstroke and the relay team, third. Results of the meet were: Washington 75 points, Oregon 55, Oregon State 16, Idaho 11, Montana 10 and Washington State 5. ¶ AT THE close of the season Coach Flood recommended the following for letters: Ebeling, Hofsted, Eyman, Stark, Burgess, Kotchik, McGovern, Morrison, Schwartz, Gelbrich, LeTourneux, Kling and Sidwell.

The Ducklings then made it two in a row over the Rooks in their next encounter by a score of 41-34. In this meet, the Rooks won first place in every event except two. Varsity Golf Varsity golfers, under the leadership of Coach "Slats" Gill, went through the regular conference season on the short end of matches with Oregon and the University of Washington. Oregon defeated the Orangemen by a count of 21-6 and Washington holed out an 18½-8½ victory. Then the Beavers trounced the Washington State Cougars May 3 in Pullman followed by a defeat at the hands of the University of Idaho Vandals at Moscow. This completed conference play except for the Northern Division playoffs held on the Corvallis country club links. Washington was the winner, Oregon second, Oregon State third. Those winning varsity letters included Hal Murch, Dick Blasen, Frank Smith, Vernon Martin, Carl Peterson and Pete Mead.

Two wins came to the Beavers following the Husky victory, one against Idaho with a 5-2 victory for the Orange and a second victory over Washington State, 6-1. Following this the Orangemen dropped two games in a row to Oregon, 6-1 and 7-0. Letter winners were Jack Strong, Nevin Cope, Ken Hedberg, Anas Velarde and Aris Sherwood.

Numerals were awarded to Dick Hallock, Hal Bagby, Bob Downie, Bob Bruckart and Wayne Williams, the first five men to see regular action.

Boxing

This year marked the first season that an Oregon State boxing team attempted a regular boxing schedule of any consequence. Under the leadership of Coach Jim Dixon, the Beaver ringmen met some of the toughest competition in Orange boxing history. ☞ The Orangemen had their best night of the entire season when they battled the strong San Jose State team to a 4-4 tie before a large crowd. Arnold Hildebrandt, 145-pound slugger, won the outstanding bout of the evening, winning a rough decision over his opponent. ☞ Their only victory of the season saw them hammer out a 7-1 win over the University of Oregon, the only loss being by decision. Other opponents during the season were the California Aggies, Gonzaga university, Washington State college and the University of Idaho. The Orangemen also entered the Pacific coast conference meet. Prospects for next season are excellent with several lettermen returning and some good sophomores. Oregon State has also become a member of the Pacific Coast Athletic association. ☞ Coach Dixon recommended the following for awards: Wallace Long, Dick Livingston, Arnold Hildebrandt, Henry Arnold, Joe Cordona, George Christenson, Bill McFadden, Jack Glynn, Ken Pruitt and Manager Merle Johnson.

Wrestling

Oregon State's wrestling squad, coached by Del Allman, experienced one of the most successful seasons in Orange mat history during the 1941 season. The Beaver wrestlers lost only one meet, that being to Washington, in their initial event of the season with the final match being the deciding one. ¶ The Orangemen scored victories over Oregon twice by 26-6 and 36-0 counts, over Washington State 19-11 and over Idaho 24-8. ¶ They topped off the season by winning the annual Northern division meet with 40 points, with Washington and Idaho tied for second, Washington State fourth and Oregon fifth. In doing this, the Beavers established a record by having all eight entrants in the finals and taking four titles. Orange winners included Jim Merritt, 155; Pat Kelly, 175; Dick Wilson, 128; and Darrell Irvin, 136. Orange runners-up were Ted Webb, 121; George Bain, heavy-weight; Dick Hunger, 145; and Ken Croeni, 165. ¶ The following were recommended for awards by Coach Allman: George Bain, Virgil Cavagnaro, Kenneth Croeni, Dan Feikert, Lewis Furber, Darrell Irvin, Pat Kelly, Ray Lockwood, Jim Merritt, Ted Webb, Dick Wilson, Dick Hunger and Manager Charles Watt.

Fencing and Crew

Winning three victories and placing second in the finals of the Northern division meet was the record of the Oregon State fencing team this year.

The first meet saw the Orangemen down the Washington

Huskies 5-4 at Seattle. This was the second time the Huskies have been defeated in 13 years. ¶ In their following meet the Beavers, with Rodney Clark and Paul Bonn winning three matches each, defeated Washington State 7-2. The Orangemen completed their regular schedule the following day by shutting out the University of Idaho by a score of 9-0. The University of Washington defeated the Beavers in the division finals 5-4. Oregon State's Bonn was the outstanding man in the tournament, winning six matches. Awards were made to Rodney Clark, Paul Bonn, Fred Scheidegger and Donald Wong by Coach W. M. Adrion.

¶ Although crew is not a minor sport at Oregon State, interest in it has increased this year more than ever under Coach Ed Stevens. In their trip to California this year the Orange crewmen defeated Stanford university by two lengths and lost to California. Members of the crew are Phil Auld, Roy Bond, Verne Bronson, Bob Maris, Art Weiland, Joe Stahancyk, Corwin McLean, Jean Hollstein and Jack Gates.

VARSIITY CREW—McLean, Weiland, Bond, Seberg, Stahancyk, Birkemeier, Hollstein, Fischer, Robertson.

Sking

With competition being keener this year than ever before, Oregon State's ski team gave an excellent account of itself during the past season. At the University of Nevada ski carnival, the Orange slat artists placed sixth with a total of 151.94 points. George Brummer was the outstanding Beaver representative, placing second in jumping. ☪ In a three-way meet at Mt. Hood Oregon State placed second with Reed college first and Oregon third. Don Francis won first place in the downhill, and Brummer second in the slalom. ☪ In the Pacific Coast conference intercollegiate meet at Yosemite the Orange team placed tenth in a field of eighteen. John Duffy placed fifth in the cross country with Francis also placing. Brummer led the Beavers in the slalom. ☪ In the four-way Northwest Intercollegiate union championships on Mount Rainier, Oregon State won fourth place in a field of eight. The team took second in jumping, fourth in the downhill, fifth in cross country and third in the slalom. ☪ The ski team is backed by the Suski club and is coached by Howard Raabe. Those competing this season were Don Francis, John Duffy, George Brummer, Bob Cutler, Bob Robinson, Ray Jackson and Joe Lausmann.

