"The State of Oregon can't do without Oregon State" was the theme of this summer's special OSU edition of the Corvallis Gazette-Times, which includes all new students and their parents on the mailing list. The thrust was that "The State of Oregon can't do without Oregon State and its vital agriculture, forestry and ocean research programs that support the state's major industries and protect Oregon's great natural resources; its 46,248 graduates who live in Oregon and are leaders in every area of endeavor; its capacity to solve problems and blaze new trails, to develop new wealth; its statewide programs that strengthen homes, families and communities." More state budget cuts hit OSU

After two consecutive years of budget cuts and with a dismal outlook for the Oregon economy for the next few years, Oregon State University President Robert MacVicar has moved to start cutting programs, reducing faculty and limiting enrollment. The reductions will particularly impact on the 1982-83 budget year.

OSU suffered a $2.9 million budget cut for 1980-81. Then the 1981 Oregon Legislature cut another 5 percent from the "already austere" higher education budget presented to the Legislature by Governor Vic Atiyeh.

"We are going to make it through this year, the same way we made it through last year: by bits and pieces and by being good managers," said MacVicar. "But we've got to deal with the hard problem of next year (1982-83) and what I think is going to be a continuing problem.

"We will reduce as rapidly as possible the input of students to make a more appropriate match with available resources," the president explained. Admission standards will be increased for all classes of students, including first-time entering freshmen, transfer and graduate students. More rigorous retention standards will be established to discourage students who are not making satisfactory progress and who would be better advised to seek alternative use of their time and OSU resources," MacVicar said.

After adjusting programs to absorb the $2.9 million cut in the education and general budget for 1980-81, University and State Board officials prepared a lean budget for 1981-82 that would retain this reduced level of operation. The Governor's budget, prepared for presentation to the Legislature, cut more than $1.4 million from this OSU budget. The additional cut by the Legislature took away another $1.4 million for a total of $2.83 million.

OSU's three public service agencies received heavy cuts in state funds. The Cooperative Extension Service was cut $2 million from the Atiyeh budget. The Agricultural Experiment Station lost $1.1 million, and the Forest Research Laboratory had its budget trimmed $580,000.

Unless the state's economy takes a dramatic — and unexpected — turn around, the 1982-83 budget could carry an even heavier burden and, with so much having been carved away, the results could be even more visible and damaging.

Chancellor Roy Lieuallen said that in order to "conform to the restrictive budget" approved by the 1981 Oregon Legislature, it is "abundantly clear" that program reductions will have to be made in the 1982-83 academic year. "It's probably inevitable that some tenured faculty will be affected, and probably eliminated" by those program reductions, he said.

Coupled with a reduction in enrollment, the president has moved to identify OSU programs to be reduced, suspended or eliminated.

At the president's request, a faculty committee has developed guideline recommendations for budget cutting this year and the critical 1982-83 fiscal year.

With a 19 percent tuition increase going into effect this fall for Oregon students, MacVicar is concerned that student numbers may not hold up to the figures anticipated in the budget, creating an additional shortfall in resources.

"At the moment we don't expect a drop in in-state students. But it does appear likely, in my opinion, that out-of-state students, who pay about three times as much for tuition as in-state students, may decrease." Tuition for out-of-state students goes up 16.4 percent.

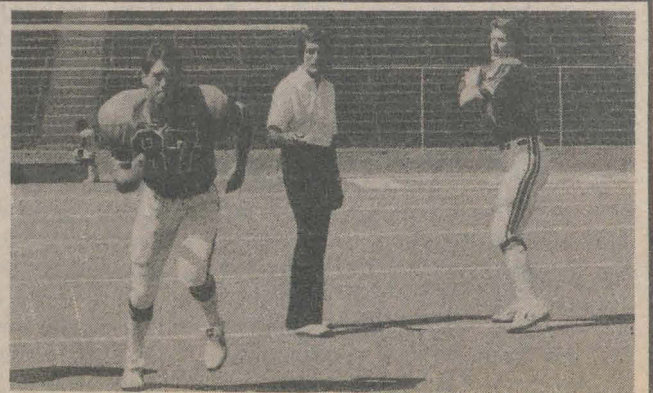

Another major concern of MacVicar's is the Oregon economy.

"I think the likelihood of the state actually generating the expected income is not by any means certain. The important lumber industry is in a major slump, and until it begins to improve the outlook is grim.

Former AD Percy Locey dies at 86

An Oregon State student body president, athlete and leader for his alma mater and community died in Corvallis August 12. Percy P. Locey, '24, was 86.

Mr. Locey was Oregon State director of intercollegiate athletics from 1937-47. He had returned to Oregon State the previous year as an assistant dean of men under Dean U. G. Dubach. In addition to being director of athletics, he had the duties of director student extracurricular affairs, and director of student affairs.

Funds were a problem but he founded the "Buck o' the Month Club" for support of intercollegiate athletics, later known as "Beaver Club." He also organized the Board of Intercollegiate Athletics as a registered, non-profit corporation. Despite the problems of sports curtailment during World War II, both the intercollegiate athletics and student organizations had substantial cash balances when he went into private business 10 years later.

PERCY LOCEY
President of the Associated Student Body of O.A.C.

He was sales manager for O'Toole Motor Co. in Corvallis 1949-54 but found time for major assistance in the construction of Gill Coliseum. After two years as owner-operator of a sporting goods store in Richland, Wash., he returned to Corvallis and entered the real estate and investments business. He was a founding member and served on the board of directors of the Citizens Bank of Corvallis. He retired in 1978 but continued extensive work with charitable and civic organizations.

Through the Corvallis Rotary Club, he is credited with originating in the early '50s the plan for the Benton County

Percy Locey was director of educational activities as well as director of intercollegiate athletics and had several other titles. Here he joins Prof. Paul Petri, at left, director of music and chairman of the Educational Activities Board, in a project during World War II. Foundation as a means of collection and administration of local philanthropies and memorials. He served as the first president of the group.

Mr. Locey was born Nov. 28, 1894 at Malheur City, Ore., then a mining town but now a ghost town. Some of his ancestors had reached Oregon as early as 1847. His father had a cattle ranch, drove an overland stage, and acted as sheriff of Malheur County. He died as a result of a horse accident at age 36 when Percy was only six. The school young Percy attended at Ironside was a former saloon that had been converted into a school by his grandfather.

Eventually, the family moved to Weiser, Idaho, where he attended high school and was a four-sport athlete. He also worked for the post office in Weiser. He enrolled at OAC in 1915 and played football as a Rook. But the Post Office urged him to return to the job in Weiser and he left school. Later, he worked several years with the Oregon and Washington Railroad and Navigation Co.

He returned to college in 1920, intent on a degree. In the meantime, he and Floy Snider had married and had a daughter, Phyllis. In his first year, he worked as a janitor from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. After morning classes, he sold shoes in the afternoon and had an evening job at the Commercial Club.

His second year back, he resumed playing football and continued to hold several jobs. Despite the rigorous schedule, he won an all-school prize for scholarship his last two years, was named to three college honoraries and was captain of the team.

He was elected president of the student body. He helped organize student support, through fees and pledges, to help finance construction of the Memorial Union. He was a member of the student council board of control, and other committees. He was affiliated with Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

His outstanding career as an athlete and leader in intercollegiate athletics will be reviewed as part of a series on OSU sports history to begin in the Oregon Stater later this year. More than passing mention is in order here, however, because sports did so much to shape the life of Percy Locey.

A football tackle, he was captain of the 1923 team and president of varsity "O." After graduation from the School of Commerce, he accepted a position as teacher of physical education at University High in Oakland, Calif. The next year he became director of recreation for the City of Oakland.

It was at this time that he helped organize the first East-West Shrine All-

Student body president, football captain, winner of academic honors, he returned to serve his alma mater — and the cause of crippled children . . .

Star football game. He played in the game in December of 1925 that matched stars of the East and West. From that time on for the remainder of his life he was to devote much time and energy for the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children. He was associated with the San Francisco game for 30 years and assisted with the Oregon High School Shrine All-Star games. In 1946 he helped organize the first Marys Peak Trek to benefit the hospital at Portland. He served on the Board of Directors of the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children in Portland 1952-71.

He was player coach of an Oakland professional football team, a member of the first professional football league on the West Coast. In 1949, he was selected as a charter member of the National Football Hall of Fame of which famed sportswriter Grantland Rice was the chairman.

He was coach and athletic director of the Olympic Club, San Francisco, for four years and football coach at University of Denver for four years before returning to Oregon State. In the meantime, he earned a master's degree in economics and son Michael was born.

His wife of 64 years, Floy, died in 1980. Mr. Locey was preceded in death by a daughter Phyllis McClain of Albany on July 3 of this year. Survivors are his son J. Michael Locey of Corvallis, four grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children or to the OSU Beaver Club.

Percy was dressed for the weather in 1977 when the occasion was a reunion of the great 1942 Rose Bowl team, including Coach Lon Stiner, now a Portland resident. "Transplanting" the Rose Bowl from Pasadena to Durham, N.C., on a couple of weeks notice from the Defense Department was a very big undertaking and Locey was in charge. It came off very well and the event and the victory for Stiner's team ranked among the highlights of the era. (Gazette-Times photo)

Education dean named

Robert D. Barr, director of teacher education and extended services in the school of education at Indiana University, will become dean to the School of Education at OSU Jan. 1, 1982.

The appointment was announced by President Robert MacVicar.

The 41-year-old Barr will succeed Sylvia B. Tucker, dean of education since 1975. Tucker will return to teaching full time in the OSU school of education, MacVicar said.

PhD in social studies education

Barr earned a bachelor's degree in history and secondary education from Texas Christian University; a master's in school administration from North Texas State University, and a PhD in social studies education from Purdue University.

He went to Indiana University in 1970 and taught undergraduate and graduate courses in social studies. For the past four years he has headed teacher education and extended services. He is also interim director of the Center for Urban and Multicultural Education.

Earlier, Barr served one year on the staff of the National Council for the Social Studies in Washington, D.C. He also taught social studies five years at a Ft. Worth, Texas, high school.

Named 'Outstanding Young Educator'

Last January, Barr was named one of 75 Outstanding Young Educators by Phi Delta Kappa, national professional education honor fraternity.

The new dean has a national reputation for his work in alternative schools, President MacVicar noted. Barr planned and developed a graduate program at Indiana University to prepare teachers for professional roles in alternative schools.

He was cited in 1975 for Distinguished Achievement by the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education for his work in alternative schools.

Barr is the author or co-author of five books on social studies and alternative schools. He has published more than 30 papers in professional journals.

Budget. . .

"The budget for 1981-82 includes what Chancellor Lieuellen calls 'land mines.' If the expected state income does not hold up, then of course we would have another reduction," MacVicar pointed out.

To stay within the reduced budget for 1981-82, MacVicar expects to continue many of the cost-cutting steps taken last year. These include offering fewer and larger classes, leaving faculty positions unfilled, postponing equipment purchases and building maintenance and cutting back on services and supplies.

President MacVicar denied emphatically suggestions that higher education had come out "fairly well" in the final accounting for this year. It is true that the budget is better than the extremes talked about in the late days of the legislative session, he said. About 50 percent of possible cuts were returned. Meanwhile, the state's property tax relief program and basic school support, two other major users of state funds, had 100 percent returned and higher education continued to lose ground in the support it receives from the state.

Early in the 1981 Legislative session, President MacVicar warned that higher education wasn't crying "wolf" when it warned that underfunding is eroding the excellence of education in Oregon.

"The wolf is still in the living room," he said following the end of the session. "But we've closed and locked the bedroom door and we think at least for the time being we are going to keep him out of there."

Art Kirkham, '23: Dean of broadcasters

As was reported in the June Oregon Stater, Arthur B. "Art" Kirkham, '23, who became known as "the dean of Northwest broadcasters," died June 9 at the age of 84 after an extended illness.

Few Oregonians were known to as many. He broadcast to countless thousands almost daily for more than half-a-century.

His professional radio career began as a singer in 1922 with KGW in Portland shortly after that station — and regular licensed broadcasting — went on the air. In three years he became the Northwest's leading radio tenor. In 1926 he returned to Corvallis to be KOAC's first fulltime employee. Wallace Kadderly, the station manager, was director of information for the Agricultural Experiment Station. Kadderly hired Kirkham as an assistant and announcer. James M. "Jimmy" Morris, a part of the KOAC staff for most of its first 50 years, wrote in "The Remembered Years," his KOAC history: "He (Kirkham) was a great announcer, worthy of being 'first.'"

Three years later young Kirkham returned to Portland as senior announcer for KOIN and, a year later, became chief announcer.

He was with KOIN for 33 years and had all types of broadcasting assignments. To radio listeners, Mr. Kirkham was best known for his "Newspaper of the Air," which began in his first days with the station and continued over the years. The KOIN staff orchestra and other radio personalities joined him on this program and it was one of the top radio favorites. Appropriately, it was Art Kirkham who signed KOIN-TV on the air Oct. 15, 1953. His "News Parade" on the evening news program became a key segment of that new media's offering.

He was part of many "firsts" in radio, including Portland's first commercial broadcast. Some were unusual. Morris, in his book, recalled an early effort to broadcast the OAC cadet band. Remote facilities were as yet unknown and this meant that broadcast had to originate from the studio, in this case the "new" studio in Benton Hall.

Captain Harry Beard and band crowded into the studio. There was little room for announcer Kirkham and the volume and vibration of the band was too much for the carbon microphone at this proximity. Kirkham retreated out on the roof over the east porch, aiming the microphone at the window and holding an umbrella to shield himself and the microphone from the rain.

