The O. A. C. Alumnus is the official publication of the Alumni Association of the Oregon State Agricultural College. Published monthly during the college year at Corvallis, Oregon. Permit for mailing as second class matter applied for. Yearly subscription $2.50. Single copies 25 cents. National advertising through Intercollegiate Alumni Extension Service, Inc., 18 E. 41st Street, New York City. Local advertising office, 112 Commerce Hall, Corvallis, Oregon.

I APPRECIATE the privilege given me to extend greetings to the alumni, and to express the hope that a large number will be at the College for Homecoming. This will afford opportunity not only to participate in the demonstrations, but also to note recent improvements, to have contact with the student body, and to partake somewhat of the prevailing spirit of the institution. The College is largely dependent, of course, for its future development and success upon the loyalty and devotion of its graduates. It is important, therefore, that alumni keep in touch with the institution, know its policies, its accomplishments, and its needs.—W. J. KERR.

“Home to Meet 'Em—Back to Beat 'Em”

Homecoming, November 20

Register Early at Headquarters

The first duty of a Homecoming alumnus is to register that he may receive his alumni badge and avail himself of the many alumni privileges.

Automobiles with official stickers will meet each train and convey the alumni about the campus and to the registration headquarters in the lobby of the Men's Gym. These official cars will be at the disposal of alumni at all times during the Homecoming week-end. Alumni are asked to hail an official car for use at any time.

Little felt Beavers with orange and black ribbons attached will be given to each alumnus as he or she registers. Supplementing the registration in the gymnasium there will be a supply of blanks and badges at each fraternity, sorority and dormitory. Again alumni are urged to register early.

Among the new and helpful service features this year will be the nursery. There visiting alumni babies may be left any time after 10:00 a.m. on Homecoming day. It will be maintained throughout the day and during the Homecoming dance that night. Competent girls will be in charge to care for the children left in the nursery.

Chrysanthemums which will be sold by the home economics club to help raise their International Friendship Scholarship, may be purchased at headquarters. A spang of the game play by play, and news reels will be taken of the game. Thousands of Homecoming envelopes are carrying all student communications through the mails, while Homecoming stickers for cars are seen everywhere.

Parade Opens Homecoming Events

A noise parade on Friday night, Nov. 19, will introduce the Homecoming festivities. It will be followed by a rally in the Armory and the burning of the rook bonfire.

“Noise wagons” and pajamas and torchlights will feature the parade which will start at the Co-op corner, as usual, and proceed to town and back. The “dope” has it that every men's living organization on the campus will be in the competition for it has been announced that “a prize will be given for the noisiest pajamas and the loudest float.”

The speech-making and rally in the Armory will be short and snappy, including speeches by alumni, students and football men, with plenty of yells and band music as fillers.

The rook bonfire committee seems to feel its responsibility in erecting a bonfire which will surpass all previous records. And the united wish of all concerned is that the night may be a clear one for the full moon which is scheduled to appear on that date. Then will the beacon lights of the four class presidents, lighted from that of the student body president, indeed send the Oregon funeral pyre leaping skyward!

After the bonfire—quiet visiting and sleep, for the coming day, promises much.

Campus Aglow to Meet Homecomers

A campus ablaze with welcoming signs will greet returning alumni on Nov. 19 and 20 and lend a warm glow of good feeling to the atmosphere.

Greater competition than ever before in construction of house signs for homecoming is apparent this year. All fraternities, sororities and halls are expecting to erect signs.

Women's living organizations are showing more interest in the signs, because of the special prize being given to women's houses in addition to the cup presented annually by the Corvallis Gazette-Times to the house with the best sign. This cup has been won for two years by Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. An organization winning the cup three times in succession will receive it permanently.

Signs will be judged on originality, attractiveness and effectiveness in portraying the spirit of homecoming. Appearance of the signs during both day and night will be considered in judging.

The limit set for expenses in constructing the signs is $15 for each house. All bills for materials and construction will be checked by the homecoming committee to see that the houses conform to this ruling. Signs are to be up Thursday, November 18, by 7 o'clock in the evening and are to remain until Monday morning, November 22. Winners of the homecoming sign contest will be announced Friday night, November 19.

Lunch Planned for Homecomers

A special informal luncheon service has been planned for alumni on Homecoming Day, Nov. 20, so that no one need go to the game hungry. Cafeteria service in Waldo Hall will be available from 11:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. on that day. And in that hall, just a few steps from Bell Field, will be found old grads and young grads and other visitors and guests at Homecoming time. The plan of having the alumni registration headquarters housed in the Men's Gym this year throws the chief alumni interests to the south side of the campus, and will, undoubtedly, increase alumni participation in the many things planned.

The Homecoming committee has arranged for a peppy orchestra to play during the luncheon hour, though no program will be attempted since groups will come and go and furnish their own entertainment of chatter and good wishes.

The various houses and halls do not plan to care for guests at the Saturday noon meal. Students with alumni guests or other visitors will accompany them to Waldo and enjoy its spirit, food and music.

Editors of the state are to be guests of the College on the Big Day. They will have a special luncheon and program including an executive meeting, in the College tea room at noon. At least 130 editors are expected to be present.

A man cannot leave a better legacy to the world than a well educated family.—Scott.

Dear Alumnae:

If you do not receive an invitation from W. A. A. to take part in the alumnae basketball game to be played during Homecoming, please believe that it was an oversight. Consider this the invitation, and before November 20 write Claribel Mintonye, secretary of W. A. A. informing what position you will play.

Women's Athletics Association of O. A. C., Wilma Leach, President.

Detailed arrangements for the alumnae members of the various sports to come back and play again with their old colleagues are being worked out by the president and members of the Women's Athletic Association of O. A. C. and Director Ruth Glassow. Alumnae who wish to participate in the games should send a card to the secretary before Homecoming week-end. Games will be played by the students also, while swimming in the tank of the new Women's Gymnasium and the last game of the hockey season will furnish part of the program.

Records have been searched for the names of those women who participated in sports and were on the varsity teams. Should the number of alumnae be sufficient to compose an all-alumnae team the game will be staged Saturday morning. Otherwise a team of the graduate-fans will play a student team as scheduled.

Other games to be played Saturday morning will be the final interclass basketball games of the Juniors vs. Seniors and the Freshmen vs. Sophomores. So far this season the girls have had very good games and this promises to be paramount.

Hockey has been distinguished as one of the sports at O. A. C. this year and everyone will be vitally interested in the game scheduled.

Another attraction at the time of the inspection of the new women's gymnasium will be the swimming meet. The best swimmers from the alumnae ranks and from the students will give special performances.

"Since this is the first attempt of the women athletes for organized play at Homecoming, I expect them to put forth a special effort to participate in the various contests," says Miss Glassow.

Homecoming Traffic Rules Formulated

Traffic during Homecoming this year will be handled by the faculty parking committee and the Beaver Knights. Prof. A. L. Peck is chairman of the faculty committee, and Gene Rapp, sophomore in commerce, is the Duke of the Beaver Knights.

If predictions are true this year will be the largest Homecoming ever held at O. A. C. It is advised that cars be left at the fraternities or other living headquarters during the Homecoming week-end to avoid congestion.

General Traffic Rules

1. No cars to be parked south of Jefferson street.
2. All cars must leave the campus going north and coming out on Monroe street.
3. No cars will be parked within the quadrangle opposite the men's gymnasium.
4. Joy riding around the campus will not be tolerated.
5. After the game cars will not leave parking position until full and ready to leave campus.
6. One line parking on all streets within the campus.

Gene Rapp, chairman of the traffic committee, urges the cooperation of the alumni, visitors and students in avoiding the chances of accidents and congestion by keeping the foregoing traffic rules and leaving cars at the fraternities or other headquarters whenever possible.

Big Dance Exclusive to Alumni

"Meet 'em and greet 'em" will be the prevailing sentiment at the alumni dance in the Men's Gymnasium, November 20, the evening of the Oregon-O. A. C. game. Rod Brastad's Hotel Benton orchestra will play at this dance which is sponsored by the Benton County O. A. C. Club.

"Hundreds of the old grads are expected back and at the dance, if nowhere else, they will have the opportunity of seeing each other and exchanging news notes" says Doc Rowland, president of the Benton County Club.

Two student dances will be held at the same time that Saturday night, one at the Hotel Benton and one in the new Women's Building.

The alumni dance in the Men's Gym is for the exclusive entertainment of the alumni and visitors, says the student chairman who is aiding in arrangements.

Phi Kappa Phi Breakfast Scheduled

Phi Kappa Phi will hold its semi-annual initiation at Homecoming time, continuing the custom of the Forum Society by meeting together at breakfast on Sunday morning, following the game. The initiation ceremonies have been set for 8:15 a.m. and will be followed immediately by the breakfast served in the College tea room.

Juniors elected last spring will be initiated at this meeting as will a number of alumni who have been unable to return for affiliation with Phi Kappa Phi heretofore. These alumni include former members of Forum and certain alumni chosen from classes graduated previous to the founding of Forum in 1914. They are given 10 years in which to affiliate. Each initiation date finds a number present for the ceremony and Oregon State chapter is expecting the largest return ever this fall.

Prof. C. B. Mitchell, acting-president of the organization, has charge of Phi Kappa Phi affairs. John Burtner, '23, is corresponding secretary.

The Homecoming Committee

Bell Field to Wear Many Colors

Colors of coast conference schools will be used to decorate Bell field for homecoming, November 20. The campus slogan, "Home to meet 'em—Back to beat 'em," in orange and black letters will appear across the top of the bleachers.

Flags of all coast conference schools will be hung from each side of the flag pole to the main grandstand of the field. The orange and black will be alternated with coast conference colors hung around the oval of seats at the far end of the field. Lemon-yellow and green, the colors of the University of Oregon, will predominate among colors of rival colleges in decorating the main grandstand and the bleachers.

“Doc” Bell --- The Venerable Beaver Mascot

Trinity College had her Newton, Christ's College her Darwin, Yale her Timothy Dwight, and other colleges have their patron saints and immemorial sages, but O. A. C. has her venerable and living mascot “Old ‘Doc’ Bell!” Long may he live—in his terrestrial vesture, and long may his message of cheer drive Beaver warriors to heroic battle for their alma mater! But when his rolling chair and shawled shoulders no longer visit Bell Field on the occasion of an Oregon-O. A. C. football game, or his inquiring eyes under his high forehead peer no longer into the eager face of the courier who brings news from the front to his friendly waiting room in the white house on Ninth street, his spirit will still animate the stadium that bears his name, his courage will thrill Beaver warriors to do their best, his sanity will steady them in victory, and his tenderness will console them in defeat.

Officially connected with the College as regent, but far more closely associated with it by reason of his deep sympathy with youth; pastor of churches for over half a century; editor; Grand Chaplain of Oregon Masons for practically fifty years; philosopher, world traveler, servant of his fellow man and disciple of eternal truth, he sits at over 80 years of age in his house by the side of the road—and the campus—and radiates a beam of good cheer and goodfellowship as penetrating and as healing as the sun.

He was appointed regent of the College in 1874, serving for a number of years in that capacity, and he has known personally every one of its presidents—Reverend Finley, Dr. Arnold, Dr. Bloss, Mr. Miller, Dr. Gatch, and Dr. Kerr. Even before he came to Corvallis he was often called here as a lecturer to the students. As a resident of Corvallis, independent of his church, he attached himself so generously to student interests that he soon became one of the most familiar and loved figures at all campus events. He took an interest in fraternities, and delights in recalling his connection as counselor with the Aztec Club, now Alpha Sigma Phi. But chiefly he injected his boosting spirit of optimism into athletics. His massive good humor, and his unflagging cheerfulness lent inspiration to the players in a crisis and instilled a robust confidence in the student body. His influence, in short, has been a real factor in upbuilding the Beaver spirit of persistent fair play, and it was only an adequate recognition of his service to campus sports that inspired the regents to dedicate to him in 1921 the new football stadium, Bell Field.

For the sixth time since 1893, “Doc” Bell has thrown his hat in the river in celebration of an O. A. C. victory over Oregon. And he has high hopes that this fall he will do it again. The hat-throwing originated in this way. Jess Spencer's place on “Main Street” was the Tammany Hall where all the choice Democratic spirits congregated to run the government — out of office — and to exchange sweet morsels of community gossip. Dr. Bell, F. L. Miller, one of his parishioners and a leading dry-goods merchant, and Bob Johnson, now President of the Benton County State Bank but then a newspaper man, were the chief elocutionists of the Tammany forum. In the football season of 1893 as the clash with Oregon approached, Dr. Bell fervidly announced that he would throw his best Fedora hat in the river if the Beaver trounced the Webfoot.

“Miller's my witness,” retorted “Doc.” “If we win, the hat swims!”

“Your best Fedora, mind!” admonished Bob.

“My best, and only, Fedora!” protested “Doc.”

And when the victory came and the hat went its watery way, the benevolent F. L. Miller saw to it that the polished but haloed dome of the Presbyterian pastor did not long go uncovered.

Still pastor emeritus of the First Presbyterian church of Corvallis, he has been the most potent personal factor in the development of that church and in its spiritual service to Corvallis. Preaching first in the little old church on Fourth street, now remodeled as a dwelling, his magnetism crowded that building to its doors. “Brethren,” he would say to his leading pew holders on the front seats, “won't you kindly take the standing room back there by the door, and let those sinners come forward.” And they did, A. J. Johnson, F. L. Miller, and the rest of his tall “pillars” humbly trotting back to lean against the wall while the “sinners” took the coveted pews. But one night, when even the standing room grew breathlessly tight, some one of the “pillars” proposed a new church, and volunteered a thousand dollars for the project. Ten others seconded the motion to the same tune, and “Doc” Bell, quite hypnotized, confessed that he was so fascinated with the idea of hearing his own voice in a larger auditorium, that he would sink two hundred dollars in the big tent himself. In a few days $53,000 had been subscribed, and the big "holy circus" on Monroe and Eighth streets was soon under way.

Message to the Alumni: I want you to know that I remember every alumnus as well as every alumna that has graduated from O. A. C. in the past 52 years—glorious years of progress and achievement. I am interested in you all, and affectionately proud of your attainments; and on Homecoming day, if I am still suspended between two eternities, I will extend to you, here, a cordial welcome.

— J. R. N. BELL.

Here Dr. Bell, earnest student of religion and avid reader of the modern philosophers and scientists—Abercrombie, Huxley, Helmholtz, Ruskin and Watt—enjoyed for years a big following of townspeople and College students. They liked his inspiring philosophy. They admired his scholarship and his tolerant but courageous analysis of scientists and social reformers. They were cheered by his urbanity and his ironic wit. And they were thrilled by his big warm-hearted humanity. When his health broke down some six or eight years ago, and the congregation had to give him up as their active pastor, they still bound his spirit to them as their pastor emeritus.

"Remember me to Dr. Bell; he married me," pleads the matron in Roseburg or Baker or Pendleton, as some College representative visits those towns and comes in contact with a happy couple who as alumni of O. A. C. or members of his former congregations had their marriage vows sanctified by the jovial Doctor of Divinity. Two thousand of them! And the matrimonial procession still goes in and out of his door, at the rate of about two a week. "Celebrated one last Sunday," he chirps cheerfully to the Alumnus "and ready for more!"

"Story of my life?" Dr. Bell repeats as the Alumni Editor interviews him for a homecoming message and asks for a sketch of his career. "All right, I'll give it to you red hot." And the following narrative was promptly forthcoming, as the genial Doctor sat in his great wheel chair and recalled events without a moment's hesitation.

"My name is John Richard Newton Bell, born January 25, 1846, in Puleski county, Virginia. After attending country school, I went to Masonic College at Wytheville, Va., and received my degree of A.B. immediately following the Civil War. During the war, like a good Virginian, I served in Co. I, 26th Virginia battalion, under the general command of Lee and Jackson. During the four years and one month of my service, I was in thirty-two battles, the most notable of which were Cold Harbor, Winchester, and Cedar Creek. I was slightly wounded twice. Mr. John Young, of Corvallis, shot at me; but destiny diverted his aim just far enough to spare me for the important task of bringing salvation to the heathen in his benighted western burg.

"Following the war and my graduation from college, I taught school for a number of years. Then I entered the church and began preaching on the fifth day of June, 1867. Within a year after I got religion I got married. My wife, Margaret Suzanne Kirk, ten months younger than I, Scotch like myself, (I am Scotch-Irish of the worst kind), has been to me everything that a good wife could be, under conditions often limited almost to penury by a salary of only four or five hundred dollars a year.

"I left Virginia on the westward trek in the '70's, stopping for three and a half years in Arkansas where my father inherited some blackjack land. But I soon found that I didn't like farming—on that kind of land, at least—so I came on to Oregon in 1874, arriving at Ashland on the tenth day of April. Here in Oregon I have lived ever since, traveling over every part of it, and over all the world, too, for that matter, from Jerusalem to Jericho, and from the Pyramids to Jump-Off-Joe. There I am on Mount Morian, (pointing to a large framed photograph on the wall) in July, 1911, with a group of Masons. And there I am at Cairo, Egypt, (pointing to another picture) with Professor Horner—on the Sphinx. That's the only time I ever saw Horner awed into silence, listening to the Sphinx! Traveling through Great Britain, France, Germany, and Italy, I found him loquacious enough, though he couldn't manage the German tongue as I could. I had my German polished by contact with Professor Bach, a capital companion.

