SMUDGE

Ye Olde Smudge

I was reading a little ditty entitled, "MADAME DU BARRY," and the thought came to me, yes, really it did, that after all, she wasn't so far wrong:

Supposing she was partial to kings
And supposing she did naughty things,
There's lots of us, just as bad
Though, to think it, makes us sad.

We wink at the sun and sigh at the moon
And then go so far as to nearly swoon
When we see our mistake in that gal's blonde curls
And think of the price of that string of pearls.

No, the MADAME, though bad, wasn't so vain
She knew her mistakes but without a whimper she took her dose
Of the same sour pills that make us morose.

And that reminds me that the S.A.E.'s are facing a mild revolution.

It seems that Buckhorn keeps right on playing those gol-dorned records.

Just ask Elmer why their faculty advisor did a little gentle advising about putting those records up in that big attic trunk.

This may be the last time this column appears in print. You know, Buxton, old man, some time Forrester is gonna send you out to that there PILE and the farmer is going to get you all mixed up and send you along with the rest of it to some local gardener.

You know I thought it would be a great idea if we botched around the campus a bit and dropped in on a few classes just to see what the old Alma Mammy has up her sleeve.

First I dropped into the Art Department. Boy, oh boy, if you want to spend an interesting half hour (Continued on Page Four)

Here & There

More than 100 delegates from 13 southern California and Arizona colleges attended a convention sponsored by the International Relations club at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Oxford, famous English university, is organizing an alumni association called the Oxford society. They have an enrollment of 5000 and are attempting to enroll 40,000.

A flu epidemic was in evidence at the University of Idaho where an average of 40 students a day were in the infirmary during the past week, but the epidemic is almost over at present.

Students in botany at the University of Southern California took a 350-mile trip to the desert country in southern California. The trip required two days for the 40 present who visited the San Jacinto mountains, Palm canyons and the Colorado desert.

A song contest is being sponsored by Phi Mu Alpha, men's musical honorary at Washington State college, in an effort to find a new college song.

Because the University of North Carolina is largely supported by the tobacco crop, students are allowed to smoke even during examinations.

An Oklahoma City university had recently advertised for a date that would spend the entire evening with him for a change.

Reservations for the dinner in honor of Senator Frederick Steiwer tonight at 6:30 o'clock in the Memorial Union must be made with the experiment station by noon today. Call campus 107 to make reservations.

DAILY CLUB members who are going on the bust tonight will meet in the Memorial Union lounge at 6:45 o'clock.

ALL ORGANIZATIONS reserving blocks of seats for "There's Always Juliet" must pay up by tonight.

RISKY BOAT RIDE A 10-day trip down 175 miles of the small but treacherous Green river was completed in 18-foot yawls by Dr. R. G. Franzler, W. H. Farrni and Rhinard Van Evera.

Agricultural Graduate Employed With U.S.D.A.

By VIVIAN ROWLAND
George F. Waldo, assistant pomologist of the United States department of agriculture, graduated in 1922 from Oregon State college, where he took agriculture, majoring in horticulture.

This work is being done with the strawberry, wild blackberry, loganberry and youngberry, which is a new type of fruit similar to the loganberry. The berry has now been distributed throughout the country, but it is grown chiefly in the south, although small quantities are found in some of the northern states.

Mr. Waldo was born on a wheat farm in North Dakota where he lived until he was 11 years old. His family then moved to Spokane, and from there to Minnesota. In 1913 they moved again, this time to Dayton.

Wild blackberries are also being experimented upon to make them good for commercial use. Experiments with Himalaya berries, evergreen hybrids and raspberries are being conducted by Waldo. Many foreign varieties of berries have been introduced and are used a great deal for experimental purposes. Many of these varieties come from China.

After graduation, he worked for a while in the orchards of the Oregon State hospital at Salem. After working here for a short time he later worked in the apple district in Yakima, Wash. In 1923, he was asked to Hood River to inspect apple crops. He received a two-year fellowship in 1924 at Michigan State college, where he took his graduate work.

He was sent to Oregon State college this fall by the United States department of agriculture to take charge of breeding work.

Glory in Snow . . .

