WELL-KNOWN to millions of telephone users is the circular emblem of the Bell System. Its importance is not in its plain and simple design but in what it represents. Back of it is the far-flung organization that enables you to talk to almost any one—anywhere—at any time. It is the mark of a friendly service.

The Bell System consists of twenty-four regional companies, each attuned to the needs of the territory it serves. There is also the Bell Telephone Laboratories, working ceaselessly and scientifically to improve the scope and value of your telephone. There is the Western Electric Company, specializing in the economical production of telephone equipment of the highest quality. Co-ordinating and assisting the work of the operating companies, Bell Laboratories and Western Electric, is the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. It looks upon the operation of telephone service as a public trust and is owned largely by the people it serves.

There are today nearly 700,000 stockholders of American Telephone and Telegraph. They represent a cross-section of the American people; they come from every walk of life and live in every state of the Union. Yet no one owns as much as one per cent of its stock.

Everything has been planned and organized for one specific purpose—to give you the best possible telephone service at the lowest possible cost. That is the ideal and the goal. That is why the work of improvement goes steadily on.

A telephone serves you in many ways each day. It runs your errands; takes you to friends and brings them to you; speeds aid in emergency. It does these things and many more—for a few cents a day. The Business Office of your local Bell Telephone Company, or any employee, will gladly take your order.

HIGHER EDUCATIONAL EMBROGLIO

FACTS ABOUT CHARGES AGAINST COLLEGE BUSINESS METHODS PRESENTED AT REQUEST OF O.S.C. ALUMNI

AN EDITORIAL

As this is written, late in December, there have been no further "official" developments in the higher educational system not reported in the last issue of the Monthly. The scheduled meeting of the board set for December 18 was postponed, and no meeting has yet been held by the special committee appointed to investigate the actions of Dean Wayne L. Morse.

In the interim, however, a special committee of the American Association of University Professors came to the state and spent nearly two weeks delving into the situation. They first heard the complaints of university faculty members, spent nearly a full day with Chancellor Kerr, spent an evening with members of the A. A. U. P. here at the state college, and then went to Portland to interview present and past members of the Board of Higher Education.

They then returned to the university campus and are reported to have met with the group of A. A. U. P. members there and to have given them orally the outline of their findings. This was considered as confidential and no public announcement was made of their statements. The political writer for the Oregonian stated on December 16 that "Gossip has it that the report of the American Association of University Professors, made upon a fortnight's study by a committee of three composed of faculty representatives from Stanford university, University of California, and the University of Washington, exonerates Chancellor Kerr in the embroglio and slaps Dean Morse on the wrist." The unusual silence at the University following the confidential report would seem to substantiate such a deduction.

Members of the association here were struck by the evident high type of men composing the committee. They are Prof. G. P. Adams, University of California; Prof. C. V. Taylor, Stanford university, and Prof. F. M. Padelord, University of Washington.

It is not known yet just when or if the full report of the committee will be made public. In the past such reports have been first released through publication in the official monthly bulletin of the association.

About the only other unofficial developments of note were the following:

Investigation Indicates Regular Audit Report Purposely Distorted For Public Effect

In the heated educational atmosphere of the past few months, the general public has largely forgotten the sensational charges made early in September against the business management here at Oregon State college. Evidence is at hand, however, that some persons are still using various of these unproved charges against the college, and many members of the alumni have asked that the Monthly give them the facts in the case for such use as they may have for them.

Subsequent events have proved beyond doubt that the "audit flareup" was merely an incident in a carefully laid plan designed to overthrow the then organization of the board and force the resignation of the chancellor. Nevertheless, the charges against the integrity of the state college organization were so grave that the officials here would not rest until every one had been probed and cleared up one way or another.

The matters connected with the special audit report dealing with the conduct of the superintendent of buildings office were answered in full publicly, and proved to be what Secretary of State Hoss dubbed them, "A mountain out of a mole hill." Hoss had previously received a full report of an investigation of the matter and wrote that "as far as our audit report is concerned the matter is closed."

Even after that, however, the college went further and delved into the main audit report of all the institutions, in which, it had been declared, were charges that indicated that the college had been operating under "rotten, sloppy, business methods."

Examination of this main audit, however, showed that it was constructive in tone and commendatory in the main, with no serious or alarming situations revealed at any of the institutions. Approval of present methods together with suggestions for improvement are in the sections for every institution, and criticism is not confined, by any means, as the public was led to believe, to the audit of the state college. The most salient facts revealed by the investigations, both as to points brought up in the audit report, and charges made at the September board meeting, follow in greatly condensed form:

E. P. Jackson's Discharge and Reinstatement.

Charges had been made that E. P. Jackson had been employed as superintendent of buildings and grounds at the college by R. A. Thomas, superintendent of properties, and had been discovered in irregularities and mismanagement, had been discharged and then was later reinstated, presumably by Dr. Kerr, at a higher salary than the Board had set.

Letters and other documents reveal that all these transactions occurred during the time before Dr. Kerr was made Chancellor and during the period when Dr. E. E. Lindsay, as secretary of the board, had full control of all physical properties. Mr. Thomas, working directly under Dr. Lindsay, notified Jackson on May 31, 1932, that he was to be superintendent of buildings and grounds at a salary of $200 a month.

After Jackson declined to reorganize the department on the basis of an unsigned budget with penciled alterations Thomas wrote to Jackson on July 7 ordering him to turn over his keys and property and not to report further for duty—not because of "irregularities or mismanagement" but because of alleged "inaction and personal attitude." Fourteen days later, July 21, Thomas wrote to Jackson "withdrawing as of July 15 my letter to you of July 7."

Between his appointment and dismissal, and after reinstatement, Jackson's salary remained the same—$2400 a year. It has not been raised since.

