DEDICATION

To the Oregon Pioneer whose restless spirit led him from his comfortable home in a settled country to the unknown wilderness of the West, whose great courage brought him through the hardships of the Trail, whose seriousness of purpose caused him to build and protect his home, and whose endless enthusiasm led him to start the development of a virgin country which has made possible our State, our institution and our lives, this volume is dedicated.

who came to Oregon in 1863 and has since been vitally connected with education in this state and especially in this college, and who has been one of the leaders in the study and recording of the legend and history of the Oregon country.

Dr. Horner attended five colleges and universities in the West and Harvard and holds six degrees from institutions of higher learning. He came to Oregon State College in 1891 after sixteen years of teaching in various schools of the state, and organized the department of English language and literature.

He has served the college and its students for forty years and continues in his work for Oregon and Oregon State College, a friend to everyone, honored and respected by all.

FOREWORD

The great debt owed by this institution to the Oregon Pioneer who made it possible was acknowledged by the "Beaver" staff in its choice of the Old Oregon Trail motif which is mirrored throughout this record of the campus life and activities for the college year 1930-1931.

If the reader gains a greater appreciation of the lasting work of these hardy men from scanning the pages of this volume, the staff will feel that it has accomplished its purpose.

Administration similar to that of our own college was an important factor with the Oregon Trail caravan which came across the continent years ago.

The unwritten law of the caravan was a tacit consent that all grievances or accusations must be brought before a court of elders chosen by the emigrants themselves at the start of the long, untried journey. No one person had the right to take the law of the group in his own hands, nor was mob violence tolerated.

Hearings of this shifting court of law were similar to a modern court, and took in consideration first the welfare of the group as a whole. Its unwritten laws were made and revised to suit the occasion and decisions were generally based on the equities of the parties involved.

Hardy pioneers, who finally reached their destination, could not possibly have withstood the dangers and privations which arose on the difficult trip had there been no organized administration.

In like manner, seniors at Oregon State who have successfully passed through four years of college work have obtained and achieved only as a result of efficient administration.

His rugged dignity of frame,
Imbued with homely grace,
Lit up with kindness, and became
A radiant and holy flame
That blossomed in his face.

The state board of higher education, established by act of the legislature in 1929, replaced the former board of regents as the governing body for each of the state institutions of higher learning in Oregon. The board, composed of nine members, includes one alumnus of the state university, one of the state normal schools, and one of the state college. They are appointed by the governor with the approval of the state senate, a new member being appointed each year for a nine-year term.

The board has full authority to reorganize the work of the institutions under its control so as to eliminate unnecessary duplication of equipment, courses, departments, schools, summer sessions, extension activities, offices, laboratories and publications.

Dr. W. J. KERR

Dr. William Jasper Kerr

For 24 years Dr. William Jasper Kerr has administered the affairs of Oregon State college. When he came to Corvallis in 1907, the only buildings on the campus were the administration building, the chemistry building, the old gymnasium, and a wooden dormitory where the dairy building now stands.

The appearance of the campus today is ample proof of his untiring efforts to make the institution one of greater significance in the educational world. He has built the college from a school of little importance to one now recognized as among the three best agricultural colleges in the United States. It was he who visualized the plans for the new buildings and their locations, and saw to it that his vision was made an actuality through legislative enactment. In addition to his services to the state of Oregon he has received nation wide recognition for his activities as president of the Land Grant College association, vice-president of the National Council of Education and a member of the national board of the Y. M. C. A. A few years ago he was awarded the degree of doctor of science by the University of Idaho.

President Kerr's Message

The traditions of the Old Oregon trail are among the most heroic in North America. Two motives actuated the immigrants to Oregon—the lure of the Willamette Valley as an El Dorado for the homeseeker, and the patriotic purpose of settling the Oregon country for the United States. Between the old home land of the pioneers and their new dream land bordering the Pacific, lay a virtual wilderness—vast, uninhabited, unexplored. Their struggles and privations in breaking a trail across these barriers of prairie, desert, and mountain, tell a story almost unparalleled in picturesqueness and grandeur. After a century we begin to get a full perspective on the significance of their great migrations. They developed, in fact, a region so fortunate in climate and natural resources that a distinguished authority, Dr. J. Russell Smith, of Columbia, predicts that here, in time, American civilization will "reach its maximum." "In this Northwest," continues Dr. Smith, "I anticipate that, man for man, Americans will eventually realize their achievements—in science, literature, and arts." "A splendid destiny. But it will not come of itself. Only the courageous leadership of the rising generation, inspired by the example of the pioneers, will bring the Oregon country into its magnificent heritage.

WILLIAM JASPER KERR

President Kerr, in Study

Dean of Men's Message

Difficulties were challenges to the men and women who blazed the unbroken path later known as the Oregon Trail. The prospect of hardships, suffering and even death, made the project only more commanding to those whose objective was not only a bigger, freer, more wholesome life opportunity for themselves, but also the establishment of a great opportunity for a nation and a civilization. They did not pose as heroes. They did only what real men of their time naturally did. They felt the call in the opportunity and in the need. Why should they give heed to difficulties, hardships and dangers?

We are the benefactors. We live in comparative ease and luxury, and yet if the civilization they made possible is to come to full fruition, possibly even to endure, great problems must be faced and solved. Magnificent frontiers—social, economic and spiritual—must be opened. Does the thrilling example of the Oregon Trail pathfinders intrigue us? Are our spirits attuned to hear the call of opportunity and need? If the call comes, will our equipment and courage be equal to the demands?

Dean U. G. Duback

Dr. U. G. DUBACH

Dr. KATE W. JAMESON

Dean of Women's Message

When we read the story of the Oregon Trail, we are inclined to think that the frontier has passed and the days of pioneering are over. This may be true in the physical realm, but not in the realm of education. Every woman who has enjoyed the training for practical living, for homemaking, for child care, given by this school is actually a pioneer in a new field of education. Let her go fearlessly on teaching by word of mouth, by conduct, and by quiet influence, the value of such training. She too will meet any difficulties and be misunderstood, but of her we can truly say with the poet:

"Because the road was steep and long,
And through a dark and lonely land,
God set upon her lips a song
And put a lantern in her hand."

As a pioneer of today, she will in a sense then complete the great work begun by her forbears of the Oregon Trail.

Deans

Instruction in scientific agriculture on the coast began at the college in 1873. Dr. A. B. Cordley, who joined the staff as entomologist in 1895, has served as dean since the department was developed into a school in 1907.

Commercial courses, which were offered at the college even before it received its land grant in 1868, were organized into a school with J. A. Bexell as the first dean in 1908.

George W. Peavy was made dean of forestry when the former department of forestry became a school in 1910, courses in the subject having been offered for four years previously.

Regular four-year work in pharmacy was not established until 1907, though the department had been organized since 1898. Dean Adolph Ziefle, who came to the college in 1914, was made dean in 1917.

The first training in home economics in the west was offered at the college in 1889 by Dr. Margaret Snell. A steady development which has made the school an outstanding one in the country may be attributed to the leadership of Dean Ava B. Milam since 1911.

When the various service departments of the college were organized as a school in 1918, Dr. M. Ellwood Smith, who had served in the department for three years was made the first dean of the new school as well as director of the summer session.

A department of industrial pedagogy developed, with the enactment of the Smith-Hughes act, into the school of vocational education in 1918. Dr. J. R. Jewell came to the institution as dean in 1927.

The school of engineering had its beginning in 1889, the first in its field on the coast. In 1927 Dean H. S. Rogers, who had been head of the department of civil engineering for seven years, was made dean of the school.

Mining was offered as a four-year course in 1902 for the first time. Dr. J. H. Hance took over the reins as dean in 1928, having been consulting geologist and engineer to the state of Illinois.

With the reorganization of the two physical education departments and the health service into one school in 1929, Dr. Clair V. Langton, formerly head of physical education work for men, was made dean of health and physical education.

The Reserve Officers Training Corps is headed by Colonel H. R. Patterson.

Jardine Maris Jensen Reed Lemon Lewis Smith

Departmental Heads

W. A. Jensen was executive secretary to President Kerr at Utah State college, and when the president came to Oregon State in 1907, he brought Mr. Jensen with him to continue in his former capacity.

After acting in various positions with the United States department of agriculture, James T. Jardine resigned as superintendent in the forest service, where he had become a nationally known authority on grazing and range problems, to become director of the college agricultural experiment station. This work includes the directing of the research work at the home station in Corvallis and the eight branch stations advantageously located to cover the varied agricultural conditions of Oregon. Mr. Jardine was specialist in research and graduate work on the land grant college survey for 1930.

Paul V. Maris has also just completed work in the land grant college survey on which he was specialist on extension for the United States commission of education. He served as state county agent leader for Oregon before he was made director of the extension service of the college in 1920. This service extends the benefits, advantages, and available information of the work offered by the college and the United States department of agriculture to those in all parts of the state who for any reason are unable to come to the college.

Upon his graduation from the college in 1911, E. B. Lemon was on the faculty of the school of commerce as instructor in the department of business administration. In 1921 he was made registrar of the college.

Lucy Lewis has risen to her position as head librarian by climbing the proverbial ladder to the top. She came to the college in 1911 as cataloguer. She was made assistant librarian, then reference librarian before being appointed to her present position in 1920.

E. M. Smith, like Miss Lewis, has risen within his own department from lower positions. In 1915, he started as purchasing agent for the business office, later he was chief clerk, followed by the appointment to assistant manager. Now he controls the destinies of the business office as its manager.

The department of publications was established in 1912 by Edwin T. Reed, its present editor, who came to the institution from Moorhead Teacher's college in Minnesota where he was head of the English department.

Alumni Organization

The Oregon State Alumni association consists of about 7700 graduates besides ex-students who are bound together by the interests of the Alma Mater. The Alumni office in the Memorial Union building is the hub around which this vast group is centered from year to year and from all parts of the world.

Forty-two alumni clubs function in the United States and territories to keep alive the Beaver spirit with meetings, parties, and programs of varied nature. These clubs enable the alumni to keep in touch with the campus, renew valued friendships and cherished memories and gain contacts with alumni of every generation.

The Oregon State Monthly, edited and published on the college campus, is the medium of contact between all clubs and members. Since its formation in 1875, five years after the first class was graduated, the association has grown until it has a large group of life members and a trust fund of over $11,000.

Each spring the senior class takes more interest in the organization and benefits of alumni membership and a greater per cent declare themselves as interested alumni members.

Efforts are being made to give graduates unable to attend the main campus events an opportunity to hear about the activities through the radio. Many programs are prepared especially for the interest of alumni, former students and friends of the college. Plans are under way for a more extensive alumni program in the coming school year.

Alumni Activities

Alumni activities throughout the year are varied and yet chiefly hinge about two major events—Homecoming in the fall and the class reunion in the spring. Extensive preparations are made for Homecoming weekend, letters are advanced, luncheons arranged, special arrangements are made for the paid-up alumni reserved section at the big game, and this year a most elaborate and entertaining alumni banquet under the direction of Chuck Stidd of Portland was arranged for a crowd of over 500 enthusiastic alumni in the ballroom of the Memorial Union building. The "Coffee Dan" style of service was maintained and strictly informal entertainment was prevalent. The ballroom was cleared for a dance after the banquet. Registration and general interest in the weekend marked it as the most outstanding event of its kind in the history of the college.

Unusual effort is expended in making the spring class reunions equally as impressive and memorable as the fall Homecoming. The Dix plan, whereby classes of consecutive years gather back on the campus, is followed. In this way, husbands, wives, brothers and sisters find it more convenient to come back together. This year the reunion classes were those previous to 1881, the classes of '81, '84, '85, '86 and '87 in the first group, 1903, '04, '05 and '06 in the second group, and 1922, '23, '24 and '25 in the last group.

Besides these two major events the association is responsible for the game broadcasts from radio station KOAC in the fall and the rally programs. Also considerable work is being done in cooperation with other campus projects in an effort to bring to the school the most desirable high school graduates and in advertising Oregon State college.

Alumni Administration

The Alumni Association is governed by a board of directors which consists of five members, one going out of office every year. Members at present and their expiration of terms are Mark D. McCallister, Salem, 1931; Jeannette P. Cramer, Portland, 1932; C. A. Dunn, Klamath Falls, 1933; Charles Reynolds, La Grande, 1934; and Don W. Holgate, Portland, 1935.

Officers of the Alumni association are Mark D. McCallister, president; Jeannette Cramer, vice-president; Charles Reynolds, treasurer;

JEANNETTE CRAMER
Vice-President

Edward C. Allworth, secretary; R. J. Chrisman, field secretary; Eunice Courtright, records clerk; A. L. McMillan, editor of the Monthly; and Marian Conklin, circulation manager. Meetings of the Alumni board are held during Homecoming, during the reunion weekend in the spring and at other times deemed necessary to determine general policies for the association and to act on budget affairs.

The alumni association is represented in campus enterprises by a member of the board of control, Jay M. Reynolds, '10; the Memorial Union board of directors, J. F. Porter, '12; and four members on the Memorial Union board of governors, E. E. Wilson, '89, Roy R. Clark, '09, R. Earl Riley, '12, and Percy A. Cupper, '04.

Files are maintained with information regarding all alumni with whom it is possible to keep in contact. Definite information regarding the class, school, married name, occupation, and business and residence addresses is filed and accessible within reason to all alumni desiring such information. These files are used by departments of the college in sending out and seeking information. Class lists are also maintained.

Alumni Banquet, Homecoming, 1930

Alumni Financial Plan

The Orange council, a band of Beavers whose activities are particularly dedicated to the advancement of the interests of Oregon State, was created at the meeting of the board of directors of the Alumni association in August. The body was formed as a special alumni fund organization to take charge of alumni donations other than the regular dues. The plan is similar to that followed by other large alumni groups, notably Yale and Cornell.

The administration of the council is placed in the hands of the Alumni association board of directors. No member of the council is obligated to pay regular set sums although members of the group plan an annual donation in appreciation of the gift the college has made to them through directing their higher education and setting them on their life vocation trained to compete ably for success. Increase in the funds available for the Alumni association projects, through the efforts of the Orange council, will enable the association to render still greater services to the alumni group as a whole.

Need for additional funds to improve the alumni magazine, expand the games broadcasting program which proved so popular in its trial this past year, and further other worthwhile undertakings of the Alumni association indicates the value of the program on which the foundation of the Orange council is based. The council holds an annual meeting at Homecoming to discuss problems, look into projects and in general further the interests of the college. Further impetus was given to the work of the council when a number of breakfasts were held and radio reports of the Oregon State-West Virginia game in Chicago were heard Thanksgiving.

CLASSES

Oregon was a goal which the heroic pioneers of the middle nineteenth century fought to attain, much as graduation is the goal which present day college students strive to achieve.

On the trail there were some who were not even prepared for the start, and others who lasted but a small portion of the great distance to their western destination.

Those pioneers who completed the long trek attained the fulfillment of their dreams. Many of the less fortunate dropped by the way because the strain was too great, some because of illness or death. A few, due to their inability to associate with others or for financial reasons, were forced to stop before the journey was completed.

So it is today in this modern college. Some fall by the wayside at the end of the first year while others remain two or three years. But the greatest disappointment comes to those who are not able to finish the last and most important stage—the fourth year—which means that the goal, graduation, has been attained.

Graduation is to the successful student much the same as Oregon was to the successful pioneer—the launching of a new life.

And next the pioneer. His campfire shone
By wood and wold; he toiled an anxious while
To seize the river bottom for his own
And reap the fruitage of the Northern Nile!

Breathless behind him pressed the struggling crowd,
Keen for the grasp of Empire; in their eyes
The gleam of conquest, in their throats a loud
Insistent clamor, glorying in the prize.

The cabin rose, the gleaming hearth fire glowed;
Into the West the trampled highway ran,
Trod to the smoothness of a Roman road
By countless footsteps of adventurous man.

Senior Class History

The class of '31 came to the campus September 28, 1927, and holds the distinction of being the freshman class to occupy seats of honor at the first convocation and formal pledging to Oregon State. After a week of preliminaries the class organized and elected Mark Grayson, president; Virginia Mones, vice-president; Hester Davis, secretary; Harold Peake, treasurer; and George Knutsen, yell leader. The rook-sophomore Olympics, under the management of Clarence White, proved a decided victory for the freshmen. The class also won three of the four rook football games.

The tug-o'-war also resulted in a rook victory.

Returning in the fall as sophomores the class elected officers and made a schedule of the year's events. Officers were George Knutsen, president; Ruella Morgan, vice-president; Mildred Carleton, secretary; Gordon Winks, sergeant-at-arms, and Leon Ray, student council. The most important event this year was the Cotillion given January 26, 1929. It was the first all-school formal dance to be held in the new Memorial Union ballroom. The decorations depicted the Orient.

In September most of these cords returned to college bearing records of a three-months' vacation time. The worst among these won the customary prize at the Junior Cord dance. The Prom, held March 1, had all the trappings and regalia of a performance under the big white top. The "bust" spring term, with its traditional hilarity, was enjoyed by all present. Class officers were John Gallagher, president; Susan Hayes, vice-president; Lucille Hayes, secretary, and Paul Mahoney, treasurer. Irene Griggs replaced Susan Hayes spring term when the latter left school.

For the second time in the history of the college, both lines and music for the men's follies was the composition of student minds. This honor goes to Wes Coutts and Romney Pearce, producers of "U-Kruse." The Senior Ball was given May 6, in the Memorial Union ballroom with Dick Stalker, chairman of the annual event. Baccalaureate services were held May 31, and Class Day June 1. Commencement and the conferring of degrees brought to a close a record dear to all seniors of the class of '31.

Junior Class History

On September 29, 1928, the class of '32 made its debut on the Oregon State campus and occupied seats of honor at their first convocation, while they were pledged one and all in loyalty to the "college on the hill." As juniors their achievements stand a noble monument to their freshman pledge. Starting with the traditional rook bonfire and following with the rook-sophomore Olympics the class was initiated into college life. The Freshman dance was given in the Memorial Union ballroom, January 12. Tom Bruce headed the bonfire committee and John Poorman was chairman of the dance committee. Clarke Henkle was elected president; Helen Reid, vice-president; Marjorie Reynolds, secretary; George Reese, treasurer; Gilbert Bergerson, sergeant-at-arms; and Robert Burke, yell leader.

As sophomores this class furnished good material for football, while the varsity basketball squad picked the majority of players from its members. Committeemen headed by Amby Fredericks put across the "best ever" Sophomore Cotillion. Upon organization the following officers were elected: Edward Efteland, president; Dorothy Nicholson, vice-president; Margaret Metcalf, secretary; and Bert Taylor, treasurer.

The juniors returned to the campus September 27, 1930, and organized for the new school year by electing officers. Bert Taylor was chosen president; Grace Baird, vice-president; Annabelle Grant, secretary; John Deifell, treasurer; and Joe Mulligan, sergeant-at-arms.

The second term opened with all interest centered on the Prom. The class instituted a new feature this year, that of electing a Prom queen, which feature may become a traditional part of the program. The ceremony included a grand march, led by the queen, Alice Fisher, from the Memorial Union lounge to the ball room where coronation exercises were held. The setting for the dance was a "Colonial garden." Decorations in lattice work gave a touch of open air and garden solitude. Much credit for the success of the Prom program goes to Milton Leishman, chairman. The programs in blue and silver flaunted a silhouette of milady herself.

The Junior cord dance, with Alling Goss chairman, was held April 28. Campus weekend under the management of Kenneth Fagans had a full program. The men's follies, written by Wesley Coutts and Romney Pearce, staged a three-night stand to packed houses. After the class breakfast came the water sports and the traditional tug-of-war, which was followed by the sport dance.

Sophomore Class

At the close of the college year the class of '33 stands at the cross roads with two good years behind it and two better years to go. As freshmen the sophomores brought the record for enrollment to the campus numbering twelve and one-half hundred. Out of this mighty influx of young Beavers every activity, be it football, field or track, gained good material and loyal support.

After their formal pledging, the first important event in freshmen history for the "double 3" class was the rook dance. Under the direction of Jack Byrne, this proved their first great success. Good "teamwork" during the building of the rook bonfire brought second honors. Gertrude Lindley was in charge of refreshments for the occasion. At the rook-sophomore Olympics, the tug-of-war and the "burning of the green" the freshmen made good their pledge to Beaver spirit.

Returning to the college in the fall of '30 as sophomores, the class of '33 started on the second lap of the path that leads to success.

George Hanselman was chosen president; Estora Ricks, vice-president; Wesley Heise, treasurer; Ellen Stebinger, secretary; Vincent Woods, sergeant-at-arms and John Allen, member of the student council. Rook-sophomore Olympics held on Bell field during Homecoming was the first event of the year. The sophomores instituted a new custom at Thanksgiving season. Baskets of good things were distributed to worthy families who felt the weight of business depression.

Lyle Foster was the first president; Beatrice Moeller, vice-president; Amy Aldrich, secretary; Darwin Woodcock, treasurer; James London, sergeant-at-arms; and Curnow Slater, yell leader.

January 24 was the day set for the Sophomore Cotillion, the big formal dance. Decorations patterned after the Mardi Gras gave the occasion a lilting jollity characteristic of this celebration. Romney Pearce's orchestra furnished the music. The feature included four solo dancers from the University of Oregon whose nimble grace and display of talent delighted the great mob of merrymakers. The success of the affair was due to the efficiency of Merritt Nash, general chairman.

During campus weekend the sophomores again proved themselves "Beavers All" tugging to a finish with their rook opponents in the tug-of-war and other contests. Frank Miller was chosen Duke of the Knights and Kathryn Wheeler, president of Spurs. The insignia committee, headed by Julius Wilson, agreed upon bright blue slip-over sweaters which were very popular with class members.

President

Freshman Class

The sixty-third freshman class registered September 22 and for the next five days the campus was turned over to the newcomers who occupied seats of honor at convocation and were formally pledged to Oregon State. At the close of this week of introduction to college life they elected Milton Carlson for their president; Gail Burnett, vice-president; Velva Mae Jeffries, secretary; Marshall Harrison, treasurer, and Ben McElroy, sergeant-at-arms.

With all offices filled and a vague but general idea of what might be expected of them as college students, the class of '34 stepped into line, resolved to do or die for the honor and glory of the Orange and the Black.

November 7 was the date set for the annual rook dance. Romney Pearce's orchestra was engaged for the evening and committees to take charge of the various steps in the program were chosen with Gail Burnett, general chairman of the dance. Class cooperation was instrumental in making the dance a great success. This same spirit made for individual members ready friends and was a bond between them that laid the foundation on which to build for all time.

First results of a good start evidenced itself in the rook-sophomore Olympics when the freshmen won an easy victory over their more experienced opponents and Kermit Linstedt, committee chairman, marked up the first score. Freshmen made good their name by building the greatest woodpile ever man hauled to the campus with Jess Forrester heading the bonfire committee. Vera McClintock, head of the service committee and her co-workers, served refreshments to the men at work. Rook men walked post on the campus two nights preceding the bonfire and the O. S. C.-U. of O. football game.

Minor events participated in Homecoming weekend were boxing, under the direction of Horace Narver; flag rush, supervised by Cliff Joy; jousting, directed by Bob Cooper, tie up with Astor Lobach as committee chairman of the event, and bag rush directed by Rush Buestorm. The freshmen had an A-1 football squad and have bright prospects for future representation in campus athletics. Much journalistic talent has already made itself manifest. Music and speaking also received a full quota from this group.

In preparation for campus weekend, committee heads organized their men for the annual tug-of-war with the sophomores. Next followed the "burning of the green", after which sophomores that were and sophomores to be, replaced the vacant chairs for freshmen.