"I have lived at Ashland, Baker, Independence, and Corvallis. At Roseburg I edited a newspaper, and in this connection joined with James Stewart, Bob Johnson, M. L. Pipes, and other newspaper men in organizing the Oregon State Editorial Association. In order to help keep the boys out of mischief I used to attend their annual conventions, even long after I had dropped newspaper work.

"As a master Mason, in one or another official capacity, I have visited practically every Masonic lodge in Oregon, from Ashland to Astoria, and from Joseph to Kirbyville, not in de luxe trains and limousines but on horseback and by stage in the days when there were no automobiles or automobile highways, and when Pullman cars were a curiosity. For over fifty years my fellow Masons have honored me by making me Grand Chaplain of Oregon, the longest period of service, I am told, that any Grand Chaplain has ever enjoyed.

"We brought up eight children, my wife and I, five of whom are still living: Lloyd C. Bell of Corvallis, Mrs. J. L. Rogers and Mrs. J. W. Richardson of Portland, Mrs. Oro B. Hedengren of Yaquina Bay, and Mrs. Solon Shedd of Palo Alto, Cal., wife of Professor Shedd of Stanford. There on the wall is our family group in the late nineties, (pointing to a picture and lingering over it lovingly, while tiny Mrs. Bell smiles modestly and goes noiselessly about her household duties.)"

And then the story of Dr. Bell comes to a gentle pause, though the good man seems never to weary of visiting and never to falter in his memory of days gone by. His Masonic lodge keeps him always aware of its regard for him, his church still seeks his counsel, and friends from everywhere drop in to wish him well. But the recurring Homecomings of the College on the Hill bring a new glow to his heart, and a new zest to his speech, as if the autumn splendor of his loved Corvallis hills had overflowed his kind and patient soul.

Dr. Bell as I knew him in the unconventional intimacy of walks and talks together is a rare type of a man. He combines the antithesis of sparkling wit and a profound grasp of philosophical distinctions. We enjoy an immense fellowship together. We enjoy laughter together and argument apart, not making any special effort to separate them. Under his rugged sound sense he has an abashed mellow-ness of human sympathy. In short, while we discourse upon ideals and ethics we smoke either a fragrant Havana or a Virginia cheroot depending upon the magnitude of the nearest grocery. Dr. Bell is a common man in its most beautiful sense and an uncommon man in a very extraordinary manner. He does not get acquainted with men—he seems to have passed through that preliminary stage in some other meeting place. His mind is of the invigorating and refreshing sort. I always chuckle to myself for a week after one of our accidental meetings. We never make dates, nor propose seances—we simply fall in together and, like two vagabonds, we eat and drink out of the same tomato can of experience. Long live Dr. Bell and all such kindred spirits!

Registration Nears 3500 Mark

Registration for the first term has reached 3418, a gain of 206 students over the enrollment of the same date last year. On the basis of these figures the registration for 1926-27 should pass the 3800 mark. Already applications are being received for the second term registration, Jan. 3.

Of the 3418 students, 1338 are students entering O. A. C. for the first time. From the preparatory school come 1127 of them and 211 are transfers, though some of these transfers are enrolled as freshmen. Of the 211 transfers, 119 of them are from outside the state of Oregon.

Freshmen Number 1302

The usual two to one proportion is maintained in the enrollment for men and women; 2289 are men, and 1129 are women. The commerce students take the lead in numbers, having 1049, while the engineers are next with 667. The largest percentage increase was noted in agriculture and forestry.

The enrollment by classes is as follows:

Sophomores	1470
Juniors	157
Seniors	386
Graduate students	29
Specials	74
	3418

The large number in the sophomore class is accounted for by the fact that a junior certificate is required before any student may register as a junior. This certificate is issued only when all requirements of the two undergraduate years have been met.

The school year started off with 1819 applications on hand at the office of the registrar. Of these 88 were rejected, 1338 came and are now at work, and 393 failed to reach Corvallis for one reason or another. Some because of financial difficulties, ill health, and so on. Some of these, doubtless, will register sometime during the school year.

Where They Transfer From

Twenty-five states, Alaska, China and the Philippines are represented in the transfers from 78 different institutions. These institutions are as follows: California—Chaffey Junior College, Chico State College, Fresno State College, Fullerton Junior College, Modesto Junior College, Pasadena Junior College Pomona College, Pomona Junior College, San Diego State Teachers College, San Jose Teachers College, Santa Ana Junior College, Santa Barbara State Teachers College, Santa Rosa Junior College, Stanford University, Taft Junior College, University of California; University of California (southern branch), University of Southern California. Colorado—Colorado State Teachers College, Western State College. Delaware—Lombard College. Idaho—Alvion State Normal School, College of Idaho, College of Wooster, Idaho Technical Institute, Lewiston State Normal School, Saint Margaret's School, University of Idaho. Illinois—Rosary College, Y. M. C. A. College of Chicago. Iowa—Iowa State College, Iowa Wesleyan. Kansas—University of Kansas. Maine—Bowdoin College. Massachusetts—Harvard University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Michigan—Michigan State College, University of Michigan. Missouri—University of Missouri. Minnesota—Carleton College. Montana—State Teachers College. Nebraska—Nebraska Central College, State Teachers College, University of Nebraska. Nevada—University of Nevada. New Mexico—New Mexico Military Institute. North Dakota—North Dakota Agricultural College. Ohio—National Normal University. Oklahoma—Southwestern State Normal

Oregon—Albany College, Columbia University, Eugene Bible School, Kimball School of Theology, Linfield College, Mount Angel College, North Pacific College, Oregon Normal School, Pacific University, Reed College, Saint Mary's College, University of Oregon, Willamette University. Pennsylvania—Drexel Institute, University of Pennsylvania. South Dakota—South Dakota State College. Utah—University of Utah, Utah Agricultural College. Washington—College of Puget Sound, Seattle Pacific College, State College of Washington, State Normal School of Bellingham, State Normal School of Cheney, University of Washington, Whitman College. Wisconsin—University of Wisconsin. Alaska—Alaska Agricultural College. China—Tsing Hua College. Philippines—University of the Philippines.

All transfers were admitted in good standing. The College steadfastly refuses to admit any student who is not eligible to continue work in the school from which he or she is transferring.

All freshmen are admitted with full collegiate standing since no form of conditional admission is provided for. Not only must the student be graduated from a high school but he must present 15 high school units properly distributed as to subject matter before he may be enrolled as a freshman at O. A. C.

Hetzel Called to Penn State

Dr. Ralph Dorn Hetzel, member of the O. A. C. faculty from 1908 to 1917, will take up his new duties as president of Pennsylvania State College on January first. Oregon State folk like to think of the fact that Dr. Hetzel started his educational career with them just after completion of his work at the University of Wisconsin law school in 1908. His versatile accomplishments advanced him from an instructor of public speaking and debate to organization and direction of the extension service in 1913. Leaving O. A. C. in 1917, with the warmest good wishes of his numerous friends and a parting gift of a gold watch from the group of deans, Dr. Hetzel went to the presidency of the New Hampshire College of Agriculture. So effective was Dr. Hetzel's leadership that in 1923, six years after his taking over the reins in New Hampshire, the legislature officially designated his college as the University of New Hampshire.

The extension staff of county workers consisted of two or three county agents when Dr. Hetzel organized the extension service in Oregon—today it has a staff of 26 county agents, three assistant county agents, two home demonstration agents, and seven club agents.

Y. M. and Y. W. New Secretaries

New heads are in charge of the Y. M. and Y. W. this year. As secretary of the Y. W. is Dorothy Pennell, a graduate of the University of Washington in 1923 and for the past two years secretary of Teachers' College, San Jose, Calif. Miss Pennell succeeds Katherine Seay who is enrolled for advanced study at Columbia University this year. None other than Fred Humphrey, O. A. C. grad of '23, is in charge of the Christian Association work in the "Y" Hut. Fred comes from a teaching position at Monmouth Normal. Assisting him is Rev. Monroe Everett. This joint arrangement is effective for the period of the leave of absence granted former "Y" Secretary, E. W. Warrington, who is studying at Columbia this year.

Champions at Show

O. A. C. may now claim the champion student dairy cattle judge and the best student butter judge in the United States, as a result of the high record made by the college teams which competed in the National Dairy Show in Detroit, Oct. 11 to 15. The records were made against 13 teams of 39 contestants in dairy products and 27 teams of 81 contestants in cattle judging.

Wilfred B. Cooper, senior, was high man in averages for all breeds. He is a member of the team that placed third in milk judging. Dale Winn, senior, a member of both teams, won the highest honors in butter judging. Aage Gribskov, senior, placed third in butter judging. The O. A. C. team scored first in this event.

Those making the trip were Dale Winn of Junction City, Frank Loughary of Monmouth, Lewis C. Brandt of Silverton, W. B. Cooper of Klamath Falls, Aage Gribskov of Junction City, and E. H. Ahlstrom of Lakeview. They were accompanied by Prof. D. V. Chappell on the trip which was the sixth consecutive year that O. A. C. has entered a team in the Show. The trip is financed largely by the Dairy Club through the sale of ice cream bars at the "honor booth" on the campus during the year and at the State Fair and other fairs near Corvallis. Any deficit is made up by the team members.

Corvallis Has New Apartment House

A new $40,000 apartment house, three-story Spanish type structure, is being built on the corner of Tenth and Jackson Sts., just north of the new Sigma Nu house. It will contain 21 units of two and three room apartments. A second section will be added later according to the present plans of H. E. Wilder, a Eugene contractor, who is building the apartment.

Gaskins at Pacific University

Three former O. A. C. faculty members are this year connected with the faculty of Pacific University at Forest Grove. Prof. and Mrs. W. F. Gaskins are new members of the music faculty there. Prof. Gaskins heads the conservatory of music as dean. Prof. G. I. Butterbaugh is head of the department of business administration and director of the business office of the university.

Ellison Publishes California History

Dr. Joseph Ellison of the history department, who spent the summer in the library of the University of California completing his history of early California, has found a publisher for his book "Mineral Lens of California." This book will appear early in the spring. Dr. Ellison also wrote another book "California and the Nation," which has been in circulation for three months.

Prof. Fitts is Campus Visitor

Prof. E. B. Fitts, former O. A. C. extension dairy specialist and present head of dairy extension at Penn State College, was a recent Corvallis and campus visitor. He was judge of dairy cattle at the State Fair. He is looking forward to working with his former associate, Ralph D. Hetzel, who is to assume the presidency of Penn State in the near future. At Penn State Prof. Fitts has under him a staff of six specialists and his part in the work of dairy stock improvement is well known. Mrs. Fitts had planned to accompany Prof. Fitts but was unable to at the last moment. Their daughter, Grace Fitts, '17, is teaching in Pennsylvania.

"Home to meet 'em, back to beat 'em."

Dean Ressler Mourned

Following close upon the heels of the California victory came the sad news of the death of Dean E. D. Ressler, head of vocational education at O. A. C. since 1909.

Sorrow and regret at his passing is felt generally over Oregon where he has been a prominent figure in educational circles since 1897 when he came to Oregon as superintendent of schools in Eugene.

Dean Ressler's death was a shock, though not wholly unexpected since his consultation with Mayo Bros. last summer. He died in a Seattle sanatorium and funeral services were conducted for him at the Episcopal church in Corvallis on Oct. 21.

Dean Ressler was born in Westerville, Ohio, Nov. 2, 1869, and was the son of Jacob Bruner and Emily Shupe Ressler. He was educated at Otterbein University, Westerville, receiving his B. A. degree in 1891, later taking masters work at Ohio State University. He entered the teaching profession in Ohio soon afterwards, continuing there five years, four of which were as head of the Westerville schools.

Chaplain W. S. Gilbert, venerable minister now in Astoria, but then chairman of the board of education at Eugene, persuaded Dean Ressler to come to Oregon in 1897. So successful was his work at Eugene that he was taken into the faculty of the University of Oregon where he served for a year, only to resign in order to accept the presidency of the Oregon State Normal at Monmouth. He spent seven strenuous years at the Normal and then opportunity to pioneer in vocational education work attracted Dean Ressler to O. A. C.

He was first made head of the department of industrial pedagogy which department he built up until it became the school of vocational education in 1918 and he was made its first dean.

Dean Ressler's dignified presence and kindly spirit of helpfulness will be sorely missed on the O. A. C. campus. Faculty, students and alumni mourn his passing.

Twenty-five Year History Off Press

The printed history of the Class of 1901 is off the press and is a 40 page booklet of much interesting information. It contains not only the 25 year histories of the members of the '01 class but a detailed resume of the Old Chapel exercises held in Old Administration last June at Reunion time. Copies of the booklet have been sent to the members and the faculty of the '01 Silver Jubilee.

The publication contains information on the Golden Jubilee which was held jointly with the '01 celebration and personality sketches of the members of the Class of '76.

Dark tan derbies are to be worn by senior men this year instead of the usual sombrero.

Alumni Show Far-reaching Service of O.A.C.

The truth of that College slogan "Science for Service" would carry deeper meaning to the State Fair visitor could he go behind the scenes of what he sees. He would realize then more fully the part which his own State College and her graduates play in the every day life of Oregon's people and, through them, in the development and prosperity of the great Northwest. In the groups of judges, in the educational exhibits, in the competitions, in the training of competitors, in the administrative offices, in fact, in all phases of the great display of Oregon's best wares held annually in its capitol city, Salem, is seen the scientific "Service" of O. A. C.

The State Fair held during the last week of September this year brought not only the usual large crowds but the usual rains. And, as usual, graduates and ex-students of O. A. C. were to be found in all phases of activity in the grounds.

Seen in Club Work

Outstanding in boys' and girls' club work of the state was Wm. D. "Bill" Kinder, '22, leader in Multnomah county. His boys and girls secured 15 scholarships for the two weeks summer school held on the campus, this through winning livestock judging contests in their own and in open class competition.

I. M. C. Anderson, '15, club leader of Clackamas county, had one of the outstanding club members, Roy Harms, who showed pigs, sheep and goats.

R. G. Fowler, '15, club leader of Jackson county, had in his group an outstanding girl in sewing, both last year and this.

Lane county boys and girls had their usual well-balanced exhibit planned under the direction of their leader, Arnold D. Collier, '25. Collier, by the way, is making it possible for one of his former club members, son of a widowed mother with a family of seven, to get a college education. Collier is paying the living expenses of this boy for the first year, has secured him a job for Saturdays, and gives him all possible encouragement in his pre-medic course at the University of Oregon.

J. Ralph Beck, '20, of Lincoln county made a good showing with his livestock judging team and livestock exhibits. His club specialty was angora goats. This was Beck's last showing with Lincoln clubbers. He has resigned to accept the position of county agent in Polk county, succeeding Paul Spillman, '07. Mrs. Beck will be remembered as Ruth Young, ex-'20.

J. Roland Parker, '22, who has been club leader in Douglas county for about six months only, had an all 'round exhibit, though he finds it difficult to compete with localities that have seasons so much more advanced than his.

The usual share of honors were carried off by Dave H. Kennedy, '21, club leader of Tillamook county. The county herd of Jerseys, all animals owned entirely by club members, won fourth place in the open class competition. Without doubt, this is the first time such an exhibit has been seen in the United States.

County Agents Produce

R. F. Wilbur, '23, assistant county agent of Umatilla, had among his clubbers an outstanding boy, Oscar Mickesillson, showing Duroc Jerseys. Oscar is a star quarterback on Hermiston's football team and his chief ambition is to come to O. A. C. and quarter for the Orange and Black.

H. B. Howells, '16, who is county agent as well as club leader in Josephine county, is aided by Sara Huntington, '23. Their proteges took many places, one girl standing particularly high in sewing. Howell's county agent booth featured grapes and poultry.

Warren Daigh, '22, as club leader of Wasco county, had three prize winning exhibits (pig, lamb and calf), while as county agent his Eastern Oregon wheat won half the prizes. He showed seven samples of wheat in the open class and won six places. His exhibit booth showed apples, peaches and grapes, dry land products of Eastern Oregon. One reason Warren was in such high spirits was because of the new arrival in his home. The laugh is on Warren, though, when he admits that he can't remember just when she arrived, whether three weeks or four weeks ago.

Helen Cowgill, '13, besides supervising the sewing and cooking demonstrations, judged the 14 canning teams of girl clubbers.

Much of the success of the livestock exhibits may be credited to L. J. "Doc" Allen, '14, assistant state club leader who has charge of the livestock work among the clubbers.

Reynolds Manages Horse Show

None other than Jay Reynolds, '10, had charge of what was said to be the most successful Oregon State Fair horse show yet held. This was Jay's third year as manager. Several O. A. C. military horses entered in the horse show placed well. One of the features of the night horse show was the "Algerian Fantasy," a costumed musical ride given by eight co-eds and four faculty women, among them Marjorie Stone, '26, and Natalie Reichart, ex-'21.

Cyrus Briggs, '21, county agent, had a most creditable booth showing Benton county products. Among other things was an apple weighing two and a half pounds and measuring 17½ inches in circumference.

Douglas Pine, '21, Tillamook county agent, had the usual prize winning exhibit of cheese, while Lyle Wilcox, '16, new county agent for Jackson, had a booth filled with many kinds of fruit.

Wright Superintends Lighting

The lighting for the entire stretch of fair grounds and buildings was under the supervision of Dave Wright, '08, who had working for him, Larry Flagg, '24, and William Merriott, '22. All are with the P. E. P. Co. of Salem.