Destruction of "Original Records"

Charges had been made that the audit report stated that "official records were destroyed before the official report (audit)." The audit report reads that "we were obliged to work with duplicate copies of typewritten records of materials requisitions and individual time tickets. The originals were destroyed before audit." This applies to

THE OREGON STATE MONTHLY is the official publication of the Alumni association of Oregon State college. Published monthly at Corvallis, Oregon. the superintendent of buildings department.

The investigation revealed that these "originals" were merely daily penciled time slips that are regularly copied off each evening onto permanent typewritten records. These "originals" had never been asked for by any previous auditor, have always been considered as temporary memoranda only, and their "destruction before the official audit" amounted to the dumping of the accumulation of years five months before the audit when the office was moved to smaller quarters.

Post Summer Course

Concerning charges that unauthorized post summer courses were given at the college in 1932 for which no accounting for fees was made, Dr. J. R. Jewell, Eugene, dean of education, made a report showing that every course given had been authorized and was listed in the catalog.

These courses were given following the regular summer session after it was found that at least 20 students had to complete 14 credits of summer session work to meet state requirements before they could return to their positions, and that they could not continue this work at the University post session as they had planned.

To keep these 20 students from losing their positions, seven faculty members gave up all or part of their customary vacation period and agreed to stay through August to teach these courses in return for the fees collected. Some other students then stayed for the courses so that the fees, all of which were accounted for, provided about $300 which was distributed by the dean among the seven faculty men for their month's work.

General Business Methods at the College

Charges had been made that many items in the regular audit report indicated "rotten, sloppy and inefficient" business methods, indicating need for a general reorganization.

The audit report was submitted to specialists who found in it no such sweeping indictments of business methods at the college. In many cases the audit frankly commends conditions and at other places points out opportunity for improvement. Criticism of specific situations were not confined to any one institution, as quotations would lead the public to believe, but are found about equally in the audits of all institutions—volume of business transactions concerned.

All helpful suggestions by the auditor were welcomed and many were promptly put into effect, just as has been the case with previous audit suggestions.

Charges that the college had protested putting into effect standardized systems of accounting as ordered by the law creating the state board are positively denied, and steps in the centralization and unification of accounts are recounted.

College accounts have been regularly audited by state and federal officials for decades, resulting in many reports containing major commendations and minor suggestions for improvement leading to continual betterment. Impartial reading of the recent main audit shows nothing that would justify any such sweeping charges as were based upon it.

Non-resident Fees

Charges were made that the audit called attention to omission by the college in collection of non-resident fees through acceptance of affidavits of exemption without close supervision.

What reference is made to this subject in the audit is in the general introduction and hence is not applied to any particular institution. Regulations now in force date back to joint action of old separate boards of regents. Present stringent restrictions were included in the joint catalog of 1932-33. Registrars report that the regulations are being rigidly enforced, a fact which is attested by the frequent protests from students and parents forced to pay these $150 annual out-of-state fees.

Accounting Methods in Separate Agricultural Departments

Some of the agricultural departments that must keep separate accounts of income and expenditures connected with farm production, etc., were highly commended in the audit, and some were criticized. Only the criticisms have been repeated.

The dean of agriculture investigated every criticism after the audit findings were revealed to him. In some instances the suggestions were found to be practical and were put into effect. In others evident lack of understanding of the problem involved was revealed, as, for instance, in recommending uniform production records against which to check all sales, which would be manifestly impractical in such cases as small fruit research where many thousands of seedling berries with no commercial value are brought into fruitage in the search for new varieties.

Another instance cited was that in which the auditor detected a possible loss in the bacteriology department which was shown to have been caused by recording consignments of legume cultures to county agents as actual sales when in some cases they were still on hand in the counties. In another case a difference in monthly production and sales of eggs was shown to have been caused by failure of the auditor to take storage supplies into account.

Thus it is shown that the audit report itself, considered in its true light, was not of such a nature that would in any way warrant the grave charges that were made against the business management here at Oregon State college.

of the Oregon alumni, appeared early in December with a leading article praising the action of Dean Morse and his supporters, attacking Chancellor Kerr's administration, and declaring that Roscoe C. Nelson in resigning from the board admitted by his action that "he had been duped." (Mr. Nelson, of course, has admitted no such thing. Those who have talked to him since say he is more convinced than ever that he was right.)

2. The faculty at the university met in special session soon after the last board meeting and passed a resolution, the text of which has not been made public, which demanded that any investigation include all phases of the controversy and not merely Dean Morse's actions. To this Chairman McLeod replied that his committee had been authorized to do just one specific thing, and that unless he was instructed differently by the board, it would do only that.

3. Sheldon Sackett, who handles the news pages of the Salem Statesman, wrote a signed political story in which he said that he had it on good authority that Chancellor Kerr would retire July 1st with the praise of the board for his work, and that meanwhile the board would look for an outside man, and that pending these events the faculty at the University and others there would keep quiet looking toward the new school year.

This was of course immediately sent statewide by the news agencies and played up with a streamer head by the Eugene Register-Guard which immediately commented favorably on it editorially. It failed to make the big splash evidently expected of it, however. Possibly this was because the program outlined sounded so much like an "armistice plea carrying victorious provisions for a defeated group," and partly because the past predictions in the higher educational field by Sackett, (who has throughout been a bitter critic of Chancellor Kerr) have been consistently nearly 100 per cent wrong. Vice-President Marks immediately denied that there could be any foundation for the report, as the board had not met.

DOINGS OF BEAVERS

Bressman Gets Post On Roosevelt's "Brain-Trust"

Dr. E. N. Bressman, associate professor of farm crops at Oregon State for the past 10 years, has resigned to become scientific adviser to the secretary of agriculture. The new member of the president's "brain-trust" was interviewed informally here last August by Rex Tugwell, assistant secretary of Agriculture and a leading member of the so-called "brain-trust". It is believed that this interview resulted in Bressman's call to the national capital.

