Dear Freshman Girl:

Captain and Crew of the good old ship O. S. C. welcome you as one of its special passengers. They are looking forward to taking you on a four years' journey to show you new sights and give you glimpses of unexpected opportunities. What a thrill you will get when you stop at some of these ports of entry! This four years' journey should give you the information, training and outlook that will help you to fill satisfactorily your place in any community. And so, as the Frenchman would say,

"Bon Voyage."

(Mrs.) K. W. Jameson, Dean of Women.

Dear Freshman Girl,

We, the older members of the crew, welcome you as fellow voyageurs on our good ship O. S. C.

We have already grown to love our ship and to cherish many happy memories of good times in the past and look forward with pleasure to many more to come which we may share with you.

This little book has been prepared for your use by some of our more experienced voyageurs with the hope that it may make your passage more pleasant and help to avert stormy days at sea.

With best wishes for a most successful trip,

Betty Robley,
President, Associated Women
Students.

PORTS OF CALL

And now, as we cruise down the coast of the Land of Learning, each of you must choose where you will stop. There are 10 major ports where many different but related activities are carried on, and there are several smaller, less comprehensive landing places. As we glide past you will be told briefly what is being done at each place, and when you have seen them all we will turn back, and each passenger may go ashore to spend four years at the port of her choice.

Some of the ports, including the one we are just coming to, are inhabited mostly by men, and you will be given only a fleeting glimpse of these. Occasionally, though, women do find these ports exactly suited to their needs and desires.

Everyone on deck now! In the distance you will see a city known as the School of Agriculture. As we said, men make up by far the greater part of the population here, but there is a famous suburb, called Landscape Architecture, where women find many fascinating occupations. They learn to design grounds for country estates, city homes, to plan gardens, golf courses, city parks, town layouts, subdivisions, They study soils, plants, art, architecture, and of course, history, French, political science, and other things that every woman, regardless of her occupation, desires to know. Those who stop here may wish to become professional landscape architects, or merely to know how to make their own homes more beautiful. An occasional girl will also be found in the town itself, taking bee culture, dairving, poultry husbandry, horticulture, or even farm crops.

In a few minutes we shall come in sight of the port of Chemical Engineering, another place in which the population is predominantly male, but a few women also find this place exactly to their liking. The principal building in this town is the "Chem Shack" where the inhabitants make such things as "isopropylketone" or "phenylenediamine." Sounds rather staggering, doesn't it, but they thoroughly enjoy tinkering with chemicals and compounds, and pouring things together to make something else. Some of them plan on getting highly paid jobs as experts in hospitals or manufacturing plants when they leave, while others will go away to teach.

The next town is one of the largest on the coast and men and women alike are prone to sojourn here. It is known as the School of Commerce, and if you listen carefully you may hear the click, click of typewriters, adding machines, comptometers, mimeographs and bookkeeping machines. The town is full of snappy, business-like persons, and buzzes with all the activities of the business world. The people here are learning everything from stenography to business administration, including advertising and selling, accounting, auditing, political science, economics and sociology, and many other things.

We are now passing the School of Engineering and Mechanic Arts, where women rarely stop, so we sail swiftly on to the School of Home Economics, where only women live. Some of them are learning to be good homemakers, others are planning to teach or go into one of the many phases of professional or extension work. They study foods and nutrition, clothing and textiles, problems of home management, cafeteria management, weaving and all kinds of artistic needlework, home nursing, child care, and many other things connected with home life, and then, each girl, sometime during the last year of her stay, spends six weeks in one of the home management houses, putting her knowledge into practical use, even to the extent of taking full charge of a real live baby for one week.

A very great deal more could be told about the School of Home Economics and the girls who live there, but the School of Forestry is coming in sight so we shall have to pass on. Forestry is another place where one would expect to find mostly men, but an occasional co-ed who is especially fond of an outdoor life will leave the boat here.