Mark McCallister, '05, was found in the general admission booth, while Genevieve Frazier ('17) Anderson was assistant to Sec. Ella Wilson in the main office.

It is interesting to note that the prize ton litter of hogs entered in the open class was owned and exhibited by a club boy, Alex Cruickshank, a "rook" at O. A. C. this year. This litter was Poland China hogs weighing 3110 pounds, 200 days old.

Oliver K. Beals, '23, of Canby, won third place with his Jersey senior bull calf.

S. B. Hall, '09, won the blue ribbon for his young Holstein herd. He also secured several seconds and thirds on individual showings.

Lawrence Thomas, ex-'23, who has charge of the Mt. Angel Holstein herd, was given third place on a graded herd. His four year cow took first.

Robert H. Warren, ex-'21, and his wife (Jean Kelly, ex-'20) of Forest Grove, showed Holsteins also, as did H. L. Grimes, of Harrisburg.

The Hogg brothers, Glenn, '22, and Ronald, '23, of Salem, in keen Poland China hog competition rated two thirds and a fifth while with their Angora goats they won as many as 11 prizes.

Eugene Hubbard, ex-'24, showing Oxfordshire Down sheep made an excellent showing. He had a champion ewe, first on his flock and seven other placings. With his Leicesters he had a champion ram and champion ewe, first and third on his flock, and 15 other high ratings.

G. Harris Thompson, '02, and J. J. Thompson, '10, of Macleay, showed Shropshire sheep, rating first and third on pen of four lambs and first and fourth on flock, besides second on aged ram, second and third on ewe lamb and 10 other high placings.

J. J. Thompson was superintendent of the sheep division. He made a fine impression with his well organized plans for judging.

Hubbard is Sheep Judge

Chauncey Hubbard, '16, recently resigned as extension man with W. S. C. and now raising sheep for himself at Sunnyside, Wash., gave excellent satisfaction as a judge of long and fine wool sheep.

Frank Kehrli, '14, is with the Red Rock Dairy at Multnomah. Frank exhibited at the Fair for his company.

A. J. Bier, '00, and his wife of Corvallis, exhibited their foxes at the Fair this year.

H. M. King, MS, '25, head of animal husbandry at the University of British Columbia, attended the Salem Fair. He has been sent by his university on a tour of fairs and stock shows in the United States.

Guillermo H. "Bill" Cifre, '24, was on the grounds as a demonstrator with the International Harvester Co.

Ridenour Wins Art Prizes

In the art department, Elinor Ridenour, '26, made an excellent showing with her handiwork, winning five firsts and four seconds. An amateur oil portrait of C. W. Tidd, familiar to Corvallisites as the "egg man" placed second while her group of three (calf, boy and man) won the blue ribbon in clay modeling exhibits.

On the balcony of the exhibits building was found Mrs. Mark McCallister (Ada Finley, '03), demonstrating Maytag washing machines.

Just a few feet away was another booth where Harry D. Hobson, ex-'11, attracted much interest in his hand-made fishing rods and bows and arrows. His archery equipment is used at O. A. C. and at U. of O. His products are sent to all parts of the United States.

Another nearby booth bore the sign "Chambers and Chambers, home furnishings." This meant Joe, '15, and the exhibit included ranges and washing machines.

G. F. "Ted" Chambers, '16, was seen on the grounds as a representative of the Cascade Valley Packing Co.

Helen Holgate, '95, served at the information desk at the headquarters of the O. A. C. exhibit in the educational buildings.

For the first time the Institute for the Blind had an exhibit at the State Fair. This came about because Carle Abrams, '00, is now acting superintendent of that institution.

Ted Ball, '21, of Alpine, did well with his poultry—black Flemish giants.

The Congdon & Battles herd of Aberdeen Angus cattle won most of the prizes in that class. This herd is managed by J. L. Gibbons, '21. Gibbons was not at Salem this year but at Philadelphia where he made a handsome showing.

Pearcy Nursery Shows Nuts

The Pearcy Bros. Nursery was another exhibitor. Harry Pearcy, '16, was in charge of the booth displaying filberts and English walnuts.

James E. Fitzgerald, '22, was with the Buick people as a demonstrator and salesman.

Mrs. T. J. Blake (nee Carrie Brouillette, ex-'11) had a booth for Mrs. Humphreys Books, good stories for little folks. Mrs. Blake trains saleswomen.

In the newspaper end of the game was C. A. Logan, ex-'21, valley news man on the Capitol Journal with 50 correspondents under him, but doing special work at the Fair, and Fred Andrews of the Statesman.

All in all, it seemed that O. A. C. men and women were found contributing to all phases of activity in this giant educational display of Oregon's resources and accomplishments.

Thirty-ninth National Installed

Alpha Kappa chapter of Kappa Delta was installed on the campus Oct. 14, 15, and 16, when Beta Kappa became a national. The following week-end members of this newest O. A. C. sorority assisted in the installation of Kappa Delta on the University of Oregon campus.

Twenty-six alumnae returned for the initiation ceremonies which were conducted by the national chapterian from Memphis, Tenn., assisted by the president of Zeta province and members from the University of Montana and the University of Washington. Active members numbered 17 while the 12 pledges brought the total of Alpha Kappa chapter to 55 persons.

Kappa Delta, organized in 1897 in Virginia, is the thirty-ninth national social organization to come to the campus, and the fifteenth national sorority at O. A. C. After the initiation ceremonies, a formal installation banquet and dance were given. At the open house on Sunday, some 500 persons called.

Alumnae of Beta Kappa who returned were Wilma Brewer, '25, of Corvallis; Gladys Buchnum, '26, of Corvallis; Margaret Gould, '26, of Corvallis; Dorothy Riggs, '26, of Falls City; Jennie Clark, '26, of Hood River; Leta Orner, ex-'29, of Corvallis; Bonnie Scholes, ex-'29, of Woodburn; Irene Rauh, '25, of Portland; Edith Burke, ex-'27, of Portland; Grayce McClure Hayes, ex-'28, of Portland; Florence Green, ex-'24, of Portland; Sylvia Wood, '22, of Salem; Gladys Teale Armstrong, ex-'26, of Patterson, N. J.; Esther Brattain, '24, of Elma, Wash.; Elva Chapman, ex-'29, of Corvallis; Hazel Soden Griffin, ex-'24, of Boise, Idaho; Helen Junior Hollensted, '25, of Mosier; Lillian James, ex-'26, of Portland; Nina Maginni, '24, of Sheridan, Marjorie Morton of Portland; Louise Jackman Orner, '22, of Corvallis; Hazel Philippi, '25, of Salem; Edna Strout, '23, of Chemawa; Linda Volheye, ex-'28, of Portland; Rose Marie Lowell; and Gladys Peterson, faculty member.

Dr. Little Is Convo Speaker

Dr. Clarence Cook Little, president of the University of Michigan, was the main speaker at a recent Convocation, while seated on the platform were two other college presidents: Dr. Klamp of the University of Montana, and Dr. Upham of the University of Idaho. Dr. Little declared that there was nothing finer in the world than the youth of the present day colleges and said to them "Your love for your Alma Mater will be the purest thing in your life."

The part they have to play in the social, educational and religious changes which are sweeping the country surely but unnoticeably, was brought out by Dr. Little. "Scholarship," he said, "can no longer be sought after or looked for. It comes like happiness, as a by-product." Further "Faculties are built on mutual regard and loyalty, not by wielding the horsewhip of authority. One should not live by a whip or goad; it is wrong to try to break one's spirit or whip him into action; learn to rule by affection. Students meet your faculties more than half way."

Dr. Spaeth Lectures

Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth was the first Convocation speaker of the year. Dr. Spaeth is of the Princeton University faculty, and during the current year is exchange professor at Reed College.

Richardson Calls Boxers

James J. "Jimmie" Richardson, Olympic Club boxing commissioner of San Francisco, has issued a call to all amateur boxers in the Pacific states to send their entries. More than 100 are expected to participate in this Far Western Boxing Championships which are scheduled for Nov. 1 and 2.

Notes From the Colleges

Pharmacy

The Pharmacy Educational Fund continues to grow. Last year's loans amounted to $1345 and served 14 students. It is expected that at the beginning of the second term there will be enough on hand to finance all students asking for aid. The Loan Board has ruled that no loans will be made to students during their first term of schooling. It advises that a student not register unless he has at least half of his first year's expenses. Exceptions to this loan rule are made in the case of illness, but only upon personal investigation of the conditions, then. The average loan is $100.

As a direct result of the First Aid and health lectures conducted by the Pharmacy staff during the two weeks' summer session for the boys and girls last summer, Dean Ziefe has been asked to help in the revision of the Johnson First Aid Manual, a book used throughout the country. The contributors are men of national reputation.

This summer session course given these 500 youths consisted of illustrated lectures, made very practical. Models were made of the students and skeletons and pictures were used. Two nurses from the student Health Service were called in to aid in demonstrations. Lectures included such things as simple methods to stop bleeding, the treatment of sprains, breaks, the administering of medicine, use of the thermometer, how to make a travios to carry a heavy burden, how to make a litter to lift a person from a hole or crevasse. Red rubber tubes were used on the skeleton to indicate blood vessels, moss was used instead of cotton and red handkerchiefs or pieces of harness instead of bandages. The course was made as practical for the boys and girls as it was possible to do.

Dean Ziefe accompanied the State Board of Pharmacy to Seattle on Oct. 4, for the purpose of inspecting the State Pure Food and Drug laboratories maintained at the University of Washington.

George W. Sigurdson is conducting the work in sign card painting. Mr. Sigurdson has had extensive experience in advertising display and will inaugurate in his course many new features bearing on the display of drugs and druggist sundries.

Faculty and students of Pharmacy have accepted the invitation of Henry Frank, president of Blaumauer-Frank Drug Co., to make a trip of inspection through the firm's new building on Oct. 30. The party will leave Corvallis on a special train and after the trip of inspection luncheon will be served in the tea room maintained in the building. After lunch the party will attend the O. A. C.-Idaho game.

Music

With an enormous increase in enrollment the Conservatory of Music is forced to send students out into private houses to practice. Special permission has been obtained from the President's Office to open Administration Bldg. from seven to nine o'clock each evening in order that all the students may get in their practice hours. The piano department shows the biggest increase and Mrs. Petri and her two assistants are kept busy.

Plans for the joint Glee-Madrigal club concert are yet indefinite but it is hoped that they may present the Mikado and take it out on tour.

Among the outstanding voices in the Glee Club are Ted Roy of Pilot Rock, Arthur Lindblad of Portland, Guy Craig of Enterprise, Don O'Harris of Portland, Jimmie Jenks of Albany, and Walter Lund of Warren.

The girls of Madrigal Club who form the College Quartette are Evelyn Quine of Roseburg, Dorris Zimmerman of Portland, Mary Lanza of Portland, and Dorothy Hamilton of Upland, Calif.

Director Petri tried out 142 new voices competing for places in the Glee Club and Madrigal this fall. The curious thing about it is that exactly 71 of them were men and 71 were women. Excellent material was represented and the 32 voices selected for each of the musical groups are the cream of the try-outs.

A musical program under the direction of Prof. Petri is broadcast every Wednesday night from eight to nine o'clock. On Friday evenings from eight to a quarter after, Mrs. Petri gives a radio music lecture. In this she describes a portion of the composition, then plays excerpts, finally playing the entire selection. Many reports of interest in this service have been received.

Out of the 35 aspirants who tried out for the O. A. C. band this year, only 17 were chosen. Others will be added, undoubtedly, as the year progresses, since there are a few vacancies yet.

Mining

An interesting time spent at the combined meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy and the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, Oct. 13-16, leaves a good-natured smile on the face of Dean Newton. This convention, the eighth annual western one, was held at three different places—at Spokane, Wash., at Cranbrook, B. C., and at Kimberley, B. C. At the last mentioned are located the largest silver, lead and zinc mines in the world.

It is understood that Dean Newton "made a hit" at this conference. He responded in behalf of the visiting and participating sections and others at the first day's meeting. The next day at the noon lunch he was speaker for the Oregon section, and in the afternoon session discussed mining school problems. The fact is, he claims that most of the so-called problems are only "so-called." He apparently relieved the minds of a number of the delegates with his witty, humorous method of viewing both sides of the situation. Leastwise, he proved enough of a tonic to be invited to speak at the formal dinner on the last evening.

A thing of grave concern to the mining engineers of the country, according to Dean Newton, is the seeming dearth of young people in the mining business. This he got in discussions among various mine managers and operators from South America, the United States and Canada.

G. J. Young, internationally known editorial writer and mining engineer, was Dean Newton's travelling companion.

Seems to be renewed interest in the Miners Club. Arthur E. Wight of Lebanon is heading the organization this year.

R. V. Kettner, '24, has been transferred from Tooele, Ariz., to the position of chief chemist for the International Mining and Smelting Co., at Rico, Colo. Mrs. Kettner, nee Lola Shirley, is continuing work toward her degree at O. A. C. this fall.

Clifford Reed married a nurse in El Paso, Tex., last August and is now working at Santa Rita, Mex.

Home Economics

Twins are expected at the two home management houses as the Alumnus goes to press. A boy and a girl, five months old, have been secured through the state Child Welfare Agency, and are the subject of much speculation on the part of the girls taking the home management course this term. The twins will arrive about Oct. 23.

The nursery school project, an innovation in the regular curriculum, is going beautifully. Sixteen kiddies are enrolled and there is a waiting list. Next term the nutrition classes will cooperate in the nursery school work by planning the noon meal for these youngsters, while the clothing classes will consider proper clothing for them.

Gladys Ding, a Chinese girl, is the recipient of the International Friendship Scholarship of $500, established by the home economics club. Miss Ding, who has taught several years in the women's college at Foochow, China, has already studied in this country, receiving her MS. degree in biology at the University of Michigan five years ago. Miss Ding is devoting her time to a study of all phases of home economics, nutrition, child care and training, nursery school, clothing. She expects to return to Hwa Nan and develop a home economics course in the South China College there.

Dean Milam, herself, presents to her freshman students an "Introduction to Home Economics" giving them a broad conception of its scope and ideals. One of the finest things about the course is that she requires of each of them their written life history. She uses good psychology by telling them something of her life—her hopes, her training, her home, and so on, and finds that they return to her extraordinary documents of information. From these letters of confidence, seen only by herself and her secretary, she gains much valuable information about her girls and as a result has a better understanding of them and is able to advise them better. They tell her of their parents, their relations with their associates, their religion, the things which have influenced their lives.

"Trouble in this life is pretty evenly distributed," remarked Dean Milam and if the faculty members only knew what I have learned from many of these letters, they would feel more keenly their responsibility in being truly friends to students."

Dean Milam spoke recently at the Homemakers Institute in Klamath Falls. Irene Robinson Sabin, Dorothy Morrill Dadman, Mary McComb, Marcella Sandon Murray and Olive Wilson, were five alumnae in her audience. As she returned home she spent a week-end with Ruth Gill, '26, camping at the base of Mt. Shasta. Ruth is having a great time teaching in Anderson, Calif.

A. Grace Johnson, head of the household management department, has been invited to return to Columbia University and teach in the summer session.

Lillian Taylor, for a number of years household science teacher, is on a leave of absence while studying at Columbia University. She is living with Helen Kay, household arts teacher last year, who is also attending Columbia.

Mrs. Jessamine Williams, professor of foods and nutrition, spent the summer in the University of Wisconsin doing research work in nutrition.

Forestry

The logging engineers have changed their base of operation from Mary's Peak to a place west of the Peavy Arboretum where 10,000 acres will be cruised, mapped and then logging plans prepared. The project calls for a topographic map, relief map and complete location of a main line railroad and detailed plan of logging for the entire timber area. On such a project the students put in one full day each week for a year. The forestry seniors have just completed a similar 13,000 acre project on Mary's Peak-Alsea region.

Dean Peavy, since his return from his three and a half month's jaunt to Europe, has been kept fairly busy with answering calls for speeches at one place or another. He has just returned from a talk on "Forest Land Taxation" given to the Klamath Falls Chamber of Commerce.

An address before the Portland Chamber of Commerce on Oregon's need of European faith in a forest policy was reproduced in full in a September number of the Oregon Voter. In this speech Dean Peavy dealt with the problem of proper land use in the United States recommending that the state go into the forest business and pointing out that the adjustment of taxation of forest lands is fundamental to a permanent solution. Reforestation, he insisted, must be made profitable.

"What About Oregon Timber" is an article in the Oct. 26 issue of the Lumber News in which the author, Dean Peavy "discusses the proposed measure to insure a permanent lumber industry."

Gus W. Hult, '16, who accompanied the Dean to Europe last April and has been studying European forestry conditions since that time, will sail for the states about November 1. He has made a special study of forest management and forest taxation in Norway and Sweden.

George Luebke, '21, is now logging engineer for the Big Creek Logging Co., at Big Creek, Ore.

Sidney Jones, '26, has been elected to a teaching fellowship at Iowa State College. He is working toward an advanced degree in forest entomology.

Engineering

The Engineering faculty has charge of the state meeting of the Oregon branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers which meets in Portland on October 30. Members of the staff are taking the lead in discussing the "Elimination of Waste in Industry." Dean Covell has for his theme "The College trained man versus the untrained man as a leader in industry." Prof. Martin will discuss the economy resulting in the use of the new central heating plant at O. A. C. Prof. DuPriest chose the subject "Designer as a control of waste in industry," while Prof. Graf will consider "Improved economy in motor vehicle operation."