ACTIVITIES

Activities other than those necessary to provide a living were practically crowded out of the busy lives of the pioneers. Trapping, hunting, fishing, clearing and tilling the land, and building rough homes took most of the time in the lives of these hardy people.

But even so, social bees and dances were not done away with and were participated in by everyone. Square dances and waltzes to the tunes of "Irish Washerwoman," "The Girl I Left Behind Me," and "Pop Goes the Weasel" played by a banjo and squeaky violin were in vogue.

Young and old alike enjoyed the spelling match, the forerunner of our present debate and oratory. Dramatics were developed slightly in the schoolroom in the form of programs and playlets by the children.

Newspapers, months and even years old, brought from the East by more recent comers were gladly accepted and passed on from home to home until such time as small weekly papers were established in some of the communities. Even then the news was often very old and twisted by retellings before it reached the columns of the local paper.

Gradually the details of life have become less burdensome until at present the college student has much leisure time to participate in and develop these activities which the early pioneers found so little time to enjoy.

And ye, my faithful comrades
That grace the mystic band—
Long live the cherished customs
That pass from hand to hand,
The fine old stern traditions
The grads have made their own—
The loyal marks of manhood
Of friends that I have known.

Dear Mr. Mack:

I take pleasure in returning the pictures, as judge, according to your request.

Kindly realize, however, that making judgments from photographs is very different from seeing people in person. I based my opinions, to the best of my ability, on the pictures and trust that my decisions meet with the approval of your organization.

Very truly yours,

Associated Students

The work of the Associated students, with the cooperation and full support of the Oregon State student body, has produced an organization of collegiate self-government with a widely recognized prestige, that has within its scope all student enterprises and institutional discipline, and operates under a constitution and by-laws approved by the faculty.

The Associated students represents the entire Oregon State student body. Officers are elected annually spring term, nominations and elections being conducted in a manner similar to that of the state electorate. Officers are president and secretary chosen from the senior class, and three vice-presidents, chosen from senior, junior and sophomore classes. The executive committee includes the president, first vice-president, secretary and senior and junior members of the board of control.

Other officers are the editor and manager of the Beaver, and editor and manager of the Oregon State Daily Barometer. Election of the Beaver editor is held during winter quarter as an exception. The Barometer editor is appointed by a publications board of three faculty members and four students.

Candidates for elective officers of the Associated students and its divisions are nominated at a regular meeting in April. Any other qualified student may become a candidate for office by presenting a petition bearing the signatures of at least 100 students four days prior to the election. General election is held the week following nominations. Balloting is held according to the Australian ballot system. All undergraduate members are allowed to vote and all officers are elected by a plurality vote.

The Associated students of Oregon State college are aiming toward the ideal in student self-government and have gained materially on their own expectations. They have sincerely put forth every effort to maintain present advantages and to gain future footholds. Definite progress in welding the students and executive bodies together is especially noticeable in the more recent student enterprises.

For an effective functioning of this organization every student must realize his responsibility and take a personal interest in the welfare of the college and its administrative bodies. Cooperation with fellow students, college organizations and campus leaders must be kept paramount, and every group must establish a close correlation with all other groups and individual students. The success of student self-government at Oregon State is based upon this individual effort and cooperation.

GEORGE KNUTSEN
President

Board of Control

The board of control is an organization of faculty, alumni and students that promotes student body welfare by supervision of Associated student funds. The business end of the Associated students is handled in conjunction with the board, and financial details are planned systematically. Expenditures, budgets and schedules are subject to the board's approval and restrictions, so that all student enterprises may prosper.

The board consists of three faculty members appointed by the president of the college, one alumnus chosen by the Alumni association, and five students who are the executive committee of the student body. The student body constitution vests in this board of control authority to supervise all student body interests entailing the expenditure of student body funds. Immediate supervision is exercised through a general manager appointed by the board.

All funds belonging to the Associated students are kept in the business office of the college. They can be drawn upon by the business manager only on requisitions approved by the president of the board of control. All equipment and supplies belonging to the student body are under the direct care of the departments concerned. The general manager keeps a yearly inventory of these goods and the departments are held responsible for them.

The board of control, at the beginning of each year, approves a budget for each student activity. The general manager makes necessary purchases according to these budgets. Any deviation in purchases must be approved by the board of control. Only the general manager or his approved agent may make purchases that are to be charged to the student body.

All student schedules and trips chargeable to the student body must also be approved by the board prior to the time of the activity. All employees of the student body are employed by the president and board of regents on recommendation of the board of control. The board appoints managers of the various student activities and approves and grants all emblems and special awards.

While the connections between the Associated students and the board of control is restrictive, it is restrictive only in a helpful manner and only where it is necessary for the greatest good of both organizations. Authority is vested in those who are members of both groups, so that mutual benefit is their paramount object.

Student Council

Student Council

A student council is delegated with full powers to enforce discipline and regulations. The council is divided into two sections for the separate consideration of the problems of men and women students. Recommendations of the student council are subject to the approval of either the president of the college or the dean of women.

The men's council is made up of the president and first vice-president of the Associated students, three class presidents, editor of the Barometer and five elected members.

Women's discipline is in charge of the secretary of the Associated students, president of the Associated Women students, three class vice-presidents, and representatives of the Greater Hall committee and Pan-Hellenic.

Student Interest Committee

Student interests not strictly of an academic nature, social problems, financial dealings and inter-group relations are designated to the Student Interest committee. These problems are handled from the standpoint of mutual benefit to both student and college.

The committee is instrumental in gaining the close harmony which exists among campus groups and individuals. Its aim is to help each student obtain maximum benefits from college life. The committee is composed of the dean of men, dean of women, president of the Associated students, editor of the Barometer, president of the Independent Student council, president of the Interfraternity council, president of Pan-Hellenic and Associated Women, and chairmen of scholastic and housing committees.

Student Interest Committee

Honor Council

Honor Council

The honor council provides student and faculty cooperation in fostering and maintaining a high standard of honesty in academic work among students. It hopes to achieve success, not by punishing offenders, but by eliminating the causes of dishonesty. Very few cases were handled during the year.

The council insists on cooperation of students in promoting the spirit of honor and encourages checking of conditions which are thought to be a menace to the honor system. The council is composed of a senior, who is chairman; senior man and senior woman; junior man and junior woman, all appointed by the executive committee; and two members of the faculty appointed by the college president.

Activity Point Committee

The point committee protects the interests of both student and college, by prudent distribution of campus activities.

Scholastic requirements are better adhered to, academic achievement is held at its peak, and activities are given undivided attention when the activity point system is being enforced. The work of the point system committee is to adjust the position of the few to that of the group. This is done by allotting to each activity a number of points based on a standard of 100 points, the maximum number that any person may carry.

Groups under point supervision are student body organizations, class officers, campus publications, social functions, athletics, honoraries, music and dramatics.

Activity Point Committee

Memorial Union Directors

Memorial Union Directors

Dedicated to the inspiration of the living and to the memory of the dead, the Memorial Union stands as a student service building. It houses such as the alumni organization, banquet and cafeteria rooms, student body dances, co-op book store, barber shop, lounging rooms, trophy rooms, and in general, serves as a center for student life.

Executive control of the building's activities is vested in a board of directors. This board is composed of the president of the Memorial Union, student body president, student body secretary, editor of the Barometer, graduate manager, one member of the faculty, and one alumni member.

Co-op Book Store

The co-op book store is a profit-sharing organization and medium for supplying students with nearly every school necessity. It is student owned and controlled. Through quantity buying and selling, the store is enabled to return to the purchaser dividends amounting to 11 per cent in trade or six per cent in cash.

A board of directors of seven students and two faculty members supervises the operation of the store, and transacts all business pertaining to efficient operation. This board is elected at the annual student body election held during spring term and is installed at the same time as the other student body officers.

Homecoming Committee

Homecoming

One week-end is set aside in the fall of every year for Homecoming. It is then that alumni return to visit their Alma Mater and enjoy the special festivities prepared in their honor. The campus is thoroughly decorated for the occasion and several annual events are held.

The customary rook bonfire is built by the first year men and the burning ceremony is performed. The fraternity noise parade is directed through the town and campus and house signs are set in operation and judged. An exhibition of skill and rhythm is given by the Oregon State crew, and underclass rivalry is worked off at the rook-soph Olympics.

An alumni banquet and dance is held while students attend rally dances. One of the big conference football games completes the fete.

Campus Week-End

Campus week-end is inaugurated about two weeks before the end of spring term. With its advent, the year milestone is passed and theoretically each class graduates to the next, taking up the traditions of the advanced class. Freshmen discard their lids, sophomores don corduroy trousers, juniors cultivate mustaches and seniors prepare for their assault on the wide, wide world.

Popular attractions are the rook-soph tug-o'war and the "burning of the green." The old mill race is the site of these events. A fire is kindled, and in it freshmen destroy the hated "green."

After the ceremony, traditional underclass enmity is erased in the tug-o'war and ensuing battle. The losers are ducked in the mill race.

Campus Week-end Committee

Greater O. S. C. Committee

Greater O. S. C. Committee

The Greater Oregon State committee serves a two-fold purpose. It brings to the school those students who will do the most to make Oregon State prominent, and it maintains this prominence by keeping people throughout the country "Oregon State-minded." The work of the committee is to determine who of the prospective high school graduates would make good Oregon Staters. Then the main object of the organization is to keep the advantages of the college clearly before these prospects who are interested. This is done through such affairs as the Portland all-college dances, radio pep broadcasts and out-of-town rallies. The organization is under the supervision of a general chairman and a state central committee.

Educational Exposition

The Oregon State Educational exposition is a display of the college work and its results, to which representatives and their advisors from all state high schools are invited. These visitors are entertained by the college with the cooperation of fraternities, sororities and halls. The agriculture fair, engineering show and model drug store all have their places in the exposition, as have the displays of each of the other schools. Classrooms are open to visitors, and regular lectures are conducted to show the routine work. The Educational exposition has been an annual institution at Oregon State since February, 1924, and has done much to advertise the benefits and advantages of the school. Both faculty and students work together to give visitors a taste of college life.

Educational Exposition Committee

Freshman Week

Freshman Week

One week before first term registration of each year is set aside for the instruction and organization of entering freshmen. Through the cooperation of the campus living groups, these newcomers are housed and helped with the problems confronting them. Registration is completed, and they are given entrance examinations, general intelligence tests and special preparatory work.

Class organization is also begun. Nominations are filed, and an election is held.

The Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. is a student organization which serves all men on the campus. Shepard hall, its headquarters, contains a reading and study room, rest and lunch room, shower room, mail service, and free employment bureau. This bureau, through its employment service, helps forty per cent of the men at Oregon State work their way through college.

The Y. M. C. A. cooperates with other organizations on the campus in bringing to the college many nationally known speakers.

OUR NEW ADMINISTRATIVE POLICY

Harmony and tireless efforts that put Oregon State in the parade of institutions of higher learning that are progressing internally as well as externally are the characteristics of the 1930-31 student administration, which has concluded a year of activity that stands alone in accomplishment.

Realizing that student attitude and spirit, waning noticeably in the previous few years, had almost reached a low ebb, leaders of the Associated Students last fall began a campaign to bring back what old-time Staters knew as "Beaver spirit," a thing then unknown among the current generation of students.

Football was the ammunition to which the campus leaders set their spark of enthusiasm. The result was an explosion of school spirit that surpassed anything in the last decade, in the opinion of returning graduates and professors on the campus. Throughout the grid season and the remainder of the year this spirit remained.

Working as a unit to improve conditions on the campus, student-body officers thoroughly analyzed every angle of student activity and removed all situations that tended to create dissatisfaction. The college administrative council, also seeking to promote better feeling among the students, cooperate to the fullest extent by giving every aid possible to the student leaders. The council granted permission for students to smoke at outdoor athletic events on the campus and added 30 minutes to late permission for women on Saturday nights, besides taking an active part in supporting student activities.

Campus politics, heretofore a nightmare to those who desire harmony among all student groups, was handled efficiently and without the usual ill-feeling.

Barometer Editors

Several new features have been incorporated into the Barometer this year in an effort to serve the student body more efficiently. These include a column of United Press news, a series of feature stories on outstanding students and points of interest on the campus, and a column containing items about campus life here and at other colleges and universities.

The purpose of the United Press column is to bring to the students in a brief form important national and world news in which the editors feel they would be most interested. Through the two feature series and the campus life column the staff have attempted to make the students familiar with leading fellow students, with our campus and with activities on this and other campuses.

In addition, an effort was made to develop the sport section through more strict observance of the rule that sports news and only sports shall be run on the sports page and also through a reorganization of the sports staff.

Editorial writers were selected this year for the first time to assist the editor-in-chief with this phase of editing.

The Barometer is a four-page paper published daily except Sunday and Monday. The success of the eight-column makeup adopted last year has resulted in a continuation of this form. It is the official organ of the associated students, and its board of control holds membership in the Pacific Interscholastic Press association.

Stories for the Barometer are written by students enrolled in elementary industrial journalism. The copy is then edited by copy readers on the staff and headlines are written. A day and night editor and assistants are responsible for the paper one day of the week.

A board of control composed of the editor-in-chief, associate editor and two assistant editors directs the policy of the publication and selects candidates for promotion to various positions on the staff. The head of the department of industrial journalism is the faculty member on this board.

A reorganization of the staff this year has placed more responsibility on the feature editor and several new series have been worked out to liven this page. "Portraits" of prominent members of the faculty, book reviews and style hints are included in the list. A sports editor is responsible for the sports page.

LARRY WARREN, Editor

Barometer Managerial Staff

The manager of the Oregon State Daily Barometer is directly responsible for the entire business administration, advertising, distribution, collections and financing of the publication. An experienced corps of assistants aid him in this work.

Members of the managerial staff are promoted on the basis of efficiency and length of time of service, so that a rotation in office insures capable workers. Edwin Parker has served as manager of the paper for the past year, with eight subordinate department heads under him.

Improvements in organization, accounting, records and service work are constantly being made. A staff of student stenographers take care of clerical and recording tasks. A new system of filing inaugurated last year has simplified bookkeeping and made possible accurate checking of local and national advertising space.

Advertising is solicited from Corvallis business men, campus organizations and national firms by members of the advertising staff. They also plan the makeup of the ads and their place on the pages of the college daily. This work is conducted entirely by students and makes a laboratory for practical experience in advertising.

A budget system outlined at the beginning of each year takes care of the expenditures and finances are supervised through the office of the graduate manager.

A recent policy which has met with a great deal of favor is that of sending a copy of the Barometer to parents of those students whose names appear in connection with some news story in the paper, together with a letter explaining the service, which is conducted free.

The office of manager is not subject to political whims or influences since it is filled after careful consideration by the Board of Control, a body composed of three faculty members and several alumni and student members. Petitions are presented by the various students aspiring to the position. Qualifications and recommendations are given due examination before the man best fitted for the job is chosen. To be eligible the candidate must have served at least one year on the managerial staff.

Offices are in the Memorial Union building with adequate space provided for files and records. Members of the circulation and advertising staffs do most of their work from the office of the Gazette-Times, Corvallis daily newspaper, where the Barometer is printed. Copies are delivered to the door of every living group and hall and are placed in the library and Memorial Union building for downtown students.

The Volume XXV Beaver

With the "Oregon Trail" as a particularly pertinent motif for the Volume XXV Beaver, the 1931 yearbook presents to the student body and to its readers in general as true and accurate a picture of campus life as diligence and painstaking effort can make it. A staff of 40 department editors and assistants have been writing, assembling, organizing and "error-hunting" throughout the school year.

A departure from the traditional style in yearbooks is the adoption of Kabel modernistic type for the pages of the annual. Heretofore, a conservative and old style type has been employed. Another improvement in the makeup of the book this year is the adoption of a standardized margin. The dimensions of the page were chosen in accordance with the ideal proportions advocated by authorities in the field of type faces and formats.

The organization of the editorial staff of the Beaver has been altered somewhat this year in an attempt to centralize and bring more closely together the different branches of the staff. The whole book was divided into only seven departments, with an editor at the head of each and an assistant under him for each of the branches of his section. It was believed that this plan would make not only for greater efficiency but would give proper emphasis and relative importance to the various sections and no one phase of college life would be stressed at the expense of another.

As a special recognition for senior football stars, a section has been added to the athletic department of the Beaver, containing a head sketch of each senior grid star and of Coach Schissler. Another policy being followed for the first time this year is that of having regroup pictures of the officers of organizations instead of a group picture of the entire membership, which usually makes the figures in the picture so far away that recognition is impossible.

In carrying out the theme of the "Old Oregon Trail," the title page of each section consists of four pages containing a story relating the contents of the section to a phase of the long trek of the hardy pioneers and drawing an analogy between the past and present. The inside of the cover page follows out the same motif, depicting the history of the march of the pioneers across the continent to the Oregon City terminus. Painstaking search has made the historical account as accurate as possible in every detail.

CHARLES MACK, Editor

The 1931 Beaver

Under the direction of Walter Mackey, manager of Volume XXV Beaver, the advance sales campaign during the winter term reached a new height of interest and 1700 copies were sold during the seven-day drive.

Students were classified into three leagues by Bryant Williams, circulation manager, and lieutenants were placed in charge of each league.

Rex Wilson directed the Red league composed of all fraternity men, Webber Doughton led the White team which solicited down town students, and Annabelle Grant captained the Blue sales force which canvassed the sororities and women's dormitories. Three sub-captains led competitive groups in each league. One salesman was appointed for each living group on the campus to solicit from its members. The entire sales staff numbered more than 100.

A silver loving cup was presented to the individual winner in each league for selling the greatest number of Beavers, and a second prize of bronze book ends was awarded to the second highest record holder. Third prize was a letter opener. To the salesman who first reported his organization 100 per cent over the top, a free Beaver was given and another to the group.

Eleven organizations went over 100 per cent the first day and received a free Beaver. Seven energetic salesmen were camped on the doorstep of the Beaver office awaiting the opening of the campaign on the first morning of the drive to report their quota sold. A Beaver was given to each.

To Byron Carlson goes the credit for the advertising campaign which exceeded the budget by $300, an accomplishment recorded for the first time in the history of the Beaver. Another record established this year was 100 per cent collections under the direction of Martin Howard, collections manager. Each of these men was assisted by a capable business staff. The assistant manager was Charles Garland, and Jean St. Clair served as national advertising manager. A free Beaver with name lettered in gold was awarded to each department manager in recognition of his work on the publication.

A spring campaign was conducted for three days during March to allow those who failed to take advantage of the first opportunity to secure a copy of the annual, bringing the total sales well above previous marks. No Beavers were sold at the time of distribution in the spring to those who had not a receipt.

Oregon State Monthly

With A. L. McMillan, '27, as the new guiding hand, the Oregon State Monthly has maintained its progressive policy of universal appeal and representation of the entire campus.

Assisting the editor are members of Theta Sigma Phi, national honorary and professional society for women in journalism, and Sigma Delta Chi, national professional fraternity for men in journalism, who hold the positions of heads of the various school departments. This method insures service to all branches.

Reporting and writing in each department is done by students in journalism and others interested in getting practical writing experience. This group, for the most part, changes each term, thus allowing about 75 students the benefit of the experience.

From a small publication of interest only to alumni, the Monthly has grown to deserve the appellation, an all-school magazine. The incorporation last year of the Oregon Countryman, for 22 years the official publication of the school of agriculture, was but another step in this direction. Selections of literary merit and poetry are included in a section called Manuscripts, representing the best in composition.

Another improvement which has lately been included is a pictorial biographical department giving pictures of six alumni prominent in their particular field and a brief resume of their success. The magazine has grown to include 44 pages and is now issued on a 12-month basis instead of 10 as in the past.

A series of articles is being run in successive issues of the Monthly written by graduates who have been exceptionally successful in their field, dealing with some interesting phase of their work. This year special feature numbers have been issued, such as agriculture, the theme of the December number, commerce in January, and a large Exposition issue in February. Travel is the feature of the March number. It is hoped that next year these special editions will follow the entire school program, with the May number featuring the seniors.

A special women's section is the official organ of the women of the campus, giving news of women's activities. The section is contributed to entirely by Theta Sigma Phi, and this year was edited by Edith Bennett, '31.

The Annual Cruise is published every year by the Forestry club and endeavors to portray the year's events in pictures, poem, and prose contributed by students, instructors, professors, alumni, professional foresters and logging operators. The Annual Cruise has sections for alumni directory and news, besides various other sections enlivened by illustrations, poetry and songs selected by the "Fern Hoppers." The material covered by the magazine is technical, scientific and of historical interest to foresters and logging operators.

The Annual Cruise has a two-fold purpose: first, it gives a place for professional articles prepared by undergraduates, graduates and professional foresters which do not normally find a place in other campus or professional publications; second, it gives the men in the forestry department experience in getting out a publication. The circulation of the Cruise is general in the Northwest, but is not generally distributed on the campus. The Annual Cruise is an outgrowth of the Forest Club Annual first published in 1920.

All-College Formal Dance

A touch of the sunny South was brought to the campus when the Palm Beach idea was used for the decoration theme of the second All-College formal dance in the Memorial Union ballroom, October 25. The Memorial Union all-school formal dance was held for the first time last year and owing to its success this year it will become one of the traditional events of the college social life.

Palms in the lobby upstairs and around the floor of the ballroom and numerous bright-colored goldfish swimming in moss-bottomed tanks lent a realistic touch and helped to carry out the decoration theme. Romney Pearce's orchestra furnished the music, from a specially constructed platform at the end of the ball room. Doris Buck entertained during the intermission with several "blues songs."

Senior Ball

A delightful and appropriate spring idea was carried out for the Senior Ball, May 2, in the Memorial Union ball room. The decorations were modernistic in most part, supplemented by real blossoms and greenery combined to make an effective illusion of a spring night. Dick Stalker, general chairman of the dance, was responsible for the success of the ball as were the following committeemen: refreshments, Rita de Temple, chairman, Bob Jarmon, Alberta Phillips; decorations, Bob Mathews, chairman, Marian Wolfe, Bessie Stout, Leo Glasscock, Jerry Clark; programs, Neville Huffman, chairman, Harold Head, Candace Cool; guests, Beulah Porter, Betty Burgard, Charles Mack; publicity, Lauri Pernu, Mary Bennett, Rex Robinson; music, Ernest Woods, chairman, Sandy McEachern, Mildred Mitchell; floor, Melvin McConnell, chairman, Richard Buschman, Walter Scott, and feature, Clarence Aiken, chairman, Florence Schanz, John Blevins. Patrons and patronesses for the dance were Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Gilfillan, and Dr. and Mrs. D. T. Ordeman.

Junior Prom

Queen Alice I ruled with great pomp and ceremony over her loyal subjects at the Junior Prom given by the class of '32, February 28 in the Memorial Union ballroom. Alice Fisher was chosen by a majority vote from four candidates of the junior class. Selection was based on pulchritude, personality and queenly dignity, rather than popularity alone.

The coronation of the queen was conducted with great display. As the blast of the trumpet announced the beginning of the ceremony, the dancers rose and faced the entrance through which the queen, gowned in a royal purple robe, passed. Thus the impressive grand march was formed with the queen and Bert Taylor, junior class president, leading. The procession wound its way down to the ball room, where at one end a dais and throne had been erected. Dr. D. T. Ordeman, class advisor, led the ceremony and gave the oath of office to the queen, thus officially crowning Queen Alice I, of the annual Junior Prom.