His retirement, which began in 1962, was a very active one. He immediately that year became manager of the Oregon Exhibit at the Seattle World's Fair. He also gave slide programs about his "Oregon Wonderland." And his distinctive, clear voice remained on the air. He was taping broadcasts for public radio's "Seeing Sound" on KBPS radio right up to his hospitalization.

Mr. Kirkham was a native of Portland. With America's entry into World War I in 1917, he enlisted in the Army. He served as an ambulance driver and stretcher bearer during four major offensives in France and Belgium.

After the war, he joined the "War Class" of 1923. His campus activities included the OAC Glee Club, drama and radio that would benefit him later and there was a job with a downtown printer. He was a life member of Beta Theta Pi.

By what is certainly an incomplete count, he is listed as having had membership in more than 30 civic and regional organizations and committees during his Portland broadcasting years. In just one of these, the Portland Chamber of Commerce, he served on at least 10 committees, including the important board of directors and the tourist and convention committees. He became known as Oregon's ambassador of goodwill.

In 1962 he was given the Edith Knight Hill Award by Theta Sigma Phi for "outstanding service to the State of Oregon." He was named "Travel Man of the Year" in 1966 by the Pacific Northwest Travel Association.

He was preceded in death in 1978 by his wife of 56 years, Lorena Marr Kirkham, '25.

Survivors include three sons, Roy of Portland, George of Walla Walla, and Arthur Jr. of Brisbane, Australia, and eight grandchildren.

Arthur "Art" Kirkham retired from KOIN in 1962 after 33 years with the Portland radio and television station. He continued to broadcast, however, and his career, which dated back to the very early radio year of 1922, spanned more than half a century.

Entomologist Scullen: authority on wasps

Dr. Herman Austin Scullen, 93, a retired Oregon State University professor of entomology and a world authority on wasps, died in a Boise nursing home May 17.

Scullen had lived on NW 30th for most of his 60 years in Corvallis. He and his wife had gone to Boise the first of this year to be nearer family members there.

The retired entomologist was born Nov. 27, 1887 on a farm in western Wisconsin. In 1901, the family moved to Oregon, settling in Ashland where Dr. Scullen attended South Oregon Normal School, now Southern Oregon State College. In the fall of 1906, he enrolled at the University of Oregon, majoring in zoology. After graduation in 1910, he became principal of the Junction City High School, and was married in 1911 to Johanne Marie Fredericksen of Eugene.

In 1912, he was appointed an instructor in zoology at Iowa State College, Ames, but came back to the West Coast in 1918 to enter commercial bee keeping and to become a field agent in bee culture for the U.S. Department of Agriculture with headquarters at Washington State University, Pullman.

Joined Oregon State staff in 1920

The Scullens came to Corvallis in 1920 when he was appointed instructor in beekeeping in the Department of Entomology, working primarily with returning veterans from World War I. During the next 15 years, he earned his master's degree from the University of Oregon and a doctorate from Iowa State.

His research with wasps started in 1931 and his contributions to scientific knowledge about some selected wasps made him internationally known. His research was supported for decades by the National Science Foundation and several of his 70-plus publications were issued by the Smithsonian Institution Press, Washington, D.C.

Scullen handled thousands of requests yearly from museums and entomology departments across the country and around the globe for identification of wasps.

He became professor emeritus in 1953 but continued active work and preparation of publications that summarized his research findings until the mid 1970s when will health restricted his regular trips to the office.

Received scores of professional honors, awards

His wasp studies prompted extensive travels in Mexico, Central America and Europe.

Dr. Scullen was a longtime leader in Willamette Valley Scouting, holding the rank of Silver Beaver, top leadership award. He was also active in various community and campus affairs, including the Men's Garden Club, the OSU Triad Club, Acacia fraternity, and Al Kader Shrine Temple, Portland.

A daughter, Ruby Mae Phillips, died in 1954 and his first wife died in 1965. He married Bessy Mitchell in June 1966. She survives along with numerous family members in other parts of the country.

Mark 'Buck' Grayson, '31

In late July, Oregonians paid final tribute to one of Portland's top civic figures and Oregon State's outstanding athletes and student leaders. Mark "Buck" Grayson, '31, died July 24 at his home in Portland of an apparent heart attack. He was 73.

Mr. Grayson, a civic official in his native Portland for nearly four decades, was a city commissioner 1959 to 1971. He began his career in city government as administrative assistant to City Commission Ormond R. Bean in 1949, successfully running for the office 10 years later.

Just before retiring in 1971, Mr. Grayson told a team of Oregon Journal reporters his three greatest accomplishments in office were reduction of the Portland Water Bureau debt by $13 million, construction of the Bull Run dam and the $4 million renovation of the city's Civic Auditorium.

He was a director of the Community Council, vice-president and a director of the League of Oregon Cities, and director of the Portland Americanization Council. He served as a member of the Willamette Basin Regional Planning Committee and was a past chairman of the Forest Park Development Committee. He served with a number of other civic committees and commissions and was particularly well known for his support of golf, amateur boxing, softball and other sports programs.

He served two tours of duty in the U.S. Navy during World War II and the Korean War.

In 1930, young Mark Grayson was pictured by the Beaver as a "typical" junior. He later was to win an award for scholastic and athletic excellence.

When Grayson stepped down in 1971, he had served 12 years as a Portland city commissioner. (Oregonian photo)

Fresh out of Jefferson High School in Portland where he was all-city in football, basketball and baseball, he established himself in student activities before athletics at Oregon State with election as freshman class president for the class of '31. He later was president of Varsity O. His activities and athletics carried him over to 1932 for his degree in vocational education and he served as house president of his Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He received the Mountain States Power Award for scholastic and athletic excellence.

For the Beavers and coaches Slats Gill and Ralph Coleman he was an outstanding three-year letterman in both basketball and baseball, gaining All-America and All-Coast recognition. As a junior, he was Gill's leading scorer in Northern Division play. He was captain of the baseball team and played first base.

His wife, who died in 1979, was the former Betty Evans. She gained national fame as a pitcher for the Erv Lind Florists softball team.

In 1932 he joined the sales department of Union Oil Co., later becoming the firm's resident manager in South San Francisco after World War II. He and his brother, "Bobby," who had gained football fame at Stanford, organized and built the White Rock Bottling Co. of Oregon in 1947.

Survivors include his brother, Robert of Portland; a daughter, Nancy Weaver of Portland, and two grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis C. Boegli, '26, of Tigard celebrated their golden wedding anniversary June 14 at a reception given by their children at King City Town Hall in Tigard. Boegli retired in 1964 as an agricultural economist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture and employee of the Harza Engineering Co.

Allan Himes Reid, '27, is serving as vice president general of the Western District for the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution. He and his wife live in Palo Alto, Calif., and recently attended the NSSAR Congress in Oklahoma City.

Aza Miller Kipf, '28, a retired home economics teacher, is currently a member of the University of California at Irvine Friends of the Library and involved in fibre arts projects.

George W. Craft, '29, and Alta DeShazer, '30, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary July 1. Nearly 200 friends and relatives attended the occasion on the Island of Maui. Craft, a pharmacy graduate, managed a drug store in Wailuku, Maui, following their marriage; later returned to the mainland to work for Fred Meyer, Inc. The couple returned to Wailuku in 1940, where they still reside.

'30 - '39

Dr. Paul B. Frey, '36, emeritus professor of chemistry at Colorado State University and widely-read textbook author, is one of five prominent persons that were awarded honorary degrees at the Albright College commencement last May. He was honored in 1980 with the award of a National Council Citation from Albright College.

Albert Allison Rosenberg, '37, of New Brunswick, N.J., is now retired from the Consolidated Edison Electric Co. in New York.

Merle H. Markley, '38, recently retired after nearly 42 years as a biologist for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and E.P.A. He is now a part-time consultant and lives with his family in Hyattsville, Md.

Chris Starr, '39, a vocational agriculture teacher at Modoc High School in California the past 29 years, recently received recognition as the Star Adviser of FFA for the Superior Region, Northern California.

'40 - '49

Donel J. Lane, '40, of Salem has been reappointed by Gov. Vic Atiyeh to the state Water Policy Review Board and will again serve as chairman. Lane is retired as chairman for Pacific Northwest River Basins Commission in Vancouver.

Eugene lumberman N. B. "Nat" Giustina, '41, is a member of the Oregon Transportation Commission. His appointment by Gov. Vic Atiyeh was confirmed by the Oregon Senate. Giustina is a member of the OSU Foundation Board of Trustees, and last year served as Foundation president.

'Golden' Alumni return

The Golden Jubilee reunion for the class of '31 brought back nearly 200 alumni and spouses for a very enjoyable occasion. The next Oregon Stater will have photos and some features from the Golden Jubilee weekend that included a class of '26 reunion and a gathering of alumni from a number of other Golden Jubilee Association years. Below are a few special classnotes on class of '31 alumni who attended the reunion. More of these next time.

Retirement for Roy E. Dahlin, Palm Springs, Calif., has meant continuing engineering-related activities and serving as a S&L association director. . . . Gaylord and Margaret Dawley Davies, former educators, live in King City, but winter in Arizona. . . . Lionel E. Cross, San Jose, Calif., is still active in Kiwanis. Col. Bob Jarmon of Alexandria, Va., winters near San Diego; likes summers in the Pacific Northwest.

Norman H. French, who worked abroad with USAID, raises raspberries at home in Milton Freewater. . . . John W. Gallagher, Spokane, Wash., travels, gardens and bowls. . . . Lorena N. Jack of Salem, former dietitian, fits in volunteer work with her travels. . . . Former teacher Helen Abraham Hammond, Seattle, prefers her travels to be by freighter, or "by air if necessary." . . . Elizabeth Tolin Ekstrom, Elmhurst, Ill., is historian for her KKG alumnae group.

Neil J. Berg, Vancouver, Wash., works "hard as ever" in senior citizen activities. . . . Luther W. Cramer, Hermiston, combines farming with a variety of other vocations. . . . Crystal Rath Evans, for 40 years a pharmacist, lives in Vancouver, Wash. . . . Ivy Charlton Herchenheim of Manzanita, former teacher, now likes to travel. . . . N. Stafford Cooley, Colton, Calif., retired farmer, does landscaping and yard maintenance; Dorothea is "still the farmer's wife."

Portlander Ralph C. Elle still works; also has two greenhouses for gardening. . . . Ruth E. Baumbach, retired home economics teacher, does volunteer work for the Sandy senior center and Clackamas County area agency on aging. . . . J. Edwin Harper is an associate broker with a Medford firm. . . . Chloe Burge Becht, Sonoma, Calif., retired welfare worker, likes to care for pets, "tame and wild."

Sam E. Cohen, Laguna Hills, Calif., retired insurance broker, plays golf. . . . That is also recreation for Tom Drynan, Albany, former teacher and coach. . . . Philip A. and Kathryn Beight Ekstrand ('32) of Vallejo, Calif., have chosen the U.S. and Canada for their retirement travels. . . . Wayne L. Bauer is semi-retired in Oregon City. . . . "Somewhat" retired is Robley E. Doyle of Myrtle Point.

Port Angeles, Wash., is home for Allen D. and Lucile Snider Busenbark ('32), where growing roses and dahlias is their special pleasure. . . . Lyle E. and Helen Hawley Beyers ('32) of Independence have a small acreage to care for. . . . John A. Dutro, Lafayette, Calif., is president, Dutro Mat Mfg. Co., San Francisco; also goes fishing in Baja, Mex.

Maurice L. and Eva Kraus Bullard ('28) of Corvallis are active in promoting Benton County historical projects. . . . George W. and Frances Babcock Gordon ('32) enjoy traditional retirement activities in Los Altos, Calif. Burton B. Burroughs, Homedale, Idaho, biggest Suffolk ram raiser in America, is retiring after selling his purebred band. . . . Ethel Calvert Brown, Fresno, Calif., like other retirees, includes "fun" in current activities. . . . Sam and Helen Stratton Felker ('32) enjoy like in Tacoma, Wash.

More Rook capers recalled

By Norman R. Hawley, '29

I read Chris T. Wilde's recollections of his freshman year, as told in the April 1981 OREGON STATER, with amused disbelief. Was he kidding? As an OAC Rook a year later (the fall of '23) our episodes paralleled, but thereafter all similarity ceased, except for memories of Percy Locey and Robin Reed.

That "large fraternity" down on Jefferson, whose Rooks paddled Chris, would have been Phi Delta Theta. Of course his cries in the name of Locey were futile, for Percy — Phi Delt himself — was probably on the porch laughing in memory of Rook year when he got his licks. . . .

Rook Rallies were traditional class wars between freshmen and sophomores, tracing back in our Anglo-Saxon heritage to "Tom Brown at Rugby" and far beyond. We as freshmen were struggling to establish our worth while sophomores demanded that we earn our place. . . .

Sure, there was more to our fraternity life than grades, much of it odd to the current student, secure under his permissive umbrella. Irrespective of organization, let a visitor enter its portals and every member and pledge was on his feet, hand out in welcome. For the evening dinner hour it was a coat-and-tie affair. Then swearing and shady stories were taboo and subject to dime fines, meaningful money in a day when the going wage for campus labor was two-bits an hour. When manners deteriorated a call to Home Ec brought a lecturer on the run to restate basic rules of etiquette. . . .