Several new pieces of apparatus have recently been added to the laboratory of mechanics and materials department. These include a Rockwell Hardness Tester, such as is used in automobile, typewriter or cash register factories to ascertain the hardness of the steel, brass or other materials used. The Mullen paper tester, an instrument which records the weight of paper stock by means of air pressure, is another piece of apparatus added. A Leeds & Northrup potentiality recorder for recording high temperatures of steel has been purchased, as have more attachments for the micro-metallograph used for examining the micro-structure of steel.

This laboratory equipment for metallography, by the way, is considered the best on the coast and as a result of work done in it by Prof. Graf he has been asked by McGraw-Hill Co. to write a textbook on metallography and pyrometry. He is at work on it now. The practical value of this micro-metallographic work is apparent when one realizes that concerns up and down the coast are constantly asking for tests of pipes, plates, and other machinery.

However, Prof. Graf warns one never to get the idea that any laboratory is completely equipped, much less an engineering lab. He pointed out that one of the biggest needs of the department right now for instructional work and for research is a moderate size testing machine. A place was prepared for this machine when the engineering laboratory was built several years ago but the machine has never arrived. What is wanted, and needed, is a 400,000 pound machine. The 150,000 pound one, the largest in the laboratory now, is not large enough to break a three day old cylinder of cement, he says. The University of Wisconsin has a million pound machine as well as a 600,000 pound one. Illinois has a 600,000 pound one and two 300,000 pound ones. And if plans materialize, the University of Washington will  Continued on page 46

Editorials

ANTICIPATING the usual fall returns in new subscriptions and renewals, several hundred extra copies of the October Alumnus were printed last month. Yet they were all out by the tenth of this month, called for by the new subscribers. It is gratifying to note the steady increase in the membership ranks, yet we will never be satisfied until the last, lone sheep is counted among those present. The "dead or alive" question card sent out recently has proved very effective as a reminder.

Membership dues (which include subscription to the Alumnus for a year) have been coming in at the rate of 15 or 20 a day for the last month. A number of "promissory" subscriptions have reached headquarters, also—from those who find it impossible to pay their dues just now but do not want to miss the monthly magazine with all its information on the Alma Mater and classmates.

The new style and dress of the Alumnus seems to have a special appeal this year; several faculty members have asked if they may subscribe for it (none were refused) that they might not only keep themselves up to date but might send the publication on to friends in the east.

That idea of passing on a good thing might be taken to heart by Beaver alumni. Sending a copy of the Alumnus to a classmate would prove a highly satisfactory way of sending a real newsy letter. And it is a most acceptable gift as evidenced by receipt of a number of orders as Christmas presents last year.

THAT the name and the fame of O. A. C. has gone far and wide, even into the most unexpected places, is evidenced by a letter written by a little Indian girl in Alaska. This letter was sent last summer to a person, who spent four months in Alaska several years ago, and during his stay made no mention of O. A. C. The letter from this little girl in Wrangell, Alaska, to her friend in Pendleton, reads:

"I am going back to school again in September. I am now promoted to the seventh grade, and in six years I am wishing to go to College. I hope I really do. And I want to be a teacher of either domestic art or domestic science. The college I want to go to is O. A. C. I suppose you know where that is. I am always planning to be a teacher of the two things I mentioned before."

That she is an earnest student is shown by the remainder of her note. "I passed all my tests this year. I have 96 in reading, 98 in arithmetic, 84 in writing, 100 in spelling, 99 in English, 100 in geography, 94 in hygiene, 100 in Bible, 86 in music, 88 in domestic art, 100 in domestic science, 98 in my conduct, and in effort I had 84."

The letter is signed "Emma Shakes."

We will look forward to greeting you, little Emma, when you reach the campus in 1932!

A number of copies of the Alumni Directory are yet available and may be purchased for the sum of 25 cents. This Directory, it will be recalled, is a 208-page publication, printed in November, 1925. It contains the names of 8253 graduates and former students, arranged alphabetically, by classes and geographically. A supplement to this Directory, to be sent out by January first, will contain information on the graduates of last June and the summer session. Orders for this Directory should be sent direct to the Alumni Office, 112 Commerce Hall, where they will be filled immediately.

ALUMNI OPINIONS

EDITOR'S NOTE—The column of "Alumni Opinions" has been opened in the Alumnus for the purpose of setting forth pertinent alumni comments and suggestions as they come to alumni headquarters. Heretofore, such letters have been printed under class notes or elsewhere and have escaped general notice. It is thought that from these communications, mutual understandings and mutual opinions may better be formed concerning various phases of college, alumni and student activities and policies. These letters do not necessarily represent the opinion of the Association or of the officers. The Editor reserves the right to withhold any communication which seems unsuitable.

A Couple of Ideas

From S. H. "Sid" Boddinhouse, '12, president of the Chicago Alumni Association, come two well-defined opinions, as follows:

"The alumni of the Chicago territory are looking forward to the football game with Marquette University at Milwaukee and promise a good sized delegation of rooters. We are at a loss to understand why the athletic department picked Marquette as it is a small school not well known and does not afford the right class of competition. I suggest the Chicago Alumni Association be consulted the next time a middlewestern game is contemplated. Why not play Chicago, Northwestern, or Illinois at Soldiers Field, Chicago, the municipal stadium holding 100,000? I am sure every seat would be sold for an inter-sectional contest. Such a contest would certainly put O. A. C. on the map.

"It occurs to me that it is about time to drop the misnomer of Oregon Agricultural College for its proper name, Oregon State College. While I am an agricultural graduate, I must sympathize with the engineers, commerce, forestry, home economics, and basic art and science students and graduates who must explain that O. A. C. is not an agricultural college. The present name is unfair to those graduates and for that reason the name should be changed immediately."

THE change in size of the Alumnus was adopted by the Alumni Board so as to conform to the standard size, and that we might cooperate with some 80 other alumni associations in the Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel project. The new dress, the cover of the magazine, was changed because we thought an improvement could be made, and because the College Editor and the Superintendent of the O. A. C. Press showed such interest and cooperation that we simply couldn't miss the opportunity of giving the Association members the very best thing obtainable.

The cover designs are made for us by Eleanor Ridenour, '26, and a different set of color plates is planned for each issue for use on a different colored cover.

Another innovation for this magazine is the use of advertising. With the coming of the national scheme of hotel advertising, has come the use of local advertising. It is interesting to note that the first "ad" secured is that of an alumnus, president of the Portland O. A. C. Club.

Many complimentary remarks on the October Alumnus have come to headquarters. This is gratifying for we aim to please. Suggestions for changes or additions are earnestly sought that we may serve the men and women of O. A. C. in the biggest and most helpful way. Particularly, are alumni urged to make use of the column of "Alumni Opinions" which has been established this year.

E. T. Reed, college editor, is the author of the poem "Mother Love" which appears in the September issue of the American Educational Digest.

Dr. Little Re Alumni Educational Relations

The coming of Dr. Clarence Cook Little to the campus recalls to mind some of his address before the convention of alumni secretaries held in Columbus, Ohio, last spring. In that talk he set forth the proper treatment of students to make of them good alumni. Excerpts of his address are given below:

"We must recognize that the process of becoming an alumnus is not a metamorphosis. The alumnus, so recently a poor segmented worm of a student, does not crawl into a pupal case of final examinations, and on some beautiful sunny, or muggy and rainy June morning, emerge from the pupal case a butterfly. He does crawl into the case. * * * But on that June morning he emerges just what he went in, a segmented worm.

"Further than that, several times before he has been through a little early practice season pupal cases. He did it when he came from high school to college, expecting to blossom forth with new colors, but he didn't. He was still the same type of animal.

"It is not then a metamorphosis. It is a transition. It is much more like a molt, a shedding of the skin and growing a little larger along the general lines of structure. Maybe he picks upon, between school and college, one or two accessory structures that help him intellectually. Maybe he picks up at graduation some maturity which helps his judgment.

"But by and large it is a transition, just a modifying of the outer skin, stepping forth a little larger, a little more capable, than he was before.

"If, then, we are dealing with transition, that means we can look to certain processes for guidance. The first of these is that your educational process of your potential alumnus must begin very early. It must begin in his freshman year. You must begin to foresee the graduation step in this early stage of his undergraduate experience, for several reasons.

"In the first place, it makes the transition more gradual and less abrupt. It does not shift his environment completely from that of the hothouse, where great attention is given to him, to a rather chill and unsympathetic out-of-door climate. It leads him to focus his mind and his interest on the fact, altogether too likely to be forgotten in the freshman and earlier years, that someday he is to be an alumnus. * * *

"He will be more likely to make an intelligent transition if, early in his college course, we devise means of calling to his attention his duties as an alumnus. It will also give an opportunity for development of individuality on the part of the student if, in the process of his training, we outline to him his potentialities as an alumnus. * * *

"The first practical step in preparing undergraduates is a budgeting of his support to the so-called outside activities. Instead of encouraging the undergraduates to support their outside activities by temporary, emotional drives, of which I have spoken, let us teach him the community fund idea—teach him annually to budget his support for his outside activities. The Christian associations, his contribution toward dramatics, his athletic tax, the various items of that type, should be met, each of them, but should be parts of general budgeting of his financial support of all outside activities. * * * (O. A. C. students do budget in this manner.)

"A second step is to take the student into the confidence of the college or university administration. At the very outset, we should bring him in direct contact with the administration of the college or university * * * by the actual offering of a one hour course in the aims and aspirations of the institution itself. I believe that we could do much to educate him during those four precious years in which we have him there in residence, to be an educated and intelligent alumnus. * * * If we cannot give the students one hour a week talk about what interests us and what should interest them, namely, the great institution of which they are a part, I think, that we had better consider letting someone come in who can do so.

"The third reform that I would suggest is the development of the arts phase of the literary college. * * * Those of us who have Colleges of Literature, Science, and the Arts, are faced with the very clear obligation to place the opportunity for instruction in the appreciation of art and for contact with creative personalities in art, on a very much higher and more universal plane to our undergraduates, than that at present offered in any institution in this country. * * *

"A fourth thing which we ought to face at once is a proper development of summer activities. Why do we turn our students out in the summer without any sense of responsibility for them whatever? Can there be anything possibly more inane than to take the best part of the year, with the longest days of opportunity in it, and let these undergraduates of ours go drifting out, only asking of them, like a little child in the elementary schools, that they come back when the school bell rings in the fall! * * * Many have to earn their way in the summer. What is more educational than earning your way? What could be made a greater asset to your university than using as a method by which we, as university administrators, can learn some of the problems with which our alumni are to be faced, these same summers spent in earning and in actually living, in practice, in contact with the outside world. * * *

"We need to develop then, a technique which will allow us to learn about them during the summers, to keep them interested in the university, to make them do something that contributes to their citizenship and value as potential alumni; all this to be worked on during the summer. * * *

"There is an endless number of these things that might be done. * * * In the first place you do not hunt for and find scholarship. Scholarship, if it is worthy of the name, is one of the great intangibles of life; to try to drive it like a material nail through a thick skull and into the brain is an unfriendly act and an indignity towards scholarship itself. * * * This new philosophy admits and hammers home the truth that education is eternal, that it is life, and therefore is not to be ended and is not to be confined in compartments * * * it is that prolongation of youth and its intelligent utilization which forms the only lasting and living contact between the alumni and alumnae whom you represent and the students whose education is the task of those who are administrators."

It's Some Job

Getting out a magazine is no picnic.
If we print jokes, folks say we are silly.
If we don't, they say we are too serious.
If we publish original matter, they say we lack variety.
If we publish things from other papers, we are too lazy to write.
If we stay on the job, we ought to be out rustling news.
If we are rustling news, we are not attending to business in our own department.
If we don't print contributions, we don't show proper appreciation.
Like as not some fellow will say we swiped this from another paper.
So we did.

Intercollegiate Athletics

Homecoming this year promises to be a truly gala affair, especially so from the athletic point of view. With a fighting group such as has not been seen at O. A. C. in many a year, if ever before, wearing the Orange and Black, prospects are certainly good for a leading place in the coast conference.

The boys know how to play football as well as fight. Didn't they demonstrated it against the University of California? Overcoming a 7 point handicap and playing in unaccustomed wilting heat they amassed 27 points. That was the worst beating California had taken in years and the first ever administered at Berkeley by the Beavers.

Not only is the team a fighting unit, but the student body, too, is a fighting force. The send-off of the team to California and the reception after the victory were inspiring and gratifying, well calculated to urge any team to superhuman efforts to justify such pride and faith as the cheering thousands who attended the rallies exhibited.

The Orange and Black team is tied with Washington and Southern California for first place in the coast conference. It has more points piled up than any major college team in the west, with a total of 166 and are second in United States to Syracuse university who has 176 points to her credit. All eyes are now turned to the O. A. C.-Southern California mix in Portland, November 11, expecting that game to decide the owner of the coast title.

About the only way to name the outstanding stars on the O. A. C. team is to name every man.

Some years ago when the Beavers journeyed to Berkeley to vie with the Golden Bears there were no rooters to uphold the Orange and Black. So the senior class of U. of C. volunteered to cheer for the Beavers. Nothing like that was necessary this year. Supporters for the Orange and Black were numerous.

Harry Tucker, who used to throw verbs and nouns at the boys in English classes at O. A. C., was in the dressing room with the glad hand for the team. Percy Locey, "Gap" Powell, Murius McFadden, Millard Scott, Mose Lyman, Johnny Sullivan, and a host of other old time Aggies were on hand—a good thousand strong. After the dazed Golden Bear was taken from the field the boys gathered at the Claremont and fought the game over.

Dad Butler came back from California with a smile all over his face. Dad has been working hard to keep the football men in condition and the way they stood up under the California heat and Golden Bear clawing certainly pleased him. Dad is convinced that Beaver claws are much more dangerous than Bear claws.

Applications have been pouring in for tickets for the Homecoming game. Carl Lodell, graduate manager has ordered a number of extra bleacher seats constructed to help take care of the many who are planning to watch the annual U. of O.-O. A. C. tilt.

The rook football team is doing itself proud. Corvallis high and Albany College have fallen before the charging babes. Linfield College was tied. Coaches Newman and Stetson are developing a bunch of huskies that will push the old timers on the Varsity next year for their berths.

The crowd that saw the Orange Tidal Wave roll over the Golden Bears was the largest that has ever witnessed an Oregon Aggie football machine in action.

Football may hold the center of the athletic stage at O. A. C. now but there are several other sports hovering in the wings waiting for a chance to strut their stuff. Chief among these is basketball. Bob Hager is drilling the boys to play his percentage basketball and judging from past performances under this system the Beavers will probably again be dangerous.

Some U. of O. Statistics

The thirty-fifth annual tilt with the Lemon Yellow eleven November 20 is considered one of the hard games of the season. No one can ever predict how this homecoming contest will end—no one has ever been able to decide the outcome until the final whistle has blown.

The season's scores of Oregon and O. A. C. follow:

		O. A. C.
Aggies	67	Multnomah	0
Aggies	49	Montana	0
Aggies	23	Gonzaga	6
Aggies	27	California	7
OREGON
Oregon	44	Willamette	0
Oregon	0	Pacific	0
Oregon	9	Washington	23
Oregon	12	Stanford	29

The previous records of the games played between O. A. C. and Oregon since 1894 are as follows:

Message to Coach Schissler: I, your old Mascot, rejoice in your succession of victories—over Multnomah, Montana, Gonzaga, California. I exult in the accumulated power of your three years of patient and scientific training. I congratulate you on the magnificent fighting spirit of your team, and in their unimpeachable sportsmanship. I expect you to win the pennant. As your Mascot, I've got my old telepathic machine in order, and I have my old hat ready for the river. When November 20 arrives, I will try to get out—if I am not in heaven. If I am, I hope St. Peter will let me root for you. Adios.

— J. R. N. BELL.

A number of the old men are missing from last year's team. Pinkerton, the lanky center "find" of last year, is not back. However Graap and Burr, two mainstays of last season, are in suits again.

"Slats" Gill, one of the cleverest men ever to handle the sphere for the Orange and Black, is helping coach the Varsity. He is well versed in Hager's style of play and should be a big asset in training the men. The squad will make a barnstorming trip through California during the Christmas holidays.

Cross country prospects look good this year. Many men from each men's organization are running each night in intra-mural competition. At the end of the intra-mural season the best runners will be selected to represent the college in Varsity cross country.

Intra-mural basketball has started. Keen rivalry and interest have been displayed in the games. Frequently men, who later make the varsity basketball team, are discovered in the intra-mural teams. Pinkerton of last season fame was one so found.

Something About Schissler

Paul J. Schissler, head coach of the Orange and Black, is gradually coming to the front as one of the country's leading football coaches judging from his record since he went into the coaching game back in 1913. In his 12 years of coaching the O. A. C. mentor has won 75 games, tied 1, and lost 18 for a win average of 81 per cent.

Coach Schissler spent his first year—1913—with Hastings high and won all eight games played, taking the west Nebraska championship. He continued with Hastings high and the following year won seven games and lost two. Both games lost were played while the coach happened to be in the hospital.

Doane College, of Crete, Nebraska, claimed Coach Schissler in 1915 and had a successful season. The following year the coach went to St. Viator College, Kankakee, Ill., and won the Little 19 championship and at the same time made a record for the highest score in an intercollegiate game. In 1917 he did not coach.