Touch Football

Kappa Sigma stepped into the spotlight as the fall term intramural schedule got under way by capturing the touch football title. Thirty-nine teams comprised of 595 men played a total of 76 games before the winner was determined. The Van Buren Tigers won the honors in the independent league but could not match the well-balanced fraternity outfit in the playoff. Although not in the finals, the strong Sigma Nu team placed three men on the all-star team selected by the referees. The officials selected Jack Graves, Kappa Sigma, quarterback; Bob Baker, Van Buren Tigers, right half; Al Sauer, Poling, left half; Don Moore, Sigma Nu, full-back; Elwyn McRae, Sigma Nu, right end; Floyd Parks, Cauthorn, right guard; Elmer Helenius, Sigma Nu, center; Lester Dunn, Van Buren Tigers, left guard; Wendell Swanson, Van Buren Tigers, left end.

Basketball

Basketball again proved to be the most popular sport on the fall term schedule and a new record for participation in any one sport was set. Seventy-eight teams, 54 fraternity representatives and 24 independents, entered the race. There were 720 men participating in a total of 177 games. The strong Sigma Nu A team overcame all opposition in its division to win the A championship while a small but fast team from the Theta Chi house was copping the honors in the B league. For the second year in a row the Nu Octa Rho quintet captured the independent title and met the Sigma Nus in the playoffs for the all-school championship. This year, however, the independent five proved to be too much for the defending champions and when the smoke of battle had cleared they had the all-school title under their belt. Nu Octa Rho placed two men on the all-star team, and Sigma Nu, Kappa Sigma and Sigma Alpha Epsilon each placed one man on the squad. All-star selections were: Bob McKee, Kappa Sigma, and Gene Holweger, SAE, forwards; Ben Atwood, Nu Octa Rho, center; Lewis Beck, Sigma Nu,

Individual Handball

Three individual sports were run off along with the many team matches during the term. Seventeen men entered the all-college handball tournament, and the final match found Dave Holmlund, an independent, defeating Kappa Sigma's Harry Fall in a closely contested match by scores of 21-19, 9-21 and 21-16.

Horseshoes

Forty-two contestants started out in the all-college individual horseshoe tournament, but it turned out to be an Alpha Gamma Rho affair when LeRoy Fuller met fraternity brother Jack Sather in the finals. Fuller emerged victorious in a very close match.

Golf

A new golf tournament was inaugurated this year when John Wagner, local business man, donated a trophy to go to the winner of an all-school tournament in which all golfing enthusiasts could compete. Previously, varsity and freshmen golfers had not been permitted to enter the all-school tournament. Eighteen divot diggers entered and the final match saw Ben Bates, Ray Weston and Walt Bennett fighting it out in a three-way match for the championship. Bates won after Weston, last year's all-school champion, had carried the match into extra holes. The all-college tennis tournament was started but not completed this term.

Foul Throwing

Twenty-three fraternity and eight independent teams entered the foul throwing competition and Phi Delta Theta captured the crown for the second time in the past three years with a total of 368 baskets out of a possible 500. Lambda Chi Alpha sank 347 of their chances to take second place and Nu Octa Rho led the independents with 352 points. Lewis Beck, Sigma Nu, grabbed high scoring honors by sinking 86 of his 100 tries. He was six baskets short of the all-school record of 92 set by Hal Higgs in 1938.

Volleyball

Most of the winter term winners were chosen at Coley's annual open house. Alpha Sigma Phi completely dominated the volleyball tournament by taking both the A and the B championships. The A team defeated the independent champions, Nelson House, to win the all-school title as well. Volleyball was again a very popular sport with 518 men comprising 52 teams playing a total of 103 games.

Handball Doubles

Twenty teams entered the intramural handball doubles tournament and the final game found the Kappa Sigma duo meeting a strong Sigma Alpha Epsilon pair. When the closely contested match was over, the Kappa Sigs had added another trophy to their already long list.

Wrestling

The intramural wrestling tournament is becoming more popular every year. This year 244 men wrestled 172 matches before the individual and team winners were determined. A strong, well-balanced team from the Lambda Chi Alpha house captured the grappling crown for the second straight year with a total of 29 points. Phi Gamma Delta was runner-up with 23 points. Individual mat champions were: Don Stewart, Alpha Gamma Rho, 125 pounds; Ty Brown, independent, 135 pounds; Bob Nielson, Phi Delta Theta, 145 pounds; Cliff Spaulding, Phi Sigma Kappa, 155 pounds; Bob Horn, independent, 165 pounds; Jack McConnell, Phi Gamma Delta, 175 pounds; Jim Busch, Phi Delta Theta, unlimited.

Dual Swimming

Fifteen teams met in dual swimming competition and Beta Theta Pi defeated Phi Sigma Kappa in the finals to win the trophy.

Swimming Meet

The all-college swimming meet saw ten teams entered and the Beta Theta Pi splashers again proved their superiority by capturing this title also. Phi Gamma Delta was runner-up. Individual winners in the meet were: Tom Whitmore, Phi Gamma Delta, 100-foot free style; Bill Case, Phi Sigma Kappa, 100-foot backstroke; Bill Hunter, Beta Theta Pi, 200-foot freestyle; Don Druliner, Phi Delta Theta, 100-foot breaststroke; Phi Sigma Kappa, medley relay; Gordon Petrie, Phi Gamma Delta, 300-foot freestyle; Beta Theta Pi, freestyle relay.

Table Tennis

The table tennis tournament drew 129 enthusiasts and Jack Strong, an independent, won his second all-school title in three years. Bob Russell, Kappa Sigma, was runner-up.