That fall of '23 I'd been warned about a pending Rally, and with the first blast of the whistle was out the door and streaking for Rook rendezvous. Shortly we hundreds of Rooks made a brave sight as we clumped down Jefferson, then swung northward. At the Benton County Courthouse we met Waterloo. A disciplined contingent of sophs, half our number, hit our flank and we dissolved. Again I was running, this time leading a horde of howling sophs up Jefferson to 957, my Alpha Sigma Phi haven. In one supreme effort, never equaled thereafter, I cleared all seven high steps, crashed through the door and fell into the clutches of Robin Reed.

Robin and other upper classmen gave me the classic paddling with overtures. Two paddles splintered while twin blisters rose on my backsides. So what? I'd survived a Rally and scored a technical victory by out-legging those sophs, thereby escaping a clipped head. Sure, I'd been hacked, but only at the hands of homefolks. By golly, I'd make an OAC man yet!

Our remaining Rooks, clipped and limping to a man, eventually slunk in through the basement door. It was our sophs, big-eyed, who had the tale to tell. Downtown in front of SAM'S a massive Rook, wider than a barn door, had refused to run. Laughing the while, he'd knocked over-sized sophs into gutters while tossing all others back into the faces of his tormentors. In the end numbers told and he went down under a tidal wave of humanity, still laughing. Thus did Wes Schulmerich — old "Iron Horse" himself — make dramatic debut into another "campus activity." . . .

Chris Wilde's indignation over forced labor in the rain reminded me of George W. Peavy, Dean of Forestry and eventual President of Oregon State, and how he handled downpours. When he chased his students into the Willamette National Forest for two weeks of honest field experience, I as a neophyte Fernhopper was along. As though the Dean planned it, the weather cooperated by raining every day. . . . Through our young skulls filtered the realization that if loggers and foresters dived for cover at every shower, Oregon's greatest industry would fold within months.

Our year 500 Rooks poured out to build the bonfire. We manhandled hayracks like galley slaves as we picked up crates, boxes, discarded baby carriages, rotting lumber, whole sections of picket fences, chicken coops or what have you. A lady called: "Please, now that we have inside plumbing, take that thing in the backyard." We took it; and "the thing" — hoisted by block-and-tackle — became the crown jewel at the apex of our towering creation, sitting squarely across its oil-soaked up-draft flue. That night in all the glare it teetered and danced as orange flames burst from its side vents. Compression blew wide the door as a great ball of black smoke was vomited, to float southward. "Orange and black!" we screamed. "It's a sign. . . . Here we come, Oregon!"

Next day at Eugene it all came true. Our Beavers broke the long drought by smashing hated Webfeet for the second time in 15 years.

That football victory put us on the golden stairs. Robin Reed, wrestling for U.S.A., would win all his matches by falls in the 1924 Olympics at Paris and bring the gold back to campus. A couple of years later as Coach Reed his Aggie wrestlers would win the National A.A.U. championship. Not to be outdone, "Iron Horse" Schulmerich and his mates would travel east and whip N.Y.U., claimant of the national football crown.

Wilde's bemused memories of coldwater hoses up pants legs prompts the suspicion he was spared the main campus event, that of being tubbed Aggie-style. Veterans of the Philippine Insurrection brought the "water cure" to the mainland. Vets of WWI tinkered and refined. Any bathroom in independent hall or fraternity could serve as the horror chamber. The brimming tub, afloat with cracked ice, simulated the medieval rack. . . .

I ran with the Class of '27, but a flat billfold kept me in limbo until '29. Then I strolled forth with sheepskin under arm and right into the eye of the Great Depression. Small potatoes that, when compared to Rook year. HEY, ROOK!

Grayheaded now, I must be old. Yet through my mind pounds the beat of that old campus song:

"I'm an OAC man, sir,
And will be 'til I die!"

Californians gather at Lodi

To the Editor:

Craig ('45) and I have finally made it back to the West Coast! In his job with General Mills as plant manager he has been transferred back to the plant where he started as a trainee in 1947 in Lodi, Calif. We were sent to Buffalo, N.Y., from here in 1960 and it took us 20 years to get back!

Recently we were completely surprised by 31 friends of 20 years ago with a delightful housewarming. . . . complete with belly dancer. There were several Oregon Staters of the '40s present: Wilma (Waggoner) Dustin and "Dusty" from Oakdale, Calif., Maxine (Miller) Huddle and Bob from Mountain View, Calif., and Susy (Stern) Simpson and Kerby from San Ramon, Calif. Kerby's fantastic record collection supplied us with the "big band" music for dancing throughout the evening.

We're happy to be back on the coast and look forward to a weekend with more Oregon Staters when Edna (Skinner) LaFranchi and Milt arrive tonight. He operates LaFranchi Real Estate in Bend and was instrumental in helping us locate our retirement property there.

John P. Twomey, '37, died Sept. 3, 1980, at his Westchester, Calif., home after a long illness.

Born in Minnesota and raised in Bend, Mr. Twomey graduated in pharmacy and was president of the Pharmaceutical Association. A band musician for four years, he was president of Kappa Kappa Psi, the national music honor society. He was president of his fraternity, Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

During World War II he served in the Army Medical Corps. Shortly thereafter he brought his family to Westchester, a Los Angeles suburb, where he lived for 33 years. He was with the Johnson and Johnson Co. for 41 years, receiving many honors, including the company's highest national recognition, the Kiley Memorial Award. In addition to serving with several professional organizations, he took part in a number of civic and church activities.

He is survived by his wife, Wilna Ireland Twomey, '42; a sister, Mary Bergstrahl of Bend; seven sons, and six grandchildren.

He had justifiable pride in his seven sons. They include a California medical school professor, a Rhodes Scholar now with a business systems firm, a University of Michigan economics professor, a head teacher of special education at Santa Barbara, a recent law school graduate and two recent California college graduates.

Dyksterhuis, soil scientist

Eugene L. Dyksterhuis, '55, died Feb. 26, 1981 in Baker. He was 51.

Since his graduation from OSU in 1955, Mr. Dyksterhuis has worked with the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture as a soil scientist. Most recently he has been working on a multi-year project to complete a soil map for the entire county.

Survivors include his wife, Pauline Dyksterhuis of Baker; his mother, Joyce Dyksterhuis of Springfield; a brother, two sisters and several nieces and nephews.

Benjamin Luebke, professor

Benjamin Harrison Luebke, '25, a missionary who turned to teaching and was a member of the University of Tennessee sociology faculty for 29 years, died June 7 in Orlando, Fla., at the age of 80.

Dr. Luebke was born in Toutle, Wash., one of five sons each named for an American president by their German-born father. When college time approached for the boys, the father moved the family to a farm near Corvallis.

A master's degree in agriculture and rural sociology from University of Kansas followed for Dr. Luebke. He and his new bride, Adelle, went to Bolivia as missionaries. Later, they were in Chile when the Depression of the early '30s closed the work there. After some doctoral study at University of Chicago and a brief return to the West Coast, he accepted an invitation to teach at Tennessee Polytechnic Institute and, eventually, with the University of Tennessee.

He completed his doctorate at University of Florida with a study that took him to rural Mexico for a study of villages. Completion of his doctorate in the mid-'50s was the culmination of many years of hope and effort.

Wife Adelle survives in Orlando, Fla.

Alumni records show that the brothers were George Washington Luebke, '21; William McKinley Luebke, '21, and James Monroe Luebke, '19, MS '31, all deceased. There is no recent record of Theodore Roosevelt Luebke, '27.

Adele Wood, Warrenton resident

Adele Margaret Balsiger Wood, '40, of Warrenton, passed away May 29 in a Portland hospital after an extended illness. She was 63.

Mrs. Wood was born in Portland and attended Grant High School there. She majored in secretarial science at Oregon State and was president of Alpha Chi Omega sorority her senior year.

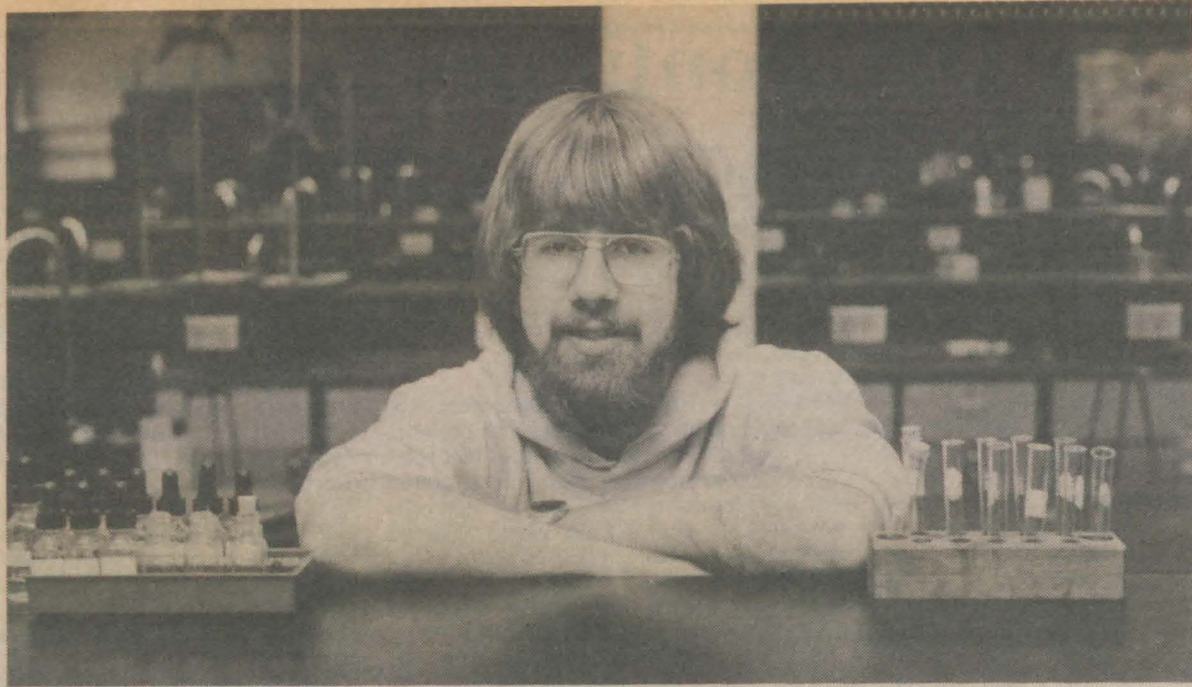

Mrs. Wood worked as a secretary in Portland and during World War II was assistant personnel director for Kaiser Shipyards. In 1946 she came to Seaside and worked as a part-time secretary and a substitute teacher for the Seaside School District. She retired in 1979.

In 1942 she married Charles Wood in Ft. Bragg, N.C. A forestry major, he was a member of the class of '41.

Mrs. Wood took part in a number of community and church activities in Seaside and Astoria.

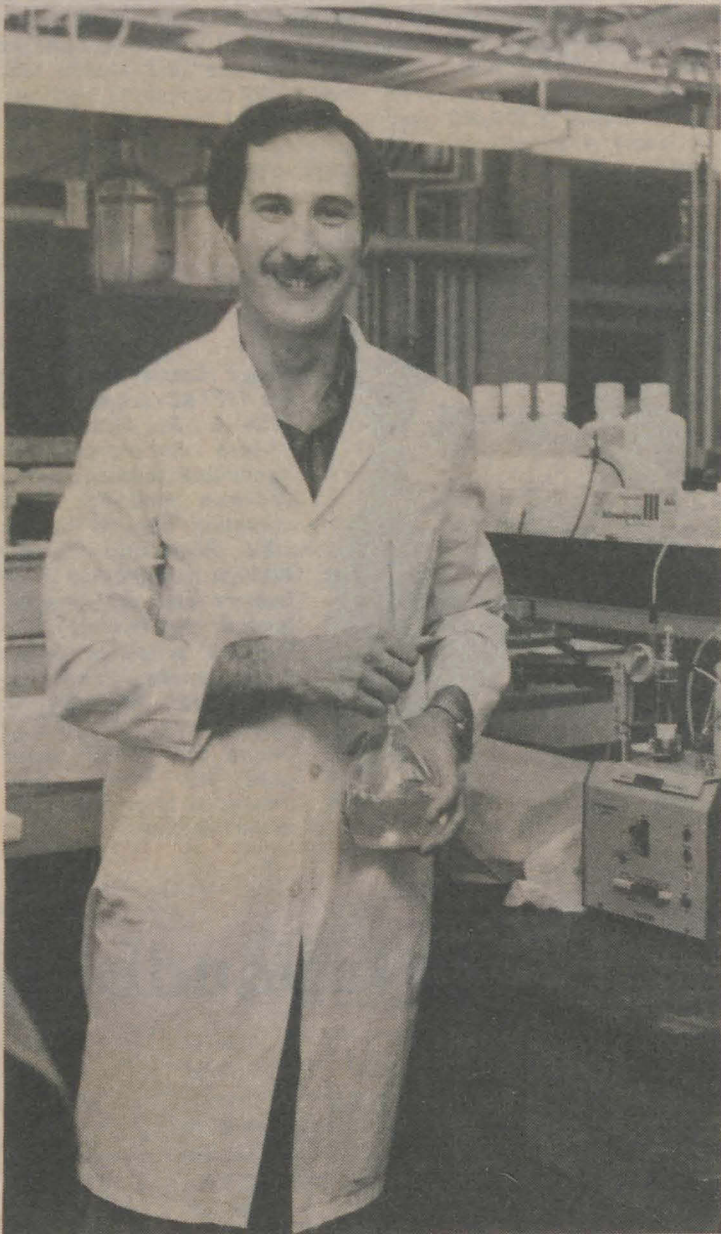

She retained a strong interest in Oregon State throughout her life. The last function she was able to attend on campus was the class of '40 reunion a year ago.