University of Nebraska had Coach Schissler for the following three years. The first year the coach was assistant varsity mentor and the next two years head freshman football coach and also head basketball and baseball coach. In 1921 he went to Lombard College, Galesburg, Ill., and won all games played that year averaging 49½ points a game to opponents 7/9. The next two years were also spent at Lombard with great success, the coach winning 14 out of 15 and tying one.

From Lombard Coach Schissler came direct to O. A. C. and in two years brought the Orange and Black from the cellar to a tie with Washington for the championship of the northern division of the Pacific coast conference.

About the U. S. C. Game

Plans for the U. S. C.-O. A. C. game in Portland Armistice Day, include a parade and rally led by the band before the game and a dance in Christensen Hall, 169 Eleventh street, after the game. The dance is called for 8:30 p.m. The floor accommodates 1000 couples. O.A.C. Colors will be used in the decorations and a college orchestra will play.

Lambda Chi Win Scholarship

The local chapter of Lambda Chi Alpha was awarded the national scholarship plaque for the year 1925-26. This plaque is awarded each year to promote better scholarship among members. Sixty-five chapters compete.

Eight Tennis Courts Out

The eight dirt tennis courts directly in front of the new women's building have been removed, leaving only the cement ones. These old courts will be replaced eventually with new ones to be built on the recreation fields planned to the rear of the women's building.

FOOTBALL SCHEDULE 1926

November 11—U. of Southern Calif.....at Portland
 November 20—Oregon.....at Corvallis
 November 25—Marquette.....at Milwaukee, Wis.

BEAVER CLUBS

Special Beaver Section at Marquette

Alumni in the middle west are advised that a special section is being reserved for them at the game to be played with Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wis., on November 25. O. A. C. alumni or friends may secure tickets through the manager of athletics at Marquette. The charge is $2 each, and money should accompany the order. The Chicago Club is planning on a good delegation for the 25th and the Madison alumni will be "present or accounted for" without a doubt.

Marguerite Bailey Wins Salem Prize

The Salem O. A. C. Club announces that its annual scholarship prize of $50 was awarded to Marguerite Bailey who is now enrolled as a student in home economics. She is living with Prof. and Mrs. F. O. McMillan, '12.

Officers of the Club for 1926-27 are also reported as follows: Lloyd Gregg, '22, president; Dave Wright, '08, vice president; Mrs. W. R. Dallas (nee Olive Behnke, '16), secretary; Byron Wright, '15, treasurer; and Mark McCallister, '05, sergeant at arms.

The Salem Club is one of the oldest, if not the oldest O. A. C. Club in existence, and it has always been the most active in promoting the welfare of the College and the Association with its regular monthly meetings and its special activities, such as the scholarship mentioned above.

Seattle Club Makes Plans for Caravan

The Seattle Club secretary, R. B. Doane, '08, who, by the way, is president of the Doane Drug Company, "the brightest spot on Broadway," sends this reassurance: "At our next monthly luncheon we hope to get enough to promise to attend the big game so that we can form an auto caravan and drive down during the night previous to the game on November 20."

Portland Club Has Enlarged Offices

The Portland O. A. C. Club is now housed with some other O. A. C. activities in a suite of five rooms on the third floor of the Oregon Building. It has, in addition, a new office secretary, Katherine Elmer, '24, replacing Mrs. J. S. Wieman (Alice Feike, '22).

The extension service of the College and the division of crop and livestock estimates of the U. S. Bureau of Economics jointly occupy a portion of this suite of rooms. F. C. Kent, who will be remembered as a former professor at O. A. C. for some 14 years, is agricultural statistician representing the government in this office.

A huge O. A. C. dance and get-together following the Idaho-O. A. C. game is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 30. It will be held at the Multnomah Hotel, the Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel Center of Portland. This affair has been arranged by the Portland O. A. C. Club with the cooperation of the student Greater O. A. C. Committee.

It is understood that the Portland Club recently had a meeting at which new board members were elected but the new officers and such like information has not yet reached headquarters. Another hearsay is that the scoreboard with telegraphic reports play by play of the California game shown in the Green Room of the Chamber of Commerce, was so exciting that the O. A. C. shouts were heard at least three blocks away in the downtown district.

Eastern Club Is Awake

"The first meeting of the Eastern O. A. C. Club will be held in New York City on November 7 after which you will receive a complete account of our activities and future plans." This from Joe A. Armstrong, vice-president.

"The Way You Look At It" is the way we look at it! We are awake and ready to set the pace for our locality.

"I note with much interest the Association's entrance into the Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel movement and will take the first opportunity to make myself personally known at the New York hotels designated.

"The October Alumnus was received just 15 minutes ago and is greatly appreciated. Have not had time to digest all the news but will do so within a day or two.

"Yours for Greater O. A. C. Alumni Work."

Kearns Visits Two Live Clubs

The Crater Lake O. A. C. Club proved itself right on the job on the occasion of a stop-over visit of W. A. "Bud" Kearns, director of physical education for men, who was on his way to Berkeley for the California-O. A. C. game. C. D. Thompson, '86, president of the Club met him and took him to the high school for a speech at the assembly, then to the Lions Club for another talk. That night, though it was a meeting called on short notice, some 35 or 40 Beavers gathered at the Guild Hall for an alumni dinner and an evening of visiting.

"The Club at Medford surely has lots of pep and has good meetings. The members are very much interested in their Alma Mater." He answered questions and gave them sidelights on the fall happenings on the campus for the greater part of the evening.

Arriving at Berkeley, there were evidences of Beavers in the city, some coming several hundred miles from south California. The O. A. C. loyal alums, hundreds strong, were gathered at the game, decked out in orange and black colors. "Al" Serpa, the student yell king, led the cheering for which there seemed plenty of opportunity. According to Director Kearns those spectacular runs had a lot more thrill to them than did the passes. And he was mighty proud of the Beaver aggregation of rooters, particularly when they stood and sang the O. A. C. "Alma Mater" in response to the "Hail Blue and Gold" of California, the while the Berkeley Hills echoed back the sound.

Mr. Kearns' one regret is that the team and the Corvallis visitors were unable to linger at the Golden Gate O. A. C. Club party which was held at the Hotel Claremont after the game. It was a dinner and a well-attended affair. A much happier bunch couldn't have been found, according to "Bud." "Mr. T. W. Espy, '01, president of the club, and his wife, were right on the job and left nothing undone to make the trip one of pleasure for us," said Mr. Kearns. "In fact, throughout the entire trip to meet an alumnus meant a quickening of the pulse and heart beat, the spirit of good fellowship was so great."

"Sid" Reserves Section for Club

"An O. A. C. 'Rooter Section' has been reserved in the Marquette Stadium," reads a letter sent out to the members by the Chicago Association secretary, Alton L. Peterson, '22, "Our worthy president, 'Sid' Boddinhouse, '12, ex-yell leader, has personally advanced the purchase price of 20 seats to reserve at least that many seats in one block in a very desirable part of the field. There ought to be at least that many that will plan on going. The director of athletics at Marquette says that the seats are going briskly."

"There won't be anything but a rollicking, frolicking good time for all—so lay your plans early and get your throat dusted for some real tall rooting for your Alma Mater on Thanksgiving day."

Ames Plans Homecoming Feed

As usual the Ames Beaver Club reports activity. The secretary, Ava B. Hessler, writes as follows: "Just a little note to let you and all our friends at O. A. C. know that the Ames Beaver Club is with you again.

"Our first meeting of the year was held Sept. 27 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Lantz, our former president. New officers elected for the coming year are: president, Dr. E. V. Abbott, '22; vice president, Merrill Good, '23; secretary-treasurer, Ava B. Hessler.

A number of changes have taken place in the past year. Seven new members were added at this first meeting which raised the total membership to 32. The members are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Merle T. Jenkins, '16; Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Wilkins (Eleanor Selover, '19); Mr. and Mrs. H. Gorsline, '26; Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Wight, '18; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Brandt (Lulu May, '18); Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Fulton (former teacher); Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Lantz, '16; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Smith, '02; Mr. and Mrs. Otto Elmer, '11; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Humfeld, '23; Mr. and Mrs. J. Moore; Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Hessler; Sam Merrill, '25; Merrill Good, '23; Dr. Boozer (former pastor in Corvallis); Dorothy Boozer; Mable Lantz, ex-'16; Ernest V. Abbott, '22; Arthur Alben, '26, and Burt Oderkirk, ex-'23.

"Our first visitors of the year were the O. A. C. dairy judging team. During the afternoon the boys viewed the campus and in the evening were entertained at our club banquet until train time. We hope for more visits of this kind.

"The next meeting of the Club will be our annual homecoming banquet. We are making arrangements to have the results of the game telegraphed to us after each half. Although we cannot attend the game in person, we will all be rooting for O. A. C. and waiting anxiously for the score."

Betzel Heads Deschutes Association

Comes good news from central Oregon. The Deschutes County O. A. C. Alumni Assn. has been formed. Hazel V. Williams, '24, the new secretary writes us about it as follows:

"The O. A. C. alumni of Bend held a meeting on October 6 at the home of Martha Bechen, '17. We selected the following officers for the coming year: president, Irwin Betzel, '15; vice president, Cal Smith, '22; secretary-treasurer, Hazel V. Williams, '24; publicity chairman, Marguerite Gleeson, '20.

"It was a real O. A. C. meeting, lots of pep, although we were only 15 strong. I know we have about 50 O. A. C. alums in and around Bend. As we are an association of the whole county will you please send me a complete list of all O. A. C. people in Deschutes county? As we are planning a reception for several of the O. A. C. instructors, including President and Mrs. Kerr, I would like to have the list as soon as possible so that all of us may be notified.

"We want to keep in touch with the general alumni association, also."

How About a Penn Club?

All the makings of a Pennsylvania O. A. C. Club seem to be available according to a recent letter received from Deskin O. Bergey, '26, EE. He writes, "There are 31 graduates of O. A. C. in the Pittsburgh district. Ford Ritner, '25; Carl Bjoerquist, '26; and I have very comfortable quarters at 719 Franklin Ave., Wilkesburg, Pa. Ritner is employed by the West Penn Power Co. as a junior protection engineer and Bjoerquist and I are taking the graduate course given by the Westinghouse Elec. & Mfg. Co. Ritner is working toward industrial application engineering and I toward railroad application engineering.

"Let me extend to O. S. C. wishes for a most successful school year."

Forensics and Dramatics

"Mr. Pimm Passes By" is the title of the comedy drama chosen by National Collegiate Players for their fall production. This three act play by A. A. Milne was produced and first staged in London, then in New York, exciting much favorable comment.

The play will be given on Dec. 4 and 5 and since the cast includes only seven characters, the cream of the campus actors will be used. Tryouts are the order of the day as the Alumnus goes to press.

The players have already been dated by the Woodburn O. A. C. Club to bring the play to their city next spring and several other engagements are being negotiated.

Miss Essie Pumphrey of the art department, who attended the Chicago Art Institute last summer, taking special work in stage design, is cooperating with Prof. Mitchell in his research studies in the dramatic laboratory.

The intramural debate program is in full swing. An all-campus league, including fraternity men and independents has been formed and in early December the preliminary contest will be held. Some 30 or 40 debates will take place in one night. The purpose of this work is to give training to as many students as possible. Just now Prof. Mitchell accomplishes his end by calling the whole group together and, with them, analyzing the organization for debates, and giving them information with regard to the technique of refutation. The intramural subject is "Resolved that a department of education should be established with a secretary in the President's cabinet."

Sixteen men are hard at work on the Varsity debate squad. The question adopted at the conference is "Resolved that foreign nations should immediately release governmental control in China, except that exercised over consulates and legations."

The proposed establishment of a Round Robin debate schedule this year is a departure in the field of debate. It has for its object using every Varsity man in intercollegiate competition though not all the contests will be called major debates. The plan calls for sending a team to every small college in the state, permitting the opposing team to decide the type of debate—whether one judge, three judges, or no decision.

A debate with the University of Utah and another with the University of Wyoming has been agreed upon for the Varsity women. The Utah contest will probably be staged before the student assembly in the Men's Gym as the U. of O.-O. A. C. debate by the men was last year. Twenty-two women tried out for the varsity debate squad.

Webb Heads Beaver Class of 1930

Ezra Webb of Salem was elected president of the 1930 Class this fall and already has his 1300 "rooks" and "rookesses" well started on their first year's work. Assisting him are Irene Blaesing, vice-president; Leta Kent, secretary; and Warren Coffeen, yell leader; all of Portland. Ransom Meinke of Detroit, Mich., was chosen treasurer.

Dean Stanley Coulter of the School of Science at Purdue University has been succeeded by Dr. Richard Bishop Moore of New York. Dr. Coulter was the main speaker at the O. A. C. Educational Exposition in 1925.

The mechanic's shop has been transformed into a service shop for the entire campus and moved into the Shops building. Mr. Harwood, the skilled mechanic in charge, is doing much difficult repair work to apparatus, saving delay and expense incurred in sending it away.

Commerce

A recent visitor on the campus was Emil E. Horning, '14, who is teaching commerce at Grant High School in Portland, and incidentally, serving as manager of student activities there. Not only is he conducting affairs in a business-like manner, teaching the students good business, but he is gradually getting into administrative work.

Of the 125 prospective graduates in Commerce for 1927, probably 35 of them will teach commercial subjects next year. The class in business education this fall numbers 22 on its rolls.

That these teachers are making good is brought out by a recent communication from Jessie McDonald, '24, to Dean Bexell. It reads, "We are interested in forming a Commercial Club (Junior) here at Raymond High School (Wash.). Have you any material that would help us in doing this? * * * We have a splendid commercial department here. The high school is new and this department well equipped. There are 18 on the faculty, three of us are from O. A. C. Agnes Von Lehe, '21, and Elizabeth Owens, '25, are the other two Beavers.

"A representative of the Gregg Publishing Co. was here a while ago, and she gave me glowing reports of O. A. C. commercial teachers all over the west. It made me feel very proud to think I was from such a splendid school."

The secretarial training department has established a policy of adding to its staff only persons who have obtained their master's degrees. Such degree holders are very scarce, it seems, since the field is a relatively new one in the educational world. Barbara Gamwell of the Universities of Washington and Idaho is the newest addition to that staff.

Even so far ahead as this the Commerce faculty is bending its efforts toward the state meeting of the Merchants Association which will convene in Corvallis on February 15 and 16, 1927. Prof. H. T. Vance, is secretary of the grocery section, LeRoy Breithaupt, '10, of the hardware section, J. H. Irwin of the furniture, Dean A. Ziefle of the drugs, and R. W. Coleman of general business. These folks are collecting data for their respective groups, while the general program is being perfected with such men on it as Marshall Dana, C. C. Chapman, Paul Harvey, and Pres. Kerr.

Dean and Mrs. W. E. Hotchkiss of the Stanford graduate school was entertained by the Commerce staff recently. Dean Hotchkiss spoke before the College Chamber of Commerce.

E. E. Bosworth, the head of the accounting division, retains his professional connection with the Portland concern, Lybrand, Ross Bros. and Montgomery, acting as its representative in the Willamette valley. This professional contact is of great value in that it broadens the teacher's experience and makes for contacts with the practical business world, all of which experiences and contacts are passed on to the students. Mr. Bosworth apparently is most successful in his aim of training his students to determine the essential truths of a business through the records, books and statements produced in that business by the accountant.

The Commerce museum has been moved to the College museum in the Library where a special section is devoted to it. An attendant is now classifying the contributions and developing it for actual use.

Basic Arts and Sciences

Prof. Fairbanks, of the art department, who is painting the second mural picture for the Class of 1925, has moved his canvas to the old gymnasium that he may have more room and better light. This painting will occupy a panel on the west wall of the Library when finished.

The herbarium established by the College long years ago, maintained and added to by Professors Benedict, Craig, Lake, Hammond and Gilkey, is a most interesting branch of the botany and plant pathology department. This herbarium now contains some 25,000 specimens. Dr. Helen Gilkey, '07, whose artistic ability in illustrating and her systematic botany studies is recognized throughout the United States, is the herbarium curator.

About 1000 plant specimens from all over the state are identified by the herbarium each year, and about 500 letters written annually about plants of all sorts. For instance, in one week in September it handled requests for information on weed bulletins, trees, drug plants, mints of commercial value, sale of ferns and mosses, Oregon grasses. Plans are under way to publish a bulletin of information on plants of economic importance. Dr. Gilkey has already prepared the illustrated section on noxious weeds and Prof. Hyslop is preparing the manuscript telling of weed control.

Curator Gilkey has had prepared 200 weed sets, 20 specimens to a set, for distribution to the schools in the state of Oregon.

For a while the preparation of pollen extract to be used as a cure for hay fever, was carried on by the herbarium. It was discontinued after the work passed from the experimental stage to the use of such extract commercially. Curator Gilkey makes some trips into various sections of the state to study vegetation conditions, especially with reference to plants of economic value.

Though the O. A. C. herbarium is not the largest in the west, it is so carefully arranged and organized and properly cataloged that scientific workers and government experts delight in using it, preferring it to others which are larger. The plan is to increase the herbarium until every species of economic plant in Oregon is represented and its distribution in the state shown, including the native plants of large forage value, the poisonous ones, those used for drugs, resins, extracts, and so on.

Dean Smith has already started in on formulating his plans for the 1927 summer session.

Dr. Gilbert is now giving the general chemistry lectures as well as the lectures in physical chemistry.

Prof. F. C. Kent of the mathematics department has been appointed a member of the state textbook commission of Oregon to succeed R. R. Turner, state superintendent of public instruction.