Gymnastics

Only four men entered the all-college gymnastic meet and the final tabulations showed that Dick Bailey was the new champion. Roy Yonge took second place.

Fencing

Eight foilsmen entered the fencing tournament and when the sound of clashing steel had died away it was found that Ray Downs was the most efficient fencer of the lot. Walter Tyzkowski was runner-up.

Bowling

Bowling proved to be one of the most popular sports of the entire year, with more teams participating than ever before. The Theta Xis won another bowling trophy by defeating Beta Kappa in a thrillingly close match. Rod Neilson, top man for the winning team also led the school bowling team in several telegraphic matches with other northwest schools. The top bowlers were picked from the intramural teams to represent Oregon State in these meets.

Softball

The Polecats independent ball club won the all-school softball championship by defeating Poling hall, winner of the living groups playoff, in a hectic game that wound up a season filled with upsets and last-minute runs that kept the best teams guessing. Howard Cornutt, ex-sports editor of the Barometer, stepped in to a fast ball for a triple that brought in the winning run for the Polecats in the last of the ninth.

Horseshoes

The ringer-throwing Theta Xis carried home the intramural horseshoe trophy when they out-tossed Sigma Nu's stake artists in the horseshoe finals. The Theta Xi team won easily with four out of five games to their credit.

Dual Track

Beta Theta Pi ran out with the all-school track championship by defeating Phi Delta Theta 32 to 29. Fleetfooted Milt Cook led the Beta's cinder attack with timings that were a little too good for the Phi Delt running squad to equal.

Track

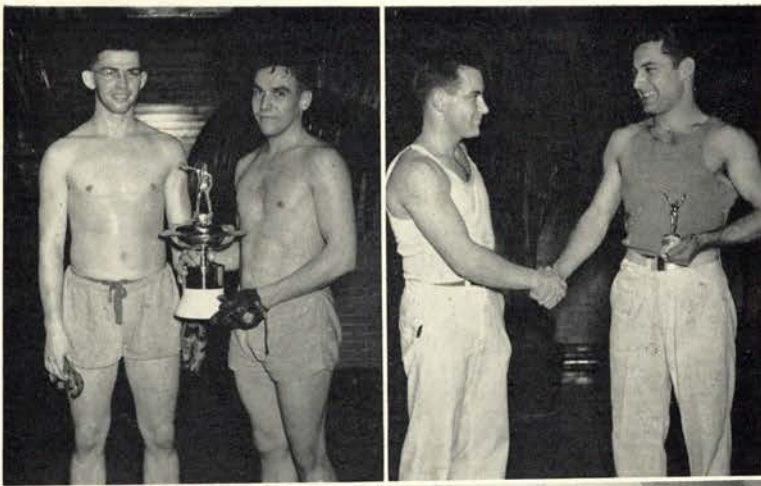

Consistent performances by the Phi Gamma Delta trackmen circled the intramural all-college track meet. The record-breaking credit went to the independent entrants, but the "Fijis" placed more times than other teams to gain title to the track trophy. Runner-up position went to Beta Theta Pi, victors in dual track.

Rowing

Oarsmen from Delta Tau Delta won the intramural rowing trophy offered for the first time last year. The Delt crew slipped over the finish line a good length ahead of Delta Upsilon in the final race. Entrants rowed the small four-man shells over a course laid out on the Willamette river. The program was handicapped by bad weather and high water but much interest was shown in the sport and it will continue on the intramural schedule.

Tennis

Sigma Nu scored a kill over the highly touted Sigma Phi Epsilon raquetters in the mural tennis finals. Sigma Nu's well-placed shots and blasting net play came a little fast for SPE's Tod Tibbutts to return consistently.

Golf

The divot-digging Betas matched up against Sigma Chi and came out two-up on the Corvallis country club course in the intramural golf playoffs. Playing winning golf for Beta Theta Pi were Bill Hunter and Bob Skibinsky.

Fencing

Dan Wong thrust his way to the senior fencing championship while Joe Dumka climbed into the top position in the novice division to take home the "statues".

Bridge

Walking away with the grand slam, Theta Chi's card sharks topped the all-college bridge tournament. Theta Xi came in next best and Phi Sigma Kappa placed third.

Speedball

Alpha Tau Omega's speedball team fought to the championship by trouncing a fast and tricky Poling hall club in the finals. The ATOs came out on top of a group of 17 competing teams with a shiny trophy and a few sore shins and black eyes.

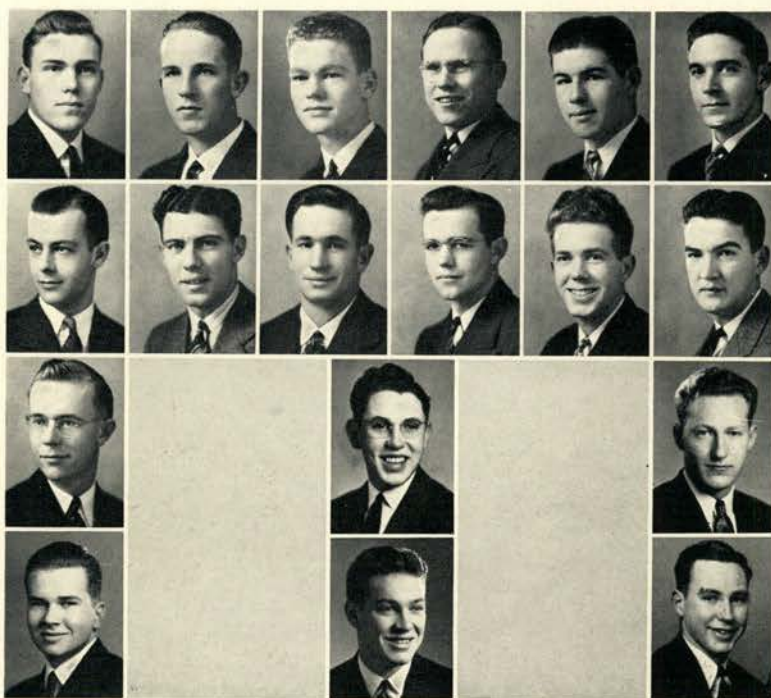

Sigma Delta Psi

Phi Gamma Delta brought forth a versatile group of athletes that stacked up 1,272 points to take the top position of honor in the Sigma Delta Psi events. Phi Delta Theta's lettermen placed second with 1,190 points to their credit while Beta Theta Pi rated third place with 1,150 points scored.