An old-fashioned garden was the theme for decorations. Romney Pearce's orchestra played from a high-pillared platform in keeping with the colonial idea. Programs were blue suede, embossed in silver, with the silhouette of an old-fashioned maid standing out through a cellophane window.

Guests of honor were President and Mrs. W. J. Kerr, Honorable C. L. Starr, Dean Kate W. Jameson, Dean and Mrs. U. G. Dubach, Honorable and Mrs. M. D. McCallister, and Honorable and Mrs. J. K. Weatherford. Patrons and patronesses were Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Ordeman, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Gilfillan and Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Giddens.

Sophomore Cotillion

Varying somewhat from the customary college formal functions, the Sophomore Cotillion given in the Memorial Union ball room, January 24, was the scene of much gaiety and merrymaking. This dance, presented by the class of '33, was a joyous occasion carrying out the idea of that famous festival of the old South, the Mardi Gras, held in New Orleans.

Gay streamers of many brilliant colors hung around the ballroom and entwined the pillars, while vari-colored balloons floated near the ceiling and among the carefree dancers. A checkerboard pattern of plain red and black gave the effect of lattice-work, covering the ceiling. Serpentine and confetti in all hues were thrown by the merrymakers. Romney Pearce's eight-piece orchestra played from a raised orchestra dais festooned and hung with bright balloons. The programs for the dance were effective in silver and gold paper covers with the class numerals embossed on the front.

Honored guests were President and Mrs. W. J. Kerr, Governor and Mrs. Julius L. Meier, General and Mrs. George A. White, Honorable and Mrs. J. K. Weatherford, Honorable and Mrs. C. C. Colt, Honorable and Mrs. B. F. Irvine, Honorable and Mrs. C. L. Starr, Honorable and Mrs. E. C. Sammons, Honorable and Mrs. Albert Burch, Honorable and Mrs. E. C. Pease, Honorable and Mrs. F. E. R. Watzek. Patrons and patronesses were Mr. and Mrs. J. Lloyd LeMaster, Captain and Mrs. Forrest Ambrose, and Dr. and Mrs. Guy S. Claire. Merritt M. Nash was general chairman for the dance. Other committee members were: decorations, Burton Woods, chairman, Louise Ciliax, Betty Brians, Webber Doughton, John Matber; programs, Richard Dunn, chairman, Irene Read, Ruth Whepley, Marian Ryan, Miles Drake; guests, Vera Bardwell, chairman, Helen Busenbark, Harold Whiteside, William Perrin; publicity, Harlow Hickox, chairman, Caroline de la Saux, Helen Lund, Dexter Underhill; music, Simon Yerkovitch, chairman, Dorothy Sauter, Rowland Rose, Donald Street; floor, Russell Dahl, chairman, Richard Weber, Richard Upham; refreshments, Virginia Spurlin, chairman, O. Military Ball

A modern day war scene was the background for one of the outstanding social events of the year, the Military Ball. It was given under the auspices of Scabbard and Blade, honorary fraternity in military science at the Memorial Union ballroom, April 11.

The realistic setting of a battle scene was accentuated by unusual and effective lighting effects. As a special feature of the evening, sixteen new members were formally initiated into Scabbard and Blade in an impressive ceremony. Music was furnished by Jimmy Whipple's orchestra.

Among the guests of honor were President and Mrs. W. J. Kerr, Major-General Craig, commanding officer of the Ninth Corps area, from the Presidio of San Francisco. Lieutenant-

Colonel Jerome E. Pillow, R. O. T. C. officer of the Ninth Corps area, stationed at the Presidio, Brigadier-General Joseph C. Castner, commander of the Third Division at Fort Lewis, Washington, Brigadier-General Paul A. Wolf, Vancouver Barracks, Major-General George A. White, Oregon National Guard, Salem, Governor and Mrs. Julius L. Meier.

Programs were appropriate with a small American flag embossed on a black suede cover. Robert Jarmon was in general charge for the dance with the following committees assisting: guests, Robert Mispley and Glen Dudley, co-chairmen; programs, Ronald Johnson, chairman; decorations, Clarence Parker, chairman; publicity, Kermit Johnson, chairman; refreshments, Donald Lindsey and Lee Purdy, co-chairmen; feature, Harold Spencer, and music, Elmer Berg, chairman.

Coming on the next night after the annual Horse Show, the Military Ball made that weekend the outstanding war event of the school year. Although many of the men were dressed in the conventional "tuxes," the cadet officers and the regular commissioned officers turned out in full uniform.

As an added attraction of the dance, a cabinet of personal souvenirs and equipment was presented to the school by General U. G. McAlexander, who at one time was commandant of cadets at Oregon State.

Freshman Dance

Freshman Dance

At the Freshman Dance held November 7, in the Memorial Union ball room, the rooks had an opportunity to get acquainted with one another in a social manner. The dance is an annual affair which the first-year men are required to attend. Freshmen attend without dates and the penalty for leaving the dance unaccompanied by a girl is to spend the remainder of the night in serenading the women's dormitories. As the men in the class greatly outnumber the women, the competition is very keen.

To keep order and to see that the "dateless men" are taken care of, the Beaver Knights assist at the event. Upperclassmen found at rook dances are usually ejected, and if offenders repeat, they are "decorated."

Romney Pearce's orchestra played and decorations for the dance were befittingly in green. Committee chairmen and members for the Rook dance were as follows: refreshment committee, Lucille Gable, chairman, Ruth Howe, Charlotte Green, Paul Bush, and Frank Fisher; decoration committee, John S. Milletich, chairman, Barbara Reed, Ruth Lundgren, Edward Harris, and Kenneth Soult; guest committee, Hugh O'Neil, chairman, Floyd Smith, Helen Dorothy Haynes; music committee, James Denton, chairman, Marjorie Brown, and Burke Hayes; floor committee, Marsh Harrison, chairman, Benjamin McElroy, Milton Carlson, Forrest Lindsay, Leslie Aungst, Dwight Strong, Gail Burnett, Velva Mae Jeffries, Helen Young, Marjorie Brin-golf, and Dora Stoner. Gail Burnett, vice-president of the freshman class, was in general charge of the dance.

The Freshman Mix, sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A., assisted by the Big Sisters organization, was held in the Armory during the first week of school, freshman week. In the course of the evening, contests were staged, group dances were learned and various games were taught and played. The Mix is held each year during freshman week for the purpose of furnishing the freshmen with entertainment the first week, and of being a means by which they may become better acquainted with one another.

Informal Dances

Beards of all sizes, colors, kinds and descriptions were to be found at the Type Louse Crawl, Barometer-Beaver publications dance, January 16 in the Memorial Union ball room. For weeks previous to the dance the campus was infested with those growing beards and those making attempts at the same.

The dance was in celebration of the termination of the sale drive of the Volume XXV Beaver. Carrying out the Old Oregon Trail idea featured in the annual, the dancers came dressed in old-fashioned costumes. "Beards Manual," a scandal sheet featuring campus notables, was distributed during the evening.

Four new houses were open for the Rally dances, Homecoming week, November 13.

Dances were held at Theta Xi, Delta Zeta, Zeta Tau Alpha, Pi Kappa Phi and the Memorial Union ball room. Decorations of various college banners and blankets were used. The committee in charge was headed by Lloyd Baker, general chairman, Wilda Barker, Eugenia Fischer, and Forrest Bales.

A scoreboard dance was held October 4 in the Memorial Union ball room, featuring the football game being played in Los Angeles between the University of Southern California and Oregon State.

Two dances were held the first term, October 11 and December 6. A "general depression" dance was a feature of January 31 after the Oregon-Oregon State basketball game. James Gibson, social chairman for the student body, was in charge of the dances.

MUSIC

Madrigal Club

Madrigal

Madrigal has been the leading musical organization on the Oregon State campus since its formation in 1909. Membership is based on a vocal test given by Professor Paul Petri at the beginning of each fall quarter. Members receive training in group and choral singing. The girls are required to attend two practice periods a week conducted by Professor Petri on Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

Madrigal is very liberal in giving its services for campus functions and is entertained at numerous banquets during the school year. The girls' voices are heard at convocations, formal affairs and are in demand over station KOAC, the radio voice of the college.

Since its beginning in 1909 the Oregon State college Glee club has more than doubled its membership and is now one of the most popular choral organizations on the campus. Membership is highly prized and is sought after by many young men. Professor Paul Petri selects members from applicants who first pass a rigid vocal test. The organization appears in public often and its tours throughout the state have won it an enviable position among campus groups and in the eyes of the public as a whole. This year the Glee club is producing jointly with the Madrigal club the operetta "The Two Vagabonds." The male leads and chorusmen parts are taken by members of the Glee club.

DRAMATICS

Scene from "Hell Bent . . ."

"Hell Bent for Heaven"

"Hell Bent for Heaven," by Hatcher Hughes, was presented May 23 and 24 at the Majestic theater by the Oregon State chapter of National Collegiate Players. This drama, which was awarded the Pulitzer prize in 1922, is one of the most talked of scripts of the day. It is recognized everywhere as the leading portrayal of backwoods life in the mountains of Carolina.

"Hell Bent for Heaven" deals with the feuds and loves of the backwoodsmen in such a realistic matter that every one who witnessed the production talked of it for days. Rufe is the outstanding character of the play. The interpretation of this role by Gus Ciliax was the outstanding part in the campus presentation. He very ably portrayed the bitter life of the mountaineers. It was evident that he was striving hard to find a more elevating manner of living, but the force of environment was too strong. Through thick and thin he vainly believed in a God who would help him.

GUS CILIAX and

The feud between the Lowrys and the Hunts was admirably done. The love affairs complicated the matter, and it all went on with the hopelessness and despair that is characteristic of the bitter family struggles of Carolinians.

Sid Hunt went to war, and when he came back his outlook on mountain life had changed entirely. He had seen the uselessness of keeping up the feud and was determined to patch up the quarrels. One of his strongest reasons for wanting the reconciliation was that he was in love with Jude Lowry and had chummed with Andy Lowry since the two had been boys. Luck and logic were both with him and the feud was finally stopped.

The cast of "Hell Bent for Heaven" consisted of Gus Ciliax as Rufe, Tom Cuning as Andy Lowry, Paul Dutcher as Grandpap, Carl Johnson as Sid Hunt, Hester Davis as Jude Lowry and Jane Mercer as Meg Hunt. The play was directed by Miss Elizabeth Barnes, associate professor in public speaking and dramatics.

Scene from "Ten Nights . . ."

"Ten Nights in a Barroom"

The National Collegiate Players presented the melodrama, "Ten Nights in a Barroom," by T. S. Arthur, November 20, 21 and 22 in the Workshop theater. The play, which was one of the earliest efforts toward prohibition, was carried out after the fashion of 1858. Even the programs conformed to the prevailing nineteenth century style.

The story is concerned with the drinking and subsequent reform of Joe Morgan. Romaine arrives at the "Sickle and Sheaf" tavern and learns from the town gossip, Sample Swichel, that Simon Slade has cheated the drunkard, Joe Morgan, out of his mill. Slade, who also owns the tavern, manages to keep Morgan drunk continuously. Morgan and Slade have a severe discussion, and when they are both on the verge of blows, Morgan's little daughter, Mary, comes to the tavern, sings "Father, Dear Father, Come Home to Me Now." A day or so later Morgan becomes involved in a battle with Slade, who throws a bottle at the drunkard. Slade's aim is poor, and little Mary is hit.

Green gets everyone into a card game and wins all their money. Morgan promises to stay at home with Mary, who is fearfully delirious. She dies during the night, and her father, as a result of her death, reforms. The last act is devoted to the happiness of everyone who has sworn off drinking. Morgan is prosperous, and still saddened over the death of his daughter; Frank Slade kills his father, and even Sample Swichel turns prohibitionist. He and Mehitable Cartright, supply the comedy of the play.

The characters were: Wesley Coutts as Joe Morgan, Marianne Sharpe as Little Mary Morgan, Jack Handford as Sample Switchel, Tom Bruce as Simon Slade, Mary Bennett as Mrs. Slade, Dick Stalker as Frank Slade, Willard Ormsby as Harvey Green, Carl Johnson as Romaine, Tom Cunning as Willie Hammond, Hester Davis as Mrs. Morgan, and Susan Hays as Mehitable Cartright. The production was directed by D. Palmer Young and augmented by Romney Pearce's orchestra.

Junior Follies

The world premier of "U-Kruse," a musical comedy written by Wesley Coutts and Romney Pearce, was the Junior Follies presentation during Campus Week-end. It was presented to a crowded house May 16 and 17 at the Majestic theater.

The story takes place on the University A-float, the "S. S. Emeritus," and in a Siamese temple. It deals with the love affair of Peggy Lee and Ted Montgomery. Peggy's father, on hearing of her attraction for Ted, shipped her off on the floating university to keep her away from the object of her affections. By a stroke of fate Ted was on the same boat. Sue Richards and the Villain alienated her affections for Ted, and she jumped overboard when the pirates surrounded and boarded the ship. She was saved by the Pirate Chief. A duel between Ted and the Villain followed. Eventually she and Ted were reunited.

The comic element was supplied by Genevieve, and her attention to Richard Swythington. She was constantly appearing and dragging him off with her. The romance of Bill Jones and the Chambermaid was also responsible for a great many laughs. The inevitable Deans of Men and Women were ludicrously portrayed as poking their noses into everything. The Siamese dancers were marvels of sensuous dancing. "I'm Sorry for You Little Girl," as sung by the Pirate Chief was the theme song of the production. He also sang the famed "Pirate Song." In the Siamese temple Ted Montgomery sang "You Are the Someone for Me" and "True Lips" to Peggy.

D. Palmer Young coached the comedy. The cast consisted of Z. Wayne Griffin as Ted Montgomery, Jimmy Kincaid as Peggy Lee, Bob Black as Sue Richards, Art Renner as the Villain, Bud Nock as Genevieve, Dick Stalker as Richard Swythington, Don Harris as the Pirate Chief, "Shine" Mack as Bill Jones, Carl Cramer as the Chambermaid, Hal Babbitt as the Dean of Men, and Robin Batchellor as the Dean of Women.

The same co-writers have prepared another play for this year's production.

Men's Varsity Debate

Two of the most unusual debates in the history of Oregon State forensics were held this year. The University of Porto Rico team, Antonio Colorado and Juan Giegel, attacked American intervention in the Caribbean against Rex Robinson and Gordon Winks at Corvallis; and George Hartley and Gordon Winks supported the abolition of alimony against the University of Nevada in Reno. Both debates were non-decision.

Debating "Resolved, that the expansion of the chain stores is detrimental to the best interests of the American people" the men began their season with two victories over Willamette University. Dennis Patch and Robinson took the affirmative; Hartley and Winks the negative. In this debate each speaker had the right to cross question his opponents. The clash with Oregon ended in a tie with Hartley and Winks winning, two to one at Corvallis, while Burton Wood and Robinson lost by the same vote at Eugene. Since 1923 no Oregon team has been able to win this series.

Hartley and Winks debated the negative of the chain store subject in no-decision contests at Southern California, Stanford, University of California at Berkeley and Fresno State. Attacking chains, Wood and Robinson lost a two to one decision at Seattle to the University of Washington. Carl Boswell, Loren Smith, Jerry Knox and Walter Bowne met Pacific University; and Howard Ireland, Ray Scott, Clark Durham and Norman Rudd debated Linfield. An extempore debate was held with College of the Pacific, Boswell and Rudd representing Oregon State.

Other contests were held too late to include results here.

Of those graduating, Robinson had ten major debates in two years, including the internationals with Hawaii in 1930 and Porto Rico in 1931. In four years Winks debated twenty-three times, winning eight and losing two. Loren Smith also completed his varsity debate work. This was the fourth year in which W. A. Dahlberg coached the men.

Women's Varsity Debate

"Resolved, that Gandhi has been a benefit to India" received thorough consideration from the women's debate squad in their 27 debates this year, but the position of the Nationalist leader was changing so rapidly that the team was kept busy revising their case with each new development.

In the dual debate with the University of Washington Helen Haynes and Adena Joy won at Corvallis with Doris Rutherford and Eloise Bilyeu losing at Seattle. Florence Scott and Adena Joy won a unanimous decision from the strong Washington State College team as well as a two to one victory over the University of Idaho, and held no-decision debates with Oregon Normal and Linfield.

Dorothy Druschel and Alice Ingalls made the trip to Los Angeles and took part in no-decision debates with Southern California, University of California at Berkeley, Stanford, Fresno State, Mills and Nevada. In the Southern California debate both teams had but three hours in which to prepare the complete case and speeches on a subject which neither had ever debated before, "Resolved, that the Russian system of Sovietism would be applicable to Western civilization." The same team debated Linfield before leaving for California.

Fern Edwards, Misses Joy, Druschel and Ingalls were in the no-decision dual debate with the University of Oregon women. Dorothy Ann Sidler, Betty Spurlin, Beverly Schoenborn and Eloise Bilyeu debated Pacific. Margaret Welch and Ila Johnson took the negative against Willamette and Oregon Normal; while Hazel Packer and Donna Mae Harvey and Helen Haynes and Betty Spurlin had the affirmative against the same schools. Miss Schoenborn and Miss Spurlin debated Whitman here.

A trip to Moscow with debates arranged with Whitman, Washington State and Idaho was scheduled for the third term. Home debates with Mills on the Gandhi question and with Southern California on the extempore plan were also held. P. X. Knoll is completing his third year as women's debate coach.

Extempore Speakers

Since 1928 Oregon State orators have won five firsts and four seconds in the eleven state contests held, and a first and a second in six coast contests entered.

Merritt Nash was the college representative in the Old Line Oratorical Contest at Forest Grove. He declared that even though the Communist party may be small its importance must not be underestimated. Nash was rated two points below the winner, and received second place. He showed by exemplifying the American government as an unsuspecting doe and the Communists as the lurking cougar, how that party is creeping up on the unheeding public and is getting ready to pounce.

Nash spoke again in the Pacific Forensic League contest for the coast title at Seattle on April 6. This is his second year as a varsity orator, he having won second in the State Peace contest last year.

E. W. WELLS, Coach

Bertrand Evans began his work in oratory in the State Peace contest at Newberg, his oration, "A Play Without a Climax," effectively stressing the importance of education of public opinion in curbing war. In one of the closest state contests on record Evans lost first by a very narrow margin, taking second. Evans, who is a junior, will have one more year in varsity extempore speaking, and the coaches expect great things of him next winter and spring.

For the second year in succession Gordon Winks won third in the Coast Extempore Speaking contest, held this year at Seattle. The entrants from twelve of the largest colleges on the coast were assigned subjects and given one hour to prepare a ten-minute speech. In the preliminary contest Winks spoke on "The Next War" and in the final on "Racketeering."

Irving Rosenblatt of Stanford took first and James Bell of Washington second.

Walter Pickthall, speaking in his first intercollegiate contest, won second in the State contest at Monmouth. Pickthall drew "The Social Effects of Unemployment" and stressed the fact that unemployment increased social unrest.

The final extempore speaking contest of the year was one in after-dinner speaking held at Salem, in which the contestants were given three hours to prepare five-minute speeches on an assigned phase of "American Babbitry."

Dr. Earl W. Wells, coach of extempore speaking, has served two terms as president of the Pacific Forensic League.

Freshman Debate

Succeeding in the effort to give a new interest to the old question of the tariff, the freshmen held thirteen debates on the subject, "Resolved, that the nations should adopt a policy of free trade." In most cases their opponents were varsity teams, and four of them were from outside the state. A number of outstanding prospects for next year's varsity teams were developed.

The first dual debate in several years with the University of Oregon frosh was held this season, with Walther Ott and Clifford Joy defending the affirmative at Corvallis, while Dick Brown and Otto Panzer took the negative side at Eugene. Brown and Panzer debated the greatest number of times, meeting Northwest Nazarene College of Nampa, Idaho; Albany College and Linfield College, in addition to the frosh.

In the debate with Washington State Normal School the freshmen employed the cross question system for the first time. Instead of the usual method of constructive speeches and rebuttals from each speaker, one man for each side gave the entire constructive argument, after which the other member of the team cross examined his opponents and then delivered the rebuttal on the basis of the answers. Cecil Hallinan and Panzer were the team for this contest, a no-decision affair.

On the affirmative Ott and Kenneth Allen met Linfield College and Weber College of Ogden, Utah, and Herbert Luehrs and Daniel Bates debated Albany.

Other members of the squad took part in the later debates with College of Idaho from Caldwell, Eastern Oregon Normal and a dual debate with Oregon Normal. Ten of the rooks won their debate numerals.

A. E. O'Konski, coach of oratory and freshman debate, is chiefly responsible for the great increase in interest in those activities since his assumption of control three years ago. His orators have maintained a consistently high level of performance.

The H. L. Holgate prize of $25 was awarded to Walther Ott.

Forensic Managers

In the final analysis, a large share of credit for whatever success may be attained in either forensics or dramatics at Oregon State is rightfully due Professor C. B. Mitchell, head of the department of public speaking and head coach of dramatics. By planning the college speech work to emphasize the practical aspects of public address, a general interest and support has been developed for the extracurricular speaking activities and outstanding competitors have been developed from every school on the campus.

Under the system developed at Oregon State all forensic finances are handled by a general forensic manager, who also takes direct charge of the arrangements for men's debates. Gordon Winks held this office for the second time this year. The women's manager, Alice Ingalls, made the preparations for that activity with the aid of Dorothy Druschel, assistant women's manager. Rex Robinson and Dale Cowen served as publicity managers. Dennis Patch and George Hartley were the assistant men's debate managers. Freshman debate affairs were taken care of by Kenneth Allen.

Each term the Corvallis Lions Club sponsors an extempore speaking contest in which the winners from each elementary speech class participate. Clarence White won last spring term, Carl Boswell fall term, and Adena Joy winter term.

Hugh Nicholson and Draper Mason, debating for Weatherford Hall, and supporting Julius Meier, won the final intramural debate from Bert Evans and Ray Scott, Delta Tau Delta, Metschan adherents, discussing the question "Who should be the next governor of Oregon?" The teams eliminated in the semi-finals were Beta Kappa and Delta Sigma Phi. Forty-seven teams entered the series which was handled by Merritt Nash and Harlan Atterbury, intramural managers.

Through the generosity of Mr. Jacob Reichart, an award of $25 is made annually to the senior showing the greatest ability in forensics. Siri Ann Enegren, outstanding woman debater last year, won the prize in 1930.

MILITARY

Commissioned Officers

Commissioned Officers

A staff of 10 commissioned officers headed by Colonel William H. Patterson, Infantry, commandant of cadets, guides the theoretical and practical instructional work of three units of the R. O. T. C. represented at Oregon State—infantry, field artillery and engineer corps. Both in number of men trained and in the quality of instruction O. S. C.'s reputation has steadily increased. The college has been rated a distinguished institution, nine times since 1917 and received an equivalent rating in 1928 and 1930 as a result of the annual inspections of the entire organization. A board of inspectors, regular army officers, visits the college, reviews the cadets on parade and tests them in practical work on the different specialties of the three units.

As military organization is based upon the number of men who can be controlled by a single leader, the infantry is the arm upon which all organization is based. The other arms and services are added to the infantry in proportion to the assistance each can give to it. The first requirement is for a percentage of field artillery for fire support. The support forthcoming from our unit would meet the requirements of a Brigade of Infantry. An additional requirement for the infantry is the engineers for mapping, obstacles, road signs, bridges, and for laying out technical tasks and supervising their execution.

A military tournament and horse show is held each year. This year the show was scheduled for April 10 and consisted of a 10-event program of judging, riding and unit events.