And they shoveled snow off the playing field. More cold weather forecasted. Such are the conditions under which the Beavers will play their last football game of this year.

Before the fireplace or around the dinner table on Thanksgiving day, we can hardly realize how they are battling in freezing weather, on a strange field, with few if any backers in the stands—all for the glory of their Alma Mater and an inter-sectional record which took a slight set-back last Saturday.

It is hardly a pleasant way to end a season, especially one that held so many disappointments for the team, coach and students. A victory over the Detroit Titans will warm their hearts, though their limbs be stiff and cold. Good luck; we hope you win.

On Thanksgiving Day . . .

Once again we pause in the course of our school life to observe Thanksgiving day. We are not alone in remembering this day, for people all over the United States will tomorrow recall the events of that first day of Thanksgiving in 1621 when the pilgrim fathers paused to give thanks for all that they had received.

Tomorrow the day will be observed in much the same way as it should rightly be. It gives us as students a chance to think—to be thankful that we have this opportunity to get an education. The real purpose of the day should not be forgotten even though it be crowded with many activities. We should return to school with a renewed interest in the little work that is to be done between now and Christmas vacation.—W.A.R.

What Others Say

COLLEGE PACIFISTS TO ORGANIZE

While the great mass of students are spending their holidays watching football games, indulging in the well-known pastime of over-eating, and contenting themselves with the situation in general, over one thousand delegates from sixty colleges will meet to discuss plans for mass student opposition to war preparations.

The main center of attack on the part of the students will be the R. O. T. C. The conference was called because of the action of the Universities of Maryland and Missouri in expelling students who refused to enroll for compulsory courses in military training.

This is the logical starting point for an attack on the military system. We have always thought that this institution was not created to train men to care for themselves during war-time, because there is no way to impart such knowledge.

Its main purpose is to teach discipline; which means blind acceptance of the status quo. The R. O. T. C. furnishes a means of polluting the fountain of knowledge at its source by closing the minds of college students to unorthodox ideas.

We have no especial quarrel with the R.O.T.C. on a voluntary basis. If a man is foolish enough to enjoy walking around carrying a heavy pack and playing soldier, that is his own business.

But when students are required to enroll in a course whose main purpose is to force them to listen to the rantings of jingoists, it is time to call a halt.

When military training is so important that students are expelled from college because they cannot conscientiously enroll in a course that violates their principles, the matter has gone too far.—Colorado Silver and Gold.

UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM TACKLED BY 'YW' LEADER

"The present situation calls for intelligent thought and action by students everywhere," said Miss Mary Klemm of Eugene, member of the special program commission in the northwest Y.W.C.A., in a talk on what part students might play in a concerted program to abolish unemployment and to relieve men and women from fear of economic insecurity. The address was made to the Y.W.C.A. cabinet Tuesday night.

"We are facing a fourth winter of unemployment; some of our classmates have not returned to school because their fathers have lost their jobs; too little food is found to have a permanent effect upon the health of our society, and the psychological effect of unemployment is making people unfit for life in a social group. Educate yourself on social and economic issues and use your knowledge in political action," Miss Klemm urged.

"The present economic system is neither completely capitalistic, socialistic or communistic, but a hodge-podge of all three," the speaker said.

Denizen of Stables Dishes Out Annual Turkey Day Fare

By BUD FORRESTER
Slice yourself a hunk of cheese boys! It's night on to Turkey Day and the old Denizen is in town ready to guess on a few Turkey Day football games before he grabs a hunk of bird and settles down to a little real festive day eating and thinking. Of course the old keeper of "stable by the pile" can masticate the plumed bird of plenty, lads! And he has much to be thankful for this time of year—we won't go into that at this time.

As the old maestro of the big red boarding house looks up and down the Pacific slope he finds that some of the coast's best teams are meeting in four-star main events tomorrow afternoon.

Southern California invades the University of Washington Husky lair at Seattle; University of Oregon tackles St. Mary's at San Francisco; and Washington State makes camp with U.C.L.A. at Los Angeles.