Mr. Wood survives at their Warrenton home. Also surviving is a daughter, Carol Wood-Rich, Melbourne, Australia; two sons, Charles Wood, Jr., Sitka, Alaska, and Edwin Wood, Warrenton, and four grandchildren.

Annual Report to Donors
1980-81

The following pages display the strength and breadth of the OSU Family. They chronicle just a few of the many ways in which your contributions help; and they recognize the many, many individuals and organizations which help make OSU a leading teaching and research institution.

Through the cheerful faces of these scholarship recipients, we at the OSU Foundation say thank you.

(Clockwise, from top left: Joseph B. Dealy, science major from La Grande, received a $500 OSU Merit Scholarship; Carol Mattox, home economics major from Bend, received the $150 Electrical Womens Round Table Scholarship; Robin Pike, technical journalism major from Corvallis, was awarded a $1,500 Scripps Howard Foundation Scholarship; Cheryl Lynn Koch, education major from Springfield, received the $2,100 Westwend Restaurant Ltd. Scholarship; Daryl A. Haasch, soil science major from Milton-Freewater, was awarded the $500 Ray A. Pendleton Scholarship in Agriculture.)

Private support for OSU continues to grow

Private financial support from friends and alumni of Oregon State University set new highs last year, both in terms of dollars, with more than $8.3 million contributed, and in terms of donors, with more than 20,000 people and organizations contributing.

Private donations are used by the OSU Foundation to finance university programs which, while essential to providing quality education, are nonetheless outside the basic operating budgets provided by ever-limited public funding sources.

The generosity of OSU's friends and alumni made possible the following in 1980-81:

- Nearly $1 million in scholarships, loans and other forms of direct assistance was provided to hundreds of students. Several new scholarship funds were set up, including the Dubach Scholarship Fund, which provided $616 to each of 11 students in the last fiscal year. The fund was established by the estate of OSU political science professor Ulyses G. Dubach, who died in 1972, and his wife Ida, who died in 1980.

Other new scholarships included the $1,000 Chevron Community Scholarship Award, the $800 pre-veterinary scholarship provided by the Chintimini Kennel Club, and separate memorial scholarships in the names of Bruce Faddis, R.L. Clark, and Don Welp, among others.

- More than $850,000 went to support scores of varied educational programs, representing an increase of 185 per cent over the previous year. Funding was provided for such projects as archeology digs, geology field studies, musical instrument purchases, math tutoring services, the dance theatre, and many other worthy programs.

- Library assistance nearly doubled in 1980-81 over the previous year, with a total of $15,694 going to support acquisition of new books and other library needs. Newly established last year was the Verna P. Pendleton Library Fund, the Duis Bolinger Library Fund, and several memorial funds in support of the library.

- More than $450,000 was provided for professional development of faculty members, supporting such things as conference and seminar fees and travel stipends. Tektronix Inc. of Portland contributed a grant in support of the chair in Computer Science and the OSU Foundation financed such programs as the School of Business Visiting Professor Series.

- More than $1.3 million in equipment and buildings was provided in 1980-81, including $885,000 from the Max Fleischmann Foundation for the construction of the fourth floor of the new Crop Sciences Building.

Among other gifts was an $81,125 array processor from Floating Point Systems of Portland for the Electrical Engineering Department, and two HP85 programmable computers from the Hewlett-Packard Co. of Corvallis for the Computer Science Department.

- Nearly $300,000 went to support various research projects being conducted at OSU last year. One of the largest single grants came from the Battelle Memorial Institute of Ohio, which awarded $25,000 to mechanical engineering professor Dr. James R. Welty for research into heat transfer with fluidized beds.

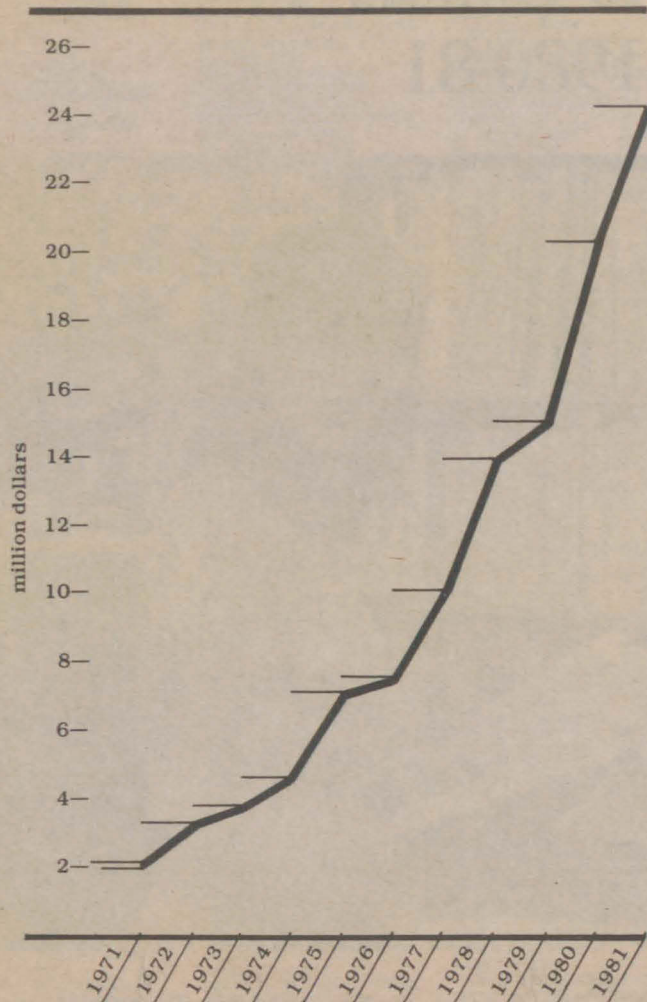

The salmon research of Oceanography Professor Dr. William G. Pearcy attracted more than $10,000 in grants and gifts in the past year, including $5,000 from the Weyerhaeuser Corp. and $3,500 from UNESCO. The Medical Research Foundation of Oregon awarded a $13,860 grant to Dr. Henry W. Schaup to further his work in protein synthesis in the field of biochemistry. And the OSU Rabbit Research Center received $20,000 from Ralston-Purina, $15,000 from the Carnation Co., and scores of individual gifts from $5 to $25 from small rabbit breeders in the U.S., Canada, South America and Africa.

All told, OSU alumni and other individual donors contributed more than $2.1 million to the OSU Foundation last year; private foundations contributed $1.9 million; businesses contributed $1.28 million; and various clubs and organizations contributed $283,020. In addition, interest earned from Foundation investments earned $1.3 million in the past fiscal year.

Several individual examples of the good such private contributions did for OSU in 1980-81 are featured in this Annual Report to Donors. Also featured are the many friends and alumni who made it all possible. To each and every one of the individuals listed on these pages, the OSU Foundation extends its gratitude.

OSU Foundation Assets, 1971-1981

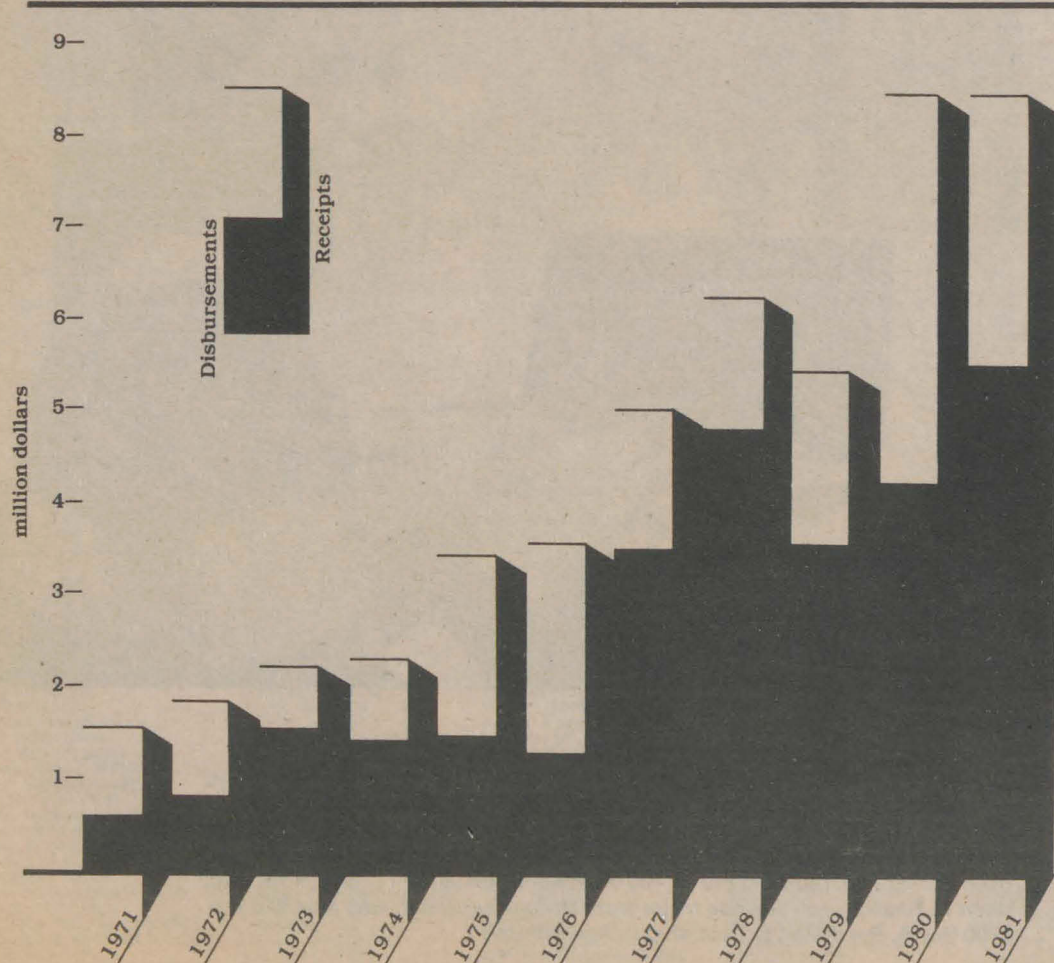

Susan (Camie) Morrison is the 1981-82 recipient of the $750 E. R. Jackman Institute Scholarship in agricultural journalism. The Jackman Institute is an operating division of the OSU Foundation funded through contributions from farmers and agriculturally related businesses. The Institute promotes public understanding and appreciation of Oregon agricultural resources. During the 1980-81 fiscal year, 122 donors contributed a total of $13,760 to the Institute.

Foundation Trustees lead the way with 'winning' attitude

"I think you've got a winner here folks!"

Those were the words of Norman Leyden, who had just finished conducting an excellent performance of the Oregon Symphony Pops Orchestra during dedication week for the new OSU Conference Center last April.

I was sitting in the audience when I heard him say that, and although he was referring to the center's magnificent Austin Auditorium, I couldn't help but think of a broader reference.

We do indeed have a winner in our new cultural and conference facility. It is a unique resource that will add significantly to the intellectual climate of our campus, attracting not only cultural events but also scholastic and professional conferences, conventions and symposiums.

But our real asset is the winning attitude of the people who turned that building from an idea into a brick and concrete reality.

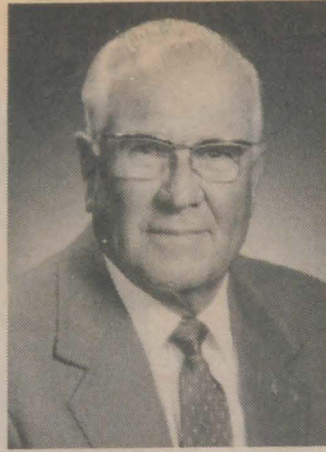

The confidence of the OSU Foundation trustees in taking on such an enormous project showed a bold and daring act of faith in Oregon State University. The goal of raising $4.5 million entirely from private contributors was extremely ambitious — without question the largest single private fund-raising effort ever undertaken by a public educational institution in this region.

We have no one to thank more for the existence of this attractive and very useful building than the Foundation trustees themselves. They not only said we could do it, they also personally contributed the funds up front that got us going, and then gave unselfishly of their own time to ensure its completion on schedule and within budget.

In an even broader sense, the new center also represents yet another "winner" we have here at OSU, and that is the loyalty of our alumni and friends, a loyalty that is unusually high. Many people and organizations responded to our call for help with this project and many, many more continued to support the university through contributions to the OSU Fund and other gifts in 1980-81.

It is no real surprise to find our supporters there when we needed them, for they have always been there when needed. Their unflinching support over the years has inspired in all of us the confidence to take on these challenges and build for an even brighter future. The new OSU Conference Center is, in a way, a monument to the winning attitude that has made Oregon State University a great institution of higher education — herself a winner in every sense of the word.

From N. B. Giustina

Thousands of friends show their pride in Oregon State

Oregon State University means a lot to me. And if you look through these pages you'll see that I'm not alone.

Thousands of individuals believe in this great university. The names you see filling page after page in this special section of the "Oregon Stater" represent people who have put their shoulder to the wheel and, in whatever way they could, have helped to uphold the tradition of excellence that is Oregon State University's trademark.

Every one of these individuals has his or her own special reason for giving support to OSU. I applaud each of them for their commitment and gratefully thank them for their help.

But the real "thanks" must come in the pride of knowing that they are Oregon State University — for an organization is really nothing more than individuals joined by a common mission. At OSU, that mission is to ensure high quality resident instruction; to pioneer frontiers in scientific research; and to be of public service to the great state of Oregon and its environs.