That place we just passed, which looked like a huge fort, was the Department of Military Science and Tactics, where only soldiers are allowed. In the School of Mines, just coming into view, the co-ed is also the exception, but in a few minutes we shall see the School of Pharmacy, where men and women mingle amid the smell of drugs and rows of mysterious bottles to learn the art of concocting medicines and toilet articles and other things that druggists do. Here, also, they revel in long words and mysterious mixtures. The men outnumber the women, but more women arrive each year. The classes are small and many friendships are formed among the "Pill-rollers" as the inhabitants are called by people from the other ports.

If you feel that your mission in life is to teach some vocational subject, no matter what, you will choose the next port for your visit. It is the School of Vocational Education, and is also popular with both men and women. Visitors here are trained in the major vocational field which they choose, and are also taught psychology and principles of teaching, are given instruction in the solving of problems of education, and finally, before they leave they have opportunity for actual experience in teaching.

We have now passed all the larger ports, and now approach the smaller ones, where you can stop and study to your heart's desire, but you receive no degree in recognition of your work. Of course, many persons pay short visits to these places while working in another school, and find their time well and enjoyably spent. The School of Basic Arts and Sciences, for instance, provides its visitors with training in art and rural architecture, bacteriology, botany and plant pathology, chemistry, English language and literature, entomology, history, mathematics, modern languages, physics, public speaking and zoology. All of the major schools require their inhabitants to visit this port for basic or cultural courses in some of these subjects.

The School of Health and Physical Education is a port serving all students by providing recreation, supervising health conditions, and providing training in physical education and sports.

Then there is the Department of Music, where many voyageurs like to spend a part of their four-year visit. Here persons study under truly eminent musicians. Students belong to the orchestra, the glee and madrigal clubs, or the band, and while they work hard, they are very enthusiastic and find a great deal of pleasure in accomplishment.

The Department of Industrial Journalism is another lively, interesting little place where visitors from the bigger ports like to pay rather extended visits. They learn to report campus events and information for newspapers, and feel the thrill of seeing the things they have written in print in the Daily Barometer and other campus publications. Those who have the urge to study feature writing, editing, and other phases of the work, in connection with their technical specialty, sometimes find their efforts rewarded by checks from outside newspapers and magazines, and often when their course is completed they find employment, especially in technical subjects such as home economics, engineering, horticulture, etc., in the journalistic field, some of them later becoming owners and publishers of periodicals.

You have now had a very brief glimpse of the things and people you may find in this Land of Learning, and it will soon be time for you to choose your port. Choose carefully, but wherever you go, if you are cheerful, industrious, ambitious, and friendly you will find that there are many pleasures and profits of which you never dreamed.

CLOTHES FOR THE CRUISE

The question of a wardrobe should never keep one from joining the happy group who are starting out on this wonderful four-year cruise on the steamship "O. S. C." with its many and varied opportunities. For really one's clothes are a minor consideration if they suit one's personality and are kept neat, clean, and well pressed.

And let us remember not to start on the voyage with a complete outfit, for we probably will want to have something new on the way. Then too, we may make ourselves something new in one of the sewing courses. If our wardrobe were already complete, it would mean money expended unnecessarily.

A neat one- or two-piece dress or a sweater and skirt will make us feel always appropriately dressed for everyday wear while walking on deck and also when inside attending classes. To go with this, we should have good heavy oxfords for we shall do a great deal of walking, and with shoes of this type lisle hose are very good.

For those rainy and stormy days, we shall need a raincoat and a hat—shall it be felt, perhaps? How cheery those dark days will seem with bright-colored raincoats scattered over the horizon. A heavier coat will be needed when old man winter comes with his occasional frost and snow.

A silk dress, not at all elaborate, is desirable for church on Sunday, for special dinners or for informal dancing. Navy blue or some other dark color is most suitable, economical, and oh, so smart nowadays! The stores offer most astonishing values, and when we can make our own, the cost is very little. Dark shoes of patent, kid, or suede will add a pleasing touch.