Since coming to the college in January 1924, Dr. Bressman has become one of the leading authorities on hops and has been working as hops specialist of the agricultural experiment station cooperating with the federal department of agriculture on hop culture and diseases. He is author of many magazine articles and co-author with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace of a recent book "Corn and Corn Growing".

"Iron-Men" Team Draws Crowds

Nearly one-seventh of a million people watched the 1933 Oregon State football team in action during its regular schedule of 10 games from September 21 to November 30. In round figures some 139,500 gridiron fans paid into the Oregon State coffers approximately $61,250. In a like number of games played during 1932 under a different coaching set-up, the Orangemen played before only 73,666 people or just about 67,000 less than this year. Cash receipts for the 1932 season were a little above the $40,000 mark.

Grads Manage Garage

Two of Oregon State's recent graduates, both of whom were prominent in student activities while on the campus, have taken over the College Hill garage in Corvallis and plan to maintain one of the city's most modern and up-to-date service and repair shops. William Perrin, '33, BA, and vice-president of the student body last year, and Jerry Held, '31 C, are the two new Corvallis business men. The two new enterprisers plan to stress the quality of their work and service and will cater especially to college people. Both have had considerable experience in general garage work.

Bill Perrin,

As a senior in home economics Miss Weber of Portland is a member of the board of control, president of the Home Economics club and prominent in journalism work.

Beaver Speaker Wins

George Robertson of Portland, junior in secretarial science, won second place in the annual state after-dinner speaking contest at Pacific college in Newberg December 8. Jack Baker of Linfield college won first place. Speakers from seven Oregon colleges were given three hours to prepare speeches on the topics they drew. Oregon State has won two first places in this contest since it was started four years ago.

Miss Allen to Have Poetry Book Published

Including many impressions of Oregon mountains and coast country, "Seeds of Earth", a book of poems by Eleanor Allen, class of 1923 and a prominent Portland writer, will be published soon by the Metropolitan press of Portland. The foreword is by Ben Hur Lampman, editorial writer on The Oregonian staff.

Rated as one of the outstanding younger poets of the northwest, Miss Allen has had nearly 500 poems published in leading American periodicals. She is a native Oregonian. In August Miss Allen appeared on the program of the convention of the League of Western Writers where she presented a group of original Chinese poems.

KOAC Ranks High

Radio Station KOAC is the first ranking station in the entire United States in time devoted to educational and non-commercial programs and in scope of educational field covered judging by the annual report of the station for 1932-33 recently submitted by W. L. Kadderly, formerly manager of KOAC.

Lyceum Programs Planned

A special committee of the board of control is engaged in seeking methods of handling lyceum programs on the campus for the remainder of the school year. The committee consists of Vera Weber, senior woman representative, chairman; Dorothy Ann Sidler, secretary of the associated students; and Walther Ott, senior man representative. An appropriation of $750 was set aside in the 1933-34 associated student budget for these programs.

Choruses Combine for Concerts

Combining into a chorus of 145 voices, members of the Oregon State chorus and the Polyphonic choir of the University of Oregon presented a concert in Eugene December 5 and then repeated the performance one week later on the college campus. Paul Petri, director of music and conductor of both choruses, conducted the combined group.

Classes Plan Dances

Extensive plans are underway for the annual dances of the three lower classes to be given during the winter term. Rooks and rookesses will hold their annual affair January 12 amid artistic posters carrying out the freshman spirit. Margaret Warner of Medford and Robert Runyon of Portland are co-chairmen of the event.

As the first formal dance of the year the sophomores will hold their cotillion January 27 under the direction of Melvin Breese of Cottage Grove. Juniors plan their prom for February 24 with Howard Lowe of Corvallis, chairman. An additional annual event to be revived after having been abandoned last year is the journalist's annual jamboree, the typelouse crawl, to be held January 19.

Moore Compiles Anthology

"Sunset Trails", an anthology of recent Oregon verse, is a publication recently compiled by Dallas Moore, Class of 1925, who was active in campus journalism and editor of the Orange Owl. He later graduated from Stanford University. Approximately three hundred poems are contained in the book by as many writers; and since not more than a dozen are recognized professional authors, it is apparent that the anthology has brought out into the literary parade a large number of aspiring verse writers, mostly young people.

Captain Skeet O'Connell

Replacing Ed Lewis Faces Coach Slats Gill

Replacing All-American Ed Lewis, captain and center of last year's Pacific coast champion hoop team, is the big task facing Amory (Slats) Gill, Orange coach, this season as his squad swings into preliminary training. Lewis garnered about a third of Oregon State points last year and was the vital element in the offense, although six lettermen are back to take care of the other positions, Coach Gill must find a pivot man with an approach to the scoring qualities of Lewis before he can turn out a well-balanced quintet.

Wilbur Kidder, sophomore from Pendleton, is the most promising candidate at center. Kidder, who is 6 feet 4 inches, has tremendous spring in his legs and handles himself well on the floor but lacks experience. Close behind Kidder is Cliff Folen, a lanky 6 foot 6 inch transfer from Monmouth Normal. Folen has had some experience playing for the Teachers and has shown much improvement during the short time practice has been in session this fall.

Captain Skeet O'Connell, George Hibbard and Merle Taylor, all lettermen, are back to handle the forward positions. O'Connell and Hibbard are expected to get the starting call with Taylor and Lefty Palmberg, sophomore, ready to alternate. Taylor and Palmberg are rather small but are accurate shooters and excell on defense.