We here at the Foundation do our part by making sure that the extra resources necessary to carry out that mission are available year after year, and in the decades to come. It is no small task. But with more than 20,000 people pitching in and still more to come, we are getting the job done.

We have many accomplishments to talk about this year. For the first time in our history, the OSU Fund's annual giving campaign attracted more than a half-million dollars from contributors. A new donor group, the OSU Patrons, has been organized with the worthy goal of building book acquisition funds for the William Jasper Kerr Library. And in June we completed perhaps the most ambitious and gratifying project we've ever undertaken — the campaign to raise $4.5 million to build a cultural and conference facility on the OSU campus. To the trustees, alumni, and friends who did so much to make that project a success, a heartfelt thank you. It's a building we can all be proud of.

Indeed, the entire year is one to be proud of. The support from our ever-widening circle of friends and family made many important programs possible this year: it financed several useful research efforts, added books to the library and equipment to our classrooms, and perhaps most importantly, extended a family's helping hand to hundreds of future Oregon Staters through much needed student aid and scholarships.

Some of the individual examples of the good your generosity has done in 1980-81 are on these pages. Read them with pride.

It's Open! New Center already busy hub of activity

Potted plants, hanging artworks and generous window areas brighten the interior main hall of the OSU Conference Center, allowing conferees and visitors a comfortable and pleasant place to lounge between meetings and during intermissions.

The OSU Conference Center has already attracted several thousand visitors for meetings and performances held there. The main entrance faces west along 26th Street, where ample parking is available in the Parker Stadium lots. Climbing high above the brick-paved Anderson Court entry way is the black facade of Austin Auditorium. On the right is the Murdock conference wing and on the left is the Kresge Administration wing.

On April 10, 1981, the OSU Foundation celebrated one of the greatest achievements in its 34-year history when it dedicated the newly opened OSU Conference Center, a handsome $4.5 million facility built entirely with private contributions.

The center represents a 44,000-square-foot gift to OSU and to the people of Oregon. It is a gift from more than 1500 individuals, 100 businesses and 15 foundations who contributed time, money and materials to the project.

At the April 10 ribbon-cutting, Gov. Victor Atiyeh extended his personal gratitude to these contributors, to the OSU Foundation Trustees, and to all the "volunteers of Oregon who devoted so much of their time to the services of this state. This building in the years to come will be significant in the eyes of thousands and then hundreds of thousands of people."

Already more than 30,000 people have attended events at the center, and more than 100 major events with a projected attendance of 60,000 are already scheduled for 1981. In its tripartite role as conference center, performing arts hall and continuing education facility, the building will attract more visitors annually than any other on the OSU campus, with the exception of Gill Coliseum.

The heart of the center is the 1200-seat Austin Auditorium, an acoustically engineered performing theater expected to draw cultural events of a quality and diversity never before possible.

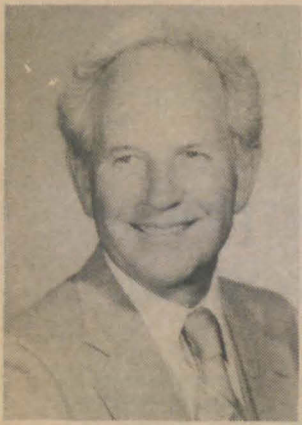

In addition, a multi-use 200-seat lecture hall and three large conference rooms — all furnished with sophisticated audio-visual equipment — are available to public groups, professional organizations and educational seminars. There are also two smaller meeting rooms, a medium-sized conference room, the Giustina Art Gallery, a small office wing and a service pantry for catering meals.

But the most impressive facet of the new facility remains the fact that it was built without any public funding or tax dollars — the first such structure on the 113-year-old OSU campus.

As an editorial in the Corvallis "Gazette-Times" put it last April: "That's what the people of Oregon should remember. No federal handouts, no state handouts — only the generosity of a lot of people — the Oregon Way."

Foundation works to enrich educational opportunities

Providing excellence in education at Oregon State University requires a blend of many ingredients. The stock is public support, which gives the university its basic operating budget — its "minimum daily requirements." But just as important are private contributions, which add those enriching opportunities so essential to the growth and development of students and faculty.

The task of raising those private dollars, and of watchfully stirring them into the OSU "pot", rests with the 84 trustees who govern the Oregon State University Foundation.

The OSU Foundation was established in 1947 to encourage and administer private gifts to benefit the university. Since then, it has received more than $50 million from OSU's many supporters, directed more than $30 million into university needs, and built assets in excess of $20 million in its continuing mission of laying a firm foundation for the future of Oregon State University.

This record of accomplishment is a credit to the trustees of the OSU Foundation. These volunteers work diligently and quietly behind the scenes to help maintain the traditional quality of OSU programs.

This year's completion of the OSU Conference Center marks a singular achievement for the trustees and the honorary trustees listed on this page. Many of them numbered among the most generous of contributors to the center project; and all of them contributed considerable time and effort to make it a success.

Next year's officers, elected at the spring meeting of the board, will be: N. B. "Nat" Giustina, chairman; Gene D. Knudson, president; H. Dean Pape, vice president; Dr. Robert MacVicar, secretary; and Don H. Wake, treasurer.

OSU Fund celebrates banner year in 1980-81

The OSU Fund enjoyed its biggest year get in 1980-81, topping the half million dollar mark for the first time in history with a total of $510,201 in contributions from 13,965 alumni and friends.

These contributions represent the ever-increasing level of renewing support from the many members of the OSU Family — a family of contributors which now stretches from Ivy Burton Thomas of the class of 1901 all the way to the 813 cap-and-gown donors in the most recent class of 1981.

In the past 10 years the total number of donors to the OSU Fund has more than doubled, and the size of the average gift — now at $36.53 — has more than tripled.

A good measure of the success of the 1980-81 fund-raising year can be traced to the telefund campaigns, which last year involved 760 volunteers in 48 cities in three western states. More than 7,500 individuals contacted in the telefund drives pledged a total of $151,629 to benefit OSU, an increase of nearly 10 per cent over the previous year.

Telefunds which drew the most pledges were:

- 1) Portland; 2,2192 pledges, $38,045.
- 2) OSU Student Telefund; 1,598 pledges, $34,170.
- 3) Seattle; 364 pledges, $7,686.
- 4) Eugene; 325 pledges, $9,434.
- 5) Corvallis; 278 pledges, $5,137.

Telefunds with the highest percentage of alumni pledging were the Tri-Cities, with 66.7 per cent; Tillamook, with 66 per cent; Newport, with 64 per cent; Redding, CA, with 63.6 per cent; and Pendleton, with 61.5 per cent.

A look at the class year statistics shows that the Class of 1950 produced the largest number of contributors, with 453, followed closely by the Class of 1969 with 441 contributors.

The Class of 1936 recorded the highest percentage of alumni participation, with 30.2 per cent of all 1936 alumni on record contributing. The class of 1938 was the leader in total contributions, giving $31,406.

Other statistical breakdowns in OSU Fund participation show the following leaders for 1980-81:

- Puerto Rico recorded the highest percentage of alumni participation by state or territory with 26.3 per cent.
- Sherman County registered the highest percentage participation among Oregon counties with 27.5 per cent.

— King County recorded the highest percentage participation among Washington State counties with 23.8 per cent.

— Sigma Phi Epsilon alumni led all other fraternities in participation with 28.5 per cent participation.

— Alpha Chi Omega recorded the highest participation among sororities with 30 per cent.

Gifts to the OSU Fund go to support such programs as the Library, counseling and tutorial assistance for students, professional development for faculty members, special equipment purchases, alumni activities and the "Oregon Stater" alumni newspaper.

David Mann, a 1979 OSU graduate, was one of several volunteers who participated in the Portland Telefund Drive for 1981, which netted $38,045 for the OSU Fund. The photograph was taken by Susan Crane, another volunteer and a 1979 OSU graduate.

Foundation operating divisions support variety of interests

The OSU Foundation is the umbrella organization under which eight individual operating divisions exist to raise funds for specific uses or to serve specific purposes.

The OSU Beaver Club, which is the annual giving program of OSU's intercollegiate athletic programs, provides grants-in-aid to student athletes.

The OSU Moms Club and the OSU Dads Club, which will be celebrating their 50th anniversaries next year, raise and contribute funds for scholarships. Last year the clubs awarded more than 50 students with tuition scholarships totalling more than $25,000.

The E.R. Jackman Institute for Agricultural Resources exists to promote public understanding and appreciation of Oregon agriculture.

The Oregon 4-H Foundation has a mission of soliciting and distributing private contributions in support of the wide-ranging 4-H youth education program of the OSU Extension Service.

The OSU Student Foundation provides financial support and volunteer services to benefit student organizations and activities on campus, and conducts an annual student telefund campaign.

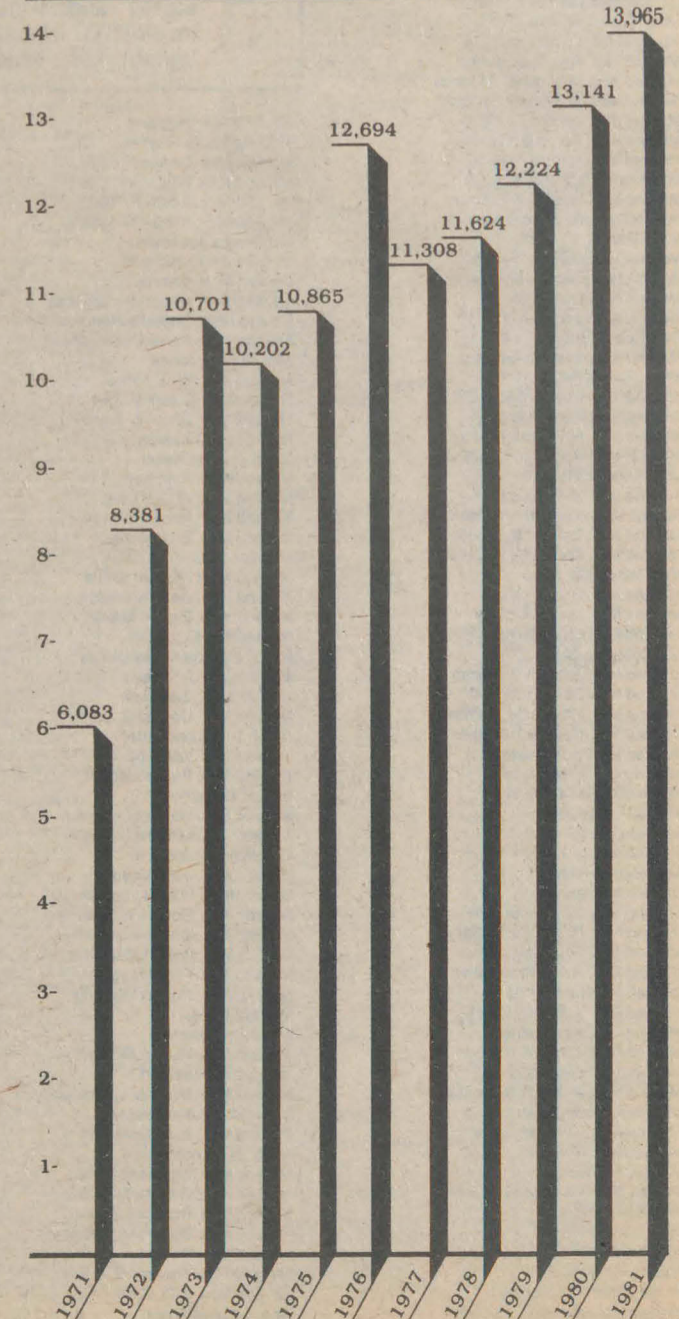

The Construction Education Fund exists to support research and public service programs in the construction field.

The Thundering Seas Foundation supports the unique arts and crafts education facility at Depoe Bay on the Oregon Coast.

Oregon State University is fortunate to count among its most valued of benefactors the following members of the prestigious OSU Presidents Club, the Foundation's top donor group.

Membership in the Presidents Club is extended to those donors who contribute $10,000 or more to the OSU Foundation, either through a single gift or through annual contributions of $1,000 or more. Another option for membership is through a deferred gift of $25,000 or more, which can be made in the form of a bequest, life income trust or transfer of life insurance. This allows donors to retain the use of their property or its income for as long as they live, and still help secure the financial future of the university.

Many members of the Presidents Club, and some of those who passed away in the last two years, made especially significant gifts to the Foundation in 1980-81. Some are mentioned here; others are noted elsewhere in this section.

— The estate of Ulysses G. and Ida Dubach gave $245,000 to endow the Dubach Distinguished Chair of Political Science. The gift will provide about $18,000 annually to bring a noted professor to the campus for a term or for a series of lectures.

— An $83,000 lectureship fund was established by Lois Rising and her husband, Dr. L. Wait Rising, who died in 1979. A life income agreement established by Lois Rising is expected to eventually increase that fund to more than $500,000. It will be used to bring guest lecturers in the sciences, pharmacy, agriculture and veterinary medicine to the campus.

— A bequest from the late Dr. Daniel G. Emrick, a 1923 OSU graduate, has created a $55,000 endowment fund to benefit the Department of Geology's field study programs.

— A concert grand Bosendorfer Piano was provided for the OSU Foundation Center's Austin Auditorium by a gift from the Avery L. Lasswell family in memory of Avery Lasswell, a 1916 OSU graduate who died in 1979 at the age of 83.

These are but a few examples of the vital role played by the OSU Presidents Club in the long-term growth and development of the university. Their financial and moral support is one of Oregon State University's most highly prized assets.