Each one of us will want a simple evening dress to wear to those formal dances. Here again most beautiful materials can be bought at a low price and be made into charming creations. Or, if we are careful buyers, we can watch our opportunity to buy one at a reduced price.

Now that the clothes talk is over, this doesn't seem like such a great problem, does it? For our clothes do not make us, anyway, and we are all going to have a glorious and prosperous voyage together.

THE SOCIAL SIDE OF THE CRUISE

And for entertainment! Put aside dull care and studies for a few hours. Clear the upper decks for dancing and good times.

Futuristic decorations, hidden lights and revolving mirrored globes characterize the All-

College formal held near the beginning of the Cruise. The Sophomore Cotillion and Junior Prom both are ushered in during the middle or winter term of the tour. The Military Ball, with its flags and instruments of warfare, is sponsored by Scabbard and Blade near the end of the annual cruise.

The Senior Ball, too, is a much-looked-for event, and is always one of the biggest successes of the trip. Newcomers or rooks and rookesses always welcome the Rook dance as a better means for getting acquainted.

And for good eats—the waffle breakfast! Music and dancing while you eat. This affair is held annually by the Y. W. C. A.

One of the biggest features of the social side of the cruise is the Co-ed Ball. For then all women and solely women take part in masquerade. Prizes and features by the housemothers enliven the entertainment.

And if you don't care for dancing, there is music and drama. Sunday concerts by the Oregon State Symphony Orchestra are given four times during the cruise. National Collegiate Players and classes in community drama entertain with many plays in the Little Workshop and Majestic theaters.

The annual Woman's Stunt Show, given by half the sororities and women's halls each year, and the Junior Follies, an all men's production, also provoke much mirth-making in the audience.

ACTIVITIES FOR THE FRESHMAN GIRL

We had only begun our cruise, but the view ahead looked bleak and dreary. Suddenly someone espied, off to the right, a beautiful, winding river. This, we discovered, took us to our destination also, but was different in that it was packed with many more interesting and exciting things to do. All along the way we found activities for the freshman girl.

These include the Y. W. C. A. with its teas, benefit bazaars, and social gatherings planned to enlarge the acquaintance of the new students and to aid those interested in that type of work.

For those interested in journalism there is the opportunity to work as secretaries to the editors of the Beaver, annual publication, and to the Barometer, the daily newspaper. By spending from three to five hours a week in the office, one learns the College's policies, and takes a step toward making the staff. One term of elementary industrial journalism is required to make the staff of either the paper or the annual. Staff members are then chosen from the outstanding students. Campus journalism offers chances to enter into some of the most important activities of the College.

Individual and team sports include hockey, basketball, baseball, volleyball, tennis, quoits, natural dancing, clogging, archery, swimming, hiking, and canoeing. Points are offered for making teams. With the earning of 50 points one may join the Women's Athletic Association, organized to promote athletics for women on the campus.

The Madrigal Club, directed by Professor Paul Petri of the Department of Music, is composed of women talented in singing. During the year the club gives several concerts, and sings at major social functions.

Associated Rookesses is an organization of freshmen women who aid the Associated Women Students in clerical work, and serve as guides during Mothers' week-end.

A goal not to be overlooked by any freshman student is the possible attainment of a Phi Kappa Phi freshman certificate offered to men and women making a 91 average during their freshman year. It is a step to the coveted honor societies in junior and senior years.

Besides these many specialized opportunities are the committeeships for special occasions such as the Educational Exposition, Co-ed Ball, Homecoming dances, and freshman class offices.

By entering into college activities, a woman gains valuable friendships that she could not have made otherwise, secures a better appreciation of scholastic attainments, and finds the true spirit of college life.

ACTIVITY POINT SYSTEM

The Activity Point System has a twofold purpose: to encourage scholarship and to widen student participation in activities.