Athletic Managers

Managers of various major and minor athletic teams form the Athletic Managers club which aims to coordinate techniques of student management activities. The outstanding achievement of the club this year was the working out of a systematic program for accommodations and use of equipment by visiting teams. Junior and senior managers of major sports and senior managers of minor sports are eligible for membership. Heading the roster of the organization this year were "Dutch" Wendt, president; and Gene Sharp, secretary-treasurer.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

Under the guidance of physical education instructors and numerous physical education groups, a complete program of recreational activities was again carried on for women interested in athletics. Though many contests and organized games were sponsored by the department, the facilities and equipment are available to all women, and some type of recreational sport was in progress at all times. ¶ Guiding group for most of the activities is the Women's Athletic association which now has almost 100 members. Women must take part in at least one intramural sport—which means coming out for practice as well as participating in the actual tournament—to be eligible for membership. Highlight of WAA activity was a banquet held winter term to honor 48 new members. Bowling was the theme carried out in the decorations, and tenpins adorned the tables while signs from bowling alleys covered the walls. ¶ WAA is responsible for the intramural contests which are carried on each term. Through representatives in living groups, the club organizes competitive sports schedules. Intramural contests are held in volleyball, ping pong, badminton, tennis and basketball. Open singles and doubles and inter-house doubles and singles tournaments are sponsored. WAA is also active in organizing other athletic programs such as play day which is held spring term for women of other colleges. Officers of the association for the past year were Vivian Kudrna, president; Frances Port, vice-president; Constance Bodeker, secretary; Winifred Martin, treasurer; and Virginia Gates, intramural manager. ¶ While active participation in sports was sponsored by WAA, the function of the Physical Education club was to discuss new developments in the field of physical education for women. Membership in this professional organization is open to all minors in the school and the monthly meetings are usually devoted to some outside speaker. Charlotte Colson was president; Margaret Milliken, vice-president; Beth Purvine, secretary; and Constance Bodeker, treasurer. ¶ Aim of all physical education women is to make Parthenia and Orange O, honor organizations for women. Parthenia membership is limited to members of the Physical Education club who have high scholarship, the qualities of womanliness and a professional interest in physical education. Membership in Orange O is not limited to physical education minors, but is open to all junior and senior women who have actively participated in sports. A white sweater with an orange O is the symbol of the organization. ¶ Because of the intense interest of some women in particular sports, specialized clubs have been formed which devote their activities to one field of athletics. Among them is the Archery club. Each year this group sponsors the Keasey arrow shoot for beginning archers and the Golden arrow shoot for advanced archers. Much new equipment—some of which is the best in the nation—is at the disposal of the group. Several members have carried off top honors in the telegraphic archery shoot which is held in competition with numerous colleges in the United States. Fencers have also organized a club for both men and women. Bouts are held with other colleges, and the group meets often for practice. Miss Marjorie Dennis, instructor in physical education for women, is advisor for the group. ¶ Women swimmers who have attained a high degree of skill are pledged to Aquabats, the honorary in that field. This year members of Aquabats and Helldivers, men's swimming group, combined for the "Blitzkrieg in the Bath tub" swimming carnival which was held winter term. Roaring bombers, rolling tanks and soldiers in red, white and blue suits were featured on the program. Proceeds from the carnival will send a representative from

The recital was sponsored by Orchesis, honor organization in dancing, but participants in the program included advanced and intermediate students in modern dance. Orchesis members also presented recitals for Home Interest conference delegates and Albany high school students. One of the most active groups in the department is the Hoofers' club which grew out of WAA. Included in the club's program were a breakfast at Avery park; trips to the coast, Mount Hood, Silver Creek falls and a recreational area near Cottage Grove; an ice-skating party at Salem and a Chinese dinner. The excursions were open to all women interested in participating and some were open to men. Jean Beckner was president of the group and Miss Marjorie Dennis was advisor.

Organizations

Alumni Association

Continuing the progress that has marked Oregon State's alumni program during the past years, the Alumni association this year instituted a number of changes which have had as their aim the strengthening of the association as well as the institution. Major among these changes is the return to a monthly magazine as the official association publication. Under the editorship of Eunice Courtright, The Oregon Stater made its debut last October and met with instantaneous response on the part of alumni and friends of the institution. ¶ Another change in the policy of the association was the addition of three members to the board of directors including one member of the graduating class. This brought the membership total up to 14 and gave greater geographical distribution. Cooperating with the state board of higher education, Alumni Manager Warren Reid set up a number of meetings throughout the state where information about the state system of higher education was presented to alumni. Charles T. Parker, '08, Portland, was president of the board during the past year while Ted Chambers, '16, served as vice-president and John H. Gallagher, '38, Corvallis, as treasurer.

Mothers' Club

Aiming at closer ties between the home and the college, the Oregon State Mothers' club at Portland has reached its eighth year of activity in college-home relationships. Officers of the central organization are Mrs. Charles L. Dunham, president; Mrs. Arch J. Tourtellotte, vice-president; Mrs. George D. Robinson, secretary; and Mrs. Dale D. Miller, treasurer. Four elected directors and 13 appointed chairmen complete the administrative personnel. Working through the sorority, fraternity and independent mothers' clubs in the city, the organization has pledged $500 for student aid this year.