This oriental rosewood carving is from a large estate gift made to the OSU Foundation by the late Elvin A. and Ruth Yapp Hoy of Arlington, Va. The couple left a memorial endowment valued at $250,000 as the remainder of 10 separate Life Income Agreements established between 1976 and 1979 with gifts of stocks and bonds. The endowment income is intended for the general benefit of students, faculty and educational programs at OSU. In addition, 15 Oriental artworks and artifacts, including this Chinese carving of a reclining fisherman, were bequeathed to the Horner Museum. Elvin A. Hoy, a 1924 graduate of OSU, passed away in February at the age of 78. His wife died three weeks later at age 79. Both were strong supporters of Oregon State and contributed several items to Horner Museum's Oriental Collection.

Dr. Manning H. Becker, professor of agriculture and resource economics, was the recipient of the first Burlingham Distinguished Professor Award. The award was established this year by Don Burlingham of Woodburn. It provides a $1,000 stipend to the recipient and another $1,000 to the Department of Agriculture for professional development of faculty members. Don Burlingham is a Foundation Trustee and, with his wife, a member of the OSU President's Club.

Membership in the OSU Dean's List represents a minimum contribution to the OSU Foundation of $500 during the past fiscal year.

Many Dean's List members give valuable and useful equipment and property gifts, while others give cash contributions to benefit specified programs or for the general benefit of the university. Often, the individual's gift is matched by his or her employer, doubling the good and qualifying the individual for membership in this select donor group.

The Dean's List members hold a special place in the OSU family, for their sizable donations are crucial to continuing the high quality of instruction at Oregon State University. Individuals and couples who qualified for membership in 1980-81 are listed here. Corporations, foundations and other organization members of the Dean's List are grouped on pages 16-17.

Anita Green, undergraduate advisor in horticulture, looks over a portion of the Kershaw Library, a gift of Mrs. Gordon Kershaw of Central Point, Oregon. Approximately 300 books from the library collection of the late Gordon Kershaw valued at more than $2,600 were donated to the departments of Plant Pathology, Horticulture and Entomology, and to the Jackson County Extension Service. Kershaw was a well-known orchardist and nurseryman in the Rogue Valley region.

The OSU Patrons

The OSU Patrons represent a new level of donor recognition among the OSU Foundation's 20,000 donors.

The group was formed this year to recognize those friends and alumni who have contributed $250 or more, but have not yet qualified for membership in the Dean's List. Most of the Patrons listed here were accorded this honor because of unusually generous gifts to the OSU Fund's annual giving campaign in 1980-81. Donors may also qualify for membership by taking advantage of the corporate matching gift program through their place of employment.

The special project of the Patrons is to help increase book acquisitions for the William Jasper Kerr Library, as well as aiding other needs as designated by donors and the Foundation trustees. A Patrons' Book Plate, pictured here, will be inscribed with the name of each first-time Patron and placed in new books purchased as the result of Patron contributions.

In order to keep its students and faculty in the forefront of their fields, OSU must maintain current and broad library listings covering many disciplines. In these tight budgetary times, financing a sufficient level of book acquisitions presents a constant dilemma for the Kerr Library staff. The formation of the OSU Patrons, with their commitment to enhancing library acquisitions, comes at a most opportune time in OSU's continued development toward excellence in education.

Individuals and couples who qualified as Patrons in 1980-81 are listed here. Organization members are listed on pages 16-17.

The book collection at OSU's William Jasper Kerr Library is continually growing thanks to contributors to the several library acquisition funds maintained by the OSU Foundation. New this year is the Vera Pendleton Memorial Library Fund established with a $5,000 endowment gift from Dr. Ray Pendleton of Salem. Here, Director of OSU Libraries Rod Waldron poses with some early encyclopedias and dictionaries purchased with private contributions.

Dick Joyce of the Oregon Association of Nurserymen peers through the dust as he readies the grounds of the OSU Conference Center for plantings. The nurserymen coordinated the landscaping of the center's grounds, a huge undertaking which represented more than $65,000 in donated materials and volunteer labor.

The OSU Foundation's matching gift program attracted much higher participation in 1980-81. The number of individuals participating nearly doubled, and the number of companies involved also increased.

Many Oregon Staters work for companies which gladly match, double or even triple eligible employee gifts made to educational institutions. If your company is not listed below, you can learn if it has a matching gift program by inquiring at your personnel office or by contacting the OSU Foundation in the Administrative Services Bldg. on the campus.

The Foundation sincerely thanks those companies with the foresight and philanthropy to participate in the betterment of higher education.

Small businesses, large corporations, foundations, fraternal groups, professional associations — organizations of all kinds and sizes provided significant support to Oregon State University in 1980-81.

These two pages demonstrate the breadth of support given the university by organizations. All gave generously, and many were deservingly extended membership in the OSU Presidents Club, the Dean's List, The OSU Patrons and

The OSU Associates because of the unusually high level of their generosity.

Among the largest donors to the Foundation in 1980-81 were the M. J. Murdock Charitable Trust, which contributed more than $470,000 to the OSU Conference Center construction project; and the Kellogg Foundation, which gave more than $705,000 to the OSU Foundation for the Western Regional Rural Development Commission, a six-state cooperative working with 4-H in leadership development projects.

Professor John Mingle revs up a $22,000 lift truck donated to the Foundation for the Mechanical Engineering Department last winter by the Hyster Co. of Portland. The truck serves a dual purpose as an educational tool for students in mechanical equipment design and as a "work horse" for the department's shops.

Dr. Rodney V. Frakes, professor of plant breeding in the Crop Science Department, and Robert R. Becker, professor of biochemistry, were recipients of the Elizabeth P. Ritchie Distinguished Service Awards for 1980-81. The $1,000 prize, established as a memorial to the late Elizabeth Ritchie, a long-time OSU Library staff member, is made annually to recognize outstanding undergraduate teachers and advisors. Dr. Frakes teaches agronomy and does research on cool-season grasses. Dr. Becker is chairman and chief advisor of the core biology program.

in their name. Newly established this year is the history lecture series fund in honor of George and Dorothy Carson. Professor Carson retired in 1980 after 19 years of service to the university in the Department of History. Contributions to the fund will support an annual public lecture by nationally known figures on the topics of politics, history and international affairs.

Dr. Henry W. Schaup, assistant professor of biochemistry and biophysics, was the recipient of a $13,860 grant from the Medical Research Foundation of Oregon last year to further his work in protein synthesis. Schaup is studying the mechanisms by which cells synthesize protein for use in the body — knowledge which may enable medical and biochemical researchers to develop safer and more effective antibiotics.

Dr. William G. Percy, professor of oceanography, has attracted more than $10,000 in grants and gifts in the past year to help fund his research into the survival patterns of juvenile salmon on their first trek into the ocean off the Oregon coast. A $5,000 gift from the Weyerhaeuser Corp. and a $3,500 grant from UNESCO in France were among those received this year.

THIRTY-ONE SAPPHIRE MINK
— like this one being held by John Adair, senior instructor in animal science — were donated to the Foundation last year by Sigurd Libeck of Astoria. The animals were turned over to the OSU Experimental Fur Farm to be used in ongoing research there. Besides the mink, which are valued at $4,475, the Foundation also received more than $6,000 in fish and animal scraps from the Northwest Fur Breeders Cooperative in Edmonds, Wash., and a 400 lb. capacity feed mixer for the benefit of the fur farm.

Stu Thomas (standing) and Steve Schibosky help a caller on the Telephone Tutor Hot-Line at the Math Sciences Learning Center on campus. The phone-in tutorial service is offered weekday evenings as an aid to students who get stuck on math problems while studying at home. It was set up last spring with a $2,300 grant from the OSU Foundation. Thomas is director of the MSLC and Schibosky, a graduate student, is a tutor.

The OSU Geology Department has a permanent site for its Summer Field Camp, thanks to the purchase of about three acres of land near Mitchell in Wheeler County, Oregon. The camp, now in its 45th year, brings undergraduate geology students from OSU and other western states together for several weeks of on-site study in Eastern Oregon. The OSU Foundation provided $6,000 for the purchase of the new permanent camp site near the north flank of the Ochoco Mountains. Contributions from industry helped pay for the digging of a well and other improvements on the land.

The Merrywest Holly Farm in Lincoln County, a 1976 gift to the OSU Foundation, was sold in the past year for $365,000. The 90-acre farm was donated by Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Swallow, formerly of Lincoln City, to benefit horticulture research at OSU, and was managed by the Foundation for the past five years. The Foundation encourages such gifts of land, whether income-producing or unimproved property, especially in cases where the property has become a tax liability to the owner or a burden to maintain in retirement. In many cases, Life Income Agreements may be established with a property gift to the Foundation, providing the donor with both a charitable contribution for tax purposes and a fixed annual income for life.

Dr. Delbert Hemphill, poses with his "solar pod" vegetable garden at the North Willamette Agriculture Experiment Station near Aurora. Dr. Hemphill, a professor of horticulture at the station, is researching the feasibility of using solar heat to extend the home gardening season into, and perhaps through, the winter. The two-year project is being funded by a $5,185 grant from the OSU Foundation from the Collins Foundation of Portland.

Joseph Lance, '61, has moved from Klamath Falls to Medford where he has been appointed manager of the Crater Branch of the Western Bank.

Stephen C. Stocks, '61, has been promoted to manager of manufacturing for the Oregon Metallurgical Corp. in Albany.

Donald E. Manzer, '61, is vice president of Lesh, Manzer & McFarlane, Certified Public Accountants, in Portland.

Linda Lopez, '62, was recently hired as executive director of Marion County Chapter of the March of Dimes in Salem.

David D. Wiley, '63, works as a management analyst for the Department of Public Works, City of Salem, and his wife (Linda McClure, '63) is employed by the American Red Cross as director of service to military families and veterans.

Robert M. Butler, '64, professional engineer, has formed Butler Brokers, Inc., a real estate brokerage firm specializing in industrial and commercial properties in the Portland area.

James A. Haefer, '65, is now employed as chairman of the Department of Engineering Technology at Southwest State University in Marshall, Minn. His wife (Ruth Robb, '61) works as a typesetter in the advertising department of the Marshall Independent newspaper.

McKern family update

Signing her letter as "A proud mother," Mrs. Harold McKern of Brownsville wrote the Oregon Stater to bring us up to date on the four OSU graduates in her family.

Daughter Catherine, BS '67 and MS '69, is a candidate for a doctorate in geography at OSU, and recently presented a paper at the Western Regional Science Association in Newport Beach, Calif.

Roberta McKern, '69, who has three degrees from OSU in English and art, is a graduate student at Wichita State University.

John McKern, '68, is a fish biologist at Walla Walla, Wash., for the Corps of Engineers. His wife, Sarah Jane Ringer McKern, '69, is an assistant teacher in special education in the Walla Walla school system.

A "thank you" to Mrs. McKern, who reads her daughter's copy of the Oregon Stater.

On a recent visit to Portland, mixing mountain climbing and business, Zelma Reed Long, '65, was interviewed by the Oregon Journal's wine writer. She is a winemaker for Simi Vineyards of Sonoma County, Calif. Simi has been purchased by Moet & Hennessey, and has just completed a $4 million-plus remodeling and expansion. While in Portland, Mrs. Long introduced persons with wine interests to some of Simi's new white wine releases.

Betty Ingram O'Brien, '65, executive director of the Santiam Girl Scout Council in Salem for the past three years, earned a masters degree from the Atkinson School at Willamette University in May. In June she attended a two-week Harvard management seminar in Massachusetts.

Judith Harle Hector, '65, will be teaching at the University of Ife, Ile-Ife, Nigeria, on a one year leave from Walters State Community College, Morristown, Tenn. She will be working with math education in the Institute of Education. Her husband, Mark, also will be on the faculty and they are taking their two children.

William C. Utterback, '65, is senior geologist on the Mount Tolman Project, a cooperative venture between the Colville Confederated Tribes and Amax, Inc., in Keller, Wash.

Cdr. Roger P. Boennighausen, '66, has graduated from the USAF Air University in Montgomery, Ala., and has now assumed the executive officer position of Fighter Squadron 21 deployed from San Diego. His wife is the former Susan E. Stone, '66.

Rod Commons, '66 has been promoted to assistant athletic director at Washington State University. He will continue to serve as sports information director, a position he has held since joining the WSU staff in 1976. Commons was assistant sports information director at OSU for five years and sports information director at Brown University for three years prior to going to Pullman.

Dr. Larry Peetz, '67, is in private veterinary practice in Salem and has served on the board of directors of the Humane Society of the Willamette Valley for the past three years.

Arthur Brearley, '67, director of business development for Sargent & Lundy, a Chicago-based engineering firm, was the co-author of a paper on "Storage of Coal-Fired Plant Wastes", presented recently at the firm's annual conference. He and his family live in Winfield, Ill.

Al Frei, '67, has resigned as Del Oro High School principal in California to begin a career in real estate sales. He will continue to live in the Folsom Lake area.

James S. Nichols, '68, currently assigned to the USS San Diego as assistant supply officer, recently received the Navy Achievement Medal. Mrs. Nichols is the former Rosemary Gianelli, '69.

Mrs. James Stair (Vera Grace Miller), '68) and her husband are now working in Jayapura, Irian Jaya, Indonesia, at the Summer Institute of Linguistics.

'71 - '78

Michael Chamness, '71, has been appointed a general agent of the Oregon Agency of Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co. in Portland.