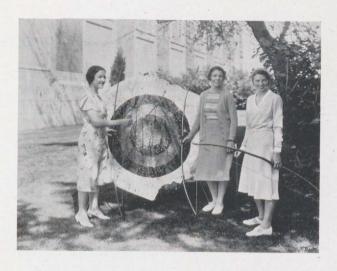

Grades and activities are closely related. If too much time is devoted to extra-curricular affairs, scholarship suffers.

Since the aim of college is academic achievement, nothing must hinder the attainment of this objective. Therefore, student activities must hold a position of secondary importance to scholarship.

O. S. C. is an institution of democratic principles. In practicing those principles, it enjoys an enviable reputation among other colleges. But lest these ideals be sacrificed, all student activities—the one big source of our spirit of fellowship and democracy—must be open to everyone. Activities, when carried prudently, have an important function in college life. Educators recognize this. All students are entitled to the benefits. It is unfair to the group for a few to dominate the limited number of activities.

The work of the point system committee is to adjust the position of the few to that of the group. This is done by allotting to each activity a certain number of points, based on a standard of 100 points. The total points for all activities engaged in by a student must not exceed the maximum number of 100 points.

With adherence to the number of points which each student may carry, the benefits of higher scholarship and increased student participation in activities will follow. It is with pleasure and anticipation that the Activity Point Committee awaits your participation and cooperation in this phase of college life.

To live in large groups it is necessary to observe uniform standards, thus eliminating friction and interference with the personal life of

A-5. Freshman privileges.

The week-end social engagements of freshman women are limited to one afternoon and two evening engagements.

A-6. Telephone.

After 7:30 on study nights the housemother is responsible for the telephone, calling the women only in cases of emergency.

A-7. Register.

Women leaving the house after 6:00 p.m. will register with the housemother and check off with her the time of return.

A-8. Absence from meals.

It is courteous to inform the housemother before being absent from meals.

Spring-term events are scheduled two weeks before the close of winter term.

Due notice of definite dates for scheduling events is given in the Daily Barometer.

(b) Informal parties and dinners in residence halls and sorority houses, and dinners in fraternity houses, are scheduled with the Dean of Women.

Women's Campus Organizations

The Associated Women Students is an organization of all the women registered at the College. It is a chapter of the National Federation of Associated Women Students which is represented by chapters in all large colleges and universities in the United States. The purpose of A. W. S. is to unify the work of all organized groups of women students.

The Women's Council, consisting of the secretary of the associated students, the president of A. W. S., the chairman of Spurs, the president of Greater Halls, president of Pan-Hellenic, vice-president of the senior class, vice-president of the junior class, and vice-president of the sophomore class, is a committee created to uphold the honor and traditions of Oregon State among all college women. It carries on activities which develop the spirit of fellowship and cooperation among women, and has the power to recommend penalties for the infringement of rules.

Spurs is a national organization of sophomore women. The local chapter seeks to foster the honor and traditions of Oregon State among incoming freshman girls.

The Y. W. C. A. purposes to aid in the Christian life of college women. Any woman student who wants help, or has help to give, can find room for both at "Y. W." headquarters. The Big Sister Committee under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. is a group of older students organized to make the first college days of the freshman girl a little less trying.

The Home Economics Club is composed of the entire registration of the School of Home Economics. This club is one of the most active on the campus. Every student in Home Economics owes it her allegiance.

The Physical Education Club, to which any girl interested in sports is eligible, sponsors women's athletics on the campus. Winners of 50 points, given for achievement in athletics, are eligible for membership in the Women's Athletic Association.

The Women's Athletic Association sponsors women's athletic contests. It is very active on the campus and works in close harmony with similar associations in other colleges. Its members are chosen for achievement in athletics and outstanding character.

Wytomachee is a social organization for unaffiliated town girls. It is very successful in uniting the women who live in their own or private homes while attending college. This group has been accepted by Phrateres, a chapter of which will be installed the fall term.