The Corvallis OSC Mothers' Club operates as a separate unit for cooperation with the college, preservation of traditions and promotion of understanding among various units. Contributions to college welfare this year include a $25 gift to AWS student loan fund, $25 to the boys' loan fund, $60 to the Home Interests conference, and a piece of furniture for the women's building lounge. Directing the group are Mrs. C. C. Cochran, president; Mrs. Thomas Roeser, vice-president; Mrs. Walter T. Johnson, secretary; and Mrs. Ted Carlson, treasurer.

Dads' Club

Active in preserving the traditions of Oregon State college is the Oregon State Dads' club, an organization including all of the fathers of Oregon State students, and headed this year by Dr. Neil M. Bain of Portland. As one of the major functions of the group is to contact prospective Oregon State students, the Dads cooperate with the Alumni association and the Mothers' club in sponsoring the annual summer picnic at Jantzen Beach park in Portland. Prior to the eighth annual Dads' day banquet in the Memorial Union building on November 9, at which time the new officers of the Dads' club were installed, the dads accompanied their sons and daughters to the victorious Oregon State-Washington State football game. On February 14, the Dads held a mid-winter banquet at the Neighbors of Woodcraft hall in Portland, with Dr. Frank Millar as guest speaker. The main purpose of this was to acquaint dads and mothers of Oregon State college students and to meet members of the faculty. Entertainment for the affair included selections by Euterpe singers and solos by Alice Hughes, soprano, and Vernon Satter, bass, directed by Professor Paul Petri.

Men interested in various phases of amateur and professional advertising are grouped in Alpha Delta Sigma, national professional fraternity. In addition to participating in varied journalistic activities individually, the organization worked as a unit in managing the annual Student Directory, commonly known as the "Fusser's Guide." ¶ The honor society serves as an incentive to students for the continuance of advertising work throughout the entire college career and points toward vocations and avocations in the field after graduation. Cooperation with other professional and honor societies on the campus for the furthering of journalism is a major objective of the group. Members are chosen from the managing staffs of the Beaver, Barometer, Student Directory, and other campus publications on the basis of interest and proficiency evidenced in their work. ¶ This group, the "H. T. Vance" chapter, named in honor of Professor Vance of this college, is given faculty support from J. W. Erickson, assistant professor of secretarial science. Leadership personnel this year included Bob Hirstel, president; Bob MacRobert, vice-president; Ken Hosmer, secretary; and Bud Vandervort, treasurer.

Aiming at the promotion of study in the field of agriculture and cordial relationships between students and faculty members in the school of agriculture, Alpha Zeta has worked out a program in keeping with its objectives. Membership to the group is based on grades and qualities that make for worthwhile contributions to society. Scope of activities is both local and national in character, with representatives of the society attending a banquet at the Pacific International Livestock show at Portland and attending the biennial conclave held in Chicago this year. Stanley Buckingham and Gilbert Ramage were the representatives of Oregon State college this year at the Chicago meeting. Campus activities include a banquet each term in honor of initiates, academic speakers, a cup to the outstanding freshman in the school of agriculture and a spring term letter to other chapters of Alpha Zeta and alumni of this chapter. Regular meetings are held twice each month and special meetings are held when necessary. Amos Bierly headed the group as chancellor. Assisting him were Bob Skinner, scribe; Quentin Zielinski, censor; Burns Bailey, chronicler; and Leon Hubbard, treasurer.

Colorful in music and uniforms, bandsmen at Oregon State college have thrilled students, faculty members and people from many states at convocations, special concerts, programs and athletic contests. Kappa Kappa Psi is organized as an honor society for college bandsmen for the promotion of the best interests of the student musicians and for the encouragement of a better type of band music. Qualifications of membership are character, personality, musical ability and scholastic standing. ¶ With Captain Harry L. Beard as adviser, the group sponsored an annual concert of the band and a spring tour of the Northwest. This year the national convention will be held at Oregon State college. The national organization encompasses 22 chapters, whose representatives will gather on this campus this summer. The OSC chapter of Kappa Kappa Psi was instrumental in developing the annual state high school band contests which were formerly held on this campus. ¶ At the head of the organization this year was Frank Wells, president. at a nominal cost to sportsmen's organizations in the state. This publication, headed by Paul Seibert, brings latest ideas of the State Game commission to all its readers. Field trips and the annual liar's contest were also sponsored this year. Phil Branson was president this year, aided by Phil Morgan, vice-president; Phil Swanstrom, treasurer; Hank Schneider, secretary; and Cole Rivers, reporter.

Providing a medium for study, investigation and discussion of problems relating to technical farm crops and promoting a closer relationship between faculty and students engaged in farm crops work, this organization is composed of professors, instructors, associate workers in farm crops courses and students majoring or having particular interest in farm crops. Included in the year's activities were a tour to farms and experiment stations in eastern Oregon, the annual banquet and three-day corn show in the fall, and activity in the ag clubs. President this year was Bob McCambridge.