Dr. Nathan Fasten, professor of Zoology, has an article published in the Oregon Sportsman (July), entitled "Fish Lice on Trout." The material used is the result of many years of study in Wisconsin, Washington and Oregon.

Mrs. C. E. Ingalls, formerly on the English staff, is in New York this winter taking advanced study at Columbia University.

Dr. H. C. Oddy, a graduate of McMaster University and a former teacher at the University of Florida, has been appointed assistant professor in chemistry, taking the place of Prof. A. Schwartz, who is attending Columbia University this year.

C. C. Robinson, for the past three years instructor at Kansas University, has been appointed instructor in general chemistry.

Agriculture

Said Dean A. B. Cordley: "The exhibit of the dairy and veterinary department at the State Fair this year was of more value from the standpoint of the development of dairying than any other exhibit this institution has ever made." He referred to the dairy exhibit which was housed in a separate building and attempted to show the need and use of minerals for dairy cows, and health studies made among breeding animals. It was an exhibit with very specific recommendations, which, if followed, will save to the dairymen of the state thousands of dollars heretofore spent in purchasing high priced and complicated mineral mixtures for feeding.

Professors Brandt, Simms, Donham and Shaw found themselves busy during the entire Fair week answering the numerous questions of some 500 interested dairymen whom it is estimated visited the booth.

The exhibit attempted to picture the fact that with the exception of common salt and iodine, there are only two minerals that may be deficient in the cow's ration. These are calcium and phosphorus. It showed that by the addition of green feed to the ration of the cow, greater use is made by her of the minerals in the ordinary ration, and that by the addition of bone meal to the ration, any mineral shortage suffered by the average cow is corrected. It sought to inform the dairyman on methods of spread, diagnosis, control and eradication of infectious abortion.

This exhibit was the result of experimental work which has been carried on for a number of years." It is the first work on mineral metabolism," declares Prof. Brandt "that has been done west of the Rocky Mountains. Its importance lies in the fact that as a result of this and other work in progress, the findings can tie up definitely with research done elsewhere in the country."

The 33½ increase noted in the freshman class in the College of Agriculture is a source of much satisfaction to the Ag staff members, particularly because it is an interesting barometer of the agricultural trend.

Campus visitors during the past month included three men, heads of animal husbandry departments in the middle west. They were Prof. E. A. Trowbridge of the University of Missouri, Prof. H. J. Gramlich of the University of Nebraska, and Prof. Morton of Colorado Agricultural College. All were much interested in the O. A. C. animal husbandry department.

Another noted visitor at the College was Dr. Richard T. Ely, political economist in charge of the national bureau of research in land economics and public utilities at Evanston, Ill. While on the campus he gave an address entitled "Land Value Trends" and later discussed the research work he is directing.

Prof. W. S. Brown served as an official judge of the fruit exhibit at the Utah State Fair held at Salt Lake City last month. He spent some time with Tracy Abell, '17, MS, who is head of the department of horticulture at Utah Agricultural College at Logan.

Miss Joe J. Biesman-Simon of Cape Town, South Africa, is a new student registered in animal husbandry and photography.

A new Barred Rock egg-laying record for the United States was established by an O. A. C. hen last month when she finished a year's trapnest record with a score of 325 eggs.

W. L. Powers, professor of soils, has been invited to give a paper before the First International Congress of Soil Science to be held at Washington, D. C., next June.

Prof. and Mrs. C. L. Long announce the arrival of a son, the third child, born on September 17. Mr. Long is a member of the horticultural staff.

Birth of a baby boy to Mr. and Mrs. Theodore P. Dykstra on October 15 is reported also. Dykstra, '23, is connected with the department of plant pathology.

O. A. C. Makes Ready for Alumni

O. A. C. makes ready to welcome its alumni! The college band will meet the special train on Saturday, Nov. 20. Official cars will meet all trains and carry "alums" to their destinations. These cars, labelled with an orange and black banner, will also be at their service anywhere about the campus and may be hailed for transportation.

This Homecoming is expected to be bigger than ever before. As many houses may be crowded the Hotel Benton is making plans to care for this emergency.

Olympics Include Many Events

Midst the shouts of victory and the shrieks of defiance, two ancient enemies meet. Dating as far back as old Olympia herself, they have pitted themselves against each other. Probably one descends from Troy and the other refers to Greece as home. However, that is neither here nor there, it is the actual fracas in which interest centers.

Homecoming will find them again drawn on the battle field to test their wares. In other words, the annual sophomore-rook Olympics will be held at 9:00 a.m., the morning of the big Oregon game.

The "curtain-raiser" will be a bag rush, which means two hours of action crammed into five minutes. Round two is the "tie-up." Two opposing men with one rope will endeavor to do everything but hang one another to a nearby oak.

The "semi-wind-up" calls for an event absolutely new to O. A. C. This is the famous jousting match. One stout lad plays horse while another not so well fed straddles his neck and wields a 10-foot dauber smeared with green paint. Pleasant, to say the least.

The main event is a real "top-notch." A large air-filled ball, fully 10 feet in diameter is given to the two classes to play with for about 15 minutes. Those who haven't seen this argument, remain uneducated. Those who have seen it, always come back. It is positively blood curdling and guaranteed to take a year's growth out of anyone.

"Grads" are urged to be on the campus by 9:00 a.m., Nov. 20, and see one of the best events of Homecoming.

Campus to Have Gay Dress

The three arches for Homecoming will be of Egyptian design. One arch will be at the Monroe street entrance to the campus. Another will be at the crest of Jefferson street hill near Waldo hall. The third will form the main entrance at the Lady of the Fountain.

Cleopatra needles is the historic name given the tall Egyptian columns to be used for the arches, two taller and two shorter being used to form each arch. A homecoming sign picturing a handclasp will be suspended over the street between the two taller columns. The taller and shorter columns will be joined by arches over the sidewalks. Floodlights at the base of the columns will illuminate the columns and the sign.

Alumni headquarters at the Men's Gym. will be decorated with orange and black bunting.

At the registration headquarters will be found programs of the week-end, O. A. C. Song Books, Alumni Directories, and other alumni publications, together with general information for the aid of the Homecomers.

Miss Lewis in East

Miss Lucy M. Lewis, college librarian, is in Atlantic City attending the fiftieth annual American Library Association conference. Miss Lewis is chairman of the agricultural library section of the association. She plans to visit libraries in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Washington, D. C., and at the Universities of Illinois and Minnesota.

Among the Alumni

Vital Statistics

BIRTHS

To Mr. and Mrs. Paul Amort, a daughter, Geraldine, on September 28, at the Eugene hospital. Mr. Amort, '16, CE, is living at Roseburg.

To Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Hobson, a daughter, Mary Catharine, on Oct. 7, at Tahuya, Wash. Mrs. Hobson will be remembered as Martha Wikberg, '22, HE.

To Mr. and Mrs. W. Elmer Ramsey, a daughter, Juliana Mary, on Sept. 26, at the Portland sanitarium. Mrs. Ramsey was formerly Lucile Resing, '21, P. Mr. Ramsey, '22, ME, is a patent engineer with offices in the Platt Bldg., Portland.

To Lieut. and Mrs. W. C. Scott, a daughter, Mary Patricia, in August, at Fort McDowell, Calif. Mrs. Scott will be remembered as Vera Funk, '20, HE.

To Mr. and Mrs. Cedric W. Clark, a daughter, on October 10, at Corvallis. Mr. Clark, '20, C, is an attorney.

To Mr. and Mrs. William J. O'Neil, a daughter, Mary Patricia, on May 16, at Big Bay, Michigan. Mr. O'Neil, '17, LE, is now working for the Sever Anderson Logging Co., at Alvin, Forest county, Wisconsin.

To Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kroner, a son, on August 11, at 180 Morris St., Portland. Mr. Kroner, '15, ME, is employed by the Portland Gas and Coke Co.

To Mr. and Mrs. Warren Daigh, a daughter, Marilyn, on August 24 at The Dalles. Mrs. Daigh was formerly Erma Readen, '22, Warren, also a '22 grad, is county agent of Wasco county.

To Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Woodhead, a son, Whitney Fred, on August 24, at Long Beach, Calif. Mrs. Woodhead was formerly Ruth Whitney, '25, HE. Mr. Woodhead is a former member of the class of '27.

To Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Olson, a daughter, Elenor Ruth, on Jan. 1, 1926. The Olsons now live at 520 D St., San Rafael, Calif. Mrs. Olson will be remembered as Natalie Burlingame, '22, HE. S. G. is a '22 grad in engineering.

To Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Hutchinson, a daughter, Evelyn Rose, on May 21. Mr. Hutchinson, '24, A, has been connected with the Harney Branch Experiment station at Burns until recently when he and his family went to Forsyth, Mont., to be with his father. His wife will be remembered as Orpha Mary Jane Combs, ex-'24, C.

To Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Schoenfeldt, a daughter, on October 6, at 450 E. 9th St., Portland. The mother was formerly Dorothy A. Dunne, ex-'28, HE. Mr. Schoenfeldt is a '24 graduate in commerce.

To Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur G. Biederman, twins, a son and a daughter, on October 5, at Tigard. Mrs. Biederman was Lillian Garvin, ex-'25, P, and Mr. Biederman, a '23 graduate in agriculture.

To Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Harvey Miller, a son, on September 15 at Heppner. Mr. Miller is a '17 graduate in mining.

To Mr. and Mrs. Dewalt S. Bonebrake, a daughter, Martha Virginia, on October 10, at Tootle, Utah. For the past year Mr. Bonebrake has been employed by the International Smelting company.

DEATHS

Warren Thompson, ex-'28, A, who was obliged to give up his studies last year because of ill health, died on September 4, in a Portland hospital.

Willis Arthur Bailey, '17, A, died at Watsonville, Calif., on July 22, according to word sent in by one of his friends.

Alice Ann Petersen, ex-'22, C, wife of E. M. Sorensen, on June 19, at Chehalis, Washington. Mrs. Sorensen was married in October, 1924.

Levi Stephen Bozorth, ex-'17, A, died on January 28, 1926, at Lethbridge, Canada, according to a letter received from his family.

Victor Joseph Wohler, '23, ME, died at Tacoma, Wash., recently following an illness of eight days. He had been employed in government surveying work.

Robert J. Wilson, '86, of New York City, died on October 16. For a number of years Dr. Wilson was head of the bureau of hospitals in New York City, though he had recently retired because of his failing health. He was president of the Eastern O. A. C. Club in New York at the time of his death. His passing is much mourned.

WEDDINGS

Gladys Louise Whipple, '16, HE, and Delmar Goode, associate college editor of O. A. C., on Sept. 18, at the home of the bride's sister and brother in Portland. Valborg Gribbskov, '22, HE, and L. R. Evans, during the summer, at Mosier. The couple will make their home at Mosier. Mrs. Evans has been teaching home economics at Mosier since 1924.

Hazel Fern Lambert, '23, HE, and Clell Grandison Brown, '23, ME, recently. They may be reached at 1802 N. Calvert St., Baltimore, Md.

Guillermo Cifre, '24, A, and Anita K. Davis, ex-'23, C, on October 15, at the First Christian Church of Portland. The couple will sail from New York City on the Leviathan for France and Spain and will travel through southwestern Europe going finally to Mr. Cifre's home in Mallorca, Spain. They expect to return to Portland just before the holidays and will make their home in that city. Mr. Cifre is with the International Harvester Co.

Harold H. McAndie, ex-'25, P, and Katherine H. Sergeant of the University of Oregon, recently. The couple will live in Portland.

Madge Shearer, ex-'26, C, and Taylor Poore, ex-'25, C, on October 17, at Corvallis. Madge has been employed in the O. A. C. Clerical Exchange until recently. Mr. Poore is a commercial artist with the Crossley-Failing Adv. Agency, Failing Bldg., Portland.

Bernice E. Lyman, '25, HE, and David Andrew Pfeiffer, '25, A, recently. Mr. and Mrs. Pfeiffer are both teaching in the high school at Sonoma, Calif.

Mildred Armbruster, ex-'29, Opt., and John W. Smith, ex-'23, C, during the summer at Los Angeles. The couple will make their home in Corvallis.

Mildred Irene Lacey, '24, HE, and G. W. Roley, recently. They may be reached at Linnton, Ore.

Ida Burnett, now Mrs. Ida B. Callahan, associate professor of English, has resumed her duties again this fall. Mrs. Callahan was given a leave of absence last February due to her ill health.

1886

Robert J. Wilson, of New York City, has been seriously ill recently. His sister-in-law, Mrs. J. O. Wilson of Corvallis, has gone to be with him during the winter. Along about the holiday season Mrs. Wilson hopes to spend some time with her son, John B. "Sap," '17, who is a lieutenant stationed at Quantico, Va. Lieut. Wilson's wife will be remembered as Beatrice Lamoreux, ex-'17.*

1901

Edwin B. Aldrich, A, paid a visit to the campus last month in his capacity of regent of the College. Mr. Aldrich is editor of the East Oregonian, Pendleton.

Leslie Beaty, A, sends in his dues to the Association and also gives us this news:

perial Valley Experiment Station to accept the position of agriculturist of the Tonopah & Tidewater Railroad and the Pacific Coast Borax Co., leaving a very warm place to come here to the hottest place in the United States.

"I have charge of the farm operations of this company both in California and Nevada. One of our farms, the Furnace Creek Ranch, is below sea level 175 feet and the vineyards are in Nevada at 2300 feet elevation. Most of my time is spent on these two places and on the road between them. They are just 50 miles apart over a desert trail. We pass over the Funeral Range of mountains to get from one to the other.

"The Pacific Coast Borax Co. is the original 20 Mule Team Borax Co."

Claude C. Cate, A, is tract manager in an alligator pear district of California. He may be reached in care of Hall Real Estate Co., Alhambra, Calif.

Percy A. Cupper, ME, former state engineer and now consulting engineer of Salem, was the speaker of the hour at a recent Kiwanis Club meeting in Corvallis. His topic was "Business Methods."

Mr. Cupper's daughter, Mary, is enrolled as a freshman at O. A. C. this fall.

Change of Address

Chester L. Proebstel, to 405 W. Fourth St., Reno, Nev.

Ralph C. Shepard, A, now farming near Salem, brought his son, Maurice, to enroll as a freshman in college this fall. He and his wife spent several days in Corvallis visiting old friends. His brother, Clay, it will be remembered, is the man for whom Shepard Hall was named.

Mark D. McCallister, ME, and his wife, nee Ada Finley, '03, DSA, were over from Salem for the Gonzaga-O. A. C. game. Others here for that event were Fred Walters, '00, of Eugene; J. Donald Meyers, ex-'15, of La Grande; Albert "Duke" Hodler, ex-'23, C, of Portland; Joe Pardee, '22, Lloyd Carter, ex-'20, and E. E. Loughray, '21, of Portland; Ellsworth Ricketts, '19, of Salem, and Flavius West, '22, of Ilwaco, Wash.

Change of Address

Lura Flett, now Mrs. Orval Gilstrap, 1284 Fremont St., Portland, Ore.

1906

Robert Combs Jackson, A, is back at his Alma Mater studying for his master's degree in the agricultural economics department. Mr. Jackson has been assistant chief of agricultural training in the U. S. Veterans Bureau with headquarters at Cincinnati, Ohio, and later of Jacksonville, Ky. Mrs. Jackson will be remembered as Mabel Houck, ex-'12.

1907

Change of Address

James B. Jones, 316 E. 21st St., Portland, Ore.

1908

Gustave B. Abraham, ex-'08, C, a grain dealer of Amity, was called to Corvallis recently because of the death of his father, a retired Benton county farmer. Mrs. Abraham was formerly Zoe Miller, '11, P.

Edward Sprague Thayer, EE, and wife, nee Helen Corrinna Gardner, '20, HE, and little son are living in Salem where Mr. Thayer is employed by the state highway department.

Change of Address

Hugh E. Brady, lawyer, La Grande, Ore.

1909

Sam Dolan, M, one of the best-liked football referees on the entire coast, was chosen vice-president of the Oregon state football officials and coaches association at their recent meeting in Portland. E. Plowden Stott of Portland was named president and George Bertz, Journal sports editor, secretary-treasurer.

This association was formed to secure better officials, and a more uniform style of officiating. Its members are expected to "know their stuff" and are much like graduates of a football school.

Bertha Leona Cramer, C, now Mrs. Cecil Brown of North Bend, was a recent Corvallis visitor together with her husband and children.

Sinclair A. Wilson, F, stopped in Corvallis recently on his way to California with his mother. "Weary," though president of the Bank of Linnton (Ore.) and an active member of many Portland civic enterprises, is yet unable to disguise his real character from his acquaintances. This is evidenced by his fortune card obtained in the slot at Liggett's Drug Store, which reads: "Fond of ease and comfort you dislike working more than necessary. Outgrow this. Your abilities are too good to be wasted." Incidentally, the card recorded his weight as 194 pounds.

Change of Address

Angie C. Kyle, now Mrs. M. G. Howard, 90 W. 18th Ave., Eugene, Ore.

Allan Burdick, ME, and his wife, paid a long overdue visit to Corvallis last month, coming all the way from Hilo, T. H., where he is employed with the public works department.

Change of Address

Sidney H. Boddinhouse, to 1425 S. Racine Ave., Chicago, Ill.

