HOW TO COOK HOPS

The Hop-plant (Humulus Lupulus) is one of the oldest known plants used for preparing Teas, Tonic, Beverages, etc., but still very little understood by the general public. In order to get the benefit of the fine aroma of the hop-flower it is necessary to boil hops slowly (Simmering) for at least one-half hour to liberate the resinous substance contained in the pollen of the flower. This is the substance which produces the odor and the "tonic" so highly desired.