FOOD TECHNICIANS CLUB

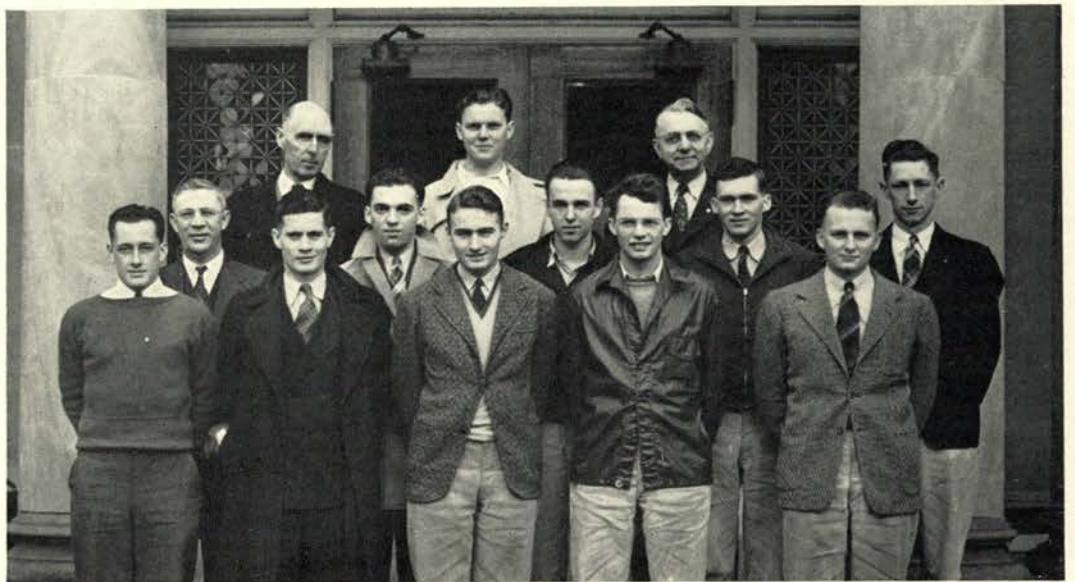

Food Technicians Club

Organized primarily to promote fellowship and to obtain contacts with notable workers in the food fields, the Food Technicians club also promotes various activities beyond academic requirements.

Each fall term the Hort club presents a show displaying a variety of cultivated crops which represent nearly every orchard and garden crop in North America as well as the tropics. This year the landscape architecture department and the departments of vegetable crops, pomology and food industries cooperated in making the Hort show a success. A banquet held winter term serves to intensify interest among members of the club and affords students the opportunity of becoming better acquainted with faculty members. New officers were elected each term this year to widen experience of more members.

Hort Club

The club entered an exhibit in the Horticulture show fall term, gave a social specialty banquet for students and faculty in the food industries department and sponsored a banquet during the packers and canners short course winter term. Officers included Leo Boire, president; Norman Guerber, vice-president; and George Covell, secretary.

Campus 4-H Club

The campus 4-H club exists mainly for the purpose of extending friendship among past members of 4-H clubs throughout the state, offering a means of getting acquainted. With a membership of over 75 students who were 4-H club members before coming to college, the campus club does its part to develop leadership among its members, promote fellowship among 4-H students, and to help in the betterment of club work in Oregon. ¶ A freshman reception, a winter term barn dance and a spring term picnic are activity highlights of the club. All former 4-H members are eligible for membership. H. C. Seymour, state club leader, is the faculty adviser, while L. J. Allen, assistant state leader, serves as assistant adviser. During the summer the members help in putting on the 4-H summer school, acting as chaperons and leaders as well as leading clubs out over the state. ¶ Officers for the past year were Ralph Black, president; Clayton Fox, vice-president; Lois Bierly, secretary; and Mary Louise Armstrong, treasurer. A committee composed of Maryolive Snarr, Allen Parker and Lewis Insley were in charge of publicity.

To further water safety and to encourage understanding and excellence in water sports are the objectives of Hell Divers, swimming club for men passing an excellence test in life saving. The Water carnival sponsored each year in conjunction with Aquabats and Sea Horses, girls' swimming societies, is one of the outstanding undertakings of the club. Other activities in which Hell Divers participate are swimming meets, life-guard duty during junior weekend and the Red Cross aquatic school. Officers for the year were Fred Glover, president; and Lloyd Anderson, secretary.

Engineer Student Council

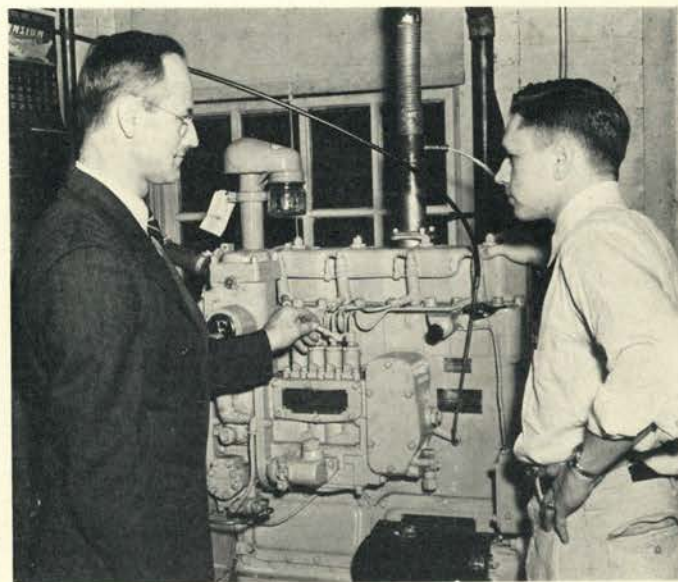

This executive body of the largest school on the campus is composed of the chairmen of the local branches of seven national professional engineering societies—namely, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, American Society of Civil Engineers, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, American Society of Chemical Engineers, Society of Automotive Engineers, Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences and the Industrial Arts club. The council, unifying activities of common interest to all engineers, sponsors the Technical Record, Oregon

State's student engineering magazine, published quarterly. Under the leadership of President Walt Walling, freshman subscriptions to the Tech Record were doubled. Robert Planansky was chairman of a highly successful bust, the engineers' annual fall get-together. Then on January 25, the engineers shuffled feet instead of slide rules around the engineering lab to the setting of giant presses and airplane models as George Culbertson, chemical engineer, staged the traditional Engineers' ball, hailed as one of the outstanding activities of winter term.

In addition to sponsoring student papers in a national competition, the student branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers maintains close contact between students, faculty and practicing engineers through its regular meetings. Organized over a quarter of a century ago, this organization is one of the oldest in the engineering department and restricts its membership to students enrolled in the department of electrical engineering. Officers this year included Bill Huggins, chairman; Bill Keppel, vice-chairman; Ed Sidor, junior vice-chairman; and Lee Coe, secretary.

northwestern industries are the purposes of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. The organization sponsors a national contest problem each year which is participated in by the senior members of the local chapter. The local organization, which is a student chapter of the national organization, oldest professional engineers' society in existence, was established here in 1925. Jim MacLean was president this year.