Although many scribes figure that El Trojan is sticking his nose into plenty of trouble in that much-talked-about game up Seattle the way the old proprietor of the rural villa says it's Southern Cal in a walk. If you, gentle reader, pause to glance back you will remember that same Denizen jumped up a few days ago and proclaimed Oregon a certain winner over El Trojan. This farmer boy, uncouth as he is, didn't know enough to whisper this guess but blasted it long and loud for he just didn't know anything about the Jonesmen. You know who won that tussle—the Webfoot didn't even tussle. The mayor out at "Horse Barns Addition" will not make that mistake again for he lost everything and has not recovered as yet.

Possibly Washington has as good a chance to defeat the national champs as anyone might have, but to say that the Huskies will win seems a bit out of the way. When Oregon and Washington played to a scoreless tie and Southern Cal dumped Oregon 33 to 0, what, may we ask, leads anyone other than Jimmy Phelan to think that Washington is good for those 33 points. We don't care if it's raining so hard in Seattle that they have to give 'em row boats to get around—a husky win is not in the cards.

At San Francisco the old ruler of the rural emporium names St. Mary's over Oregon. Although several authorities believe that Oregon will be up on its ear fighting after receiving so much newspaper criticism due to its poor showing against Southern California, it just cannot get hot enough to dump the Gaels. Those Micks can play ball and have the necessary fight to set Oregon right back on its heels any day in the week this season. St. Mary's has measured the Lemon-Yellow horde and although the game will be close and hard fought it looks like corned beef and cabbage for the Irish on Turkey Day.

U.C.L.A., as yet undefeated in the conference, is scheduled to take a nose dive at the hands of Washington State according to notations we find in the Denizen's score book hanging out in the stables' phone booth right close to the pile. Although the Uclans have been winning we find that Stanford is the only victim of any consequence and not much at that, who was subdued at the hands of the fierce Bruin.

Babe Hollingsbery and his Cougarmen are favorites around this gent's house any day of the week no matter whom they are playing, for Babe is a plenty smart coach and has a bunch of good ball players who will play their hearts out for the Cougar tutor. Washington State has lost only one con-

SHARP SHOOTERS CONTINUING FIRE

Infantry and Artillery Lead Field in Interorganization Rifle Competition.

Infantry and artillery units of the R.O.T.C. rifle team are leading the field by a small margin of points in the first interorganization match of the term. There are still two targets to be fired before the match is complete.

Two positions of match fire have been fired: prone and sitting. In both positions a "possible" has been made. Franklin Keist, infantryman, fired a perfect score of 100 in the prone position. Bud Crowell, artilleryman, turned in a "possible" in the sitting position. Other high scores are as follows:

Prone Position
Maurice Shepard	99
Hervey Ide	98
Roy Mueller	98
John Collins	98
Ralph Shotakin	98
Sitting Position
Maurice Shepard	98
William Rice	98
Jack Saubert	95
Fred Ireland	95

This match ends Friday evening, Thursday being a holiday. At least 10 men from each unit must fire the four positions, if they wish their unit to be represented in the match.

test this season and that to Southern Cal—not bad.

Much of the Uclans success may be accounted for in their spectacular passing attack which we believe will be stopped cold by the Cougars. We hardly look for any large Bruin gains through the Cougar line and at the same time fear that George Sander and Ollie Arbelvide will be just a bit too much for Bill Spaulding's hopefuls.

Spaulding has a great ball club that will be a world beater next year but in picking this one we cannot overlook Washington State's ability to rise to the occasion. Hollingsbery keeps them up there at a peak—that'll be Bruin meat in the Cougar den tomorrow night or the old Denizen will be eating chipmunk steaks come chow time tomorrow.

And now the farmer's choice for constable signs off and wishes one and all a most pleasant reunion on the morrow.

SCRIBES CONTINUE GOOD GUESSING OF MURAL STANDINGS

After Hitting Four for Four Intramural Writers Choose Beardsley to Cop; Favorite Teams Showing Class.

By WALT WOODARD
It looks as though the scribes can't go wrong in selecting the intramural winners this fall. After picking four out of four for a perfect average they continued to select them.

Again they scored another hit when they picked Bruce Beardsley to defeat Maurice Brands in the golf finals. Beardsley won, making it five out of five for the scribes.