Red McDonald, Carl Lenchitsky and Fred Hill are lettermen guards who returned for another year. McDonald and Lenchitsky are veterans with two years experience, while Hill won his first stripe last year alternating between center and guard. McDonald and Lenchitsky are favorites for regular positions.

Several likely-looking sophomores from last year's rook squad turned up when Coach Gill called practice this fall. In addition to Kidder and Palmberg, Bob Bergstrom, Art Durland, Woody Joslin, Maynard Schultz and Ed Creider reported.

Seven tough non-conference games face the Orangemen before they swing into the regular conference schedule to defend their championship. They open the winter campaign against Multnomah club here December 15 and then take on Union Oil the next night. On December 21 and 23 they play return games with Union Oil in Portland and play Multnomah club on the 22nd. The final series of the pre-season skirmishes are at Medford, the Orange five playing Ashland Normal, December 29 and 30.

The conference schedule begins January 5 when Washington State invades the campus. Complete conference schedule follows:

January 5 and 6 Washington State at Corvallis.

January 13 Oregon at Eugene.

January 19 Oregon at Corvallis.

January 23 and 24 Idaho at Moscow.

January 26 and 27 Washington State at Pullman.

February 2 and 3 Washington at Corvallis.

February 12 and 13 Idaho at Corvallis.

February 16 and 17 Washington at Seattle.

March 2 Oregon at Eugene.

March 3 Oregon at Corvallis.

Football in Review

When the Pacific coast conference football season ended December 9, Oregon State was in second place in the ratings. This is the first time since 1926 that the Orangemen have placed in the upper bracket. Six wins, two ties, and two defeats sums up the results of the 1933 schedule.

In spite of being doped for a poor season, Coach Lon Stiner developed a football eleven which boasted two All-Americans and received as much favorable recognition as any Oregon State team ever received and probably as much as any team in the nation this season. Color, fight and all-round good playing featured the Beaver squad. The Orange aggregation has been termed "the football inonoclasts of the country as well as the 'color' team of the 1933 season".

For the first time Oregon State boasts All-American football players. As a result of the season's campaign both Norm Franklin, left halfback, and Ade Schwammel, right tackle, were named on various all-star elevens. Schwammel is a senior, but Franklin will have a chance to repeat next year.

The first conference game was played on Bell field against Montana. Oregon State came through with a 20 to 0 win to post a perfect record in the conference standings.

Gonzaga university proved to be a little tougher competition and the final result of that bitterly-fought contest was 0 to 0. San Francisco university was also a strong team and the Orange team had a narrow squeak in nosing them out 12 to 7. Both of these games were non-conference tilts.

According to all pre-game dope the Orangemen were supposed to take a beating at the hands of Southern California in Portland and contribute to the Trojan's long string of consecutive victories. However, in a great exhibition of football combined with fight, might El Trojan was stopped 0 to 0.

Playing in the traditional mud and rain on Bell field, the Beavers nosed out Washington State 2 to 0 in the annual homecoming game. Aside from the two points garnered on a blocked punt, the game was played on practically even terms, neither team being able to do any consistent offensive work because of the condition of the field.

The crucial Oregon game was next on the list of the Orangemen. After a week's layoff they went to Portland determined to finish their conference schedule undefeated, but the Webfoots proved a little too strong and they were turned back 13 to 3.

Immediately after the Oregon game, 26 Orange players boarded the train for New York and the game with Fordham. Franklin and Schwammel made their big bids for All-American mention in this game, both being outstanding on the field. The outcome of the game with the Rams was 9 to 6 for the Beavers.

Enthusiastic after this win, the Oregon State players asked for a chance at the Big Six champion Nebraska eleven and arrangements were completed for this game. The combination of a cracker-jack Cornhusker team and illness of several Orange players was too much for Oregon State and they were defeated, 22 to 0, in a rather disappointing ending of the season.

Twelve men from the squad will be lost from next year's squad. Six of these are members of the original "iron eleven" while the other six are reserves.

Henry Zimmerman, EE, engineer with the Kansas state corporation commission at Topeka, was one of the Beaver rooters at the Nebraska game: "With the family, I attended that splendidly fought Oregon State-Nebraska game, and it was a thrilling sight, after so many years, to see the Orangemen lined up and against a team which is among the very topnotchers of the country. Our boy, 9, has the makings of a Stater, judging from the way he disturbed the grandstand by getting out in the aisle and frantically yelling for a touchdown when we had the ball on the 1-yard line, and at other crucial times.

"The Beavers looked grand, clicked like clockwork, between the two great walls of excited humanity which was rooting for the foe. But the team may know that it is next to impossible for a large crowd not to contain some scattered Oregon State rooters going just frantic about them, even though drowned out. Included near us was a man from Washington and a farmer from Oregon."

Ruby Carratt, PhG, is now a member of the staff of the Owl drug store at Wenatchee, Wash.

Jeannette Cramer, HE, in private life now Mrs. Arthur Mason, gave us this bit about her husband since we had no information about him before: "My husband is originally from Dayton, Wash., and has for the last ten years or so been doing newspaper and advertising work here in Oregon, with a short sojourn in California where he didn't like the climate. He now operates his own advertising agency, the Arthur L. Mason agency, in the Artisan's building. He attended Washington State for a short time, but didn't graduate. His allegiance has now been transferred wholeheartedly to Oregon State. One of these days we'll visit Corvallis, so Arthur and the college community can do some mutual looking over. I know it will be a happy occasion for all concerned."

William Black, A, is attending the University of Southern California this year, working for his doctorate in sociology.

Anthony Cannavian, F, is again at the Wind River Forest Experiment station at Stabler, Wash. He has been in Portland.

Gleaned recently from a letter received from Robert Faucett, C, Los Angeles attorney, is the word that his family now includes a son, Robert, Junior, now one year old. Mrs. Faucett was formerly Virginia Leatham of Logan, Utah. Faucett's office is at 8530 South Vermont avenue.