Oregon State's R. O. T. C. rifle team has a reputation that is not approached by any institution on the Pacific coast.

The college armory, one of the most commodious in the country, is a very busy one. It is used by all three units, by the polo team for practice and indoor games, by the varsity football squad in inclement weather, by track men, by the Archery club, and by the Co-ed riding club in physical education, and at odd times for all sorts of assemblies and get-togethers.

Cadet Officers

Cadet Officers

In the Oregon State's R. O. T. C. units which are really preparatory schools for the organized reserves of the United States army, full responsibility is placed upon the cadet officers and non-commissioned officers to develop viewpoint, discipline, character, obedience, courtesy, spirit, organization, leadership and the full acceptance of responsibility. The development of patriotism, citizenship, personal hygiene and physical endurance are other aims of the department which do not directly bear upon the subject matter taught in the different courses.

Students and the military department function upon the principles of harmonious, full cooperation and mutual understanding and sympathetic helpfulness.

Training of all units is divided into basic and advanced courses. Principles of combat, practice and theory of infantry drill, machine gun and rifle fire, hygiene, map reading, sketching, scouting, patrolling, all are inculcated into the fibre of the infantry cadet.

A diversified program faces these taking work in the field artillery unit. The basic courses take up subjects pertaining to battery equipment, the duties of cannoneers, battery transport and instruction, as well as the study and practical use of the pistol and marching maneuvers. Advanced students study the problems of gunnery and fire control. Throughout the entire four years of training special attention is given to horsemanship and the care of animals.

Because of the technical requirements of the course only men registered in the engineering or forestry schools are accepted for training in the engineer unit. Work with pontoon bridges, wire entanglements, explosives and demolitions, and surveying and drafting instruments take a major part of the time of the men enrolled in the engineer unit. Study of infantry combat principles is stressed throughout the basic course.

Each summer the juniors enrolled in the different units of the R. O. T. C. attend a six-weeks camp of practical instruction.

O. S. C. Military Band

Oregon State Band

During the latter part of November the band traveled east to Chicago with the football team to play at the O. S. C.-West Virginia game on Soldier's field. The musicians who made the trip also performed at the Army-Notre Dame gridiron struggle despite being handicapped by zero weather. The 51 men elected for the journey were chosen by Captain Harry Lynden Beard, director, on the basis of musical skill and technique. Enthusiasm of the school as a whole in supporting the band's jaunt which was planned in cooperation with Coach Paul J. Schissler made the various means of raising money needed for the trip entirely successful.

This spring as in former years, Captain Beard who is recognized as one of the premier instructors of band men in the country, conducted the organization through a 10-day tour of eastern Oregon towns, Gresham, Pendleton, La Grande, Ontario, Baker, North Powder, Union, Enterprise, Arlington and The Dalles. Membership of the band this year has been larger than ever before and enthusiasm for the work has been of more than average intensity, perhaps because of the incentive of long trips which the more efficient musicians have been privileged to take.

All underclass band men receive letters, sweaters being awarded to the junior and senior members. Exceptional ability in band work, personality, good scholarship, character and leadership are requisites for election to Kappa Kappa Psi, national band honorary.

Associated Women Students

All women registered at Oregon State college are members of the local chapter of the National Federation of Associated Women Students. This is a self-governing organization and is the nucleus of all women's groups on the campus.

Four events sponsored each year by this organization are the Co-ed ball, fall term; the Women's Formal tea and the Co-ed Stunt show, winter term; and the Annual Women's day, spring term.

At the Co-ed ball prizes are presented to the person with the most original costume, to the most comical costume and to the best dressed couple. Billie Cupper was general chairman for the event.

The Formal tea is given in the Memorial Union building for all college women. The privilege of using the Memorial Union lounge for teas is granted only to this organization. The chairman was Rita DeTemple.

BETTY ROBLEY President

Members of the sororities, halls and clubs take part in the Co-ed Stunt show, which is under the supervision and direction of Mrs. Lorna C. Jessup, assistant dean of women. Hester Davis as general manager had charge of the organization of the show.

All mothers of Oregon State students are invited to the Annual Women's day. At this time an honor convocation is held to announce pledges to honor organizations.

This year members of A. W. S. adopted an official orange and black beret to be worn at football games and other athletic events.

A yell-queen will be chosen this year for the first time from a group which are being trained by the yell-king. The selected yell leader will start to work next fall, during the football season, and will lead the co-ed rooters throughout the year. The idea was tried out last winter during the basketball season.

The Western Intercollegiate Conference of Associated Women Students was held on the Oregon State campus in April.

A series of etiquette talks was sponsored by A. W. S. These talks were given by faculty members, who spoke on many phases of social life.

Officers for the year were Betty Robley, president; Billy Cupper, vice-president; Elizabeth Fletcher, secretary; Alice Fish, treasurer; Grace Baird, sergeant-at-arms.

A. W. S. officers are elected each year at registration for spring quarter, and those officers are installed at the honor convocation during Mothers' weekend.

Co-ed Ball

Howling babies, devils, football players, jumping frogs, Pied Piper and his children, pegleg pirates, harem girls and Dutch children danced together amicably at the annual Co-ed Ball in the Women's building November 8, 1930. Ten houses turned out 100 per cent. These houses were Alpha Chi Omega, Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Omicron Pi, Alpha Xi Delta, Beta Phi Alpha, Chi Omega, Delta Delta Delta, Gamma Phi Beta, Sigma Kappa and Pi Beta Phi. Committee chairmen were as follows: tickets, Eloise Bilyeu; invitations, Esther Wood; floor, Meron Bomgardner and Naomi Mayfield; stunt, Leome Thordarson; orchestra, Dorothy Van Groos; prizes, Harriet Beall; publicity, Billy Fish. "Hap" Edwards and his orchestra donated their services.

Women's Day Event

Women's Day

The annual Women's Day at Oregon State college was first celebrated in 1924. Since that time one week-end has been set aside each year for the celebrations which have proven most successful and enjoyable.

Last year the theme for Women's Day was "Women of Other Lands." The official program began Saturday morning, May 10, 1930, with the registration of all mothers attending. A tour of the campus followed, and at 1 o'clock everyone gathered at the Women's building for the honor assembly at which time the A. W. S. officers were installed and pledges to the various women's honorary organizations were announced. After the honor assembly the spring festival was given, which was followed by a reception and banquet.

Associated Rookesses

A freshman girl from each living group and independent organization composes the Associated Rookesses. They are under the supervision and direction of the Associated Women Students with the second vice-president of the student body acting as their head. Activity points are given for their work.

Members of the Associated Rookesses for the past year were: Lucille Gable, Frances Burch, Dorothy Straw, Marie Montgomery, Ruby Morrison, Eleanor Forden, Muriel Harper, Ilse Schwedler, Evelyn Huerth, Katherine McIntyre, Merle Mills, Mary Lipps, Margaret Brineman, Glenna Lyster, Doris Pogue, Edith Smith, Myrtle Stevenson, Grace Holman, Gwen Fundmen, Anne Wilson, Charlotte Green, Ruth Thompson, Marian Proffitt, Kirsten Johnson, Alice Poco, Mary Barrett, Nita Crail, Susan Miller, Louise Esbanshade, Peggy Mae Blackwell, Alice Molen, Mary Herren, Wynnetta Guthrie, Mayone Drisback, Elisa Schmidt, Ruth Thompson, Freda Barlow, Rosemary Snyder, Grace Holman, Doris Shaver, Beth McElroy, and Irene Prizer.

The Y. W. C. A. which stands for the development and expression of Christian living on the campus has an organization which revolves around a cabinet of junior and senior members interested in furthering the ideals of womanhood. These members are Carmen Walrad, discussions; Fern Edwards, big sister chairman; Charlotte Klock, finance chairman; Sally Ivie, office chairman; Leone Elliott, music chairman; Ruby Hall, community service; Helen Whitelaw, conference chairman; Ruth DeArmond, worship chairman; Dorothy Carlstrom, social chairman; Esther Kammerer, meetings chairman; Estora Ricks, inter-fraternity relations; Betty Thorne, membership; Catherine Campbell, Beacon reporter; Virginia Prudhomme, publicity; Clara Noble, president; Elizabeth Abrahams, secretary and Lela Hathaway, treasurer.

Shortly after school begins the freshmen commission is formed and at the end of the year the Big Sisters are chosen from this group. Freshman week marked the beginning of the Y. W.'s activities and the culmination of last summer's plans for girls entering college. The freshman mix was given jointly with the Y. M. C. A.; fireside parties in the halls alleviated that homesick feeling; the final affair of the week was an Oriental tea at Waldo Hall.

This year the group has sponsored Sunday night "Closing Hours" which proved most profitable in Waldo, Kidder and Margaret Snell halls. These worship hours serve as an inspiration for a busy week ahead.

Each summer a conference is held at Seabeck, Washington. Our campus delegates are housed in the Oregon State cottage for the duration of the conference. An advisory board composed of Mrs. W. M. Atwood, Mrs. H. N. Whitelaw, Mrs. J. F. Brumbaugh, Mrs. C. Crumley, Mrs. Fred Buchanan, Mrs. Laura Loughary, Mrs. Lorna Jessup, Mrs. P. V. Maris, Mrs. D. T. Women's Athletic Association

Recreation, fun, and competition are provided by the Women's Athletic association for every co-ed interested in sports. The aim of the association is to promote qualities of leadership, good sportsmanship, fellowship, cooperation and wholesome physical activities which make for health and efficiency. Membership is open to any girl having 50 points in any of the W. A. A. sports. Membership in this group is optional for the women, but most of those who minor in physical education belong to it.

W. A. A. promotes all team sports offered to women and encourages interclass competition, for it is the background and backbone of co-ed athletics.

Officers for 1930-31 are Chloe Burge, president; Alice Fish, vice-president; Kathleen McClintock, secretary; Leome Thordarson, treasurer; Velma Needham, custodian, and Kathryn Tonsing, publicity manager. Sports managers are Jeanne Reinhart, hockey; Nita Colvin, volleyball; Rose Winkler, basketball; Leila Cameron, swimming; Barbara Burtis, dancing; Lila Schumacher, hiking; Carrie Boultinghouse, tennis; Margaret Merryman, archery; and Margaret Billing, baseball. These managers arrange the schedules for the various sports, check equipment, and see that officials are there for each game.

The first award a girl may receive is a minor "O" presented when 500 points have been earned. The next award is the Orange "O" sweater given when a girl has fulfilled the requirements of 1000 points in sports, scholarship, leadership, sportsmanship, service to

W. A. A. and good posture. All women who have earned an Orange "O" become members of the Orange "O" association and are given the sweater with the letter.

The highest honor any member of W. A. A. may receive is to have her name placed on a placque over the fireplace mantle in the club rooms in the Women's building. To receive this award she must be selected as the outstanding girl in W. A. A., one who has progressed most in ideals of womanhood and service to W. A. A. during her college career. Elizabeth Hubbard was chosen for this honor last year by the dean of women, W. A. A. executive council and the physical education faculty.

As only one out of several hundred women is selected annually for this honor, competition for the placque award is especially keen.

The Women's Athletic association is a member of the Athletic Conference of American College Women, and as such sends a delegate to all meetings of the conference and participates occasionally in interschool competition.

CHLOE BURGE, President

Physical Education Staff

Physical Education for Women

Ruth Robinson, director of physical education for women, came to this campus from Michigan State Normal school. During her short time here, she has done a great deal to further the aim of the department in promoting friendly competition and sportsmanship.

All aspirants for graduation are required to earn nine credits in physical education consisting of one and a half credits each of team games, dancing, swimming and individual sports.

Staff members coach teams for interclass games and tournaments. Instructors who assist in the department are Elsie Jacobsen, basketball, baseball, hockey and tumbling; Elizabeth Thompson, dancing; Laura McAllister, special activities and archery; Natalie Reichart, swimming and clogging; Lelia Riley, volleyball and riding; Jeanette Brauns, hockey and extension swimming; and Louise Hoeschen, golf, tennis and social dancing.

The department tries to bring outstanding people in the field of physical education to the campus every year so that the students may learn methods of other schools.

All first-year students are required to take freshman gymnasium. The first term the basic principles of human physiology and anatomy with corrective exercises are given. The elements of rhythm and dancing are studied second term, while all forms of sports are introduced third term. This fundamental work is required as the foundation for other activities.

The staff is striving to develop good body control in students so that they will have at their command skills which will enable them to meet life's demands easily.

The women's physical education department is under the school of health and physical education with Clair Van Norman Langton as dean of the school.

Besides promoting physical education in class work, the women's department also has much to do with W. A. A., for courses in the curriculum are arranged to fill some of the requirements for W. A. A. points. Individual development as well as team work is stressed.

Orange "O" Association

The Orange "O" association is composed of co-eds who have earned the highest award offered in women's athletics.

Orange "O" sweaters are awarded to junior or senior women belonging to the Women's Athletic association who have earned 1000 points by participation in athletic activities. The activities include the individual sports, swimming, dancing, archery and tennis. The team sports included are hockey, basketball, baseball and volleyball.

One point a mile is given for hiking with a maximum of 100 points and a minimum of 25 points a year. Women who earn points at hiking go along certain prescribed routes, and they may go either with groups or alone.

A woman may participate in only one team sport and one individual sport each term. The other requirements are a scholarship average of 84, leadership, active service in the Women's Athletic association, sportsmanship, good character and posture.

Wearers of the Orange "O" sweater are Chloe Burge, Martha Jane Pocklington, Leome Thordarson, Mary Bennett, Kathryn Tonsing, Jeanne Reinhart, Alice Fish and Rose Winkler.

A minor "O" is given to women who have earned 500 points in sports and is the first step toward a sweater. The minor "O" is to be worn on the pocket of a sweater and may be earned by the end of the freshman year if one plays on two first teams each term. First team players are given 100 points and 75 points for substitutes. Second team awards are 50 points.

A special committee acts each year to determine the awarding of sweaters to eligible co-eds. The committee consists of the head of the physical education department, a faculty member elected each year, the president of the physical education club and one member from the junior or senior class.

The association is open to every woman in college interested in sports, but membership in the group is not compulsory.

Volleyball Winners

Volleyball

The freshmen women won the championship in interclass volleyball this year after playing off a tie with the sophomores. Members of the freshman team were Betty Hole, Beneva Volkmar, Grace DeSpain, Alice Stengel, Thurley Ernest, Mary Davis and Ann Louise Herchenhein.

The women most proficient in the sport are given distinction by being placed on an honor team. This year it was composed of Frances Reid, Betty Spurlin, Lois Edgerton, Frances Carry, Helen Smyth, Alice Stengel, Mary Davis and Betty Hole. Substitutes were Naomi Johnson, Helen Denman and Betty Wakefield.

Volleyball was divided into two groups—one for the physical education minors and the other for non-minors.

Hockey

Although Jupiter did not cooperate well during the hockey season, the teams played with a great deal of enthusiasm on the slippery ground. Each team played every other team twice. The winner of the tournament was the senior team composed of Mary Bennett, Chloe Burge, Faith Lindros, Julia Maclean, Velma Needham, Gertrude Newton, Martha Jane Pocklington, Jeanne Reinhart, Leome Thordarson and Kathryn Tonsing.

Hockey is a sport imported from England and is one of the more prominent sports of the physical education department. Its popularity is attributed to the fact that it combines the skills found in several other sports. The sport is becoming increasingly popular each season.

Baseball

During baseball season a series of interclass games were played. Both minor and non-minor teams met in a round robin tournament. The junior and senior non-minors combined to form one team and won the championship of their group, while the senior minors were winners of the minor group.

The junior-senior non-minor team was composed of Ruth Baumbach, Nita Colvin, Kathleen McClintock, Ione Nelson, Dorothy Rice, Alta DeShazer, Imogene Hocken, Florence Hoagland, Rose Taff and Helen Wirkkala.

Members of the senior minor team were Elda Aasen, Dorothy Hall, Genevieve Hanlon, Mabel Harding, Florence Kaufman, Elizabeth Hubbard, Julie MacLean, Martha Pocklington and Ruth Rydell.

Basketball

The minor and non-minor basketball teams played a round robin tournament, with each team playing seven games. Three of the minor quintets were in a tie when the series was over—the sophomores, the juniors, and the seniors. Aggregate scores were used in determining the league winners, with the sophomores taking first place with a total of 169 points.

Archery Drill

Archery

Archery is one of the individual sports offered spring term for W. A. A. points. Girls were chosen to represent their class as the result of two preliminary tournaments. Those who shot in the final meet were Aura May Hake, senior; Elsie Crail, junior; Ruth Minor, sophomore, and Caroline Klapotz, freshman.

The tournament resulted in a victory for the seniors with sophomores second, freshmen third and juniors fourth. Archery was under the supervision of Miss Laura McAllister, instructor of physical education, with Kathryn Tonsing as manager.

Tennis

Tennis, one of the chief co-ed activities in the spring, develops keen competition between the members of different classes. Gertrude Newton managed this sport with Miss Leta Hamilton, instructor of physical education, as advisor. All the entrants of each class played in a round robin tournament.

The tournament winner played singles for her class and the two next highest played doubles. Elizabeth Hubbard and Genevieve Hanlon won the final doubles match for the seniors, the singles being won by Mary Bennett, junior.

Coed Swimming

Swimming

W. A. A. points for swimming are awarded to those women who are active members of the Acquabat swimming club. This organization sponsors a life-saving class and a water carnival or circus every quarter. Points are given to members for stunts, speed events, diving and distance swimming. The ten co-eds who have the highest number of points at the end of each year are automatically placed on the first team and are given 100 W. A. A. points. The next five highest, who are substitutes, are given 50 points each. Lelia Cameron, senior in home economics, was swimming manager this year.

Emphasis is placed on achievement and accomplishment both in team work and in individual performances.

Dancing

Dance recitals and special programs are means of earning W. A. A. points. During the past year the department presented "The Life of the Dance" in which more than 100 students of the dancing class took part. They expressed the development of dance from the "Primeval Force" of movement through different ages of dance up to the spirit of "Jazz" and the "New Spirit."

"Robin Hood" was presented by W. A. A. as the Mother's day program.

Points toward an Orange "O" sweater are given for both natural and tap dancing. Unlike other sports dancing allows the complete self-expression of the individual. Women are encouraged to take up the various phases of dancing, both solo and group work.

Giocoso, women's annual fun-fest, is scheduled for fall term. Each class takes part in this. Competition is in an entrance stunt, dancing, tumbling, relays, games, technique in skills, songs, clogging, number of women present and a challenge from each group. Winners are given a doll, Miss Giocoso. Eda Stoner had charge of this function.

Women Student Rookesses

The Associated Women Student Rookesses is under the supervision of the Associated Women Students with the vice-president of that organization in charge. They are composed of one girl from each living group and independent organization on the campus. The purpose of the associated women student rookesses is to familiarize themselves with the work of the Associated Women students so that they can carry on the work of that organization. Among other duties these girls act as ushers at the Co-ed bust.

ATHLETICS

Recreation and sport contests have always been part of the lives of human beings, and in this phase of life the members of the Oregon Trail trains proved no exception. Of course the organized physique building methods did not exist as they do in our colleges of today, but health giving exercise was not ignored on the long trip west.

The natural routine of the lives of the pioneers hardened them physically and developed in them that alertness necessary to meet the varied events of their strenuous journey.

Organized sports were not entirely unknown however, as tong ball, marbles, foot races, tag games and riding events were popular whenever a stop was made for the night or for a rest period. Winter sports of the plainest character were welcomed when conditions permitted.

The man with the "yellow streak" was not tolerated, nor would he long exist for simplicity and sportsmanship were the keynotes in the lives of these resolute men and women.

These same ideas of play and sports and rules of sportsmanship have been carried down from the Trail to our colleges, and now athletics and organized physical training are an important factor in the education of every person.

Moonlight on the campus! I remember
It was many years ago on such a night,
In the beauty of another such November,
We were out to tell our winnings in a fight.

We were garrulous and noisy in our glory;
We were heedless of the beauty round about;
We were out to tell the world the thrilling story
Of a victory that thundered in a shout.

This spirit of endeavor on the campus,
This challenge that confronts us with a thrill,
This courage, this conviction—it must stamp us
With the imprint of the college on the hill.

Physical Education

"Every Man in Athletics" has been Dr. Clair V. Langton's aim since he has been head of the physical education and health departments at Oregon State college. Dr. Langton has completed this third year at O. S. C. and has developed a department of high standing on the Pacific coast. Every man has an opportunity to take part in sports because of the large variety of games offered.

Rapid strides in athletics have been made under the leadership of Paul J. Schissler, head football coach and director of intercollegiate athletics, who had ten years of coaching experience before he came to Oregon State in 1924. Four successive wins in intersectional contests have been an impetus to football.

C. V. LANGTON
Dean of Education

Coach Schissler is fortunate in having a large staff of efficient assistant mentors. James Dixon was appointed line coach in 1927 after having starred at tackle for O. S. C. for three years. He has all-coast and all-American standings to his credit. Alonzo "Lonnie" Stiner has been assistant line coach since 1928. Roy Lamb, who played under Coach Schissler at Lombard university for three years, is assistant backfield mentor.

The reserve squad is trained by Lee Bissett. Richard W. Newman, along with his duties as head freshman football mentor, is also varsity track and freshman basketball coach. Verne Eilers, who played his last game for Oregon State in the New York university contest, assists Newman with the freshman squad.

Basketball and baseball are coached by ex-Oregon State stars. Amory "Slats" Gill, head basketball coach, was a two-year all-coast player before taking charge of the freshman team in 1926 and two years later the varsity. Baseball has been coached by Ralph Coleman since 1923.

Swimming has shown improvement under John Kenney, who has been on the staff since 1928. Grant Swan and O. C. Mauthe are members of the physical education department and assist in the coaching.

A large coaching staff enables many men to take part in athletics.

Graduate Manager's Office

Graduate Manager's Office

To Carl Lodell, graduate manager of the Associated students, is attributed the credit for the efficiency and recognition that the Oregon State graduate manager's office has among colleges and universities on the Pacific coast. The task of supervising the finances of the Associated students has been carried out successfully for nine years by Lodell, to say nothing of the numerous other activities connected with that position. Lodell graduated from Oregon State college in the school of commerce in 1921 and took over the reins of guiding the finances the following year.

Supervising the finances of the various athletics has proved to be Lodell's greatest task. The graduate manager's office is a clearing house of finances for football, basketball, baseball, track, swimming, tennis, golf and cross country. Besides handling the finances and budgets of intercollegiate sports, Lodell is delegate to the meeting of conference graduate managers and coaches, who make the athletic schedules and determine the policies of conference sports. He has shown himself a worthy man in arranging schedules for football.

Berne Hafenfeld, assistant graduate manager, has relieved Lodell of a great deal of work in that he has handled the ticket sales and made arrangements for games. He is in charge of all finances connected with games played on Oregon State fields. Hafenfeld has acted as assistant graduate manager since his graduation here from the school of commerce in 1929. A group of athletic managers attend to the details of the various sports.

The graduate manager's office supervises the finances of the Oregon State Daily Barometer, Beaver annual, O. S. C. Directory, band, symphony orchestra, Glee and Madrigal club, forensics, Greater Oregon State committee and Women's Athletic association. Hafenfeld is in charge of the Barometer and Beaver year-book finances and budget.

Art Taaffe, '26 in commerce, is athletic news director. Helen Myers, ex '26 in commerce, is secretary. More than $300,000 was handled by the graduate manager's office this year.