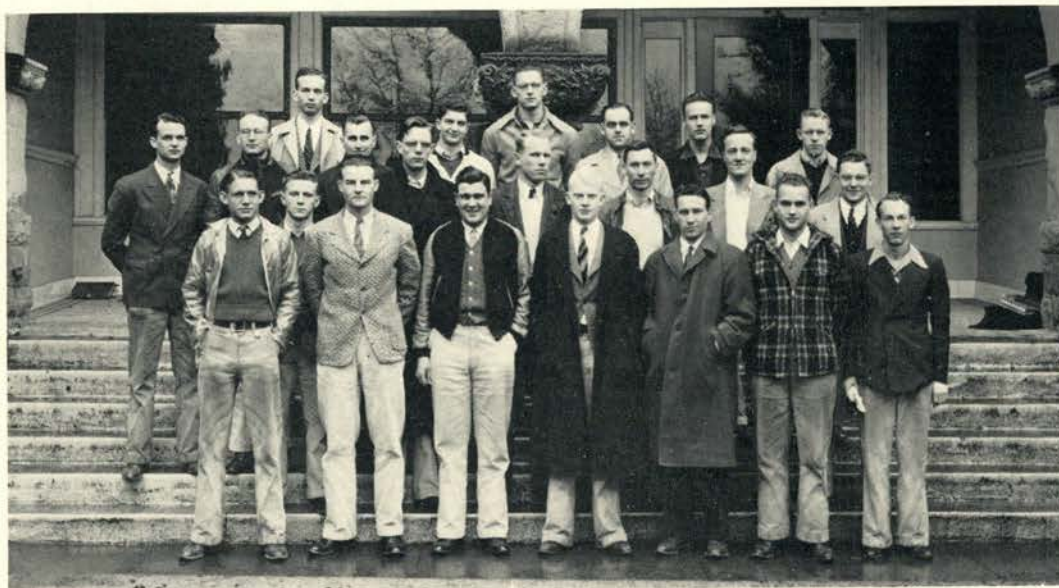

American Society of Civil Engineers

Reaching students through discussion meetings and informal get-togethers, the student chapter of the ASCE on this campus brings together sophomore, junior and senior students in civil engineering.

Speakers and special features this year included talks by state employees, moving pictures of the Grand Coulee dam and various field trips. A loan fund for students in civil engineering was maintained this year. Leading the organization were Bill Alexander, president; George Culbertson, vice-president; and Wes Butler, secretary.

Concerned largely with the promotion of activity in mechanical engineering projects during undergraduate days, the student chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers holds regular monthly meetings at which a variety of programs is presented. Instructive motion pictures were shown during the year and the society held a breakfast each term. Officers for the Sponsored only in technical schools, Oregon State has one of the 12 student branches of the Society of Automotive Engineers in the United States. During fall term 16 members accompanied by Prof. W. H. Paul, adviser, attended a banquet in Portland, where the national president of SAE spoke on industrial problems in national defense. A fuel expert for Ethyl gasoline corporation spoke during winter term, and a moving picture through the courtesy of the U. S. Rubber company was also shown. Officers included Harry Fall, president; Bob French, vice-president and Don Olson, secretary.

Society of Automotive Engineers

Institute of Aeronautical Sciences

The Institute of Aeronautical Sciences, youngest engineering society on the campus, has 29 active members all of whom are juniors and seniors in the aeronautical option in mechanical engineering. The club was organized in 1938 as an attempt to promote the application of science in the development of aircraft. Through the society's monthly journal, members are provided an opportunity to publish and read new facts pertaining to the field of aeronautical endeavor. The club functioned this year under the leadership of B. F. Ruffner, faculty adviser; Dick Smith, president; Tom Zilka, vice-president; and Walt Walling, secretary.

Bernard Daly

Bernard Daly scholarships awarded to Lake county high school graduates enabled 24 students to attend Oregon State this year, the nineteenth time the awards have been made. The Bernard Daly fund, provided for by the will of the late Dr. Bernard Daly, is used to award necessary college expenses to a maximum of $495 to worthy students with high grades and good character who have attended high school for four years in Lake county. Organized in memory of their benefactor, this year members of the club in conjunction with University of Oregon members began a fund which will be used to add volumes to the high school library in Lakeview.

The Forestry club, one of the largest clubs on the campus, has 225 members, 75 percent of the enrollment in the school of forestry. With the purpose of promoting good fellowship, good will and cooperation among students and faculty, and to assist in broadening the educational background of all club members, the Forestry club during fall term gave the Foresters' ball, the Fernhoppers' banquet winter term and Arbo-

The Industrial Arts club, headed by Ray Neugart, aimed at the fostering of professional ethics and at student participation in projects of mutual interest in the field of industrial arts. The organization is open to students in the school of industrial arts.

Major accomplishments this year were the inauguration of a new constitution, the annual "Low Jinks" entertainment for members, and discussion meetings. A representative of the professional organization serves on the Student council. Other officers this year were Charles Dusek, vice-president; Cleo Freed, treasurer; and Charles Wilt, secretary.

Suski Club

Completing its third successful year, Suski has shown greater spirit and enthusiasm this year than ever before. Organized ski trips have been made weekly to Hoodoo bowl and to various other skiing areas. Anyone interested in skiing is eligible for membership, and those who are particularly outstanding receive a minor "O". The ski team, including George Brummer, Don Francis, George Robinson, John Duffy, Chuck Goldstein, Bob Cutler, Ray Jackson, Ned Sieberts and Bud Peck participated in meets on the Pacific coast and gave creditable performances. ¶ The club, organized to create interest not only in skiing but in all recreation activities, affiliated itself this year with the Western Federation of Outdoor clubs. It is also affiliated with the Pacific Intercollegiate Ski union and the Central Cascade Recreational council. Prospects for the future are bright as this year's members are all expected to return next year. Officers for 1941 are John Duffy, president; Jim Judson, vice-president; Don Francis, treasurer; Virginia Malloy, secretary; Bob Cutler, sergeant-at-arms; and Howard Raabe, adviser.