Merle Bailey, EE, and Myra Gunter Bailey, '26, VE, and their young son and daughter live at 776 Southfield road, Birmingham, Mich. Bailey has been in the employ of the Edison Electric company at Birmingham since 1928.

Arthur V. Walker, CE, has accepted a position in the California state highway department at Sacramento, with title of assistant bridge designer. Mrs. Walker (Alice Komm, '23, C.) writes: "After seven years of San Francisco fog the weather here seems perfect to us, reports to the contrary notwithstanding." Their residence is at 4624 Buckingham Way.

William L. Estes, P, for several years employed at the Mayfield drug store at Enterprise, has accepted a position with the Joseph Pharmacy, Joseph, Or.

Dear Friends:

The letter must be short this month so I'll not have a chance to print here another letter we clipped from the Barometer written by Don Hill telling about his trip East. It's too bad to miss it.

In answer to my query, Carroll Hamlin came right back with this about his sister Ava and Victor Hessler. They are still at Iowa State college (2816 Wood Street, Ames). "Vic has obtained his master's degree, and is at present working for his doctor's degree, but doesn't know when he will get it as he is teaching almost full time in the school of electrical engineering and can only put in a small portion of his time toward his degree. The Hesslers plan on coming west in the future if a teacher's position on the coast can be obtained. They have two girls."

Elvin Hoy, '25, surprised us with the following letter: "I shall be studying theoretical advanced mathematics at Universitat Munchen and applied mathematics at Technische Hochschule in Muenchen, Germany, during this year while on leave of absence from the University of Hawaii, Honolulu. While enroute from Honolulu, I spent four months touring Japan, China, Philippines, Malay States, Ceylon, Arabia, Egypt, Italy, and Germany. Shall continue my tour of the world after studying in Munich and Berlin."

He writes his address in this manner: An den Stud. Math. Herrn Elvin A. Hoy, Muenchen 13, Germany, Tuerkenstr, 50, II.

Merry Christmas, folks, and may our next year be a better one.

Percy Bell, ChE, for the past four years working in the Anglo-Chinese missions in and near Singapore, Malaya, under the Board of Foreign Missions, has returned to the States for this year and is studying at the University of Washington. Mr. Bell came to Corvallis during the Thanksgiving vacation to visit campus friends. His Seattle address is 4238 Twelfth, Northeast.

Alvin Hollenberg, IA, and Ruth Moreland Hollenberg, Class of '29, and their son live at 166 Chorro street, San Luis Obispo, Calif. Hollenberg teaches industrial arts classes in the California Polytechnic school there.

Loring Hudson, VE, formerly editor of the Monthly and now teaching in the Kamehameha Boys' school in Honolulu, writes: "We Staters are sure proud of our team. Tell Lon Stiner that he has mine and the congratulations of all the rest of us over here for the fine season. We're betting on him for next year."

"I see Tom Miles, Class of '34, now and then. He is playing on the Kamehameha alumni football team which has won the senior league championship.

"Just now I am busy getting out the annual publicity booklet for this school."

Lanta Brewer, HE, came to Corvallis in December to visit her sister, Billie Brewer, '25, P, now Mrs. E. R. Monjay. Miss Brewer is a dietitian at the San Francisco hospital.

Blanche Eickworth, HE, writes this from Bend, Or.: "After a most enjoyable summer at school in Fort Collins, Colo., I returned to Oregon to my new job here in Bend. I have charge of the home economics department in the union high school which includes both a junior and senior high school. We have some 900 students and the three of us teachers in the home economics department.

"I feel right at home here with so many Oregon Staters. Alice Moser, VE, is one of the home economics teachers here. Ray McDuffee, '27, VE, is a very popular English teacher. Betty Vance Erickson, '29, HE, is a real homemaker and I see her often. Her husband, Carl Erickson, '29, C, has, I think, the busiest grocery store in town. Our superintendent, Raymond E. McCormack, '21, A, and his wife Bertha K. McCormack, '21, HE, are Oregon Staters too."

Herbert Gordon, C, is pastor of the Lansdale Presbyterian church in San Anselmo, Calif., while studying at the San Anselmo Theological seminary. He and Helen Davis Gordon, HE, have a child less than three months old.

Here's a continuation of that telephone conversation Paula Denson North was having last month with Margaret Watt Edwards:

"Don Denning, '29, works for the Associated Oil company in Portland. He and Lucille and their 3-year-old son live in Gainsboro.

"You say that Johnny Lavinder, '28, lives in Raymond, Washington, and works for the Willapa Electric company?

"I just heard that Ernie Woods, '31, was promoted by the Shell Oil company and given his own station at 38th and Hawthorne.

"Recently we called on John Novak, '27. He is a successful New York Life salesman and spent a two-months vacation at the Century of Progress.

"Elsa Ringel, '28, also visited the Century of Progress and went on to New York city. She is the cafeteria manager in the Walla Walla high school.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Blaesing (Betty Stillwell, '24) attended the Sigma Chi convention in Chicago and also viewed the Century of Progress.

"Bess Kuster, '28, is teaching at Walla Walla this year.

"You say Blanche Hurd, '27, is teaching in Vancouver, Washington.

"I just learned that John Bagley, '27, with the Public Service commission, has been transferred to Salem. His wife, you know, is Rita Reid, '27.

"Merle Wells Narver, '28, called one day last week and told me that Ursel, '28, was attending the Northwestern College of Law in addition to his regular work with the Oregon Grange Bulletin.

"I plan to be over soon and then let's go call on Hattie Reader Rice, '25, who also lives in Eastmoreland. She is married to Bill Rice and they have two sons.

"Call me if you hear any news."