Athletic News Director

Athletic News Director

Art Taaffe, director of the Athletic News bureau, is in charge of all sports publicity for the Associated students of Oregon State college. The bureau is the contact point for newspapermen on the Pacific coast and of many eastern papers. Taaffe has handled publicity for intercollegiate athletics since his graduation from the Oregon State in 1926.

Taaffe is advance publicity man for traveling teams to issue the proper information to newspapermen concerning the squad and game. Taaffe has conducted weekly sport talks over radio station KOAC for the last five years. He has a complete record of all Oregon State athletics, including clippings and statistical material, and supervises the publishing of programs for all athletic events.

Athletic News Staff

The Athletic News staff works in conjunction with Art Taaffe in the official clearing house of publicity for intercollegiate sports. Five graduate and student correspondents compose the general staff in handling athletic information for all newspapers in Oregon and for the leading newspapers on the Pacific coast and in the east.

They furnish the newspapers with pictures of athletes and with statistics concerning O. S. C. teams. The staff maintains a complete file of Oregon State correspondence and of other colleges and universities in the Pacific coast conference.

Members of the Athletic News bureau are Larry Warren, Bill Schwabe, John Burtner, Kermit Johnson and Harry Cowie.

Varsity Sport Managers

The vast number of duties of Carl Lodell, graduate manager of the Associated students, in handling all major intercollegiate sports is lessened by the student managerial staff composed of four senior men and a group of assistants. Each head manager receives a sweater with a managerial monogram.

The staff is in charge of all equipment for athletic teams and the head manager accompanies the squad on trips and arranges for all the details to aid the care and efficiency of the team. Senior managers are selected on the merits of their apprenticeship.

Varsity managers of major sports were Gordon Grant, baseball; Jerry Clark, track; George Perkins, football; and Charles Simpson, basketball.

Yell Leaders

The success of athletic contests depends largely on the spirit shown by the student body. Bob Christianson, varsity yell leader, assisted by Jim Kincaid and Bob Burke, succeeded in producing more enthusiasm and pep in Oregon State rooters than has been shown for years. The yell king is awarded a sweater with a megaphone monogram.

Whether the team was winning or losing, Bob and his assistants were able to maintain the same support and pep in turnouts for rallies and games.

"Christy" supervises a class for yell leading aspirants during winter term. Six of the outstanding leaders are chosen from the group and their names placed on the ballot for the yell king and his assistants.

Pep Committee

Pep Committee

The Pep committee is the fosterer and instiller of school spirit at all rallies during the year. The members schedule and direct rallies for send-offs and welcomings of athletic teams and maintain pep and enthusiasm on the campus. The committee is especially active during football season.

The outstanding accomplishment of the Pep committee this year was the rally in Portland for the W. S. C. and O. S. C. football game. The noise of horns, whistles and cheers of students and the color of rooters' hats and orange and black automobile decorations, will be well remembered by students and Portlanders. Members were Bud Stark, chairman; Tormey, Spencer, Williams, Van Zante, Packer, Southam, Miller and McCloskey.

Beaver Guard

The Oregon State mascot, a bronze beaver, is always afforded ample protection and attention by the Beaver Guards. This organization was established four years ago to guard the beaver, as its name implies. The beaver with its challenging aspect gnawing a great log is the leader of parades and rallies and presides at football games.

A symbol of challenge to our rival institutions—a symbol of a spirit that means fight-to-the-end are all well represented in this proud bronze mascot. His majesty braves wind and rain to instill his fighting spirit into O. S. C. rooters. The guard consists of Walter Scott, captain, and Jack Osgood, Louis Courtemanche, Martin Redding, Lloyd Grimes, Alton Everests, Robert Cronin and Ernest Smith.

Coaching Staff

Football Coaching Staff

Paul J. Schissler, director of athletics and head football coach, this year completes his seventh year at Oregon State, and his seventeenth year as a coach. In seventeen years his teams have won 103 games, lost 32, and tied 2.

His team last fall won 7 games and lost 3. The Stanford and Washington State games were very close and could have gone to either team; in fact, O. S. C. looked like the winner in both. The last three major games of the season, with U. C. L. A., Oregon and West Virginia, were comparatively easy victories with the Orange squad showing better in every game.

The loss of McKalip, Sherwood, McGilvray, Kerr, Drynan, Young, Thompson, Buerke, and Hughes, while heavy, will not be as serious as it at first sounded. Reserves and freshmen from last fall helped in a large measure to fill the places left vacant by graduation.

Richard "Dick" Newman has been head coach of freshman football at Oregon State since 1926. In his five years of service he has turned out very successful teams to represent O. S. C. Along with his duties as head freshman football mentor, he is also head varsity track coach and freshman basketball coach.

James V. Dixon, varsity line coach since 1927, has successfully filled his position during the four years of service. He is a graduate of Oregon State.

Alonzo "Lonnie" Stiner was added to the coaching staff in 1928 as assistant line coach. He came here from the University of Colorado.

Roy "Rodie" Lamb, who was added to the coaching staff in 1928, assists Coach Schissler with the varsity backfield.

Verne Eilers was added to the coaching staff last fall as freshman line coach. He is a graduate of Oregon State.

BILL McKALIP. McKalip, considered one of the most valuable players to wear an Oregon State football uniform for years, was a three-year veteran at left end. Starting his collegiate performances by winning the game with New York university and by snagging another pass to help outscore Detroit in 1929, McKalip had developed into one of the most feared and most reliable ends in the coast conference. His playing during the last season earned him a prominent place in the annual East-West game and won for him places on many of the mythical all-star elevens picked by sport authorities. "Wild Bill" is his nickname, and he was never wilder than when breaking up opponents.

BILL McKALIP, End

California Aggies

"Crip" Toomey brought his California Aggies to Corvallis for a night game, and it was a dark evening for the Mustangs before they were through. The final score was 20 to 0, and the Staters collected the score of points in the last half.

The Mustangs bucked and pitched for two quarters to keep the Beavers from the double-stripe, but Frank Little kicked through the Davis school's forward wall in the third frame to punch up six. Rust missed the kick for point, but when Little marked up another touchdown, Henry Hughes booted the try to make the total 13.

Hughes was acting captain for the game, and it was his pass reception that helped get the ball in scoring territory. "Babe" Peterson was responsible for the third and last six points for the Orangemen, going over right guard for six yards. Ralph Buerke had a little trouble getting his flips to connect, but during the time of play he completed six, missed 11, and intercepted two.

One of the queer features of the contest was that the Aggies had a net total yardage of exactly nothing, gaining only four and losing them back on forward passes.

In punting the Beavers were held evenly by the delegation from the south.

COX

BYINGTON

Willamette and Gonzaga

Night football got its start in Corvallis when the Beavers met the Willamette Bearcats here in the season's opener. The final score was 48 to 0, and Oregon State had the 48. Opening up rather slowly, the Orangemen went wild the last half of the game to pile up a topheavy lead. Willamette tried hard, but its lightweight men weren't strong enough to even threaten.

The best they could do was to slightly injure several of the Staters, all of whom recovered in time for the Gonzaga fight the next week-end. That the night football was popular was the main point proved by the Bearcat battle. Enough people bought tickets to make the band trip to Chicago a certainty.

September 27 found the fighting Irishmen from Gonzaga in town for a bloody two-hour entertainment. Bloody it was, and a close, hot battle. The Staters nosed out a 16 to 6 win, but the Gonzagans were boring in all the time. The Bulldogs pushed over the first touchdown, but the Staters came back in the last half to roll up a winning score.

Since both of these preseason games were for sorting-out purposes only, Schissler was able to get a line on his men. Gonzaga had veterans for nearly every position, and those men almost tumbled the Beavers:

A Glimpse at Lettermen

JACK COX is one of the many fellows who broke into the line two years ago. He was put in at left guard and by now Jack is as tough a fighter as there is in the conference. Cox has one more year left.

BILL BYINGTON. 1932 will find Bill filling in at tackle for the third and last time. He has earned two letters, is six feet tall, and when in good condition his 180 pounds give plenty of worry.

RALPH BUERKE. Stepping into the gap left by Howard Maple, Ralph has become known and feared for his consistently accurate passes. One of those nearly broke up the Washington State game last year, and all of his flips were deadly and were responsible for many touchdowns.

A Glimpse at Lettermen

BRICE NOSLER. For two years Nosler has been the lightest and speediest quarterback in the conference. Although he seldom lasted for more than three or four plays, Nosler was always double-checked to keep from getting away on any of his long runs.

BABE PETERSON. Peterson alternated with Frank Little at fullback. After playing just one season, Babe was declared ineligible for further competition.

CECIL SHERWOOD. Three years ago Sherwood broke into the varsity lineup, alternating with Rowdy Kerr at left half. Cece has been instrumental in winning the last three inter-sectional games, although in 1929 he was out a great deal through injuries.

CECIL SHERWOOD, Halfback

Stanford

Stanford's Cardinals, usually a strong, powerful team, was the second conference opponent for the Orange gridmen. Coach Schissler took his squad to Palo Alto, and what a scare those underlings threw into the Cards.

"Pop" Warner sent in his second string to hold the Staters in check, and while the alternates were in, the Beavers almost checked out with the game. Then Warner threw his regular varsity in, and that delegation scored two touchdowns and converted one kick.

A lateral pass from Buerke to Little earned six for Oregon State, and Thompson's conversion made the total seven. That was all the scoring for either outfit, but in the last quarter the Beavers worked the ball down the field again to menace the Card goal. An incomplete pass, two unsuccessful thrusts at the line, and a penalty halted the Orange eleven, and Stanford was saved by the closing gun.

Ralph Buerke completed several forward passes for long gains, and he threw them to Bill McKalip, Floyd Root and Frank Little.

McKalip led the Staters in their second southern invasion, and gave the Cards plenty of trouble. "Cece" Sherwood and Frank Little plowed through the line and around the ends, and Jack Cox, Harry Kent, Thompson and Buck Hammer performed brilliantly.

TUTTLE

Southern California

Southern California proved too strong for the Beavers when the Oregon State eleven went to do battle with the Trojans in the Los Angeles coliseum, October 4. Coming early in the season, the Battle of Troy caught the Beavers before they hit their peak, and a 27 to 7 score was run up by the southerners.

After a spasmodic punting duel in the opening frame, the Trojan warriors started line smashing. That worked all right, for U. S. C. worked the pigskin down the field to the State three-yard line, from where Duffield cracked through for the first counter. But Duffield wasn't the star for Southern California that day. His substitute, Irv Mohler, went in and ran rings around the Beavers, incidentally running for two touchdowns.

The lone Oregon State goal came after two periods of fighting, and it came as most of the others for Oregon State during the year, as the result of passing. Buerke tossed a 15-yard throw to McKalip, and Bill raced down the sidelines to within a yard of Southern Cal's two-stripe. Then Buerke, on a spinner play, threw a lateral to "Reg" Rust, and Rust ran across the Troy goal for six points.

Twice more the Beaver machine was close to pay dirt, but both times the Californians threw them back.

A Glimpse at Lettermen

KENNETH HAMMER. "Buck" has been worked over from two or three other positions and finally found his best at center. Most of the linemen in the conference who came in contact with Buck found that he lived up to his name.

LOREN TUTTLE. Tuttle was a sophomore last season, playing as a substitute guard. He has two years more of competition left.

CHIEF THOMPSON is another of the nine veterans lost through graduation. He started playing fullback and earned numerals there, but later was made over into a guard. Whenever punting was needed, Chief came back of the line to do it.

HARRY KENT. Kent, a mere stripling of 205 pounds, started his playing in 1927, when he earned his numerals. During the next year he effectively filled one of the tackle berths and in 1930 was considered one of the best tackles in the conference.

PETE MILLER. On the other side of the line, filling the other tackle job, Pete Miller took good care that few men passed him. Pete, the oldest man on the squad, played good ball, although injuries prevented him doing his best. He has one more year.

ROWDY KERR. A good left halfback who put in three seasons, was Kerr. His speciality was long runs, although he could kick and buck the line when occasion called for it. He is another of the seniors.

"ROWDY" KERR, Halfback

Washington State Game

When the special trains, busses and private cars left Corvallis two days before the Washington State game, most of the college and town people went along. The Cougars, conquerors of everything on the coast last season, were out to add a Beaver pelt to their collection. They finally did, winning by a score of 14 to 7 after being threatened through the entire contest.

Ralph Buerke's passes were working effectively that afternoon, and one of his tosses, going more than half the length of the field, was caught by Floyd Root for Oregon State's touchdown. The try for point was successful, with Chief Thompson booting the ball over the crosspiece. Only one State pass was intercepted, and that one spelled victory for the Cougars. Late in the game, after a vicious drive down the field, Buerke threw a long pass that was caught by Edwards, big Cougar left tackle. Edwards, screened by rapidly formed interference, ambled down the field for the second Washington State tally.

The Cougars started things off in a rush, pushing over a touchdown after only a few minutes of play. Ellingson was responsible for the goal and converted for the extra point. Fourteen passes were tried by the Cougars while only two were completed.

Pacific Game

Perhaps the most outstanding game of the 1930 football season in a scoring way was the Pacific university night battle. Oregon State had no trouble running up a huge total, making nine touchdowns and converting three tries for points afterward. The Badgers were helplessly outclassed by Coach Schissler's steam-roller, and at no time did the visitors get close enough to threaten.

Bill Head, playing left half, carried the ball across Pacific's score-line four times in 10 minutes, establishing a record for himself and rating national fame. Head made touchdowns in almost every way possible, from receiving a pass, by plunging through the line, by intercepting a Badger pass, and by running back a kickoff.

Babe Peterson, Bill Leggett, Cece Sherwood, Brice Nosler, and Floyd Root were the other factors in running up the second largest total of the season in any northern division school's games. Art Ramponi, at quarterback, converted two of the tries for point, and Henry Hughes made another good. This season was Eldon Jenne's first at Pacific, and although his squad, headed by Art Charlton and Russ Acheson, tried its hardest, the Beavers were unstoppable that night. When the gun sounded reserves were in most places.

A Glimpse at Lettermen

BILL LEGGETT was one of the best punters Schissler had on the squad. Bill played left half, though he had little chance to show his stuff. He has two more seasons of varsity competition, and the coach is counting on him strongly.

GILBERT BERGERSON can be considered one of the biggest men on the field because he is six-and-a-half feet tall and weighs 220 pounds. Bergy is a guard and has another year.

SAYLES YOUNG was a three-year letterman at tackle, and last season was voted one of the peskiest players Southern California men met.

CURLY MILLER made himself a name and a permanent position on the Orange outfit at tackle. Curly surely earned respect for his ability. Fortunately, he has two more years of playing.

REG RUST started out as an end but was converted into a halfback. He got a late start, and Schissler expects Rust to be a potent player next fall.

HONOLULU HUGHES has been one of the most colorful players on the campus. When Henry played rook ball, his specialty was punting with his bare foot. After that he learned to kick with the shoe on and picked up enough other tricks to make himself one of the outstanding right halves in the conference.

U. C. L. A. Game

Long, soaring passes, dazzling laterals, and smashing line play broke down the hard-fighting Bruin football team and gave O. S. C. a decisive victory in its final conference game, played under the smoky rays of the floodlights in the Los Angeles coliseum November 21.

A 35-yard forward pass, one of the "Buerke special" variety, sailed into the arms of Hal Moe, who was waiting just over the goal line, and Moe chalked up the first score of the game in the middle of the second quarter. Moe was flanked by two U. C. L. A. backs, and the would-be pass smearers stood glassy-eyed as Moe nailed the ball, which had been batted high into the air in the scramble.

The second score came early in the fourth quarter when Bill McKalip snagged a lateral from Buerke and put the ball on the Bruin 27-yard line. Frank Little crashed through to the Southerners' 14-yard line. A short pass from Buerke to McKalip, who took the ball on the line of scrimmage and romped 14 yards to a touchdown. Thompson missed the conversion the second time, making the score Oregon State 12, U. C. L. A. 0. Henry Hughes wound up the evening by making the final touchdown and by converting the try-for-point to make the 19 points recorded for Oregon State.

OREGON STATE 15, OREGON 0. That was the reading on the scoreboard at the end of the thirty-fifth Homecoming game between the two schools. Played in a driving drizzle of rain, the battle slipped and slogged from one end of the field to the other, but an early touchdown in the opening minutes of the first quarter helped sink the Duck ship of state—undefeated until this fracas.

Bill McKalip, who captained the Beavers, was responsible for the comparatively feeble showing made by the Webfoots. McKalip blocked punts and smeared plays in spite of everything the Oregon linemen could do. Cecil Sherwood, another veteran, and as good a left half on any conference team, was the most spectacular ground-gainer for the Orange men. Twice "Cece" got away for long runs, and those gallops through the muck led to Oregon State points in the final period.

Buerke and Moe touched off the fireworks when Ralph flipped a short back-of-the-line pass to Hal, who sauntered through the Oregonians for the first of two touchdowns. A blocked kick resulted in still two more points for the Beavers. Linemen who helped domesticate the Ducks were the Millers, Pete and Curly, Jack Cox, Harry Kent and Buck Hammer. Little played his usual good game at full.

A Glimpse at Lettermen

FRANK LITTLE is one of the many sophomores who was baptized in collegiate football last fall. Frank had a difficult job, fullback, and he made the best of the chances. His line plunging was responsible for much of Oregon State's yardage through forward walls.

BILL HEAD ran wild in the Pacific game last fall, and although he lacked an opportunity to show his talents after that, he has one more year.

SANDY MCGILVRAY took care of the right end of the line last fall, ending his football career against West Virginia in Chicago. Sandy is the ninth of the graduating gridmen, but his showing was higher than that.

FLOYD ROOT played right end for Oregon State last season and has one year left. He lacks one inch of being six feet, but he can jump and catch passes with the best of the wing men. One of his catches was in the Cougar game and nearly won it for the Staters.

HAL MOE was a sophomore in 1930, but he was good enough to earn a place on the first string. He played right halfback and developed into an exceptionally good blocker. Two more years for Hal.

TOMMY DRYNAN was a valuable utility back-field man. He has played nearly every one of the four positions but showed best when he was barking signals. Tommy is the last of the seniors who are graduated in June.

West Virginia Shrine Benefit

From one side of the United States West Virginia came to Chicago for an inter-sectional game, and from the Pacific coast Oregon State journeyed east. The two teams met on Thanksgiving day in a benefit contest for the Shrine hospital, and when the last whistle blew, both teams wanted to get some treatment for themselves. West Virginia needed most of the attention, though, for the Beavers, hoping for another opportunity to maintain inter-sectional prestige, scored two touchdowns in the third quarter to win 12 to 0.

Bill McKalip, playing his last game of football for O. S. C., ran 35 yards after catching a pass, to make the first six points, and then, later in the same period, he toted the ball across the line again for the second touchdown. When the Beavers turned back the Detroit Titans two years ago, the field that day was frozen and icy. The Chicago grid iron was in the same condition, and a stiff wind, blowing up from the lake, kept "Chief" Thompson working to make his punts good.

It was a different story, though, when the Staters did get warmed up. West Virginia, touted as a ground-gaining ball club, was held in check, while Sherwood and Little reeled off yard after yard. Ralph Buerke skippered the Orange machine in that battle.

Freshman Squad

Freshmen Football

Three wins in five starts was the record hung up last fall by the rook football team. Dick Newman's squad was big and anxious when it romped onto Bell field to mix with the Indians from Chemawa. It was a night game, the rooks' first, and to celebrate they scalped the reds by a 44 to 0 score. Fast and flashy as Chemawa's teams always are, that one was held scoreless by the Orange babes, who showed a dazzling amount of offensive drive.

Newman uncovered a lot of talent in that skirmish, but he needed most of it against the Southern Oregon Normal eleven. Two touchdowns were scored in that tussle, with the rooks getting both and converting the points. The Sons threatened often, but they were as scoreless as the Indians had been.

Two tilts were listed with the Oregon frosh. The first of the two was played at Corvallis, and the Beaver yearlings won it by the margin of a converted point after their lone touchdown. The Lemon-Yellow cohort, led by Lillard, a colored back and the mainspring of the Eugene team, kept the rooks going constantly in that game.

"The night was dark and stormy" when the first-year teams banged together again, this time in Eugene. That time the University of Oregon came through for two touchdowns, converted one point, and won the game 13 to 0. Lillard and dePittard were outstanding for the frosh and almost took the game by themselves.

St. Martin's, a small school up near Olympia, Washington, came down here and took the rooks into camp the day before the Oregon State-Washington State battle in Portland. The rooks seemed tied up, listless, or handcuffed, for the St. Martin eleven herded them around the field and finally won 6 to 0.

Many men showed enough stuff during the season to make valuable varsity material. Biancone, Joslin, Curtin, Adams, Wagner, Volz, Parfily, and a host of others will be on hand for Coach Schissler to work on, and from the indications those boys gave during spring training, they will make their presence felt.

Pre-Season Games

Coach A. T. Gill's third year as varsity basketball mentor at Oregon State lacked little of being highly successful. His Orange hoopmen won 19 out of the 28 games they entered and scored 972 points to 818 for all opponents. Winning nine out of 16 contests in the northern division of the Pacific Coast Conference, the Oregon State team placed third. Three men, Rod Ballard, Buck Grayson and Bob Drager, sang their varsity basketball swan songs in the game against Oregon February 28. Ballard led Orange scoring for three seasons and was well up in the coast conference list each time. Grayson's best year was his second when he was named a guard on the mythical all-coast quintet, leading the Beaver point-makers in conference games. Ballard was chosen forward on mythical all-star second teams his first and third years. Ken Fagans, playing his second year on the Oregon State varsity, was a popular choice for that position on the 1931 all-coast quintet.

After clubbing down Multnomah club (Portland) twice early in December, the Beavers went south to the San Francisco bay region during the Christmas holidays on the annual barnstorming tour and won five out of the seven games played. The Beavers won from Chico State 47 to 29, Young Men's Institute 37 to 35, University of California 26 to 25, Olympic club 31 to 24, and Rossi Florist 37 to 21. They lost to University of San Francisco 18 to 28 and to the Athens club 32 to 31. Oregon State won from Gonzaga at Corvallis January 2, and again at Spokane January 14. The Orangemen took the first game 43 to 30, but did it only after they had broken down a tight and stubborn Bulldog defense. Gonzaga made a great spurt near the end of the second game, but the Beavers won 47 to 24. "Spec" Keene's Willamette university five, champions of the northwest conference for the last three years, presented a problem at Corvallis January 3, but the Beavers ran the score up to 35 to Willamette's 24. Charles Simpson was varsity manager and James Torson was assistant coach.

Washington State

Oregon State won the conference opener 29 to 23 from the Washington State college five January 9, but lost the second the next night 30 to 24. The Beavers committed 13 personal fouls in the first game and the Cougars were guilty of eight errors of the same type. With Ken Fagans, guard, leading the scoring, Oregon State held the lead clear through the game. It was primarily a defensive game on the part of both teams, and close checking kept the score comparatively low. Lewis, Beaver center, and Graham, Cougar guard, were disqualified on personal fouls.

Coach Jack Friel's men were more cautious the next night and took advantage of the increased fouling of the Oregon State team, scoring 12 points from free throws as a result of the 17 personal fouls committed by Beaver players. Grayson, guard, and Lewis were disqualified early in the second half and the Orange defense was painfully weakened. Washington State took an early lead and held it throughout the game, holding a 14-to-12 advantage at the end of the half.

Ten days after the season opened, Coach Gill's Orangemen, playing their first game on the home court, kept just a jump ahead of the Cougars to win 21 to 20. Varsity basketball fans still consider it the fastest, closest, most exciting hoop contest they ever saw. The score was tied at 10, 12, 16, 18, and 20 in the last ten minutes, and a nickel on either team was a risky bet until Rod Ballard, forward, dropped in a free throw 30 seconds before the gun.