1913

W. Herschel Ellenburg, F, state traffic officer of the Corvallis district, has been moved to the Oregon City sector.

John R. Magness, A, who spent the summer in government work in California, passed through Corvallis as he returned to Washington, D. C. Mr. Magness' work is in the plant industry department of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Lottie Milam, DSA, now Mrs. E. V. Vaughn, is the enterprising head of the Corvallis Branch of the American Association of University Women for 1926-27. This Branch had the distinction of having three out of the seven northwest AAUW members to attend the international meeting at Amsterdam last summer. These three members were Mrs. Gertrude E. McElfresh (Gertrude Ewing, '02), Mrs. Harry Buxton (Lucile Roberts, '05), and Edith C. Kuney of the language department.

Ralph M. Rutledge, A, has been appointed associate professor in economics at Utah Agricultural College, Logan, Utah.

George "Ad" Dewey, A, coach last year at the Multnomah Club of Portland, has now assumed the coaching duties of the Hillyard Chemical Company's basketball quintet at St. Joseph, Mo. The Hillyard aggregation won the national A. A. U. championship at Kansas City in 1925 and two years ago were runners-up at the same tournament. Dewey expects to bring his team to the Pacific coast on an extended tour around the Christmas holidays, having arranged games with O. A. C., Oregon, Spokane Athletic Club, W. S. C., and University of Idaho. Mrs. Dewey will be remembered as Evelyn Carlson, '15, C.

Helen Best Anderson, HE, who is dietitian with the Methodist Hospital of Southern California, 2826 S. Hope St., Los Angeles, traveled to Atlantic City in September to attend the Hospital Dietetic Council and the American Dietetic Association meetings. She reports increasing interest in her work.

Henry Gilbert, A, a farmer near Salem, was on the campus last month making inquiry about advanced courses of study which he might take at O. A. C.

Louis G. Gentner, A, was another campus visitor recently. He and his wife were here en route to Michigan State College where Gentner is doing research work in entomology. Their address is 225 Bailey St.

William Halbert Stewart, ex-'15, F, is in La Grande, working with the state highway department.

Changes of Address

Bertha M. Hendrick, to Kingston, Mich.
Byron C. Wright, 1675 Fir St., Salem, Ore.
Robert G. Webb, 1816 Park Ave., Raymond, Wash.

1916

Earl J. "Steve" Schuster, P, has recently located in Tillamook with his wife, formerly Emily Martin, '20, and son. Dr. Schuster, after graduating from the U. of O. Medical School in Portland, has practiced in Union for a number of years.

Edward C. Allworth, C, retired, captain of the U. S. army, as well as worthy secretary of the O. A. C. Alumni Association, has been selected, with Elwyn K. Weston, '23, A, to direct the activities of the Legion Junior Guard of Corvallis.

Frank L. Ballard, A, state county agent leader in Oregon, recently visited the middle west in the interests of filling certain positions on his staff. His trip took him to Minnesota, Kansas and Montana. Incidentally, he visited with Claude C. Calkins, '17, A, manager of the Calkins Machine Co. Mr. Calkins invented a wheat seed treating machine for treating wheat seed with copper carbonate to kill smut. So great is the demand for this product that he cannot fill the demand. He is manufacturing them in Spokane, Wash., and Hutchinson, Kan.

Walter H. Gerke, A, has been placed in charge of the construction on the new golf course proposed for northeast Portland, Peninsula district. Mr. Gerke, who is a landscape architect, has been connected with the development of many of Oregon's other courses. He was manager of the Waverly Country Club for two years and while with the city park bureau was identified with the construction of the East Moreland and West Hills courses. He was in charge of construction of the Columbia Country Club's course and was also retained by the Corvallis Country Club for work on its course.

This new golf course of Portland, the fourteenth, by the way, includes 141 acres, and is financed by a group of business men, including Charles L. Stidd, ex-'17, A. G. Sieberts, ex-'17, and Mr. Gerke.

Charles A. "Dad" King, EE, last year a teacher in the high school at North Powder, took vocal lessons of Yeaton Griffith in Portland this past summer, and as a result of the sensation created by his vocal performances, has gone to New York to continue voice culture with Professor Griffith.

Annie Elizabeth Hawkins, ex-'16, DSA, has taken a position as cashier in the Benton County State Bank at Corvallis, coming here from Toledo where she was assistant cashier in the Lincoln County Bank.

Changes of Address

Charles Storz, care of Mathieu Drug Co., Portland, Ore.

Fern G. Parr, teacher, Heathman Hotel, Portland, Ore.

Dorothy S. Brownell, now Mrs. E. A. Marshall, 212 W. 55th St., Portland, Ore.

Leo L. Laythe, 305 Custom House, Denver, Colo.

1917

Clarence B. Johnson, A, of Pocatello, Idaho, reports that he plans to be on hand for HOMECOMING affairs. His wife, formerly Lula Meloy, ex-'21, C, and son Pat were Corvallis visitors this summer and will accompany Clarence on November 20. Mr. Johnson is employed in the Mutual Creamery concern at Pocatello.

Adolph G. Sieberts, C, has been advanced to the position of president and general manager of the Edwards Furniture Co., of Portland. "Ade" is the well-known president of the Portland O. A. C. Club, too, incidentally.

Floyd B. Flannery, PhG, and his wife, nee Gertrude Estella Lilly, '12, P, of Springfield, were in Corvallis recently to attend the wedding of Mrs. Flannery's brother, Ralph.

Richard J. "Dick" Werner, A, has been elected state commissioner of secondary schools of California, one of the highest offices in the educational system of that state. Word of the elevation of Mr. Werner was sent by Homer L. Roberts, ex-'24, now district manager of the United Press Association at Sacramento, Calif.

Changes of Address

Lillian Johnson, 1901 Pacific Ave., San Francisco, Calif.

Etta P. Boies, now Mrs. J. F. Rankin, foot of Seventh St., Astoria, Ore.

1918

Leaton A. Rice, M, now starting on his third year as chemist in the mines at Herculaneum, Mo., paid a short visit to Corvallis recently, visiting his mother. With him were his wife and two boys, Jimmie and Donald, four and two respectively.

W. Homer Maris, MS, A, following his arrival in Oregon in the early fall, has lost no time in getting settled. He has purchased a 25 acre farm at Oak Harbor, Wash., about two hours out of Seattle, and there, on what he terms some of the finest soil in the country, he expects to raise potatoes, strawberries, and chickens. This is the sort of thing Mr. Maris has been dreaming about during his spare moments at Washington, D. C., where he has been headquartered in recent years. He and his wife and baby will welcome O. A. C. guests to their new home at any time.

Conrad W. Werth, EE, of the Denver Gas and Electric Co., Denver, Colo., paid a visit to alumni headquarters within the month. His address now is 3363 W. Clyde Place.

Howard Marshall Wight, MS, A, is with the Zoology department at Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa.

Change of Address

James P. Clancy, care of Darling-Singer Lbr. Co., Northwestern Bank Bldg., Portland, Ore.

Bessie Barton, teacher, to 732 Lovejoy St., Portland, Ore.

Leroy R. Guthrie, 227 Pittsburgh St., Springdale, Pa.

1919

Dorcas May Elliott, '19, HE, now Mrs. Milton Miller, in a letter to the editor, says: "Milt has been here in San Francisco since June 1 but I just arrived two weeks ago. He is chemist with the Golden State Milk Products Company and likes his new work very much. It is a position he has been hoping for, for some time." The Millers are located at 2655 Pine St., in San Francisco.

1920

Ruth Middlekauf, HE, who spent the summer months in Corvallis is now well-started on her fourth year of teaching in the household arts department of the San Jose (Calif.) Teachers College.

Charles H. Waterfall, C, posts a card to the alumni secretary from Baden-Baden, Trinklalle. He says, "We have been travelling for over a month in central Europe. We have now just finished the Black Forest (three days by motor) and go to Heidelberg, Cologne, the Rhine, Paris and London—then back to Charleston." "Watty" is associate professor of economics at South Carolina University. His residence is 1608 College St., Columbia, S. C.

F. Y. Yamamoto, writes from 110 Cook St., Ithaca, N. Y., to send his dues and say: "I am working for my master's degree at Cornell University. I would like to hear from old O. A. C. and the alumni. Yes, I am a son of old O. A. C."

Willis Lathrop, EE, writes to say that he has been transferred to the General Electric office at Davenport, Iowa, and has been on the job about a month. He says, "I never worked so hard in my life, or so continuously—at least not since I turned in my section of the Junior Annual. Up to date, I've been sort of general flunky, but now I'm supposed to be a full-fledged salesman with all the trials and tribulations they are subject to. The only thing I don't do is travel. All my actual work is here in Davenport, and I have one big customer to care for. It is a lot different from the comparatively 'easy tenor of my ways' that I have so far been accustomed to, and for once in my life, anyway, I've got a real animal to wrestle with. I suppose it would be a whole lot easier if they were as convinced as I am of the superiority of G. E. apparatus—but that's a sad, sad tale.

"Davenport seems to be quite a nice town to live in, but there are no old O. A. C. men that I've seen here yet. The main trouble with the place is its incessant rain—not Oregon rain, but just plain rain. They say it isn't always like this—but so far it sounds a lot like the Californians' 'unusual,' for I haven't seen anything different.

"Was glad to note that the 'boys' rolled up a good old score again Multnomah last Saturday. Hope that they will keep up the good work next Saturday and through the season."

Hazel Kelsey, HE, now Mrs. J. C. Westcott, is the new secretary in President Kerr's office. She says that she is mighty glad to be back in Oregon after having spent the past five years in California. She and her husband are making their home at 354 N. 21st St.

Allen M. Manning, EE, is working with Dr. Floyd Rowland, '07, professor of industrial chemistry at O. A. C., to determine the feasibility of substituting oil for wood in heating O. A. C. fraternity houses. The average fraternity house can be heated with an automatic oil burner for $75 a month believes Mr. Manning.

Loche Mardis, C, who has been with the Burroughs Adding Machine Co., at Marysville, Calif., has been transferred by that company to Oregon. He may now be reached at 130 "A" St., McMinnville, where he will be headquartered until going to Portland. We think Loche is a bit more plump than formerly, and we are sure that his interest in O. A. C. and her welfare has not diminished any. He visited alumni headquarters on his return to Oregon.

Earl Vasberg Storm, F, has been transferred by the U. S. Forest Service from Kanab to Parowan, Utah, according to word just received from him.

Changes of Address

Olive Colpitts, Willard Place, Honolulu, H. I.

Martin L. Conniff, 3123 W. Kiernan Ave., Spokane, Wash.

Gladys Georgene Hutchins, now Mrs. J. H. Clark, 128 E. 48th St., Portland, Ore.

Josephine S. Thompson, now Mrs. B. I. Harrison, 1517 Sacramento St., Berkeley, Calif.

Margaret M. Morcom, now Mrs. D. R. Watkins, 543 Monmouth St., Independence, Ore.

James P. Woolomes, care of Union Club, San Francisco, Calif.

1921

George Mitchell, A, recently with the Moro experiment station is now employed in the farm crops department and has charge of the cereal production work.

Kenneth B. Hall, ME, and his wife, nee Frances Castner, '21, HE, were recent campus visitors from Portland where Mr. Hall is employed with Wm. S. Turner & Co.

Natalie Reichart, ex-'21, P, who later studied at Columbia University and is now instructor in swimming at O. A. C., spent the summer in New York, teaching at Columbia.

Loren Reynolds, IA, is teaching in the high school at Phoenix, Ariz.

Winifred Hazen, HE, who has been head of the institutional management work at Rhode Island State College for the past four years, has resigned that position and may now be reached at 25 Sheldon Ave., SE., Grand Rapids, Mich. She tells of her new work as follows: "I have accepted a position here in the Y. W. C. A. as the director of the general education department. The department is unique in that it is privately endowed and is the only one of its kind in Y. M. C. A.s in the country. Because of the endowment we have a generous fund to work with."

This Y. W. C. A., also termed the Caroline W. Putnam Training School, includes day classes in cooking and sewing and evening classes in advertising, English, cooking, dramatics, dressmaking, etiquette, French, home nursing, interior decoration, china painting, millinery, history, poetry, music appreciation, public speaking, world problems. The curriculum also includes religious education and health education.

Miss Hazen says further, "The possibilities of the work seem to be infinite and I am most enthusiastic over the outlook for the coming year."

Mamie Cuning, C, assisted by her sister, Ethel Cuning, '22, C, and other teachers of the Baker high school, conducted a summer school with an attendance of 46 students for a period of six weeks during May and June.

Kathleen Meloy, C, now Mrs. Norman J. Laughlin, teaching commerce at Marysville, Calif., is also director of the union high school paper and has a class in journalism.

Bernice M. Haines, HE, now Mrs. G. A. Powell of Long Beach, Calif., paid a visit to the campus at the opening of the fall term, bringing with her "Gap's" sister to enroll at O. A. C. Bernice is the same cheery little person as she who held the secretaryship of the student body in 1920.

Clyde W. Hubbard, P, now coach at the College of Puget Sound, wrote "It took the mighty 'Purple Tornado' 29 minutes to score on us and we played all the first quarter in their territory, missing a good place kick by inches, just short but right at the middle." This about "Cac's" team which played Washington's first team in early October.

Friends are looking forward to seeing his team play that of "Spec" Keene at Willamette University at Salem on November 6.

Changes of Address

John G. Beck, Prescott, Ore.

Lynette J. Svenson, now Mrs. B. F. Ross, Cochran, Ore.

Leighton F. Church, 1701 Franklin St., San Francisco, Calif.

Agnes Von Lehe, teacher, Box 713, Raymond, Wash.

Marguerite Appelman, Multigraph Dept., Univ. of Ore., Eugene, Ore.

Helen L. Catton, now Mrs. H. I. Gilbert, 2452 43rd St., W., Seattle, Wash.

Laura Garnjobst, HE, who was last year technician in the zoology department at O. A. C., is now enrolled in work leading to a master's degree at Stanford University. Not only was Miss Garnjobst one out of the 36 admitted to the graduate school but she was awarded a scholarship as well. Her work deals with protozoa. She is now on the Stanford campus but will study later at the biological research station at Pacific Grove.

John C. Garman, EE, in charge of photography work in the department of physics at O. A. C., attended the national convention of the Pacific International Photographers' Assn., held in Seattle this fall.

Florence Wharton, VE, sends along her dues from Boise, Idaho, where she is well-started on another year of teaching, and says that she will be looking forward to each number of the Alumnus.

Evangeline Jennings, HE, sends a message similar to that of Miss Wharton. She may be reached at Sheridan, Wyo. (Bx 886), where she is home demonstration agent.

Joe Kasberger, A, is making good, as was expected. The sport section of the Sunday Oregonian of October 10 carried a very life like picture of Joe and his smile under the heading "His school is ruined but not his spirit." The accompanying article goes on to explain. "When fire recently wiped out Mount Angel College, Joe Kasberger, football coach, was temporarily out of a job. He was swamped with offers from high schools and small colleges throughout the northwest but flatly refused every offer with the statement: 'Can't talk football contracts with the school in distress and me able to help it rebuild.' Joe's athletic career has been lengthy and sensational. He attended Mount Angel, playing on all four major sport teams and then entered O. A. C. He played for the Aggies for three years and in 1922 was named all-coast halfback. After graduating Joe assumed duties as coach at Mount Angel and has never failed to develop a winning team in any sport."

Ordo W. Irwin, C, and his wife, nee Naaheel Donaca, '22, C, were recent campus visitors from San Francisco. Ordo is an adjuster with the Credit Clearing House of that city. His business address is 528 Standard Oil Bldg.

Henry E. Durst, ex-'22, P, is now attending Creighton University at Omaha, Nebraska. His address there is 3514 Burt St.

Changes of Address

Elizabeth Seymour, now Mrs. H. R. Spiess, Yreka, Calif.

James O. Stewart, 768 24th St., Ogden, Utah.

Sarah Wininger, VE, now Mrs. L. C. Peterson, sends along her dues in order "that she may not miss a single issue of the Alumnus, especially the first one." She says her address has been changed to 409 W. Palm St., Compton, Calif.

Joseph R. McLaughlin, VE, drops a line to headquarters. He says, "At the present time, I am working for my brother as a real estate salesman. My brother is president of the McLaughlin Realty Co. here (Cleveland, Ohio). Business has been very good considering the season and the extremely hot weather of the summer. This country is a great place to make money but it can't compare with our own Willamette Valley. Just how long the East can keep me away is a matter of conjecture—but it won't be for long."

McLaughlin inquires concerning the O. A. C. men and women in his community since he would "like very much to get in touch with some good old Beavers again."

Leston L. Love, A, has been promoted to the principalship at Halfway, and now has Garnet Douglas Best, '25, A, as teacher of agriculture in his high school. Mrs. Love will be remembered as Greta Weatherspoon, ex-'25.

William V. Hukill, ME, writes from 1824 California St., NW., Washington, D. C. "I haven't heard any O. A. C. news for some time, 'he says, then proceeds to write some. "I have seen Morgan Pryse, '22, here in Washington. He is in the forestry service. Bill Pentzer, '23, lately arrived here to work with the Bureau of Plant Industry.

"I am in the Bureau of Public Roads doing experimental work on transportation of perishable products. Most of my time since graduation has been spent here and in Los Angeles on this same work.

"I still wear my O. A. C. belt buckle and a few days ago a man asked if it meant Oregon. When I said that it did, he introduced himself as Harold E. Wahlberg, '11, of Santa Anna, Calif. I have also seen Rolland Dobbell, ex-'17, in Washington this summer."