Alfred Trimble, C, and Ruth Bennett Trimble, VE, live at 231 Baker St., Albany, according to word just received. Trimble is on the office force of the Mountain States Power Co.

Ronald Burnett, A, head of the Smith-Hughes agricultural department at Woodburn high school for several year, is one of the farm appraisers appointed not long ago by the Federal Land bank of Spokane. He is working in the Willamette valley district.

Betty MacMillan, VE, recently announced her engagement to Homer Richardson, Class of '25, at a luncheon given in Vancouver, Wash. Miss MacMillan teaches at the state school for the deaf and Richards is working in the state auto license department.

Myrtle Logan, VE, now Mrs. D. R. DeChaine, gave us her mailing address when she subscribed for the Monthly—Box 474, Paso Robles, Calif. Mrs. DeChaine has been teaching in the local high school.

George Gayer, ME, visited campus friends in November. He is regularly employed in the experiment division of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company at the time was doing testing work on the steamship Point Lobus of the Gulf Pacific Mail company.

George Sigurdson, P, for the past two years employed in the Wilson pharmacy at Warrenton, Or., is now with Graham and Eid drug store at Seaside, Or.

Ralph Richle, C, had occasion to visit at the Alumni office while in Corvallis for a short visit Thanksgiving week end. He was having a week's vacation from his work with the Loan Authorization division of Metropolitan Life Insurance company in San Francisco. Richle, after receiving his master's degree in merchandising from New York university in 1931, worked for a year in the Stern Brothers department store in New York City, then returned to the west. He stated that he much enjoyed being in the west again and found his position to be very satisfactory. Employed in this San Francisco branch of the Metropolitan Life are 860 employees.

Moore Hamilton, C, in December purchased the Medford News, Southern Oregon's leading weekly newspaper, and is now editing this official paper of Jackson and Josephine counties. Since graduation Hamilton has been one of the staff of the Medford Daily News.

Barnard Joy, A, who has a scholarship at the University of Maryland this year, has for his address: Care Mrs. G. E. Langford, Franklin street, College Park, Md.

Glenn A. Leemon, P, formerly with the Killingsworth Avenue Drug company, Portland, is now salesman for the Chemical Service company, Portland.

An Oregon Stater not seen at the Alumni Office for some time who appeared with the Homecomers was Earl Dibble, C, now with the merchandising department of the Oregonian, Portland. Of course we had him account for the Oregon Staters who had fellowships in merchandising at New York university. Dibble himself went to the university following his graduation in 1931.

He was very happy to tell that George Hunt, '30, C, has been very successful. Recently Hunt received his second or third promotion with the Continental Baking company at Somerville, Mass., now being in charge of training a group of student salesmen for 14 routes.

Dibble had heard of the marriage of Millard Koogle, '30, C, to Helen Manship of North Carolina. Mrs. Koogle had been in a number of classes with Koogle at New York university. He is employed by R. H. Macy and company, one of New York's largest department stores. Ezra Webb, '30, C, is in the same store. He and Helen Campbell Webb, Class of '31, have one son.

Porter Loomis, '31, C, and Morris Little, '31, C, according to Dibble are both located in Portland. Loomis, recently married to Sadie Lamar, Class of '34, is a reorder clerk at the Portland Montgomery Ward branch. Neil Heiny, '29, C, is in the same store. Morris Little is associated with his father in the Division Hardware store at 35th and Division streets, Portland. You will remember Mrs. Little as Helen Temple, Class of '32.

Three Oregon Staters now attending New York university on fellowships have been in touch with Dibble since their departure from Oregon. Merritt Nash, Wilbert Campbell and John Ficklin, '33 graduates in commerce, are rooming at the Lynnmore apartments, 20 Irving Place, New York city, the same place that Dibble stayed when he was in New York city.

News of a Sig Ep, Cormack Boucher, '31, EE, came to light during the conversation. Boucher has just taken over the sales agency of the Standard X-Ray Equipment company in Seattle.

Lawrence Hamilton, F, is stationed with a C. C. unit at Crook national forest, Safford, Ariz. This camp is 9500 feet above sea level and is "very nice and cool" according to the latest letter from Hamilton to the Oregon State school of forestry. Improvement cutting and erosion control are the principal activities at this camp. The unwanted timber is cut into cord lengths and given to those who will haul it.

Lurton Halderman, EE, has been doing sales promotion work for Curtis Publishing company since graduation. His headquarters are now at Salem.

Newell McKinstry, EE, and Hazel Costley McKinstry, HE, made their appearance in Corvallis for Homecoming. Mr McKinstry operates a filter plant at Grants Pass.

Axel Lindh, F, according to the Oregonian, September, rescued a chap who broke a leg on Glacier Peak. Just to show he was a wise guy, Axe had 40 C. C. boys help with the rescue. Axe is now district ranger, Lake Wenatchee district, Wenatchee National forest.—O. S. C. Fernhopper Mulligan.

Harold Bowerman, F, who has been in college this fall preparing for the civil service examination for junior forester, has accepted a temporary appointment on the Willamette National forest at a salary of $2600 a year. In his party are Harold Powell, '32, F, and Edward Smithburg, '32, F, who also studied for the examinations. Their mailing address is care of U. S. Forest service, McKenzie Bridge, Or.

Other forestry graduates securing similar positions at the same salary are Richard Kearns, '30, F, Norman Hawley, '29, F, to be stationed at the Pacific Northwest Experiment station at the Federal Court House, Portland; Robert Mansfield, F, Siskiyou National Forest, Grants Pass.

Ron Johnson, VE, Claremont, Calif., writes: "I have had a very successful summer and am now hooked up in a summer camp which has proved to be a very pleasant pastime as well as a very worthwhile financial deal. Have a good job for this year at the Norton school where I am coaching and teaching a couple of subjects and where I am able to get a good enrollment for summer camp. I am also free to train and run in the track season which is getting to be more enjoyable for me every year."