The tables were turned in more ways than one the following night when the Cougar quint flashed a staggering offensive attack to win 44 to 30. The game was just as fast as that the night before, but both defense systems gave way to scoring tactics and Washington State came out on top. The Orangemen led 11 to 1 before the game was a five-minute-old child, but the Cougars, under the leadership of Gordon and Claud Holsten, tied it at 18-all at the end of the first half. Merrill led the Beaver scoring with 9 points.

BAILEY

University of Washington

University of Washington, Pacific Coast champion, took all the letters out of "jinx" and three out of four games from the Beavers. The first was at Corvallis January 26, and was a pretty close indication of the relative strength of the two teams. Washington won, 31 to 23, after leading 15 to 11 at the half. Both teams played steady and consistently good ball—passing was good, shooting good and checking good.

Swygard, forward, was responsible for 12 of Washington's 31, and Swanson, the tallest center in the league, made eight. Ballard took high-point honors for Oregon State with 10, while Lewis, Lyman and Fagans made four each. The Beavers were at fever heat the next night and smothered the Huskies under a 37-to-23 score. Gill's understudies played their best game of the season and won because of it.

Rod Ballard was "dead-eye" on the basket and converted seven field goals and a free throw for 15 points of his season's total of 209. Fagans followed him with 12 points and Lyman came through with seven. Fuller led the Huskies with 10, followed by Swanson and Swygard with eight and four. Ed Lewis, Beaver tip-off man, pulled a knee tendon in the first half of the game and was out of the lineup for most of the remaining season.

The Beavers went north to Seattle to finish the series there February 6 and 7. The Huskies took the first game by virtue of the fact that they were just too many for the Orangemen. A Beaver spurt in the last half was offset by one of Husky manufacture of a little greater magnitude. Swanson clicked off 14 points and Cairney crowded him with a dozen. Mose Lyman looped five baskets from the field and Fagans made three for the Beavers.

Long shots over the Oregon State position defense won the last game of the series for the Huskies 28 to 26, after Oregon State had led most of the time. The score was tied at 26-all for several minutes near the last of the game, but a shot from the middle of the floor by Nelson, substitute forward, won for the Huskies. Lyman and Ballard each scored six.

HEARTWELL

Idaho

The Idaho Vandals were easy prey for the recently-dubbed Beavers January 12 at Moscow and gave up the game 52 to 30. Coach Gill's team played "hot" basketball from first to last, and the Idaho defense crumpled, then cracked wide open, to let the Orangemen through for 24 field goals.

Fagans, Oregon State guard, led the attack with seven baskets from the field, and Lewis and Ballard followed him with five each. Barrett, at forward for Idaho, converted four field goals and a free throw for nine points, and Wicks, his running mate, made two and five good for the same number.

The Vandals were stronger the next night and came within seven points of tying the Beavers, after trailing along on the small end of a 26-to-10 score at half time. Wicks scored 14 points and Barrett eight for most of the Vandals' 34. Oregon State collected 41 with Fagans, Lewis and Ballard leading with nine, nine and eight points respectively. Coach Rich Fox's squad lost heavily by graduation last year and his team this year consisted mostly of sophomores who lacked experience more than ability. The Vandals couldn't seem to play consistently, although they showed top-notch stuff at times.

At Corvallis February 13 the Beavers won a slow, rough and ragged game 37 to 24. Mose Lyman scored 13 points for Oregon State and Merrill collected 10 besides holding Barrett to three points. Wicks came through again for the Vandals with 10. Christians and Drummond were disqualified from the Idaho lineup on four personal fouls each.

Saturday night Idaho staged a brilliant rally that tied the score at 39-39 after trailing 33 to 23 at the half, but a counter-rally by the Orangemen accounted for a 47-to-40 win. Pete Wicks put on some tricks in basketball that surprised the Beavers and took the best they had to suppress. Wicks scored 13, Barrett 8, and Auckett 6 for the Vandals, and Merrill scored 13, Lyman 12, and Fagans 10 for the Beavers. Wicks and Fagans went out on personals in the last half.

Coach Gill's Orange hoopmen played an even two-and-two series with their traditional rivals from the University of Oregon, the Beavers winning the first and last games and the Webfoots taking the two in the middle.

The series opener was at Corvallis January 31 when Ballard scored eight field goals and a free throw to lead Oregon State to a 40-to-26 victory. After nursing the diminutive end of a 20-to-9 count at the end of the first half, the Lemon-Yellow five, led by Stevens and Dolp, went on a 12-point spree while the Beavers were caging a lone basket early in the second period, but the Orangemen warmed up and ran away with the game. Fagans followed Ballard in scoring with 14 points.

The Beavers produced a rough, sloppy brand of ball at Eugene February 21, and lost the game 39 to 32. Lyman, Bailey and Merrill were ousted from the game on personals and Oregon converted 10 of the free throws. Gene Eberhart, center, scored 16 points for the Webfoots and Calkins followed him with 9. Both the offense and defense tactics used by Oregon worked smoothly and Oregon State plays were ineffective. Ballard made 11, Lyman 8 and Grayson 7 for the Orangemen.

Ed Lewis broke into the Oregon State lineup in the third game, at Corvallis February 27, in an effort to stem an overflow of Lemon-Yellow baskets, but the Webfoots were "clicking" and couldn't be stopped until they had piled up a 29-to-22 win for themselves. Vinc. Dolp led the Oregon scoring with 11 points, and Eberhart and Stevens made 10 and 6. Fagans led for Oregon State with 8, Ballard made 5 and Lyman 3.

The Beavers finished the season by winning in the same brilliant manner that they took the first. Oregon was the victim in the last encounter and took the rap 36 to 27. Merrill topped the scoring list with five field goals, Ballard followed with nine points, and Fagans scored six for Oregon State.

Bobby Morris refereed and Emil Piluso umpired all games at Corvallis.

Rook Basketball

Coach Roy Lamb's rook hoopmen won five of their eight games and scored 219 points to 192 for opponents during the 1931 season. Carl Lenchitsky, rangy center, led the scorers with 77 points.

The freshmen opened their season at Corvallis against the Molalla high school quintet and barely nosed out an 18-to-12 win from the prep team coached by Don Hartung, a former Beaver star. The Orange babes were held practically to a standstill up to the last few minutes, when they finally shook themselves out of it and dropped in three field goals in the last few minutes.

So then the yearlings went on a migration to Portland where they took their first licking from the Commerce high school team, but were successful in a start against Grant high. "Red" Miller, forward for Commerce, scored the winning basket just as the whistle blew. The Beaver yearlings got revenge the next night, however, on Grant high school, taking the Generals into camp to the tune of 37 to 34.

But the rooks' crowning victory was their game against Willamette University frosh team. Lamb's proteges ran wild over the frosh 53 to 30, starting the onslaught at the same time the referee called the game, and keeping it up. Atkinson was high for the rooks with 15 and Lenchitsky scored 14, while Burdette made 13 for Willamette.

The Oregon State freshmen split a four-game series with the University of Oregon frosh team, winning the second and fourth and dropping the first and third. The first game was at Eugene and the rooks stumbled around until they were beaten 30 to 13. Next time the infants met the rooks had strengthened considerably and, after trailing behind most of the game, finally finished in the lead 26 to 24. The frosh took the next one, a clumsy, slow affair, 22 to 18 at Eugene, and then the rooks wound up the season by romping all over the Webfoot babes 32 to 16 in the last game. Ed Atkinson with 47, Harold Joslin with 36, and Harold Brown with 34 points followed Lenchitsky in the scoring.

Coaching Staff

Sixteen years ago Ralph O. Coleman came to Oregon State and registered as a freshman. Since that time he has been connected with the school, first as an undergraduate and later as a coach of both track and baseball. Track was Coley's first and main athletic event for three years, but he turned to collegiate baseball during his senior spring term and took his turn on the mound with the other varsity pitchers. But he has a track record just as interesting, for during his four seasons on the Beaver cinder squad he earned four letters—rooks were allowed to compete with the rest in those days. Perhaps his most outstanding year in that sport was 1916, for in one track meet he cleaned up a big share of the Orange points, taking firsts and seconds in the quarter, the half, and the mile, as well as running in a relay or two.

It was 1918 when Coley started in playing varsity baseball, for although he had played plenty of ball in high school and for small teams during the summers, he had passed it up in favor of track. That spring and for two more Coleman was given charge of freshman track, and in those three seasons his men turned in some good accounts of themselves.

As a pitcher Coley had attracted considerable attention to his work, however, and when he was offered a contract by the Portland Beavers he accepted it. He played with them for two seasons, in 1921 and 1922, but the next year he came back to Oregon State to be head baseball coach. He stuck to that job for six years, and in 1929 he was given a twelve-month leave so he could go back to Columbia University in New York to study for his master's degree in physical education.

That Coley is an excellent coach may be seen from a partial list of the men he has trained and who have gone into professional ball. It includes such men as Wes Schulmerich, who is better known for his football prowess; Loris Baker; Richard Young; Ed Coleman, who is Ralph's brother; Carl Boutin, Art Escallier, John Siegrist, and Howard Maple, one of the best catchers from Oregon State.

Oregon Series

The Oregon State batsmen opened the conference play against University of Oregon at Eugene with a 5 to 1 win. Oregon State took the lead in the fourth inning and held it for the remainder of the contest scoring one run in the fourth and three in the ninth. Al Brown, Beaver hurler, allowed the Webfooters only three hits while the Orangemen pounded Ken Scales for eight safe bingles. A game with Oregon the day before was called in the fourth inning on account of rain.

The second contest with the University found the Beaver sluggers again on the big end of the score. This time the Orange team tallied ten runs to one for the Ducks. In the second inning the Beaver batters pounded Reynold McDonald out of the box, scoring four runs in the inning. Bloom replaced McDonald and there was no more scoring until the seventh and eighth innings when the Orangemen came through for three in each canto. Al Brown held the Webfoots to seven hits while the staters nicked the two Oregon pitchers for 15 safe blows.

The third contest ended with a 6 to 4 score in favor of Oregon State. Ten innings were required to decide the game, the score at the end of the regular nine frames being 4 to 4. Two hits and two errors accounted for the two Orange runs in the tenth. Fred Nightingale of Oregon State and Reynold McDonald of Oregon pitched a close game, Nightingale being nicked for seven hits and McDonald for eight.

The final game of the season for the Orangemen went to the Webfooters from the university by an 8 to 3 score. Eight Oregon State errors and 13 hits off Al Brown by the University men accounted for the eight Oregon runs. Bloom, Webfoot pitcher, allowed the Orangemen seven hits.

The Beavers played a loose game in the infield and did not look like the ball club that drubbed the Webfoots the day before this final contest. The Webfoots had good eyes for the fast deliveries of Brown and each man got at least one hit in this contest.

Al Brown, Orange pitcher, held Idaho to four hits and struck out 13 men in the first tilt with the Vandals to win the game for the Beavers by a score of 13 to 3. Wood, McKennon and Wagner, all hit home runs to boost the State nine over the top. Idaho used four pitchers in attempting to quell the Beaver onslaught.

Harvey Boultinghouse held the Vandals in check in the second tilt and won a closely contested game for the Orangemen by a score of 4 to 2. Boultinghouse struck out eleven men and only allowed four hits. Idaho's ninth inning rally nearly spelled defeat for the Beavers but some good fielding closed the game in short order. Idaho used three pitchers in this game but that trio was helpless.

On a heavy muddy field at Moscow in the third game of the Idaho series the Orangemen trounced the Vandals to the tune of 14 to 1. Al Brown only allowed three hits in this contest while his teammates collected 17 blows. The Idaho team used two chuckers in this game but the men could not get on to the muddy balls and were not effective. Grayson got a home run in this contest and Rod Ballard and Lee Pennel, each hit safely five times out of six. Joe Mack did some stellar receiving behind the bat in this game.

Buck Grayson's homer in the eighth inning gave the Beaver batsmen a victory over the Vandals in the final game of the four-game series at Moscow, the score being 6 to 5 at the end of nine innings. Coach Coleman used Fred Nightingale and Harvey Boultinghouse in this contest in order to keep the luckless Idahoans in submission. The Beaver chuckers allowed Idaho 8 hits and garnered nine for themselves. The Staters made five errors in this contest but none were disastrous.

The Vandals used three pitchers in this contest but could not stop the barrage of Beaver hits. The northern squad also committed seven errors to weaken their chances of winning. The Beavers won these two games on their last road trip. This also made a clean sweep of the four-game series with Idaho.

Fred Nightingale's homer in the third and Buck Grayson's circuit blow in the fourth inning succeeded in toppling the clawing Cougars of Washington State in the first tilt of the four-game series on the State diamond by a score of 6 to 4. Fred Nightingale pitched good ball up to the seventh inning when he began to falter and was replaced by Al Brown. Nightingale struck out 3, and Brown four.

Washington State evened the score in the second tilt on the Beaver diamond with a 5 to 4 win. Mitchell and Jones each clouted a homer for the Cougars and did much toward putting the game on ice for the northern nine. Jones' homer in the ninth when the score was tied at four all won the game for the Cougars. Harvey Boultinghouse chucked this game for the Staters and was nicked for 7 hits while his teammates garnered 3 safe blows off Nelson and Jones, Cougar pitchers.

In the third tilt at Pullman the Cougars won in the tenth inning on a single that brought a man in from second base and made the score 4 to 3 in favor of the northern team. Fred Nightingale, pitching for the Beavers, struck out 10 men and allowed 12 safe blows in this game. The Staters got seven hits off the two Washington State chuckers.

The Beavers took the last game with the Cougars at Pullman by a score of 9 to 3. Ballard started festivities in the seventh inning with a homer and the Beaver batsmen rallied in this inning to put the game on ice. Al Brown pitched a cool steady game and allowed only eight scattered hits and whiffed five men. Henzel and Torson both hit balls out of the lot for extra base blows. The Cougars used two pitchers in this game and both were nicked consistently. This was an "on" day for the Beaver batsmen and each got at least one hit while at the plate during the contest. Ballard led the sluggers with three blows in five trips and one going for a homer. Nelson and Pritchard, Washington State pitchers, were taken for thirteen hits and struck out six and three men each.

Washington Series

In the first tilt with the Huskies on the State diamond, Fred Nightingale won his nightcap by trimming the northerners by a score of 6 to 0. The Beavers gathered enough hits in the opening inning to put the game on ice with four runs. Ballard's homer in the first inning with the bags loaded put the Beavers way ahead and they coasted in the rest of the game. Torson hit for the circuit again in the eighth to bring himself and Wood home. Nightingale allowed five hits while his teammates gathered the same number off Nelson.

The Beavers fell just one run short in a ninth-inning rally in the second contest with the Huskies to lose the game on the short end of a 4 to 3 score. Clever base running won the game for Washington. Al Brown and Joe Mack worked this game for the Orangemen and Washington gathered 10 hits off Al in the nine innings. Haggist did some nice chucking for the visitors and kept the seven Beaver blows well scattered.

The third tilt on the Washington diamond in Seattle went to the Huskies by a score of 5 to 1 in a mud slinging game on a heavily mud coated and water soaked field. The game was held up numerous times because of the heavy downpour. The Huskies bunched a flock of hits in the fifth inning to navigate the bags five times. Boultinghouse and Mack held the Huskies to 7 hits but only struck out 2 men. Many errors were made on the wet field.

The fourth game in Seattle went to the Beavers by the score of 7 to 5. The Beavers jumped on Eddie Haggist's offerings to gain four runs early in the game and Washington could not overcome this handicap throughout the tussle. The Staters made four runs in the first frame and another in the second to gain a five run lead which they held until the fifth inning when the Huskies made a couple of runs. Graves' men rallied in the eighth and counted three runs but did not threaten again. Mush Torson was the heavy hitter in this contest with five safe bingles. Haggist, Nevins, and L. Gaw did the hurling for the Huskies with Nightingale performing for the Orangemen.

Survey of Present Season

When Coleman issued his first call for varsity baseball men early in the spring this year, he was besieged by a crew of diamond artists which gave him an excellent chance for picking a first-class nine. Seven lettermen were among those who turned out, with only two vacancies left to fill from the recruits. His one weakness was his pitching staff, but as a nucleus he had Al Brown, lanky right-handed pitcher who turned back a goodly number of batters last year.

Catchers were plentiful, with Joe Mack, a letterman, heading the string. Bud Keema, a transfer from Sacramento, has been showing considerable improvement. Besides those two men, Bob Schneider and Chief Thompson, utility man, are ready to go in any time. Buck Grayson is captain of the nine this spring and is putting in his third year at first base. Buck's understudies are Chief Thompson and King Bailey, who handled that corner for the rooks last spring.

Out in center field is Rod Ballard, a two-year letterman. Rod is a tough batter and has brought considerable grief to opposing pitchers during his time.

And over in left field is Dick Henzel, the third of the two-year lettermen. Henzel has been taking care of his patch of ground for quite a while and has developed into one of the best fielders in the conference. His throwing arm has cut off many a run and his batting has always been up near the top for the squad.

Lee Pennell, the first-string shortstop, is the fourth member of that quintet of Beavers who started in 1927 as rooks and who are now the patriarchs of the ball team. Pennell is a valuable man in any infield and has had the experience of playing in other positions, for he was shifted around several times while Coleman was looking for an effective combination.

Russ McKennon is the fifth senior who has a two-stripe sweater, and he takes care of second base. Buck Hammer is the other letterman on the squad, and he has taken over one of the outfield positions left vacant.

Pre-Season Games

Under Coach Ralph Coleman's direction the Oregon State baseball team started out the season in a big way by winning all of the pre-season games. The first series was with Willamette university whom the Beaver batsmen defeated by a 5 to 3 score in the opening game at Corvallis April 4. The next day the Orangemen went to Salem to take the Bearcats into camp again by an 8 to 7 score.

The following week the Beaver sluggers met Columbia university at Corvallis in another two-game series. The first contest found the Orange team with a 4 to 3 advantage when the game ended and in the second meeting the Staters blanked the Cliffdwellers, 2 to 0. In that game Al Brown allowed the Portland nine only three hits.

Three days after the last Columbia tilt Al Brown pitched himself into a 17 to 0 win over Pacific university allowing only one hit and striking out six of the Pacific batters. The next game with the Pacific outfit was not as much of a slugfest as the first, with the Beaver batsmen only taking a 12 to 1 win. Harvey Boultinghouse held down the mound position for the Orange team and whiffed nine of the 31 men that faced him giving the Badgers four hits.

A second two-game series with Willamette was scheduled for the Oregon Staters but both contests were rained out.

Twelve Beaver batsmen were awarded sweaters for their services on the Orange varsity. The men who received the 1930 awards are Buck Grayson, first base; Joe Mack, catcher; Russ McKennon, second base; Carlton Wood, third base; Lee Pennel, shortstop; Dick Henzel, Rod Ballard, Jim Torson and Fred Wagner, outfielders; and Al Brown, Fred Nightingale and Harvey Boultinghouse, pitchers. Eight of these men are back this year for more conference baseball.

In the six pre-season games which the Oregon State nine played they scored a total of 48 runs to 14 for their opponents, an average of 8 runs per game to $2\frac{2}{3}$ for their opposition.

Rook Season

Forty men greeted Coach "Rhodie" Lamb's initial call for Rook baseball. Out of these forty aspirants, Lamb chose two complete teams to carry through the season.

The yearlings encountered the Salem high school nine on the State diamond in the first contest of the season and succeeded in defeating the capitol city lads by a 6 to 5 score in ten innings. Cate, Lundberg, and Decious did the hurling for the rooks and struck out 13 men. Nash and Corbin did the receiving.

The second contest of the season scheduled with the Oregon frosh at Eugene was postponed on account of rain. The third contest scheduled with Albany college was also cancelled because of rain, the fourth game with

Salem high school was also cancelled.

In the fifth game on the schedule, Cate, Beaver babe chucker held Albany college to 4 hits and one run in a 7 inning battle. He struck out 12 batters. The rooks took the contest by a score of 5 to 1.

Lundberg struck out six men, allowed ten hits and 6 runs in a contest with Eugene high school on the varsity diamond to win the game for the rooks by a 20 to 6 score.

The next contest scheduled with Salem high school was called on account of rain.

The next game with the Oregon frosh at Eugene went to the Lemon-Yellow chuckers when Hughes, Oregon pitcher, tamed the rooks with 13 strikeouts and only allowing 2 hits. The contest ended with the Beavers on the short end of a 5 to 4 count.

Schmitz, crippled Oregon chucker, held the rooks well in hand in the second Oregon tilt and eased out an 8 to 6 win. The rooks rallied in three different innings but didn't have the punch to follow through.

In a tenth inning rally the rooks bunched four hits to score 2 runs and defeat the frosh in their third contest on the State diamond by a score of 5 to 4. Decious did some nice hurling for the rooks.

The frosh won the last game on a scoring hit in the last of the ninth inning making the score 8 to 7 in favor of the Eugeniens.

Opening Season Survey

"Gloomy" Dick Newman started his second year as track mentor at Oregon State with the prospects of a good track team which was reasonably strong in all departments but the weights. With a nucleus of lettermen around which to weave a fairly strong group of new material which were the stars for the rooks of last season, Newman had the making of a well balanced cinder team.

With two lettermen, Martin Elle and Sid Johnson, was pinned the hopes of success in the sprints. These men were ably supported by Babe Peterson, transfer, and Duane Kirk of last year's rooks, which completed the roster of dash men. The quarter mile division apparently had a strong front with Ron Johnson,

DICK NEWMAN, Coach

Elton Phillips, both lettermen, Ray Oglesby and Miller Nicholson of last year's reserves ready to don spikes. Paul Young and Alex Milton filled the half mile positions, being assisted by Bill Mullin who gave creditable performances with the rooks of last season.

The distance men were Vern Gilmore, letterman, Ken Chapman of last year's varsity reserves and Tom Cantine. These were booked as the best for the distance runs and relays. No letterman put in appearance for the hurdles, but Ken Martin soon rounded into a fast man who offered a lot of speed to beat. Mose Lyman of the last season's rooks and Logan Carter, a two-year letterman, took care of the high jumps.

Competition was keen for the pole jobs as Ken McLean, a letterman, Bob Murphy and Art Johnson of the reserves, and Kretzmeier and Lyman from the rooks were all battling for this position. Vern Eilers seemed to have the javelin job in control, but had Marion Horton, Bill McKalip, and Kenneth Carlson as rivals.

The first part of the season found the cinder artists slowly rounding into shape for the weather was unfavorable and made the track slow and muddy. However, this did not have much effect upon the field men and early season found them getting into shape better than could be expected.

Varsity Track Squad

Oregon Relay Meet

In the Oregon relays, the first meet of the season of '30, the Orangemen swamped the Webfoots by the overwhelming score of 6 to 2. The Beavers turned one of the greatest victories that they have ever taken from the Lemon and Yellow in this meet. Last season they were defeated by Oregon, but at last turned the tables in a duel featured by fast time for early season meets.

The Beavers were complete masters of the situation and completely ran away with the 440, the shuttle relays, leaving the Lemon and Yellow tracksters with only the sprint and distance medleys. The shuttle relay team of Martin, Disbrow, Dufrane, and Prentiss easily dusted the Oregon quartet in the remarkable time of 1:04 which was the best time made for some years by any Beaver four in this event. In the 440 relay Rodman, Johnson, Dick, and Peterson had little trouble in showing their heels to the Ducks to the tune of 43:³/₈.