Dr. Rajendra P. Srivastava, '71, a doctoral candidate in accounting at the University of Oklahoma, has received a $9,000 grant from Arthur Andersen & Co. and has been selected as a 1981 American Accounting Association doctoral consortium fellow.

Dr. Byron S. Wills, '72, has been appointed director of development and alumni affairs at Western States Chiropractic College in Portland.

Dick Ledgerwood, '72, a financial planner for Foster and Marshall, Inc., taught a summer session class on financial planning for women at Oregon Institute of Technology in Klamath Falls this summer.

Alumni Jerry Dean Swan, '72, and April Lee Gormsen, '77, were married June 28 in Salem, and are living in Portland. Jerry is a property appraiser with the Department of Veterans' Affairs, and April is in the personnel department in the home office of Benjamin Franklin Savings & Loan Association.

Michael B. McKay, '72, has been named manager in the audit department of Price Waterhouse & Co. in Portland.

Arnie H. Heuchert, '73, former dean of instruction for occupational education at Mt. Hood Community College, is the new vice president for educational services at Big Bend Community College in Washington.

James DeYoung, '74, who works as a senior customer services agent for Delta Airlines in Portland, recently received the President's Customer Service Award for "action beyond the call of duty".

Kathleen G. Morris, '74, a registered sanitarian for Benton County Health Dept. in Corvallis, has been appointed to the state Sanitarians Registration Board by Gov. Vic Atiyeh.

Kim Rowse, '78, received her Doctor of Pharmacy degree in May at the University of Kentucky. She received the 1981-82 American Foundation for Pharmaceutical Education fellowship and is currently completing requirements for a Ph.D. degree. A 1973 honor graduate of Lake Oswego High School, she was selected as an outstanding national scholar by Rho Chi Society.

Charles Allcock, load forecast manager for Portland General Electric Co. in Portland, was recently appointed by Gov. Vic Atiyeh to his newly-created Governor's Council of Economic Advisors.

Bob Spiller is production manager for Sun Valley Farms, one of the largest poultry concerns in the Modesto area. He oversees 17 laying ranches in Northern California.

Robert L. Wilson, Ph.D. '76, employed by Occidental Research Corporation in Irvine, Calif., for the past two years, has been promoted to senior research chemist.

Lt. jg. Douglas Ruth is presently an instructor pilot for basic jet training at Vt-23 Naval Air Station in Kingsville, Tex. His wife (Cathleen Carter) is executive director of the Kleberg County Council of Camp Fire, Inc.

Gabriel Bernard Robidart has moved to Goodwater, Ala., where he has purchased T & S Auto and Truck Parts.

Laura Finster is working as a secretary/clerk in the Office of the City Auditor for the City of Portland.

Joanne Sheehy Grader is employed as a loan officer at the U.S. National Bank of Oregon's Aloha branch.

Michael J. Skyhar, is an '81 graduate, from UO Health Sciences Center School of Medicine and has entered residency in Orthopedic Surgery at University of California, San Diego.

Dr. James Gansberg, '78, graduated in June from the Washington State University School of Veterinary Medicine and has moved to Klamath Falls to assume operation of the family business.

Don Zinter, '78, who joined First National Bank of Oregon in 1978 as a management trainee, has been named assistant operations officer at the bank's Eugene Main branch.

Karen Fern, '78, graduated from the College of Optometry, Pacific University, in May. She has been awarded a one-year residency in Pediatric Optometry at the College of Optometry, University of Houston.

David G. Low, '78, has been awarded a juris doctor degree from the University of Puget Sound School of Law in Tacoma.

Steven Wayne Gray, '78, is a certified public accountant for Deloitte, Haskins & Sells in Portland.

David Peterson, '78, has been awarded a juris doctor degree from the University of Puget Sound School of Law in Tacoma.

Louis A. Licht, MS '78, chemical and agricultural engineer with the international firm of CH2M Hill, has been named to the eight-member editorial board of "Agricultural Engineering," the monthly magazine of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers. A resident of Corvallis, Licht was named Oregon's Young Engineer of the Year by the Professional Engineers of Oregon in 1980.

Todd Sander, '79, has moved from Tigard to Corvallis where he is the new manager of the Corvallis branch of Citizens Savings and Loan Assoc.

Ivan Louis Williams, '79, is a process control engineer with the ARCO Cherry Point Refinery in Ferndale, Wash.

Larry Holzgang is the new energy consultant assigned to the Sandpoint, Idaho, district by Pacific Power and Light Co.

Dr. Carl Hofmann, Jr. is employed as dean of community education at Modesto Junior College in Modesto, Calif.

Bradley R. Harlow is a market development specialist with Advanced Technology Laboratories in Renton, Wash.

David Winship, former project engineer for Burlington Northern, has been hired as city engineer of St. Helens.

Patti L. Johnson lives in Seattle where she is a territory manager for McNeil Consumer Products Co., a subsidiary of Johnson & Johnson.

Linda Beth Locker is living in Wilsonville and working as a sales representative for Cascade Information Systems in Beaverton.

Daniel Leroy Sherman is presently teaching vocational agriculture at Ivanhoe, Minn.

Mark Gourley works for Starker Forests, based in Philomath, which manages more than 50,000 acres of forestland in the Coast Range.

Frances Moseley Loubere, wife of Paul Loubere, '80, is a counselor and instructor at Linn-Benton Community College's Benton Center in Corvallis.

Laurel Covington Kubin is an extension home economist for the Colorado State University Cooperative Extension Service in Meeker, Colo.

Charles Joseph Clifford works as a computer programmer for Lockheed Missiles and SPACE in San Francisco.

Martin Stanley Warp of Eugene is an aquaculturist for Siuslaw Fisheries at the Sweet Creek Hatchery in Mapleton.

Marine Second Lt. David J. Mollahan was designated a naval aviator and presented with "Wings of Gold" upon culmination of 18 months of flight training.

Marcella Russell Baumann and her husband, Brian Leroy Baumann, live in Kennewick, Wash., where he is an accountant at Kennewick General Hospital.

Peter Scott Wood is living in Marlton, N.J., and works as a salesman for the W. Brady Company of Milwaukee, Wisc.

William Wayne Stevenson is now on active duty in the U.S. Army as a first lieutenant at Ft. Sill, Okla., and his wife (Karen Norvick) is assistant manager at a Kansas City area Gap Store.

He plans ideas that 'rub off'

Being a role model is a big part of the job for Charles W. Davis, '79, who is serving as a Peace Corps volunteer in Heindii, Liberia. Davis teaches junior high school math as part of a program to improve the education of students and the skills of teachers in the south African country.

The volunteer's home is a small mud block and zinc four-room house, about a mile from the school. He does not have running water or electricity and cooks on a small kerosene stove.

Davis tries to educate the people by demonstrating such things as gardening and proper dieting.

"I can't tell people that they should live any particular way," he says. "I pass a few ideas to a few people who will pass those ideas to a few other people. Just being here, small, small things will rub off."

He will complete his two-year Peace Corps assignment in December, 1981.

Volleyball coach sees improvement

Gerry Gregory's second season as women's volleyball coach at Oregon State promises to be a better one.

Gregory has high hopes of an improved team, because he will have more athletes to select from.

Forty women were expected to try-out for the team, as drills began Monday, Aug. 17. Final cuts to a 15 to 18-woman roster were to be made Aug. 19.

Seven athletes return from last year's team that was fifth in the Northwest Women's Volleyball League and had 21 wins over 19 losses.

Returning will be senior Sandy Huntley, an all-league selection, whom Gregory pegs as the best vertical jumper on the squad, and senior Kelly Colwell, who has a solid shot at the starting setter position, vacated by Gail Yamamoto. Other letter-winners trying-out will be juniors Sian Walford of Federal Way, Wash. and Katy Follen from Portland and sophomores Jeanette Youngman of Salem, Christie Elliot from Portland and Ruth Sommers of Corvallis.

Gregory went out and recruited taller, aggressive players for this year's squad.

"We're going to have more than one set line-up. We'll be able to put a quicker team or a more powerful team on the floor, whatever the opponent calls for," he said.

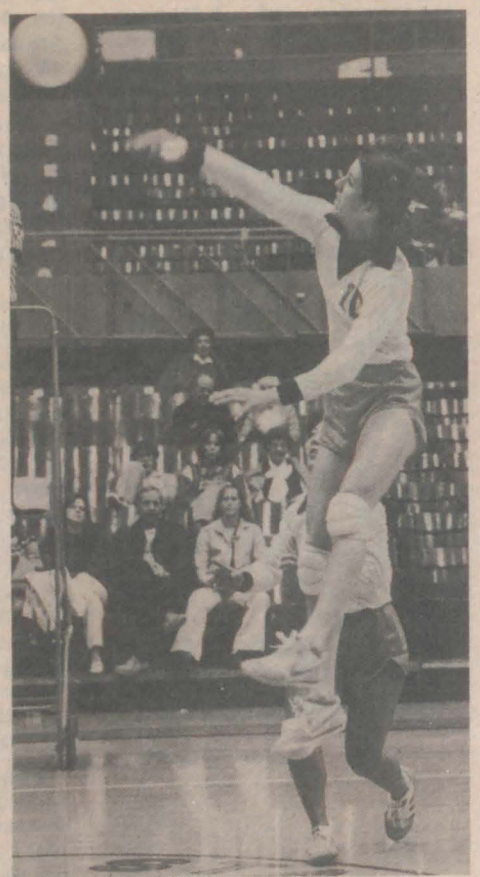

Several of the newcomers include Amy Brown, 5-9 all-stater, who helped Corvallis high school to two state volleyball championships, and Shari Jamison, 5-10 center-blocker from Gladstone. Jamison is also an all-league and all-state player who has a vertical jump of 26 inches, according to the coach.

Sarah Sullivan, 5-11, and a top flight center-blocker will sit out the season with a knee injury. Sullivan, who will transfer from North Idaho College, will red-shirt, says Gregory.

Gregory also listed a number of transfers and entering freshmen that will be trying-out for the squad.

"There'll be a lot of competition for starting positions," he claimed, noting that it will give him more substitution options.

The OSU team opens its 1981 season on Sept. 8 when it travels to California for several dual matches and tournaments. OSU opens the home schedule with Linfield College on Oct. 5 and has a total of eight home matches slated during October and November.

Christie Elliot, a 5-10 sophomore from Oregon City's Sandy Union High School, has a good chance of starting for this year's OSU women's volleyball team as an outside hitter. (Mike Shields photo)

Season tickets for the upcoming season will be available through the OSU Athletic Ticket Office after Sept. 1.

Sports Notes

OSU women athletes and coaches have been all over the world this summer, representing their country and Oregon State University . . . Cindy Greiner, OSU's top scorer at the AIAW national track and field championships, took top honors at the National Sports Festival in Syracuse, NY. Greiner won the heptathlon with 5,574 points, 70 points better than her nearest competitor . . . Gymnast Mary Ayotte was the top American finisher at the World University Games in Bucharest, Romania. While Nadia Commaneci was scoring 10.0's, Ayotte held her own with a 36.70 in all-around for 15th place, 9.6 on floor exercise for 6th and 9.5 in balance beam for 7th.

Carol Menken continued her scoring prowess as Oregon Staters have become accustomed to while she represented the United States at the World University Games. Menken played in all six games, but her best was 21 points to lead the Americans to a 74-64 victory over the Romanians. The USA team won the silver medal . . . Coach Aki Hill was on the other side of the world while Menken was in Romania. Hill was selected as the assistant coach for a US team that competed in the Jones Cup in Taiwan, Taipei. The US team finished second in the two week tournament . . . OSU swim coach, Bob Yamate, has spent most of his summer in Bangladesh, where he has been training coaches and swimmers who are members of their countries national team.

Four baseball players — shortstop Gregg Muench of Chemeketa Community College, first baseman Scott Halbrook of Eugene's Marist High and pitchers Mark Allen of Tigard and Jeff Myers of Linn-Benton Community College — have signed letters of intent with Oregon State. Muench hit .294 for Chemeketa and Halbrook earned nine varsity letters — in baseball, basketball and football — in three years at Marist. Allen, meanwhile, compiled a 1.28 earned run average for Tigard and Myers, another Tigard graduate, went 5-5 for Linn-Benton, while chalking up a 2.20 ERA and being named to the Oregon Community College Athletic Association's all-star team.

Coach Ralph Miller will introduce the 1981-82 Orange Express at an intrasquad game Monday, Nov. 23. Three other pre-conference appearances are slated for Gill Coliseum. The two-time defending Pacific-10 champions will host Bradley from the Missouri Valley Conference on Saturday, Nov. 28. After a trip to Provo to meet always strong Brigham Young the following Friday, the Beavers return to play Athletes In Action Monday, Dec. 7, U. of Portland at the MC in Portland Dec. 11, and Pepperdine at Gill Dec. 12. The Beavers then journey to Tokyo, Japan, to take part in the Suntory Bowl Tournament. There they play Pennsylvania on Dec. 18 and Louisville on Dec. 20.

The Giusti Tournament of Champions women's basketball invitational is scheduled for Portland's Memorial Coliseum Dec. 16-18. Oregon State opens the bottom bracket against California at 6:30 p.m. Oregon and Louisiana State follow. The other bracket has Tennessee and Washington State at noon and Portland State against Ohio State.

Dick Fosbury, OSU's 1968 Olympic champion and two-time NCAA champion high jumper, was one of 10 athletes and coaches inducted into the National Track and Field Hall of Fame in Charleston, W. Va., last month. For Fosbury, now an engineer in Richland, Wash., it was recognition perhaps as much as an inventor as a great champion. It was at Medford High School, in an effort to get over the bar "some way," that he developed the revolutionary approach of turning his back to the bar for the jump. The "Fosbury Flop" was born.