John Dutro, A, recently was appointed to the new position of deputy dairy and milk inspector of the City of Oakland, California. Recently his engagement to Mary Frances Reid of Salem was announced.

Margaret Barker, HE, 54 Sheldrake boulevard, Toronto, Canada, writes: "I have enjoyed getting the Monthly last year as it keeps me in touch with events back there. May it and the good old Alma Mater be bigger and better this year in spite of adverse circumstances! Occasionally I hear an O. S. C. song over the radio when results of football games are announced."

"Having finished my student work at the General hospital, I'm now trying to hold down a job here at the Preventorium."

Frank Miller, C, is very enthusiastic about his business venture—Miller's Charcoal Broiler, R. F. D., Box 693, Palo Alto. "I'm managing a road-house. Perhaps that sounds worse than it is, but even if I do say so myself, we have a mighty nice place. Most of the houses around this part of the country seem to be a rendezvous for drunks but we've worked plenty hard in weeding out that class, and we now have a place into which I would be proud to invite any of my friends from up north."

John R. Parker, VE, and Martha Smith Parker, '29, VE, are in Corvallis for the school year while Mr. Parker takes graduate work in forestry. They have been in Los Angeles the past year.

Fred Joy, who has been working at blister rust control work with the bureau of plant industry this year, called at the school of Forestry office in November while on his way to Portland to spend the winter. He had just taken the junior forester examination at Grants Pass with two other Oregon Staters, Maurice Tedrow, F, and Conrad Wessela, '33, F. Tedrow is employed at C. C. C. work as foreman at a camp near Rogue River. Wessela has been working with Joy but now expects to be in the Spokane office of the bureau of plant industry for the winter.

Evlon Niederfrank, A, in August received his appointment as a farm appraiser for the Federal Land bank of Spokane, Wash. to work in the Willamette valley section. Since graduation he has assisted in the dairy farm survey conducted by the department of farm management at the college.

Lloyd Griggs, A, is working for the Shell Oil company at Cottage Grove, Or.

Garnett Butler, Opt., who arrived in Portland October first from Shanghai, China, for a visit with her parents, left San Francisco November 17 to return to China to reside. She announced that in Honolulu she would be joined by her fiancée, Dr. W. H. Gardiner, where they were to be married, returning together to Shanghai.

Margaret Ward, VE, very kindly sent in the latest from Newport, Or., "Just a note to tell you that Beatrice Angus, '25, and Margaret Ward, '32, are teaching in the Newport high school, Newport, Or. There are two other Oregon Staters on our faculty also—Gerald Dudley, '31, and R. A. McCully, '08, principal.

Phil Berger, F, was superintendent of a C. C. C. camp at Winniebigoshish Dam, Minnesota, during the summer.

Alan McCready, F, who recently received his master's degree in forestry at Yale university in 1933, is at Camp Compton, N. H. He has recently been promoted to traveling pathological technician.

Cleon Clark, F, has accepted a position on the Deschutes National Forest with headquarters at Bend. He was in Corvallis in November to take the civil service examination for junior forester.

Martin Redding, C, recently transferred to the western Oregon territory by the state traffic department, recalled for us these notes of Staters he has seen and heard of while traveling about to perform his duties:

"George Lindauer, '31, A, has a prune ranch at Redding, Calif. He was married recently in Portland to a girl who attended Mills College.

"Ed Efteland, C, is still with Firestone Tire and Rubber company and is now located in Salem.

"Stewart Kibbe, EE, is with the Oregon Pulp and Paper company in Salem.

"George Duff, C, planted a crop of onions and potatoes at Weiser, Idaho, this past season and had a good crop. Tom Duff, P, George's brother, is going to dental college in Portland—so is Virgil Belknap, Class of '31.

"John Osburn, '34, A, the polo player, is a clerk in the Astoria Hotel at Astoria.

"Clarence James, '34, F, was married about two months ago. He has a Richfield service station at Tillamook.

"Fred Knutsen, C, recently secured a job with a federal branch bank organized not long ago and is stationed at Spokane.

"Rita DeTemple, '31, C, is a stenographer at the Northwestern Electric company offices in Portland.

"Eloise Wright, '31, HE, is doing Red Cross work in Salem.

"Elizabeth Howland, '32, HE, is supervisor of the Montgomery Ward cafeteria in Portland.

"Eleanor Pope, C, is a secretary in the office of the Hawley Paper mill in Oregon City. Rosemary Gardner, HE, is working in Oregon City too. She is working at the Oregon City public library.

"Arthur Porter, '32, ME, is employed by the Portland Electric Power company at Oregon City.

"Darrel King, '34, C, was married in Honolulu about two months ago and is now working in his father's hardware store in Tillamook. On the way home he saw Leonard Wilson, '32, M, Jimmie Gibson, '31, C, and Bill Hanley, '33, ME, in California.

"I heard that Mr. and Mrs. Chet Bergey ('30) and Elmer Buckhorn, '33, EE, drove from Washington, D. C., to see the Fordham game. Also that Millard Koogle, '30, C, and his wife Ezra Webb, '30, C, and Helen Campbell Webb, Class of '31, entertained the members of the football team while they were in New York.

"Margaret Metcalf, '32, VE, recently started to work in Meier and Frank's in Portland."

Edmund Meola, A, stopped in Corvallis in December on his way to Niles, Calif., to take a position with the California Nursery company there. He reported that he had just driven west via the southern route from New York city where he has been since graduation. Before leaving for the west he witnessed the Fordham game and was much thrilled by the showing made by the Orangemen.

Ivan Branton, A, has been appointed to take the place of C. J. Hurd, '27, assistant professor of agricultural engineering at Oregon State college.