The most brilliant performance of the meet was the winning of the two-mile. Credit for the win is given to Paul Young of last year's varsity who with a spurt of speed in the last few yards beat out Hill of Oregon to the tape. Young's finish shaved the time to 8:01:¹/₂ which is exceptional.

The mile relay was an easy win for the Orangemen who had no difficulty in maintaining their lead throughout the entire distance. The Beaver team of Oglesby, R. Johnson, Kirk, and Phillips pounded the cinders at the rate of 3:24:³/₈.

In the four mile relay the Beavers surprised the Lemon and Green by taking their surest bet away from them for Oregon was rated to be exceptionally strong in the distance events. The dope was upset in this event by Gilmore, Anson, Chapson, and Cantine for Oregon State in the fast time of 18:28.

The Beavers took another first place in the 880 relay by outrunning the Webfoots when Oglesby breasted the tape ahead of the Oregon runner. S. Johnson, Kirk, Peterson and Oglesby did their share in turning the tide on Oregon.

U. of W. Carnival

Fresh from smashing four records, three all-time school records and cleaning up generally on the Webfoot relay team at Hayward field in the Oregon relays, the Orangemen entered their pepped baton passers on the annual track relays at the University of Washington.

May 3 found the Orangemen at Seattle for the Washington relay carnival. Teams representing Oregon State, University of Washington, Idaho, University of Oregon, Washington State, and Montana were present. The dopsters conceded little chance of any firsts for the Beavers, as no one turned in time that would offer hard competition. Coach Newman conceded the Beavers not over 35 points, getting them not from firsts but from placement.

The Beavers left with a squad of 18 men with Peterson and Elle going the day before to compete in the preliminaries for their events. This group represented Oregon State's best possible chances for placements. Don Darrow who was counted on strongly in the sprints was unable to run, as he had pulled a leg muscle.

The squad that Newman picked as his final roster to participate in the relays at Washington were: 100-yard dash—Martin Elle, Sid Johnson, and Babe Peterson. Pole vault—Cliff McLean, Mose Lyman, Laurence Kretzmeier, Art Johnson. Shot put—Marion Horton, Gilbert Bergerson, and Roscoe Luce. Discus—Roscoe Luce. High hurdles—Ken Martin, Bob Prentiss, and Jack Dufrane.

440-yard relay—Peterson, Kirk and Sid Johnson. 880-yard relay—Oglesby, Peterson, Kirk, Rodman and Elle. Mile relay—Kirk, Oglesby, Ron Johnson, Lillie and Phillips. Two-mile relay—Ron Johnson, Milton, Mullin, Young and Renner. Four-mile relay—Cantine, Anson, Gilmore, Chapson and Young. Medley relay—Peterson, Phillips, Mullin, Young, Elle, Oglesby, Ron Johnson, Cantine and Kirk.

Although the Orangemen did not take any firsts they showed up better than expected against the championship caliber of competition encountered.

U. of W. Dual Meet

The Orangemen's first dual tilt for the season was with the strongest track team in the Northwest, the University of Washington, which took second honors in the National Intercollegiate meet in Chicago last year. In tackling the Huskies the Beaver spikesters took on some real fast competition. Dick Newman before leaving for Seattle with his team predicted the garnering of only fifty points at the most.

The Beavers depended upon the performance of their mile relay team which copped a first place in the Washington carnival the previous week to add a few points to their score, and based the balance of their hopes on the high jump, where Logan Carter performed, and the javelin and the other field events in which the northern opponents showed a weakness.

The dope favored McKalip and Rodman to possibly take the broad jump and at least take points, for this was a definite Husky weakness. The other two possible chances for firsts depended upon Vern Eilers tossing the spear for a win and indications that the relay team doing the mile would finish ahead.

The majority of the Oregon State tracksters' points depended upon the ability of the men to break into at least second places and win column in the 100-yard dash, high hurdles, mile, two-mile and low hurdles, thus giving the Orange a possible chance for victory.

The outstanding man for Oregon State was Paul Young who placed first in the half mile run by snapping the tape in 1:56.4. This came as a complete surprise for he was not given a chance to win. Vern Eilers took first in the javelin heave by setting the mark at 173 feet and 4½ inches. The Beaver's third first place was in the pole vault which Donald McLean took with a vault of 12 feet. Two other Orangemen who were given chances to place first were Lyman and Carter who tied with Dunn of Washington in the high jump at the 5 foot 10 inch mark.

The meet ended with the score 76⅓ for Washington to 53⅓ for Oregon State.

Idaho Meet

In the meet between the Oregon State trackmen and the Idaho Vandals the Beavers literally ran away from their opponents by taking all but two of the fifteen events. The events were all run under the chill of a drizzling rain which kept the men from turning in good times for midseason.

Idaho was seriously handicapped owing to the fact that Dave Wicks, their crack distance man, was unable to participate because of a pulled muscle.

Heath of the Vandals partly offset the loss of Wicks when he came through to beat Mullin and Gilmore in the mile. Dufrane and Prentiss also dropped the high hurdles to Lemp of Idaho, who breasted the tape in 16 seconds flat.

In the 100-yard dash Sid Johnson beat out Jossis of Idaho with the time of $10\frac{1}{2}$ seconds. Sid Johnson repeated by defeating Jossis in the 220-yard dash in 23 seconds flat. The relay team of Ron Johnson, Lillie, Phillips and Oglesby showed their heels to the Vandals to the tune of $3:34\frac{3}{4}$.

Bergerson of Oregon State placed first in the shot with a toss of 44 feet 5 inches. Luce and Norton took first and second respectively when they heaved the discus for 134 feet. Horton and Eilers, both of O. S. C., won the javelin event with a toss of 182 feet $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Lyman and Kretzmeier both tied for first place in the pole vault at 12 feet. Another first place was taken by the Orangemen when Carter and Lyman both tied in the high jump with the leap of 5 feet 11 inches.

Oregon State added another block of nine points when Idaho failed to run a team against Milton, Anson and Cantine who covered the distance in 2:19 in the 880-yard run.

Both Prentiss in the low hurdles, and McKalip in the broad jump added first place points to the Orange score.

Although the Orangemen were pitted against a weak team when they tackled the Vandals they came through with some fine running in defeating the Vandals with a score of 102 to 29.

Oregon Meet

In the most hotly contested track and field meet of the season the Orangemen lost to the University of Oregon tracksters by the score of 77 to 54. The Beavers were decidedly handicapped by the loss of Martin Elle and Sid Johnson, Newman's only hopes in the sprints, when they both pulled muscles in the 100-yard dash. Elle was unable to finish the race, but Johnson managed to hobble across the line to take third place.

Bergerson surprised everyone by putting the shot out 45 feet and $9\frac{1}{4}$ inches to completely outclass Dixon of Oregon. Luce of the Beavers placed second in the discus after being barely nosed out by Moeller who tossed it 150 and one-half feet. Horton and Eilers placed second and third respectively in the javelin when they failed to surpass the mark of 195 feet and $11\frac{1}{2}$ inches which is a new state record set by Dixon of Oregon.

Another dope upset of the day was the winning of first and second in the half mile by Paul Young and Ron Johnson of Oregon State who showed their heels to Oregon at the rate of $1:59\frac{3}{4}$ for the course.

The biggest thrill of the meet was in the high hurdles with Ken Martin running the course in $15\frac{3}{8}$ seconds, coming within $\frac{3}{8}$ seconds of the present state record. The Oregon State relay team lost its chance to establish a state record when Oregon forfeited the event by not entering a competing team.

Logan Carter was nosed out by Everts of Oregon in the high jump, with Lyman tied by Carter for second honors. McLean and Lyman both tied for second place when they were edged out by Robinson, clearing the bar at the height of $12\frac{1}{2}$ feet.

The Lemon and Yellow spikesters established new records in three events, the 220-yard dash by Bale in 22 seconds flat, the discus of $150\frac{1}{2}$ feet by Moeller, the javelin when Dixon tossed it 195 feet and $11\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Through these three events the Duck cindermen were hard pressed to keep ahead.

The Beavers made placement points in the two mile run, low hurdles and mile run.

Freshman Track Squad

Freshmen Track

In March under the eagle eye of "Lonnie" Stiner, rook track coach, the prospects for a strong team looked very poor. The main weaknesses of the rooks lay in the pole vault, high jump, and distance. Material was finally whipped into shape so that the end of the season found the rooks with no defeats checked against them.

The second week of practice found 64 aspirants out for positions with competition especially keen in some quarters. The first meet on April 24 against the squad from Albany College was an overwhelming win with the score 97½ to 24½ in favor of the peagreeners. The rooks took ten firsts and out-pointed Albany in every event.

The following week the Beaver Babes made it four straight over the Frosh from Oregon by taking three out of five relay events. No exceptional time was made for the field was slow and very muddy.

With the meet with the Frosh coming up the rooks settled down to real workouts so as not to upset the dope which was billed in their favor. The youngsters of O. S. C. ran true to form and walloped the Oregon Babes at the pace of 67 to 54 on May 24. The most brilliant performance of the whole meet was the time turned in by Reggie Rust who did the century in 10 flat with Hal Moe pressing to within a very few inches at the tape.

The meet ended a perfect season as far as the rooks were concerned as they did not once meet with defeat and ate very little dust. Considering the lack of good material in several events, "Lonnie" Stiner did a good job of making over raw material in a short season and was responsible for several brilliant finds which will be a tonic for the varsity coach next season.

All in all this has been the most successful season for some time with training conditions almost perfect. A large part of the season the track was dry and in good condition thus enabling the men to get down to good shape and better chances for checking off some record time.

Three swimming meets, one with the Multnomah club of Portland and the other two with the University of Oregon, kept the Oregon State natators on the go this winter. Of the three, Oregon won two and the Beavers took the other. Herb Eisenschmidt, Ed Ralston and Ed Sherman were easily the outstanding men on the squad, for all three of them placed consistently in their events.

Eisenschmidt, who was a sophomore this year, swam in the 100, 220 and 50 yard dashes. Ralston earned his points in the backstroke, losing only twice and those to the present title holder in the 100-yard dorsal event. Ed Sherman was diving on the low board and his work was good enough to easily win three first places in the three meets. February 17 the swimmers toured down to Eugene where they met the University men. Oregon piled up 47 points and won the meet. When the Ducks came over here early in March they repeated their win but were forced to strain or break most of the tank records to do it. That was the night Steve Fletcher set his record in the breast stroke, swimming the 100 yards in 1:11.8.

ED RALSTON

Water polo players had better luck, for they took one and lost one when they met Oregon. At Eugene the count was 2 to 1 for the Webfoots; in their home tank the score was the same, but with Oregon State having the two. Outstanding Oregon State players in that game were Howard Vierra, Bud Nock and Don Dunham.

Varsity swimmers who received letters this year are Ed Sherman, Herb Eisenschmidt, Lloyd Lillie, Gordon Alexander, Ed Ralston, Douglas Thomson and Pierre Bowman.

Six men were awarded sweaters for participation in varsity water polo. They are Bud Nock, Eldon Ball, James Wilson, Howard Vierra, Don Dunham and Austin Harper. Eisenschmidt, Lillie, Alexander, Ralston, Thomson, Bowman, Nock, Ball, Wilson, Vierra, Dunham and Harper will all be back next year. Ed Sherman is the only man to be lost by graduation.

Freshman Swimming Squad

Freshmen Swimmers

The Oregon State rook swimming team, which was also coached by John Kenney, started its season by taking Salem high school into camp 48 to 18. Seven events were on the schedule, and of those seven the yearlings took six firsts. The first race, the 400-yard relay, was finished in a dead heat. Connie Barrus was high man for the rooks, winning the 50 and 100 yard dashes. Then the Orange babes went over to Eugene for a meet with the Oregon frosh. Their luck didn't hold out, for the Ducklings cleaned the rooks with a 45 to 39 score. The 160-yard relay team stepped out and took that event to set a new record for that tank.

On the afternoon of the second Oregon-Oregon State meet the frosh came over here and repeated their win, totaling 48 points to the rooks' 36. Seven of the babe tank records were broken, mostly by the visitors. Barrus was clocked for 24.6 seconds in the 50-yard dash and equaled the coast varsity time for that event. The frosh set up new marks in the 100-yard breaststroke, the 400-foot relay, the 100-yard back stroke and the medley relay. Baskerville took a first place in the diving event for the rooks. Jack Williams, who swam in the breast stroke races for the rooks, was high point man in the water polo game that wound up that meet. The final score was 6 to 3 for the Staters, and Williams flipped in four of those goals.

Fourteen yearlings were awarded numerals when their season was over. They are William Failing, LeRoy Huntley, Roy Mueller, Clyde Starrett, John Anderson, Conrad Barrus, Jack Williams, Harry Baskerville, Forrest Lindsay, Hugh Allen, Daniel Bates, Orlo Cummings, Norman Green and Ted Smith. Those men, together with all the lettermen available from the varsity squad, will give Coach Kenney a strong and well-balanced outfit for next year. Barrus is already good material for the sprints, Baskerville can replace Sherman in the diving event, and Jack Williams lacks only speed to be one of the outstanding men in the conference in the breast stroke competition. Kenney will have a strong varsity team next year.

Varsity Tennis Squad

Tennis

Varsity tennis at Oregon State got under way April 19, when the Beaver men took the Willamette university Bearcat team into camp by a score of 7 to 0. One week later, the Orangemen lost their first conference meet of the season to Oregon at Eugene, by a score of 5 to 2. Sherman Lockwood, one of the ranking tennis stars of the country, led the Webfoots to victory. The Beavers captured two of the singles matches, but lost the rest of the clashes.

Oregon State met the Seattle athletic club May 2, losing by a score of 8 to 1. The following day saw the Orange racquet-men lose to the strong University of Washington squad, 7 to 0. In a return match played with Willamette on May 9, Oregon State again won by a score of 7 to 0. University of Washington netmen descended upon Corvallis a week later to down the Beavers for a second time. The score was 6 to 0.

Hines of Washington and King of Oregon State played the feature match of the day, Hines finally winning, 7-5, 4-6, 7-5. Dederichs and Goss of the Beavers also gave Newkirk and Nordstrom of Washington something to think about before they finally went down to defeat, 5-7, 6-3, 6-3.

The contest with Washington was followed by the Pacific coast conference meet at Eugene, in which the Orangemen failed to place. Dederichs made the best showing for the Orangemen, forcing Delara of Southern California to take him as far as 6-3, 11-9 before the win was definitely chalked up to the credit of the southerner.

The Beaver tennis season closed May 24 when the Lemon-Yellow tennis outfit took them into camp 6 to 1 on the Stater's courts. Cook of Oregon State defeated McLaren of Oregon for the lone Beaver score. Oregon State's team was coached by B. T. Simms during the 1930 season.

The board of control voted letters to William Grafton, Burlin King, Joe Dederichs, Harold Cook, Bartil Sjoblom, Fred Loomis and Alling Goss.

Freshman Tennis Squad

Freshman Tennis

The freshman tennis team played only two matches during the 1930 season and retired undefeated. Exceptionally good material was uncovered by Dr. B. T. Simms, tennis coach, and it served notice that it would be heard from in the net world later on.

The rooks started by defeating the University of Oregon freshmen 4 to 3, winning three singles and one doubles match. The Orange victories were won by Allen, Shand, and Batcheller in the singles, and by the doubles team of Shand and Miller. Allen defeated Adams of the frosh, 13-11, 6-4. Shand downed Calavan, 6-1, 6-1. Batcheller conquered Spalding, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4. In the doubles, Shand and Miller of the rooks took Young and Woodruff of the frosh, 6-1, 6-2.

In a return match the rooks defeated the frosh, 5-2.

Carl Lenchitsky and John Allen were two outstanding players on the freshman racquet outfit. They are good prospects for varsity material and will undoubtedly be heard from in the three years they are eligible for varsity. John Shand and Fred Miller, playing as a doubles team, showed good form. Lenchitsky played as No. 1, Allen as No. 2, Shand as No. 3, Eldridge as No. 4, and Batcheller as No. 5.

Fred Eldridge, Carl Lenchitsky, John Allen, Robin Batcheller, John Shand, and Fred Miller were awarded numerals. All of these men returned to school last fall and will answer Coach Simms's call for tennis this spring.

Coach Simms, varsity tennis coach, handles rook tennis in addition to varsity racquet wielders, this giving him an opportunity to start moulding varsity prospects their first year in school.

Senior Crewmen

Crew

Rowing experienced a continued steady growth during the spring and fall of 1930, and by the beginning of the spring term of 1931 over 150 men were turning out daily in preparation for the spring regatta. Interest in the sport during the fall term reached a new zenith when the first Homecoming regatta was staged October 15.

The planning of a new shell house to occupy a site four blocks north of the Van Buren street bridge indicates that crew will soon be recognized in its true capacity as a major sport on a par with those of the University of Washington and California who are anxious to include Oregon State in the Pacific coast rowing conference.

J. C. OTHUS, Coach

Races with crews from the Portland Rowing club, Sacramento Junior college and the University of Washington are being scheduled for the spring term of 1931. The winning class crew of the spring regatta will represent Oregon State.

An inexperienced crew of freshmen won the 1930 school championship by defeating both the sophomores and seniors. The champions crowded out the sophomore boat at the finish by a scant boat length, negotiating the two-mile course in the record time of 14:30. In the senior race the freshman crew crossed the finish line one-and-one-half boat lengths ahead with only five men in the boat. Because both crews had been limited to six men as the result of a damaged outrigger on the "Beaver," the race was run again with the freshman boat finishing three boat lengths ahead. The junior crew won the consolation race, crossing the line two boat lengths ahead of the sophomores.

May 24 the championship rook crew rowed against the University of Washington yearlings at Seattle, losing by only three lengths to a crew that had previously beaten the University of California freshmen by seven boat lengths. Those receiving numeral awards are: S. Johnson, captain; H. Bullard, stroke; G. W. Flatt, coxswain; B. Byrne, manager; W. Pickthall, H. B. Forse, E. Halsey, A. Pierson,

The seniors won the mile-and-one-eighth downstream struggle Homecoming day from the sophomore boatmen, settling the long-standing dispute of supremacy between the 1930 school champions and the consolation winners by the margin of one-third of a boat length. The winning senior crew included Ewing Beardsley, No. 1; Gail Davis, 2; Mervyn Mazza, 3; Elmer Crump, 4; Wallace Hopper, 5; John Dutro, 6; George Gordon, captain, 7; Val Hansen, stroke, and Veldon Parker, coxswain.

Through the diligent efforts of Coach James C. Othus, George Gordon, Mervyn Mazza and George Lindauer rowing made a creditable showing during the 1930-31 season. George Gordon was elected to the office of president to succeed Neil Sailing. Other officers elected last spring are Val Hansen, Vice-President; Carl Ahlers, secretary, and Mervyn Mazza, treasurer.

In point of service Mervyn Mazza and George Lindauer were the oldest men in the Rowing club, both rowing in the first shell launched on this portion of the Willamette river.

Bids have been received on the new shell house which when completed will afford space for the storage of twelve shells, a heating plant, repair shop, locker room, office and training room. Negotiations are being made with the University of Washington and California for the purchase of two new shells to take care of the increasing number of rowing enthusiasts turning out each spring.

Coach Othus is looking forward to the development in the near future of a crew from the wealth of material turning out for the regular gym classes that will capably defend Oregon State honors in the Pacific coast rowing conference.

In recognition of its work, the winning crew was invited to take part in the annual regatta in Portland during the Rose festival there.

Varsity Golf Squad

Golf

Varsity golf at Oregon State did not enjoy a very prosperous season last spring. Cold weather and an unusual amount of rain made the country club course unfit for play most of the time, and the Beaver mashie-men were unable to get in enough practice to muster a formidable golf squad.

At the start of the season, Coach Tony Sotovia had only two returning lettermen around which to build his 1930 team. Captain Bob Taylor, playing his last year, and Bob McCook, performing for his second season, were the two available lettermen. Roy Carpenter and Clark Bogart, both members of the 1932 rook outfit, and Bob Hocken, rounded out the five-man team. Gene Dunkin served as alternate, playing in the first match against the University of Oregon.

The varsity played its first match against Oregon at the Corvallis country club. The Webfoots had an unusually strong team, being led by Vincent Dolp, who has twice been runner-up in the Oregon amateur championships, and who was also Pacific coast intercollegiate champion last year. Oregon won the match by the decisive score of $14\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ points. George Will of the invaders furnished the feature of the day's play when his tee shot on the 190-yard fifth hole carried into the cup on the fly, for that rarest of all golf feats, a hole-in-one.

Two weeks later at Eugene, the Webfoots swamped the Beavers 15 to 0. Again the Ducks put up a scintillating brand of golf. The victory clinched the northwest golf championship for Oregon. Oregon State lost to the University of Washington Huskies here, $13\frac{1}{2}$ to $1\frac{1}{2}$. The Huskies placed second in the northwest.

The final match of the season was a ten-man affair, the varsity pairing with the rook squad. The two outfits succeeded in holding the strong Corvallis country club team to a 15-15 tie. Minor "O" awards were given to Captain Bob Taylor, Bob McCook, Clark Bogart, Bob Hocken and Roy Carpenter. Taylor was the only graduating member of the team, and prospects are bright for the 1931 season.

Freshman Golf Squad

Freshman Golf

At the beginning of the freshman golf season, Coach Tony Sottovia called for candidates for the 1933 rook squad. About 15 men turned out, and the team was selected after a qualifying round of 36 holes, medal play. Gordon Patton was elected captain of the team. Men playing against the Oregon frosh in the first match at Corvallis were Patton, Woods, Campbell, Hood and Cowie.

The Ducklings won the match, 12 to 3, Clyde Woods, second man for the Beaver yearlings, garnering three points from Rudie Bain of the frosh for the only rook counters. During the interim elapsing between the first and second encounters with the frosh, the rooks engaged in a lively round of challenge matches amongst themselves. Clyde Woods displaced Patton as first man on the team and Shellenbarger took Cowie's place as fifth man.

The second meet with the frosh was held at Eugene, over the Scenic country club course which was later in the month to become the setting for the Oregon amateur championships. The relentless Lemon-Yellow freshmen again swamped the yearlings—this time to the tune of 13½ to 1½.

Don Hood, of the rooks, played a good match against Bill Grigsby, frosh star, and ended the 36 holes all even with his opponent, thereby being awarded 1½ points, the sum total of the Orange scoring efforts. The rooks were weakened by the illness of Captain Patton, who was suffering from a severe cold. However, he put up a good game against Spec Stevenson, frosh ace.

In the waning days of the golf season, the rooks improved their brand of golf and were coming strong just before the season ended.

In the last match on schedule, the first-year men paired with the varsity and succeeded in holding the powerful Corvallis country club ten-man team to a 15-15 tie. To Don Hood goes much of the credit for holding the match to a tie. Don was two down and three to play and came back strong to win the last three holes from P. X. Knoll of the country club squad.

TONY SOTTOVIA, Coach

Varsity Cross Country Squad

Cross Country

Cross country at Oregon State had another successful season last fall under the direction of Ralph O. Coleman, director of intramural athletics. After the team had been selected from men participating in the annual turkey run, ten Beaver representatives downed the University of Oregon runners in a three-mile race. The score was 84 to 87, the team with the lowest number of points winning, according to the system of rating.

