GADFLY

We now fix our attention on the entrance of a men's dormitory. It is 10:30 pm. The last man is sprinting to the drawbridge as the steel bars descend. It is men's closing time at OSU. He made it over the drawbridge but two R.A.'s in blue uniforms with revolvers drawn are now leading him to the dungen for interrogation about his actions on his date that would cause him to be late.

We now shift our attention to the roof where two R.A.'s manning a search-light are chatting about their jobs.

"Looking forward to the execution tonight?"

"Yeah! We got another one of those student leaders. He must be about the last one."

"Boy! To think we used to let them run this place!"

"Say, what did they do to that fellow we caught looking out his window last night?"

"They took him to the main office where the program is to dunk'em."

Meanwhile a student group is discussing residence hall life.

"Do you think they'll hear us?" whispered George to his roommate.

"No, you can set your watch by this new R.A.; his rounds arn't due for another ten minutes."

"Get your elbow out of my face."

"I can't. There isn't that much room under your bed."

"You'd better be quiet though, those new microphones they gave us in place of the phones we have been asking for for the last two years are powerful."

"Yea, and they're raising the rates again next month to pay for them."

"Remember the thirty buck bill they took from our social fees two months ago to pay for fixing the sewage back-up?"

"Sure."

"Well it never got fixed, and as the building settles it has started running under Dave's door."

"That's nothing, did you hear about Joe?"

"They got him too!"

"He was caught making a paper cup."

"What's wrong with that?"

"He was expelled from the university for having an alcohool container in his room."

"Sounds like Nick. His deoderant was seven per cent."

"Maybe we'd better break it up; the R.A.'s due around now, and besides, I've got to study for tomorrow's test on the Beaver Code."

Adam and Eve

No not Adam! The original sin was Adam's.