Sigma Nu and Hesperian are running true to form in the basketball tournament. The writers have selected these two teams to win their division and play for the championship. The Sigma Nu's, led by Lefty Palmberg, the high scorer and most outstanding player of the tournament, have won their league.

Sigma Nu's O. K.
They will have a tough time downing the Beta Theta Pi, Phi Delta Theta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon quintets. Each of these teams have won its respective leagues and will enter the finals. By virtue of their fast-breaking offense and stonewall defense the Sigma Nu's should win.

For independent honors the scribes choose Hesperian club over Beta Theta Pi. Both have won their leagues. Zankick, the spark-plug of the Hesperian attack, will bear watching if it should play the Sigma Nu's for all-school honors.

Sigma Phi Sigma Good
Sigma Phi Sigma has placed itself in the running for touch football honors. It easily defeated Sigma Phi Epsilon, 32 to 0. Displaying a smooth attack and invincible defense S.P.S., led by John Gearhart and Chuck Bartos, will make plenty of trouble for the other teams.

The scribes are still confident that their choice, Phi Delta Theta, will win the touch football championship.

With four outstanding men in Joe Mack, Jack DuFrane, Floyd Markham and Bob Bergstrom the Phi Delt's should be able to win.

Delta Upsilon flashed surprising strength in drubbing the Sigma Alpha Epsilon team, 6 to 0. This win assures them of at least mention and perhaps considerable attention by the scribes.

growers. Washington has not a standard of grades and should it adopt the federal grades it will be placed on the same basis as Oregon and California for interstate commerce.

Possibilities for Polo Team Listed

"What kind of a polo team will Oregon State have this year?" Almost all the polo enthusiasts have been asking this question. The dope doesn't quite indicate the possibility of turning out a team equal to that of last year for two reasons. First, only one letterman, Ken Price, is back this season, while last year there were five lettermen back in the saddles. Second, it takes about one or two seasons' competition to develop a recruit into a first-class player after he has already mastered the ability to ride a horse and hit the ball.

Polo Complex
Polo is more or less complex. It is a sport demanding of the player horsemanship, stamina, recklessness and team work. Besides there must be an ample supply of well-trained horses which, in one sense, means more to a polo squad than the supply of riders because the ability of the horses contributes about 75 per cent to the success of a team. After learning to ride fearlessly and recklessly, the recruit must master the various strokes.

This requires leaning out of the saddle at top speed on either side, forward, or backward, to meet the ball from any direction it may come. Contrary to a common belief, a polo ball is struck with the side of the mallet and not with the end of the cigar-shaped head. Without a doubt, the most important phase of hitting is the timing element. For example, it requires a high degree of skill to make a backhand shot when the horse is running at top speed in the opposite direction.

Indications point to the squad's turning out some hard-hitting, hard-riding players, possibly a bit lacking in match play experience. If Sam Felcher gets off many long drives like the ones he hit up into the uppermost steel girders of the armory at the first mallet session, he may become "dark polo horse" Sam before the season progresses far. To say the least, he may offer some of Major Bowley's two-year men some mighty stiff competition for a birth on the "A" squad indoors next term. Grant "Wheeler" Perry, Hugh O'Neil, Joe Hedgpeh, Red Withers, George Britton and Ray DeLancey are other likely prospects for the first string.

Palmberg Leading As High-Point Man In Casaba League

Lefty Palmberg, Sigma Nu, and Lloyd Williamson, Phi Sigma Kappa, continued their race for high scoring honors in last week's intramural basketball play. With but seven points separating them, and with only one more contest on the slate of each, a close finish is assured. Karl Jensen, Pi Kappa Alpha, is third with 47 markers.

The independent group is paced by Neil Ross, Cauthorn, with 42 points. Following in close order are Weiks of Hawley with 34 points, and Van Leaven of Cauthorn with 30 markers.

Following men are high scorers of their respective groups:

INTRAMURAL PLAY FIELD RANKS AS ONE OF BIGGEST

Oregon State's All-College Athletic Grounds Develop Fast in Last Few Years; Campus Used Earlier.

Oregon State's intramural field is one of the biggest and best such playgrounds among the colleges of the United States.