Doris van Groos, HE, who took an auto trip across the United States last summer and then assumed her duties as teacher of mathematics and basketball coach in the Roosevelt high school of Portland, has been ill with an attack of scarlet fever. She is recovering, however.

Elwyn K. Weston, A, has recently been installed commander of the Disabled Veterans of the World War, Corvallis, chapter.

Andrew Ervin Street, A, sends in his twofty along with the following letter: "I am beginning my fourth year as principal at Malin and instructor of agriculture, mathematics and science. I coach all athletics, both boys' and girls—we won four championships in our division last year. During my spare hours I act as City Recorder and Secretary of the Commercial Club.

"I pitched baseball for the Klamath Falls Pelicans in the Southern Oregon League during the season just ending. Expect to be at O. A. C. for Homecoming."

Lucille Keyt, HE, now Mrs. Asa Smith, writes to the secretary as follows: "I am enclosing a check for my alumni dues, I just can't get along without the alumni magazine. "I am not teaching this year but an O. A. C. girl is taking my place in Redding."

George Clifford Knodell, ex-'23, C, is working at the Idora Service Station, 5200 Telegraph Ave., Oakland, Calif.

Changes of Address

Sophie E. Rasmussen, teacher, to 1775 Fourth St., Baker, Ore.

Sarah Wininger, now Mrs. L. C. Peterson, 409 W. Palm St., Compton, Calif.

George H. Tinker, Jr., 1913 El Cajon Blvd., San Diego, Calif.

Stella Parker, now Mrs. F. A. Lyford, 521 W. 10th St., Los Angeles, Calif.

1924

Roberto Lane, C, has been sent to Seattle by the I. Magnum Co., of San Francisco to assist in the opening of their new apparel store there.

Laurence S. "Larry" Brown, A, shows the proper spirit of cooperation with alumni headquarters. He writes as follows: "Three members of the class of 1924 and one member of the class of 1923 are with the Federal-State Inspection Service in California. Don Weaver, who was assistant advertising manager on the '23 Beaver and myself are located in Fresno at present."

Beatrice Inez "Betty" Davis, HE, is teaching in the high school at Richland, where Frank Rossman, '24, A, is continuing his work as coach and teacher of agriculture.

Marie Kittredge, HE, was a recent campus visitor. She stopped en route to her new teaching position at Bend, Ore.

Theodore Reynolds, '24, A, is manager of Boca Tres Amigos, a stock ranch in Costa Rica, Central America.

Olga Brucher, HE, is teaching in the foods department at O. A. C. this fall. She is succeeded in her position of secretary to the dean of home economics by Mary Little, '26, HE.

Wm. "Bill" North, A, secretary of the Baker Chamber of Commerce, and Bernard Mainwaring, '20, editor of the Baker Herald, are working together with excellent results in promoting the mutual interests of business men and farmers, and in helping to speed up a knowledge of Baker's natural and commercial advantages, reports E. T. Reed, College Editor, who spent two days in Baker recently. A potato contest, poultry incubation by natural hot springs, the promotion of a new hotel and a sewage disposal plant for Baker, were some of the projects these two O. A. C. men were helping to develop when Editor Reed was there.

Percy Philip Lacey, C, sends along his five dollars, too, with the following note: "You might be interested to know that I am assistant director of physical education for the Oakland Public Schools in addition to the position with the Recreation Department of the City of Oakland." Percy is assistant superintendent of that department, to be reached at 404 City Hall, Oakland. Further Percy sends the admonition not to win any championships before the season opens.

Harold F. Hall, ex-'24, A, was admitted to the Oregon Bar in September. Mrs. Hall will be remembered as Lucile Pierce, '21, HE, daughter of Governor Pierce.

Mervin Ray Good, ex-'24, C, has the position of adjuster of accounts at Barker Brothers, Los Angeles. His home address is 826 W. 36th Place.

Katherine Delphine Elmer, VE, has taken the position of assistant examiner in the O. A. C. office at 316 Oregon Building, Portland.

James E. Lawson, care of McCloud River Lbr. Co., McCloud, Calif.

Dean Woods Mickelwait, C, is again coaching in Jefferson High School of Portland. Last year Dean's football team won the Portland city championship.

Kenneth Ackley, A, writes from Anchorage Alaska, as follows:

"My air castles, built in planning to attend the O. A. C.-Oregon game at Homecoming this fall, are shattered. The distance of 2275 miles which separates Anchorage from Corvallis is a little too great for me to plan on a week-end drive even if there were roads connecting from here to Seattle. * * *

"Perhaps you wonder how I happen to be located in Alaska. Early in July Paul Chambers and I decided that the field at Stanfield (Ore.) was too limited for both of us to make a good living, so I sold my interest in the Standard to him and left for Portland. After vacationing for three weeks I was offered the position of city editor on the Anchorage Daily Times, which I accepted.

"Alaska is a wonderful country, but it is not so much a country of ice, snow, icebergs, and eskimoes as is the general impression in the states. The winters in the interior do get cold, but no colder than in the northern states. On the coast the rainfall in general is heavy, much like western Oregon. The summer weather here in Anchorage is warm, but not extremely hot. Vegetables and flowers grow very well here. The growing season is short but crops grow fast because of the long summer days. The Western Alaska fair was held in Anchorage and it was really a revelation to me to see the many kinds of vegetables and grains that could be raised to maturity in this section.

"Hunting and fishing opportunities here are excellent. Within short distances of Anchorage, moose, mountain sheep, bear, and trout may be found in great abundance.

"O. A. C. alumni are scarcer than hen's teeth in this section as far as I have been able to learn. Ewen Gellis, a graduate of Oregon who is teaching in the high school here, went to O. A. C. one term. In making the trip north from the states by boat, I had an opportunity to visit in a number of the towns along the route. At Juneau I met Ralph Mize, ex-'28, who is now doing electrical work for the Alaska Juneau Gold Mining Co. Ernest Smith, ex-'28, was also working for the same company.

"Smear Oregon!!!"

Riley B. Ewing, A, sends along his dues from Honokaa, Hawaii, where he is teaching in the junior high school. He says that the Alumnus was a most welcome friend last year when he was teaching at Snohomish, Wash., and that it will be even more welcome now that he is marooned down in Honokaa. To quote from his letter, "Hawaii is an ideal vacation land but is pretty much isolated for one who is looking for permanent headquarters. Paul Sanborne, '23, is principal of the school here and Hildred Baker Sanborne, ex-'24, is teaching home ec. I am teaching Smith-Hughes agriculture and am having quite a time learning new tricks in how to 'raise cane.' There are plenty of O. A. C. grads scattered over the islands—I've met quite a few already and hope to meet more of them before I leave. I'm certainly sorry that I cannot see any of the games this fall but will be pulling strong for the team just the same. I also wish the Alumnus lots of success for the coming year. Aloha."

Sam Merrill, A, a graduate assistant in the pomology department of Iowa State College, was a campus visitor last month en route to Ames. With him were his father and mother and his brother, Eugene, ex-'28, the latter is at Stanford University this fall and may be reached at 1285 Summit St., Pasadena.

Harl K. Clinton, ex-'25, C, paid his usual fall visit to the campus last month. Harl is manager of "The Hub" at Myrtle Point.

Carlton S. Rondeau, ex-'25, C, has opened a new service station at the corner of 23rd and Monroe Sts. The corner has been fitted up with a neat building and drive-in alleys, replacing the old "tower" residence which formerly stood among the shade trees at that place. Mr. Rondeau's station has been named the "Campus Super-Service." Mrs. Rondeau will be remembered as Wilma Miller, '23, HE.

Fred G. Behnke, C, is now at Madison, Wis., working for his master's degree in the department of economics. Other O. A. C. folk at Wisconsin this year are: Fred Diwoky, '26, studying for his master's in chemistry; Robert Fulton, '25, who was given a special scholarship in the chemistry department and is now working toward his Ph.D.; Robert Simington, '24, also a fellow in chemistry; Blair Stewart, '26, who is studying in the department of economics; Mrs. Blair Stewart, nee Evelyn Genoe, '26, who is taking further work in dramatics; and William M. Higby, '24, working toward his Ph.D. degree in the soils department. E. W. Wells, former instructor in public speaking, is at the university working for his master's degree on a fellowship.

Elvin Hoy, (SS), ME, addresses his letter from 167 Stadium Drive, Stockton, Calif., and remarks as follows:

"My ramblings have been many, since I saw you last Homecoming. Sad to say, I hardly think I can make it back this time, dern it! However, I hope to be through Podunk during the Christmas season en route to Portland.

"After completing a hectic first year of teaching at Pendleton, I decided to decline an attractive offer to return. After a couple of days in Portland, I headed for the south, and reached Palo Alto just in time to register for the entire summer quarter—which is the same as the other terms through the year. I knocked out a tough bunch of work—completing 19 credits, including 13 credits of "A," so am beginning to get back into the pace again.

"Through the assistance of the Stanford Appointment Office and Miss May Workinger, I landed a position here with the College of the Pacific. Ray McCart, '25, is here as assistant coach. Also heard Marvin Sloan, '25, is down town with some business firm. Have a rather tough schedule including six different classes. They are college algebra, higher algebra, solid and spherical geometry, trigonometry, differential and integral calculus, and mathematical theory of investment (a course I've never even had!). But the classes are small, so I'm getting along OK so far.

"It is a huge 'kick' here, with such a snappy crowd for a small college. It was, indeed, a shock to step out on their stadium at the first game of the season to see a team decked out in orange and black jerseys, and view a mass of orange and black rooter lids—identically the same as ours at O. A. C. It made me feel at home to be in an Orange and Black College. Last week-end we journeyed over to Reno and saw the gang lose a tough fight to U. of Nevada, 6-0. Had a marvelous trip back to Carson City and Lake Tahoe.

"The Orange Aggies are certainly doing themselves proud. Just think! 116-0 in the first two games! Seems like a fairy tale."

Ruth Laird, HE, according to word just received, is a secretary for the Navigator Instruments, Inc., at 383 Mills Bldg., San Francisco, Calif.

Ben H. Leubke, A, has accepted a position as instructor of agricultural economics at Texas A. & M. College for the coming year.

Eugene Albert Humble, ME, in a recent letter, says: "Please change my address from Y. M. C. A., Greensburg, Pennsylvania, to Y. M. C. A., Cincinnati, Ohio, where I shall probably be located permanently.

"Was recently transferred here from the Elliott Company's main office at Jeanette, Pennsylvania, and am now working as sales engineer in their local district office. I like the work and Cincinnati very much."

William P. "Bill" Mulligan, A, encourages us, also tells us of himself, as follows:

Glenn M. Britt, EE, of the U. S. Marine Corps is now at Pensacola, Fla., receiving aviation training.

Lois McCool, VE, writes that she is working in the office of the C. C. Anderson Store of Boise, Idaho. Her home address is 1908 N. 15th St. She says that Alice (McCool,

'25) has returned to Los Banos, Calif., for her second year of teaching.

D. Palmer Young, VE, who is teaching manual training and coaching dramatics at the high school at Onalaska, Wash., recently announced his engagement to Cathrine Davis, junior in home economics.

Marian Walter, HE, Lois Denny, HE, and Ruth Sherwin, HE, are three '26ers attending a dietitian's training school in California.

Georgia English, HE, has assumed the responsibility of opening a new department of home economics in the junior high school at Roseburg. She reports most pleasant relations with her school associates.

Lois Lapham, VE, is teaching English and history in the Salem high school.

Bess Erwin, VE, is attending business college in Tacoma, Wash.

Ruth LeVan, VE, is acting as secretary and technician in the office of Dr. N. L. Fasten in the zoology department. She takes the place vacated by the departure of Laura Garnjost, '22.

Edward Laird, CE, is working for the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads at Ashford, Wash.

Albert S. Hart, A, is working for the Bonnell Nurseries in Seattle, Wash.

Ruth Murray, VE, is teaching commerce and physical education in Wilsall, Mont.

Helen Moser, VE, is teaching physical education in the junior high school at Reno, Nev.

Stanley B. Lang, C, visited England, France, Switzerland, Germany, Italy, Holland and Belgium last summer. He reports that Italy is apparently prospering under the fascist regime and that conditions in that country are very good. Germany, he thinks, is probably better off than most other European countries. Germany is working. Stanley is with Lang, Jones & Co., Portland.

Jennie Clark, HE, is now in charge of the dairy lunch at Meier & Frank Co., Portland, succeeding Ella Anderson, '23, HE, who has accepted the position of house manager at Miss Ransome's and Miss Bridges' School for Girls, end of Hazel Lane, Piedmont, Calif.

Dorothy D. Redenbaugh, VE, writes as follows from 6017 12th St., NE, Seattle: "I'm pretty busy this year between working for my AB degree at the University of Washington and teaching full time in the public schools.

"Just now I'm in grade work, but the first junior high school will be opened in January and unless the unexpected happens, I'm to teach math there. It will be quite nice to be in the newest school in the city.

"I'll be waiting anxiously for the first issue of the magazine with information about everything. I'll probably know each issue by heart the night after it arrives!"

Bernal Dobell, C, is registered in the school of law at the University of Michigan, so also is Robert Kerr, '26, C. Both Dobell and Kerr are living at the Lawyers' Club at Ann Arbor. The latest word from Michigan is that the O. A. C. and U. of O. students on the campus plan to organize an Oregon Club.

William Bridges, EE, has been appointed second lieutenant in the regular army. "Bill" was a campus visitor just prior to leaving for Camp Lewis, Wash., where he will be stationed.

William D. Swope, MS, A, has taken a position with the Albanian government to do experimental work in cereals and plant breeding. Mr. Swope did research work here last year. Succeeding him is D. C. Smith, a graduate of Utah Agricultural College.

Victor P. Hessler, EE, is a part-time instructor in engineering at Iowa State College. He is also taking work toward his master's degree. Mrs. Hessler, formerly Ava B. Hamlin, '26, HE, is also taking advanced work.

Clarence Bell (SS) VE is coaching football and has charge of gymnasium work at Benson Polytechnic school in Portland.

Ruth Crawford, HE, is head of the home economics department in the high school at Elk Grove, Calif.

Mary Jeanette Gittings, HE, a teacher of sewing and English at Brownsville, was a recent visitor at the College.

Helen J. Smith, C, is assistant advertising manager of the Charles F. Berg Co., of Portland, dealer in women's wearing apparel.

Arthur Alben, A, is studying for his master's degree in soils at Iowa State College where he received a research fellowship.

Harry D. Morris, P, is employed by the Owl Drug Co., which was recently opened up in Eugene by James Baker, '25, P.

Norma Marrs, ex-'26, C, has accepted a position in the New York office of Olds, Wortman & King Co., with whom she has been associated for the past year.

Eileen Huxtable, HE, is doing demonstration work for the Whirldry Washington Machine Co., in Fresno, Calif.

Duane Lawrence, ex-'26, C, superintendent of the Portland Laundry Co., was a recent campus visitor.

MAIN FEATURES OF THE INTERCOLLEGIATE ALUMNI HOTEL MOVEMENT

Interested alumni can secure from a clerk at the desk of each Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel an information leaflet which describes in detail the Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel movement.

At each Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel there will be maintained a card index of the names of all the resident alumni of all the participating institutions. This will be of especial benefit to traveling alumni in locating classmates and friends.

The current issues of the alumni publications of all the participating institutions will be on file at each Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel.

Reservation cards will be available at the clerk's desk in each designated hotel and at the alumni office in each college or university. These reservation cards will serve as a great convenience to travelers in securing advance accommodations.

The managers of all Intercollegiate Alumni Hotels are prepared to cooperate with individual alumni to the fullest extent and are also prepared to assist in the creation of new local alumni associations and in the development and extension of the activities of those already formed.

The Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel movement is the result of a year's effort on the part of a Committee, the members of which have long been identified with alumni work.

The funds necessary to insure the success of the Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel movement are being advanced by the designated hotels, all of which have been selected after a careful study of their fitness for participation.

The committee on organization, the activities of which are controlled by a special group of the members of the Alumni Magazines Associated, has incorporated a non-profit corporation known as the Intercollegiate Alumni Extension Service, Inc., which will direct the policies of the Intercollegiate Alumni Hotel movement and serve as a coordinating unit between the alumni organizations and the designated hotels.

Home Coming

*A joyous event
Every day in the year!*

HAPPY THE MAN who at evening returns to his cozy home — the embrace of a loving wife, the joyous laughter of children. ¶ Viewed from the depths of a soft cushioned fireside chair the fretful worries of the day seem magically to fade away. ¶ As his eyes wander over the carefully chosen appointments of his home there comes to him the satisfying knowledge that he has surrounded his loved ones with an environment of charm and beauty which, in no small degree, is molding their lives and character.

¶ Happy, indeed, THAT man!

¶ To those who may not know the joy of living with furnishings that express their personality, Edwards Furniture Company extends an invitation to choose from its large and varied selections everything required to create homes of distinction — whether modest bungalow or pretentious estate. ¶ A courteous sales force, schooled in the art of making helpful suggestions; a management, eager to please its O. A. C. friends with distinctive furnishings at consistently low prices; a credit policy, which makes possible complete home furnishings on a small initial outlay with no interest charges on the monthly payments — these are some of the inducements Edwards offers that you may choose here the furnishings for your home. ¶ Then you, too, will experience the thrill of a joyous home coming!

Our O. A. C. Friends will be pleased to learn that MR. A. G. SIEBERTS, '17, is now President and General Manager of Edwards Furniture Company.