Amy Aldrich, C, works at the Internal Revenue offices in Portland. She is living at the Embassy apartments at 20th and Flanders.

Waldo Taylor, stopped at the office at Homecoming and reported seeing a number of Beavers in Seattle, where he is working for the Ford Motor company. He reported Del McClure, as working for an accounting firm there and told of seeing Jack Tostevin, and wife Isabel Beck, a number of times. Tostevin is working for Union Service Stations there.

Dorothy Sauter, C., has a position as secretary to the manager of Blake, Moffitt and Towne, Portland paper firm. She lives at 1606 Southeast Holly street.

Edward Vennewitz, ChE., has employment in Portland too. He is working in the engineering department of the Iron Fireman Manufacturing company. His address is 4521 Northeast 22nd avenue.

Mark Morris, A., is a graduate student at the University of California Mining College. His address in Berkeley is 1975 Eldorado.

Lee Sutton, Ed., and Stanford "Tag" Atwood, Class of '35, drove up from Los Angeles for the Homecoming game. Sutton is working for his master's degree at the University of Southern California.

Arthur Rettman, F., has been placed in charge of a C. C. C. unit at Vallecitos Camp, El Rico, N. M. He writes that most of the men under his supervision are Mexicans ranging from the ages 15 to 35. All undesirable trees under 11 inches in diameter are being removed from the forests in this vicinity. Rettman claims that his camp is one of the best in the region.

Stanley Christian, A., is trying and apparently succeeding in teaching a "League of Nations," in one of Hawaii's largest grade schools. He is living with his parents in Hanamaula, Kauai, where the school is located.

Christian states that in his eighth grade class of 20 Smith-Hughes boys, there are Filipinos, Portuguese, Japanese, Hawaiians, Koreans, Hawaiian-Japanese and other mixed races. The boys center their work on a 22-acre miniature sugar plantation which is managed and worked by the lads under Christian's leadership. The cane produced is contracted to a large sugar plantation adjoining. In conjunction with their farm, two large vegetable gardens are operated by the class and the produce sold to local markets.

Timothy Coleman, ChE., who recently received the graduate scholarship from Sigma Tau, national honor society in engineering, has been awarded an additional scholarship from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He will continue his work for his master's degree in chemical engineering under both awards at the institute.

Elizabeth Wilmot, HE., and her husband, Victor Phelps, '33 graduate of the University of Oregon, were Corvallis visitors in November. Mr. Phelps has a teaching position in the high school at stayton, Or.

Adolph Benschmidt, CE., in October was chosen national secretary of Mu Beta Beta, honor society for 4-H clubs at the annual national meeting held at the Pacific International Livestock exposition in Portland.

Deaths

Looney—Harold B. Looney, Class of '10, died November 29 at Jefferson, Or. Mr. Looney was a former Oregon State college football star, playing fullback on its first Pacific coast championship team. He was also a track star, excelling in the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

For the last three years Mr. Looney had been employed on the geodetic survey ship, Explorer, with headquarters at Ketchikan, Alaska.

Frank—Herbert W. Frank, Class of '16, died May 11, 1933, at Valley City, Ohio, after an illness of five years.

Debaters Enter Meet

Nine teams of Oregon State debaters were entered in a four-round non-decision debate tournament in McMinnville recently. The clash was held at Linfield college as a practice for the annual decision tournament there in February and was participated in by 89 speakers from seven colleges in Oregon, Washington and California. Oregon State had a larger representation at the meet than any other college.

"MAMMA BEAVERS" MEET

The organization of Oregon State alumnae in Portland who have families, best known as the "Mamma Beavers," were entertained November 28 by Vesta Starbuc Strong, '23, and Edith Allworth Metcalf, '14. This account of the meeting was forwarded by Mrs. Metcalf:

Vesta and I entertained the Club at the Strong home last night and the secretary sent this paper around to get some information (names given below) but you see how generous they are and I do not know much about many of them. In addition to this list there was Emily Cofer, Vesta Strong and myself, making 18 present. Our membership is 34, with the limit at 40. We had to restrict the membership last year as few houses could accommodate more.

This fall we have been working on a friendship quilt to be a wedding present for Jannette Cramer Mason. Each member has made a block and we turned them in last night to be put together. It was at Jannette's home that the Club first met, many years ago.

Our program last night had to do with Thanksgiving. Four members took part in it, giving the origin and history up to the present day. Emily Cofer dressed as a Puritan gave the main talk, Lela Poole spoke on Thanksgiving day with table illustrations and suggestions. Addie Robison read a story and Frances Peeler an appropriate poem. Patricia Strong played a violin solo.

The following were present:

Gertrude Dyer Wehrly, '21; Nellie Thompson Poole, ex-'25; Zoe Brown Sohlstrom, '16; Frances Van Buskirk Peeler, ex-'20; Lela Howitt Poole, ex-'25; Betty Howitt Arce, '16; Mabel Langley Snider, ex-'27; Ruth Muller Cooper, '19; Eileen Stephens Waring, '23; Beulah Beeler Lamb, '10; Addie McCullough Robison, '19; Vesta Kerr Reynolds, '08; Louise Pirtle Anderson, '15; Anne Sweeney Day, '15; Ruth Morrison Miller, '16.

Beulah Lamb should have mentioned after her name that she spent the summer raising turkeys; now she has 500 birds to dispose of and the price is the lowest in history. She hoped to make enough to put her boy through school. He is a sophomore there I think.

I went to a Mother's club luncheon yesterday at our church and discovered a lady that had gone through college with me, Mildred Wilson, who married Jay C. Leedy. They have just moved here from Roseburg. They have two boys in Grant, one a senior and one boy in Fernwood. Mr. Leedy is with the Turkey Growers association.