At Oregon State, Coach Berny Wagner was at first opposed to the method as were the few other coaches who had heard of it. Some thought it too dangerous. But in 1968 Wagner decided the unique style should be given a thorough trial. That spring, Fosbury, a junior, won the NCAA with a leap of 7-2¼ and went on to set a new American and Olympic record of 7-4¼ at Mexico City. The high jump world has not been the same since. Others came on for Oregon State, including NCAA champion Tom Woods, Mike Fleeer and Dick Radetich, most of them employing the "Fosbury Flop" and topping 7 feet.

Fosbury was modest in his acceptance of the honor at Charleston. He said he was surprised to be in the Hall of Fame. "I just discovered the flop by accident," he said. "I'm a pretty average athlete who happened to be in the right place at the right time." But others point out that Fosbury's greatest honor was earned in intense competition as he cleared the bar at record height at that dramatic and historic moment in Mexico City.

Scott Johnson, assistant sports information director at OSU for the past five years, has left to become sports information director at Fresno State University where he will direct information for 18 sports. FSU is a member of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association and the first football opponent for the Beavers this year. Among his duties at OSU were serving as representative to the media for men's basketball and baseball. A search for a replacement is being conducted. Johnson's assistant at Fresno will be Dave Haglund, '81, who has assisted in the OSU office the past two years. Mark Floyd, '77, who has been with the Sandy Post, joined the OSU office in August as an assistant.

'81 Beavers: Faster and quicker

"We're a faster and quicker football team... the defense has improved overall... the offense has more question marks than our defense at this point."

That's how coach Joe Avezzano — in 25 words or less — rates his 1981 Oregon State football team in comparison to last season's squad.

The Beavers, who open the season Sept. 12 with a home game against Fresno State and follow that with back-to-back away contests against Louisiana State of the Southeastern Conference and Minnesota of the Big Ten, have 32 lettermen returning — including seven offensive starters, six on defense and two 1979 regulars who missed last season with injuries.

While Avezzano has some questions about his team's offense, he also sees some bright spots.

"Offensively, I believe our passing game is better," he said. "We've had much more work on it and we placed more emphasis on it during the spring, based partly on injuries to our running backs."

"So, in retrospect, we are better in our passing game and — at this point — I do not believe we are as good in our running game as we were last year. That's due to the inexperience of our offensive line and the injuries to the running backs."

The three major reasons Avezzano sees an improved aerial attack are junior quarterback Ed Singler, senior flanker Victor Simmons and junior split-end Tom Sim.

"One of the most positive points that came out of spring practice was the improvement of Ed at quarterback. He is a much better quarterback right now than he was last fall," said Avezzano.

Singler, who started the final seven games of the 1980 campaign, established a school record for accuracy, completing 106 of 180 passes for a percentage of .556.

"Our quarterback position has become better because Ed's arm has gotten stronger. We should have a better deep game this year," added Simmons, who caught 37 passes last season to rank seventh in the Pacific-10 Conference.

Singler's other prime target will be Sim, the wonderfully-versatile athlete out of Central Linn.

Sim, bothered by injuries in his first two seasons at OSU as a running back, made the switch to split end during spring practice and Avezzano said "that might be one of the best moves he ever made."

Adding strength to the receiving corps are two talented tight ends — junior Ron Vogel and senior Chris Smith. Vogel who caught 28 passes last season, and Smith, who started in 1979 but sat out last year after breaking a leg against Texas, will share the position.

OSU's running attack revolves around tailbacks Randy Holmes and Darryl Minor, both of whom underwent knee surgery during the spring.

Holmes, the touted recruit out of Boise's Borah High School, gained 379 yards last season — an average of 3.58

Starting up front for Oregon State this season will be, left to right, Pete Grossnicklaus, Roger Levasa and David Reyes. Grossnicklaus, a 233-pound senior, and Reyes, a 250-pound junior, are offensive guards. Levasa, who sported a shaved head on OSU Picture Day, is a 255-pound senior center acclaimed by Coach Joe Avezzano to be the best in the Pac-10. (Mike Shields photos) yards per carry — and Minor, who redshirted last season because of a back injury, compiled similar statistics in 1979, gaining 357 yards — an average of 3.84 per carry.

"Minor and Holmes appear to be on the way to excellent recoveries," said Avezzano prior to the beginning of fall practice. "To me, that is doctor talk in a sense because I can't tell until they get out on the field and get hit and see what kind of confidence they have in their knees. We're certainly looking forward to them being back, but we don't know really how they will be until they get out on the field."

The injuries to Holmes and Minor during spring drills did allow Mike Cagle to exhibit his running back talents. Adding depth to that position are three other sophomores — Bob Johnson, Bryce Oglesby and Tonny Green — and incoming freshmen Tyrone Henderson, James Terrell and Darvin Malone.

"The freshmen have very good speed," said Avezzano, "but I don't really like to project much for freshmen simply because they are freshmen."

"I think, as a group, our incoming freshmen have more athletic ability than the overall group that is here right now," he added. "I feel very positive about them, but it's just so tough to project how much they might help in 1981."

While Avezzano sees is passing and running attacks as improving, he adds that his biggest concern is the offensive line.

"Last year, the offensive line was the most consistent group of any group on the field for the entire season," he said.

"But this fall, it will be the most inexperienced group, in terms of quantity and quality. The quantity will be upgraded considerably by the incoming freshmen, but it's never a good situation when freshmen must be counted on to provide playing time in the offensive line."

There is one position where Avezzano's concern is absent — at center. That's the position occupied by 255-pound Roger Levasa, considered by his coach "to be the best center in the Pac-10."

"He is the person we will build the offensive line around," adds Avezzano.

Other probably starters up front include 259-pound Eric Pettigrew, a starter last year, at left tackle and David Reyes, a 250-pound junior who started one game last year at left guard before breaking an ankle.

On the other side of the line, veteran Pete Grossnicklaus has moved from defense to man a tackle position and he'll be flanked by Joe Carnahan, a 237-pound junior.

Looking at is defense, Avezzano said "Our strength should be our linebacker crew, we have as fine as athletes there as we have been around in a long time."

J.J. Gracio and Derek Warren, both starters last year, return and they're being pushed by impressive J.C. transfer Jerome Boyd.

The linebacking corps, however, was weakened when Boise sophomore Carl Keever did not return to OSU because of an illness in the family.

Keever and Boyd, both 220-pounders, have good speed and Gracio and Warren are excellent backups.

"We must improve on defense if we are going to improve as a football team," noted Avezzano. "That is why the emphasis was placed there in the spring with the movement of people."

One of those moves saw Craig Sowash, a starter at defensive end last year, switch over to monster back, where he looks solid.

In another move, one made to put more speed in the secondary, Avezzano put two receivers — junior DeMonty Price and sophomore Tony Fuller — in the defensive secondary and they performed during the spring as if they've found a long, lost home.

Price will play right cornerback behind Forrest Pellum, one of the conference's best, and Fuller will be the main support for Sowash at the monster slot.

At the other cornerback position, junior Steve Holsberry is listed as a starter after showing considerable improvement during the spring, and he'll be backed by another junior Terry Harris.

"The point that bothers me most about our defense is the overall strength up front," said Avezzano. "I still do not believe we are as strong as we need to be."

Eric Bosworth, a 202-pound Portland sophomore, and Rudy Guice, a 220-pound senior, are listed as starters at defensive ends. Bosworth was a regular the final four games of last season and Guice, plagued by injuries a year ago, had a strong spring. Other names to note at defensive end are Willie Crowley and 215-pound Jeff Boyd, a pair of quick JC transfers.

Before fall practice began, 226-pound junior Tyrone Howard and 230-pound sophomore Angelo Dilulo were the top contenders at defensive tackle and Darren Coutts, a 240-pound senior, is listed first at middle guard.

Howard, injured in the August traffic accident that claimed the life of JC transfer Kenneth Gray, started last season and Dilulo logged playing time at nose guard, Coutts, another player coming off knee surgery, did not compete during the spring.

Among those adding strength up front are sophomores Greg Mulkey, 235; Tracy Abernathy, 225 and JC transfer Maurice Porter, 240.

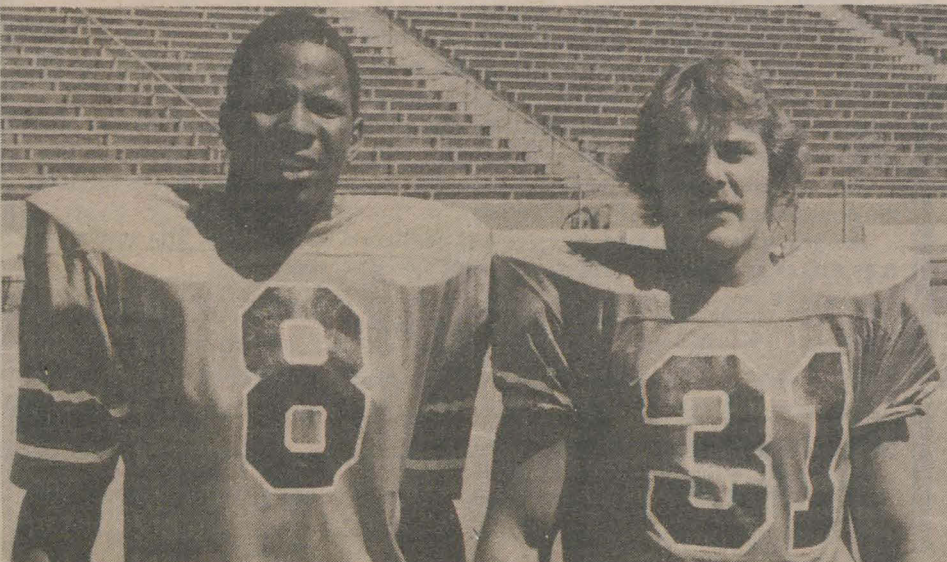

"Last year on defense many times, it did not matter if a starter played well or played poorly, simply because there was no one to substitute for him or no one to take his job away," said Avezzano.

"There was very little competition and very poor depth. This spring, with the addition of some junior college players and moving some offensive receivers to the secondary, we have that competition and we have more depth. I have been impressed with the overall improvement of our defense."

The coach said the Beavers' kicking game should also be better.

"It should be improved because of the additional experience and confidence our kicker Chris Mangold has," said Avezzano. "He has a very good leg and during the spring he hit 75 percent of his field goals from 40 yards or in. I'm encouraged by Chris' maturity and I look for him to have a good season."

Summing up, Avezzano said "A good football team will overcome adversity by remaining calm and having confidence in its ability to produce. This, I believe, is the biggest factor that we will be fighting in the development of an offensive football team and our team as a whole."

Expected to be the main cogs in OSU's rushing attack this season are senior Darryl Minor, left, and sophomore Randy Holmes. Minor, who was redshirted last season because of a back injury, and Holmes, OSU's leading returning rusher, both underwent knee surgery during the spring.

The OSU Alumni Association could have selected no more appropriate name for its new award than the E. B. Lemon Distinguished Alumni Award.

When E. B. died in 1979, just short of his 90th birthday, he had completed 72 years of very close association with OSU... 4 years as a student, 11 years as a professor of accounting and business management, 21 years as registrar, 16 years as dean of administration, and 20 years of "retirement" during which he served the University in a wide variety of activities. It is little wonder that he became known as "Mr. Oregon State."

For many years he was a member of the Alumni Association Board of Directors, served on the board's executive committee, and was chairman of the scholarship committee. He also served on the OSU Foundation's Board of Trustees. In 1968 he was honored with a Distinguished Service Award at the University's 100th commencement ceremony.

The award will recognize OSU graduates who have made significant contributions to society. Although the new award was named in honor of E. B. Lemon, it does much more than honor an individual. By recognizing the accomplishments of former students, it also reflects credit on OSU.

E. B. would have liked that very much.

E. B. Lemon OSU Alumni Association ALUMNI AWARD

NOMINATION PROCEDURES

The measure of a University's distinction and influence depends greatly upon the achievement of its former students and the position they earn for themselves in their respective communities and fields of endeavor. To recognize former students, the OSU Alumni Association has established the E. B. Lemon Alumni Award.

To be eligible for this award, a nominee must meet most of the following criteria:

1. Performed specific, meritorious service which reflects the quality and advancement of Oregon State University;
2. Achieved distinction in his/her business or professional life;
3. Demonstrated distinguished human service in community affairs at the local, state, national, or international level;
4. Have been enrolled in OSU as a student (graduate/undergraduate), at least 20 years prior to nomination, as a student in good standing for a minimum of one academic year;
5. Be an individual who, in deeds and action, reflects and recognizes the importance of his or her education at OSU, who demonstrates pride in the Alma Mater, and whose interest in and loyalty to OSU are evident;
6. Be a person of such integrity, stature, and demonstrated ability, that the faculty, staff, students and alumni will take pride in and be inspired by his or her recognition.

Those ineligible for nomination:

1. Candidates for any public office;
2. Persons currently serving as members of the OSU Alumni Board of Directors;
3. Members of the E. B. Lemon Alumni Award Selection Committee.

Any alumnus, faculty, or staff member may make nominations to the Selection Committee. All nominations will be kept confidential.

Nominations should be received by the Alumni Association office no later than Nov. 1, 1981.

Once an individual has been nominated for the award and found to be eligible, his or her name remains in nomination.

The Selection Committee may request additional information. The nominator may attach additional information if more space is required.