LIVING GROUPS

Panhellenic Council

The establishment of a Junior Panhellenic council for the presidents of sorority pledge groups was one of this year's achievements of the Panhellenic council. The creation of the new group was occasioned by the desire of the senior organization to educate the pledges in sorority and Panhellenic matters and several speeches and discussions were arranged for the junior group.

☞ Another Panhellenic day was held this spring with delegates coming from many sections of the state to discuss matters which are of common interest to all sororities. ☞ A further Panhellenic activity was the revision of rushing rules and the formation of a permanent record of this material. Several new rushing rules were incorporated. Among them was that of providing adequate transportation facilities for Freshman week so that all women on the rush list might attend all the sorority teas. President of Panhellenic was Elaine Bowman and Phyllis Gray was secretary.

Keeping up with Jane Steagall who totes home honors from forensic meets all over the country makes the Alpha Gams hustle. The girls please Professor Petri with several lush voices and two good accompanists. Popular members include Andora Joubert and Larry Elliott, prom princess.

Give most of these girls a copy pencil and a news story and they'll be nothing but happy, for to many an Alpha Xi Delt, journalism spells absolute bliss. Gloria Philippi was senior editor of the Beaver and secretary of the senior class. Dorothy McArthur rates as queen of the house. Phyllis Gray showed plenty of ability in Panhellenic council.

Interfraternity Council

Coordinating body of Oregon State's 26 fraternities is the interfraternity council. The presidents of the Greek groups are ex officio members of the committee. Executive power was divided during the year. Leeds Bailey, a Lambda Chi, served the first term. Larry Marshall of Sig Ep stepped up from vice-president for the rest of the school year. Ron Davis, Sigma Chi, succeeded Marshall. George Peeke, Sigma Nu, was secretary-treasurer. ¶ Highlight of the year saw the local group play host to the Regional Interfraternity council of the Northwest. Bob Hirstel, regional president and a D.U., was in charge of the affair which drew representatives from 25 colleges. ¶ Sponsorship of two vacation rally dances in Portland was another activity by the Greek council. The interfraternity sing, which was this year combined with other fraternity day activities for the regional conference, was headed by Ron Davis. ¶ Machinery was set into motion during the year to reduce the amount of activities forced upon fraternities. The belief that too many relatively valueless things burdened fraternity men's time prompted the action.

Not so large in numbers as houses go, the Alpha Chi Rhos have been seen in intramural events and have been doing right well politically speaking. Socially the boys are getting started, with Maurice Benson, man-about-the-duck, handing out a line to a majority of the campus females. Benson is also known for his frequent trips to Salem.

Graduation of Stan Coates, Barometer manager, leaves brothers Joe and Dick Ross to carry on for the Pi Kaps in the journalistic field. Musically speaking, these boys list Don Nebergall, Vic Doherty, and Paul Seibert, whose orchestra is popular with rally dance goers. Varsity crew and boxing have representatives in this house.

Attempting to do a quick-change act, the violet-bearers made muscle their motto and, with the help of easy road-work racing to classes, sent a number of the lads to football, wrestling, track, skiing and rook basketball fame. Frank Chown and a class prexy, Bud Hinkle, gave the boys a few more twinkles of limelight.

It's hardly news to say that the Sig Eps were first in fraternity grades again this year, but that's the case. Some good singers boosted the house to second place in the Interfraternity sing. Larry Marshall, homecoming chairman and Interfraternity council president, and Ted Gardner, second vice-president of the student body, were in the campus spotlight.

Independent Student Council

An ambition of Independent Student councils for the past 16 years was realized this spring when the first Northwest Regional conference of Independent Students was held on the campus in March. As delegates deemed this initial conference a success, a constitution was made for the organization of a permanent regional council and plans were made for a similar conference next year. Cleo Freed and Harold Nelson were in charge of arrangements for the conference. ¶ The Oregon State Independent council is a nucleus for all independent student activities. The group is composed of the presidents of all independent living groups, the presidents of Rosswood and Phrateres and delegates each of whom represents 50 unaffiliated students. The council members met twice a month at the independent living groups to coordinate their organizations and promote social and athletic enterprises. ¶ President of the council was Jerry Brower; vice-president, Warner Blake; secretary, Maxine Sutton; treasurer, John Tolleshaug; and sergeant-at-arms, Tony Pavelek.

Open to all independent women, Phrateres is represented on the Oregon State campus by a group of friendly, democratic women who make places for themselves in campus circles through their participation in the affairs of this national social organization. Sparked this year by Mildred Holt, president, the society began to release some of its potential strength. Phrateres backed a candidate for Junior Prom queen.

The housing situation at Oregon State is largely responsible for the number of women not living in organized living groups. For these women and independent Corvallis women who live at home, this page has been added to the Beaver. Independents initiated this year the first exchange dessert held on this campus.

Men here are socially and politically active—well liked on the campus. Sports and scholastics are equally important in this section of the men's dormitory. "In the know" may be aptly applied to many a Cauthorn man. An independent political hotbed, Cauthorn boasted of such prominent names as Gerald Brower, Dale Throckmorton, Jack McGill and Guy Monroe.

A well-balanced bill of fare plus economy of subsistence was the achievement record cited by Beaver lodge at its first anniversary dinner in January. Presided over by Lewis Dexter and advised by Dr. O. R. Chambers, the group has established a first rate campus reputation. The lodge's maple court men reached the semi-finals.

Campus club men have worked into the swing of college activities through participation in the Co-Hop, exchange dinners, and intramural sports—give promise of much activity next year.

Campus Club

Kupono claims prestige over men's cops, being the first to be organized on this campus. Representatives in extra-curricular activities include Don Short, known in debate and dramatic circles; Bob Lindsay, script writer for the forestry school; and popular Antone Pavelek. Hard-working Leonard Honnold, president, was chairman of Round Table this year.