For 10 years from 1919 when intramural sports originated on this campus until 1929, all intramural outdoor sports were played either on the lower campus or on the varsity fields. It was a great handicap for the sports as well as being almost fatal to those who attempted to walk on the lower campus when the sports were in progress because of the crowded mixup of the teams in action. On the varsity fields the sports were limited to play when the varsity was not working out, and consequently it was difficult to make schedules and have them played on time.

Four years ago, in the fall of 1929, the school donated a 15-acre field to the intramural department for its use in promoting sports on this campus.

The field was immediately leveled, raked and seeded. On the east end was laid out an excellent cinder track with pits for broad jumping, pole vaulting and all the

Who Said---
"Boys Bashful!"!

By DOT MOORE
Who said boys were bashful? Just one "peek" into Betty Thompson's social dancing class last night proved this theory to be all wrong. Besides the instructor's gracefulness and ability in teaching the "art of the dance," rhythm is furnished musically by a future—shall we say—"dance maestro?" Is not this enough incentive to those of you who have not yet learned the new ballroom steps to attend one of these classes and see what is being accomplished?

Seniors defeated the juniors, 28 to 24, in a close-run game of volleyball last night at 5 o'clock. This was one of the best games played this season, showing good team work and quick plays. At the half the juniors were in the lead, but the seniors snapped into it and walked away with the winning points.

Sophomores defeated the freshmen in another close game last night with a 33 to 20 score. They, too, exhibited skillful playing and show promise of becoming superior players.

The "Silver and Gold," newspaper at the University of Colorado, has recently introduced a women's sport column naming it, "In the Women's Sport World." From this column we get the highlights of women's activities among which we found that weather has little effect.

It is surprising how much better a pipe tastes when it is filled with tobacco that's made especially for pipes. And the Granger package is just right, too.

MISS VERA CURTIS LECTURES AT CONVO

Miss Curtis then told of her own personal training and experiences with the opera company.

After completing high school where she had been called upon to accompany all artists who came to the school, she studied voice, dancing and languages in Boston.

After this training she went to Chicago and sang a few weeks for an opera company there.

Mrs. Lillian Jeffreys Petri, professor of piano and harmony, introduced Miss Curtis and played her accompaniments.

Varieties of Grapes From 15 Countries Under Test by U. C.

Berkeley—In cooperation with the United States department of agriculture, the division of viticulture and fruit products, University of California, is studying new and promising varieties of introduced grapes.

On the testing ground established at the branch of the college of agriculture, Davis, 131 varieties of grapes, most of them introduced into California through the office of foreign plant introduction of the United States department of agriculture, are being grown.

Of these new introductions, 49 have come from Algeria, seven from Argentina, two from Corsica, nine from China, two from Japan, one from Italy, five from Morocco, three from Palestine, six from Russia, five from Tunisia and two from Turkey.

This year, reported Professor Bioletti, 40 additional varieties were introduced: one from Algeria, one from Austria, one from England, 15 from Japan, five from Transcaucasia, 15 from Tunisia and two from New York.

From there I bumped into the local cut-up shop, the anatomy lab. I was just in time to hear Prof. Osborne discourse on the ethics of boiling up stray cats.

Overcome by the odor of burning metacarpals I dragged my exhausted torso (I counted by limbs before leaving the lab) toward the good old-fashion Ad building.

Believe it or not, there was Bob Batcheller shouting his lungs out and looking nonchalant as an Englishman.

I only meant to stay a minute, but the rehearsal of THERE'S ALWAYS JULIET kept me the better part of an hour.

Before they did give me the boot I got an eye-full of the fastest moving bit of comedy ever to hit this campus.

Everytime Estora Ricks came in with a tray full of the necessary ingredients I had to pinch myself to realize I wasn't in England.

The time being late, I hobbled home to think of studies and other sundry things and to finally betake myself to bed with a last thought of the social science courses I'm going to visit on the morrow.

When we find out that Dwight Houston has to be introduced through seven duchesses and an archbishop—almost—we realize just the difference between modern American and English social customs.

Estora Ricks as Florence, Leonora's maid, who casts a disapproving eye upon the goings-on between her mistress and Dwight, does a nice bit of character acting.

Miss Ricks will be remembered for her excellent character portrayals last year in "Alison's House" and other plays.