The University of Oregon team was led by Ralph Hill, who last year officially broke the world's record in the mile. Hill, a beautiful runner, captured first place with ease. In fact, Webfoots took three of the first five places. However, the Staters copped the run because

Varsity Cross Country Coach

Berg, Ausland, Hunt, Jarmon, Amos and Greves came in in a bunch. Steel of Oregon was second, Chapson of Oregon State third, Tinnerstat, Oregon, fourth, and Smith, Oregon State, fifth.

Running smoothly and without visible effort, Hill of the invaders was easily the star of the meet. He finished without showing the least signs of fatigue.

The Oregon State victory, while not altogether unexpected, came as a slight surprise to Beaver sports followers, as Coach Coleman had only one veteran, Kenneth Chapson, back in the fold for the 1930 team. A number of good rook prospects were uncovered in the turkey run, and should come in handy for next year's edition of the varsity.

Members of the team running against Oregon were Chapson, Berg, Ausland, Jarmon, Cramer, Greves, Smith, Amos, Dedman, Hunt. Schultz served as alternate.

Minor "O" awards were given to Chapson, Smith, Berg, Ausland and Hunt, the first five finishers for the Orangemen. Prospects for another championship outfit next year are exceedingly bright, as Chapson, Smith, Ausland, Amos, Greves, Dedman and Schultz are expected to be available for the squad. Most of the afore-mentioned men were only sophomores and should be eligible for two more years of competition against Oregon.

INTRAMURAL
INTERCLASS

Coleman, Intramural Sports Director

Intramural Sport Director

Ralph O. Coleman, director of intramural athletics, has continually increased interest and competition in intramural sports since he took over the reins as manager in 1919. Each year has seen the introduction of new sports, bowling and fencing being the ones added during the last year. Twenty-five different sports are offered for fraternity and club competition during the school year.

A total participation of 5165 for the year and a percentage of participation of 78.4 proves the great interest taken in the intramural competition. Participation points are awarded for each sport, and a large silver loving cup is awarded at the end of each year to the organization accumulating the most points. A permanent trophy is also awarded.

Intramural Managers

David Morris and Verne Harrison have been senior managers for the past year, and have received sweaters for their services. They are in charge of the intramural program and cooperate with Ralph O. Coleman, director of intramural athletics, in schedule arrangement.

The junior managers, who receive a loving cup for their work, are in charge of the major sports, and attend to the office duties of keeping records. Clair Young, Rex Wilson, and Barton Sawyer have been filling the positions of junior members of the managerial staff.

Try-out managers from the sophomore and freshman classes are assigned to the sports managers to aid in the work. They act as score keepers, take care of equipment and perform various other duties.

Intramural Sports Managers

Intramural Basketball Winners

Intramural Basketball

No other intramural sport has captivated as much interest in the fraternities and clubs as has basketball. Last fall a record participation of 540 men in this popular game was recorded by the intramural department.

A fast-breaking, accurate-shooting Phi Sigma Kappa quintet walked off with the honors of college champions for the third consecutive year by decisively defeating each opponent met. In the final game of the fraternity league, Phi Gamma Delta gave the Phi Sigs a big scare and a real battle, however, losing in the waning minutes of the game, 15 to 12.

Hesperion, winner of the Independent League B, defeated Hawley, League A winners, by a score of 26 to 14, to enter the all-college finals against Phi Sigma Kappa.

Interdepartmental Basketball

The Commerce seniors entered the trophy-winning team in the class basketball tournament which climaxed the hoop season and the intramural sports for the winter term.

The Stenog team, composed of such athletically known figures as McKalip and Boultinghouse, displayed a powerful brand of basketball in out-pointing the opposing Agriculture juniors, 17 to 9, in the finals.

The game was exceedingly fast, featuring close checking and clever floorwork by each side, but the commerce team had the edge in sinking their shots. As juniors last year the commerce seniors with practically the same line-up won the title of the various schools. Members of the winning team were awarded medals.

Interclass Basketball Winners

Playground Ball Champs

Playground Ball

Air-tight playing was the big reason for Theta Chi winning the all-college playground ball championship last spring. In none of their games were they given real challenge in their fight for the trophy. Sigma Alpha Epsilon made a vain attempt to vanquish the Theta Chi team in the finals of the fraternity league, being held, however, to the smaller score of 6-1.

The winners thereupon took Hesperion, club champions, into camp, 7-0, for the school title. Winters pitched superior ball throughout the season for Theta Chi.

Playground ball had a place on the intramural calendar for its second year, having been substituted for its elder relative because available space and time were lacking. More than 600 men participated in the games.

Speedball

Speedball, played for the second year at Oregon State, was issued in the fall intramural season as the first event of the athletic program. Athletes of Hawley Hall showed outstanding ability in the sport by easily defeating all their opponents and thereby winning the title of all-college champions.

In the fraternity league last fall many hotly-contested games were staged on the fields of battle. After a series of elimination Phi Delta Theta and Sigma Nu won the right to meet each other in the fraternity finals. The Phi Deltas came through with a 7-6 win after a torrid overtime session. To determine the college champions, Hawley met the Phi Deltas in a fast game featured by flashy passing, clever kicking, and ending 11 to 6 for Hawley.

Speedball Champs

Foul Throwing Winners, Sigma Phi Epsilon

Foul Throwing

For the second consecutive year Sigma Phi Epsilon walked off with the all-school championship in foul throwing during the winter term by sinking 345 of their 500 throws.

Alfred Landes of the winners with 81 points out of 100 attempts won the prize cup for the second year as the individual champion of the school. Cook of Sigma Pi with 80 points, and Bauer of the Sig Eps with 76 were awarded medals as next highest scorers.

On the second night of throwing Sigma Pi scored 185 out of a possible 250 and came within one point of tying the champions.

Hawley Hall won the league championship of the independents with 288 points.

Contestants for the Sig Eps were Landes, Bauer, Tabke, Nash and Enegren.

Handball

Beta Phi Tau won the all-college intramural handball championship during the winter term by taking two fast games from Cauthorn hall, club champions, 21 to 5 and 21 to 3. The fraternity duo of Sammy Cohen and Al Jaroff not only "packed dynamite in every fist," but covered the court with equal agility.

The Beta Phi Tau team defeated Pearce and Davies of Beta Theta Pi in two successive games, 21 to 16 and 21 to 14, thereby winning the right to meet Cauthorn, club championship winners, in the title game of the season.

The title last year was copped by Knighten and Moe of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Interest in the game of handball has increased considerably during the past year.

Handball Champions, Beta Phi Tau

Horseshoe Pitchers, Hawley Hall

Horseshoes

Three efficient horseshoe combinations from Hawley hall captured and "brought in the bacon" in the form of the all-college championship trophy last spring in that old and ever popular sport. The strong Hawley aggregation of Spaniol, Knight, Saling, Norton, Hodl and Skeans found little difficulty in outscoring representatives of Cauthorn for the independent title.

In the final meet to determine the all-school champs against Sigma Phi Sigma, who won the fraternity honors by defeating Kappa Delta Sigma, the Hawley "shoe" tossers found their opponents more nearly their equal, winning, however, two of the three matches.

Each organization was represented by three teams instead of one as in previous years.

Tennis

After defeating the Theta Xi racquet wielders, Hearn and Beurtsch, for the fraternity title, Rex Phillips and Carl Lenchitsky, representing Phi Sigma Kappa in last spring's tennis tournament, stowed away the all-school championship by decisively upsetting Ralph Bailey and Ralph Klein of Weatherford hall, club champions, in the finals, 6-4, 6-1 and 6-3.

The Phi Sigma Kappa pair spilled the choice advance dope by winning each set in brilliant form.

Phillips and Lenchitsky played consistently throughout their matches and at no time were they in any danger of defeat. During the course of the tournament the Phi Sigs downed the S. A. E's, Tekes, Betas, Fiji's and the Theta Xi's. Medals and a trophy were awarded.

Tennis Champions, Phi Sigma Kappa

Swimming Relay Winners, Phi Delta Theta

Swimming Relay

The aquatic stars of Phi Delta Theta added a second championship trophy to their collection during the winter term by defeating swimmers of Poling hall in the annual swimming relay meet. They completed the course in the record time of 1:47.

In the fraternity meet the Phi Delts had a tough time nosing out the Sigma Nus, last year champions, their time being 1:47.2. Barrus, anchor man for Phi Delta Theta, gave his team the necessary lead in the final lap to take the meet from Moore of Sigma Nu.

Other teams to make good times in the contest were Phi Gamma Delta, placing third, and Lambda Chi Alpha, taking fourth place. In the preliminary relay meets, 114 men from 19 teams were represented.

Intramural (Dual) Swimming

Phi Delta Theta carried off the initial swimming honors for the winter term by winning the intramural swimming championship of the college in defeating Poling hall, independent champions, 27 to 12. Two previous intramural swimming records were broken this year when Barrus of Phi Delta Theta swam the 100-foot back stroke event in 20 $\frac{3}{4}$ seconds which was two seconds under the previous record. One-fifth second was cut off the record in the medley relay by the Phi Delts in crossing the distance in 1:01 $\frac{3}{4}$. The Phi Delt aquatic team took first in every event with the exception of the 400-foot relay.

Wells, Phi Delta Theta, won the 100-foot free style swim, while his team-mate Ramponi, came in first in the 100-foot breast-stroke.

Dual Relay Winners, Phi Delta Theta

Dual Track Winners, Sigma Chi

Dual Track

Dual track was introduced to intramural sports enthusiasts on the campus for the first time last spring by Ralph O. Coleman, director of intramural athletics, and although greatly hindered by continued rainy weather, considerable interest was shown in the contests, giving evidence that the new sport will undoubtedly find a permanent place on the intramural calendar.

Sigma Chi withstood the elimination series and defeated Kappa Delta Sigma in the finals for the fraternity championship. In a close race for the independent title the Hawley tracksters outscored the Cauthorn track team for the club honors.

The various divisions of this new sport are track events, field events and the relay.

All College Track

Kappa Delta Rho, winners of the fraternity track meet, won the all-college meet last spring by scoring 37 points in the fifteen events of the meet, capturing the loving cup presented to the all-college champion. Beta Theta Pi took second with 27 points, and Hawley Hall, winners of the independent club track meet, took third with 18 points.

The fraternity and club meets were held as preliminaries to the all-school meet. The events of the meet were: 50-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, one mile run, 50-yard high hurdles, 120-yard low hurdles, shot put, pole vault, discus, high jump, javelin, and broad jump. Two hundred and ten athletes participated in this meet.

All-School Winners, Kappa Delta Rho

Turkey Run Winners, Hawley

Turkey Run

For the second consecutive year Hawley hall walked off with first place honors in the annual turkey run last fall. Piling up 257 points, the Hawley runners led Cauthorn, who were next highest, by 53 points. Alpha Gamma Rho placed third with a total score of 150.

Finishing the two-mile course in 10 minutes 13 seconds, Smith of Theta Chi accounted for the best time turned in during the season's run. Wells, Alpha Chi Rho, ranked second in 10:22, and Berg, Hawley, was third with 10:28.

Considerable interest in the sport was shown over the preceding year as indicated by the participation of over 150 men. Medals were awarded the three highest scoring runners. Eight organizations were given prizes.

Cross Country

The intramural cross country season came to a close last fall with only eight of the 14 organizations to compete earning points toward the all-school trophy. Several teams failed to make the required 10 runs per week for four of the five weeks of competition. Hawley held true to expectations and piled up 554 points to win the club honors, besides making the biggest score of the season.

Kappa Delta Rho finished first among the fraternities, scoring 472 points. Alpha Gamma Rho and Alpha Chi Rho ran a close second with 457 and 456 points, respectively. Cauthorn scored 505 to rank second among the independent groups. Smith, Theta Chi; Wells, Alpha Chi Rho; and Greves, Kappa Delta Rho, made the fastest time.

Cross Country Winners, Hawley

ORGANIZATIONS

The caravan with its organized board of elders disbanded when Oregon, its goal, was reached. Each family sought its own tract of land and worked to develop its own home. There was little organization other than these homes, the church and the school. It was a period of almost absolute freedom and individualism.

Quilting parties later became common among the women, and at these meetings the affairs of the community were discussed and mixed recklessly with the daily sewing.

The trading post must not be overlooked as the peak of organization which developed after the homes were established and time was more plentiful. It was similar to the modern town or city, serving as a place of exchange and as a distributing point for the mail. Here also was generally a bewhiskered "arm of the law" and the meeting place of neighbors from miles around.

Here, after the shopping was done, one might in the winter drift back to the big red stove or in the summer out to the wide front porch and renew old friendships.

Here one might listen to tales of the better days from lips of "has beens" or see the "politicians" at work fixing some new move or eye suspiciously a well dressed gambler. All organizations were there, as here - except the Greeks.

Pioneers of new dominions!

Scorning all they needs must lack,
Sternly living their opinions—

Thousands follow in their track

Follow where, in some dim hour,

On foundations firm but crude

Civil life flings up its tower

In the silent solitude.

The Central Council of Men's Halls is an organization of three representatives from each of the five inter-hall units. The president of the council is chosen by popular vote of the men living in the dormitory during the spring term of each year. To this body is entrusted executive, legislative, and judicial functions with full authority of the clubs and administration to enforce its decisions.

Students of advertising who have superior grades and are interested in advertising as a profession are eligible to membership in this club. It is a training course for Alpha Delta Sigma, national professional advertising fraternity. The Ad Club acts as a service club for handling publicity for various campus activities. Its annual banquet has gained state-wide attendance from Oregon advertising men.

All students registered in the school of industrial arts are eligible for membership in the Industrial Arts club. The desire of the organization is to promote a higher standard of scholarship and friendliness among the members. Projects are constructed by the members for the Educational Exposition. The group also builds new pieces to add to the furniture of the clubroom each year.

At the meetings of this organization, an attempt is made to promote the professional interest of the members. Outside speakers are brought in who present talks and illustrated lectures on various departments of mechanical engineering. Group discussions are held for the purpose of encouraging a higher scholastic standing. The best theses prepared by seniors each year are read at the banquet of the Oregon branch of the A. S. M. E.

As a student branch of the National Association of Civil Engineers, this organization aims at the promotion of interest in the technical field of civil engineering. Meetings are featured with speakers who are well known in the profession. Seniors compete for the prize offered by the Portland branch of the A. S. C. E. for the best thesis each year. There are three prizes, each of them a junior membership in the A. S. C. E.

The principal activity of the Dairy club is the Eastern tour of their dairy cattle and dairy products judging teams. The contests this year were held in St. Louis and in Cleveland. By placing third in a field of twenty-five teams, the group this year more than upheld the past record of O. S. C. teams of never placing in the lower half. Teams are also sent to the Pacific International Livestock Exposition in Portland each year.

This organization is composed of students who are interested in 4-H club work prior to registration in college. It is a training course for Mu Beta Beta, national professional fraternity in 4-H club work. It helps organize clubs throughout the state and conducts radio programs. Great importance is given to the development of qualities of leadership in order that members may be efficient in conducting local clubs.

AND ADVERTISING

Humor and satire were not cultivated by the early Oregon settlers. Life was a serious task and work was in earnest.

Pranks and jokes were common but little time was wasted on them except at parties and other social affairs. The modern "Joe College" who eagerly scans the morning Smudge or awaits the arrival of the weekly humor magazine for a fresh supply of "wise cracks" was unknown in those days.

Early advertisements were in the form of brief announcements of new stocks or of special prices on goods. No brilliant displays or pictures were evident, nor were billboards used to any great extent.

Many times plain posters told of town meetings or of other events of interest to the community. Rewards for arrest of the person answering to the "Description Given Below" were very prominent on the walls of the Post Office or on the front of the general store.

Where sense is respected, and when,
There nonsense is prized among men;
For we find as a rule
That fellow's a fool
Who can't play the fool now and then.

WHAT STATE DID ME FOR OR THE WAY OF ALL FROSH

After months of vain effort, following my six-year stay in high school, to make a living I finally decided to embark for Corvallis (the city beautiful in the heart of the Willamette Valley) to attend what was then known as O. A. C. and is now termed by pranky southern branchers and Oregonian sport writers as O. A. C.

It was a simple matter to break home ties, most of which were of the uncle John Christmas gift variety, so I found myself one September morning riding incognito (this was during the bus driver's strike) to Corvallis meditating over my father's last warning about bouncing checks and fraternities that wax wisely of Aimee McPherson.

Smartly decked in one of Fulop's Kollegiate-Kut suits I was thrown off at the local station where I was confronted by a group of college boys making merry and playfully cracking Ricky bottles over one another's heads. Intrigued completely over my new experience, I waded my way through a pile of dead soldiers toward the curb where much to my astonishment I saw some half dozen gents lying face down in the gutter.

"Just some stiff Sigma Nus," apologized my companion, who had trekked clear from the S. A. E. house to meet me. He didn't seem to click when I retorted, "Why don't they demand a rub-down after working out? Heh! heh!" Maybe he didn't catch on.

The fellows up at the house greeted me like an old pal, but I still can't understand why they permit the one to stay there who insulted me by asking if I wanted a date. I made a big hit with everyone I met during freshman week and although I attribute most of my success to my wise-cracking I scored plenty on my tricky dressing, socks that didn't match, etc. And it wasn't long until I became known on the campus as John College.

The boys at the S. A. E. house must have been very fond of me as is evidenced by the fact that they were so persistent in showing me around to other fraternities and promoting dinner dates—they actually insisted that I spend the last three days with Lambda Chi.

But the gents of this tong didn't appeal to me somehow. Aside from being bored to death by Hap Edwards relating time, and again his Forest Grove love affair, I couldn't get used to being awakened in the middle of the night by bugle blasts while the eagle scouts went through the ceremony of raising the flag.

Thus was I snatched from house to house being rushed by the Betas and Delts (Beta and Delta Kappa) and two or three others aside from the afore mentioned or was it two? My most difficult problem was my encounter with Sigma Nu—simply a case of to beer or not to beer. But after severing a couple of toes with broken glass on the sleeping porch it was a simple matter for the Sig-Eps to talk me into a date with them.

Everything was pat and the brass was as good as soldered when some boy soprano escorted me and my after dinner cigarette to the door amid hosts of tsks, tsks, and such expressions as, "He smokes!" and "kinyamajun?"

But despite my adversities, I finally managed to pledge a tong after an hour of "finest bunch on the campus—big national—one large family—more activities, etc.," by signing my life away to dear old Alpha Alpha Mu. Things were top, I was doing

BROADSTREET • AND • DONE

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

This firm reached its high mark in '28-'29 with Crawford's break in collegiate hall of fame. Have maintained same for stability. Bruce-Coates combination bad. Watch it. If it gripes you to watch it send a stamped envelope for detailed reports. Fixed assets: Cupper, Nicholson and Theta Xi blue Chrysler. Fixed liability: Tumble Inn rat-racing Beta Phi Tau sister. Bad management in evidence. Karhuvaaraaraaraa (stop) Delt severe blow to Williams preferred by selling low. Phi Gam brass low since political uproar.

ALPHA XI DELTA

Reluctant to give definite information since Bailey-Barlow first broke on market. Preferred stock preferred by few if any. Common stock very common. Current ratio: 3 Alpha Xis to 1 Alpha Chi Rho. Small probability of fixed assets offsetting liabilities incurred during last rush week. Net worth of concern expected to drop considerably with loss of Kramer.

CHI OMEGA

In spite of past adversities we find this firm in Fraer condition. Customers always come back for Mohr. Present trend is Rase-ing to the rear booth of the Beaver's Shack and Nolan's Campus Store. Fixed liabilities include Dave (Faith) Morris (Head intramural manager) and the chapter roll minus Florence Schanz. Statistics regarding Coutts-Schanz crash withheld.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA

New creditors, beware! Like the well known Mounted—they always get their man. Assets: Hammond, house-mother and Chrysler (no longer in circulation). Boast more engagements and engagements than any house on the campus. Last Beta pin planted here in '24. Contrary to rumor, Betty LaTraille not affiliated. Sigma Phi Sigma brass booming here. Personnel not reluctant to go into hands of receivers.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

One of the richest sororities in the list. With such sterling current assets as Frances Butner, Thelma Panky, Esther Foster, Harriet Beall and Marion Ryan, the corporation is enjoying a period of unusual prosperity. The only cloud on its financial horizon is the Buck-Dunkleberger tragedy that resulted in considerable loss of goodwill. Addition of new capital stock in the form of Ruby Morrison and Marion Gary makes Delta Delta Delta even stronger. The firm has issued dividends regularly for the past few years. The only temporary setback was the Meyers affair, which turned out to be a wild flyer.

BETA PHI ALPHA

After looking through financial statistics for several years we are unable to find any worthwhile information regarding this corporation. A careful audit this year reveals an insolvent condition with numerous liabilities offset only by Doris Pogue, recently acquired stock, and Christine Seeck.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

A thorough financial survey indicates that this firm is in fair condition except for a preponderance of frozen assets, which include Mary Stuart, Kay Wheeler, Alberta Phillips and Anita Blazier. Current assets are Hester Davis, Esther Wood and Marge Reynolds. This firm is more experienced than a majority of the others, since it has had considerable dealings with Banks. The corporation is going through a period of Strain, but will have to grin and Barrett.

SIGMA KAPPA

Ho, young man! Get a woman if you can. If you can't get a woman how about a date with a Sigma Kappa? We are a trifle reluctant about giving any dope on this firm due to goodwill developed by Maggie Metcalf. Will say, however, that last rush week greatly increased fixed liabilities. Current liabilities: Dick Smillie, Paul Mahoney (Buerke Stock liquidated early winter quarter). Question whether or not Al Bailey is trying to promote Dot Anderson. The personality of their house mother is well worth any time you might waste here. Outstanding among the liquid assets are Sue Hyslop, Edna Knowlton, Eunice Rowan and Averil Laird.

PI BETA PHI

Concern on sounder basis since Gallagher-Ricks combination dissolved. Audit fails to explain expulsion of Griffin from board of directors. Fixed assets: Hayes, Ricks, White. Current liabilities: Ted Young, Shanty Akins. Stability of house and past prestige believed by creditors sufficient to dispell bad effect of Knutsen transactions. House failed to be Bilyeau again as result of Kappa high power rushing fall quarter. New preferred stock gobbled by Torson in Bend-Memorial Union Merger. Keep away from swinging doors, Monroe.

BELIEVE IT OR ELSE

Ed. note—Mister Ripley isn't the only gent which is smart and can dig up unusual facts about people and things. We've discovered a fellow at Oregon State who knows more about everyone than Dean Dubach or Mister Lemon. We are presenting a few of his choice bits, and anyone taking offense or who doesn't believe them can sue. One bottle of Corvallis 3-Star to the gent who proves any of the following statements are false.

The Alpha Chi Omega sorority is the only one on the campus that insists on clean rushing and never fails to do its part along that line by reporting illegitimate tactics to the Pan-Hellenic council. This is one of the reasons why the girls are so well liked by members of the other sororities.

John Deifell, leader of the junior class politicians, has the unique record of cutting more throats with less casualties than any other person at the college. "Upon my honor, fellows."

The Smudge column failed to mention Bob Peacock or D. Thomas Ordeman on April 5, 1931.

Kenneth Martin has monopolized more time in classes than any other wise guy since the days of Chuck Weber, Hershy Hall, Don Black, et al.

If all the cuss words heard on the ROT corps drill field were put into one profane expression it still would be inadequate.

Ted Gilbert, the Oregon State songbird, walked across the campus one night in April without gargling one of his asinine ballads to himself.

If all the hooley spread by campus politicians during the spring campaign could be transported to the Sahara desert that place could be converted into a veritable garden spot.

Only 187 men of the present senior class have decided to sell life insurance or bonds following graduation. The others have signed with the Standard Oil company.

The wheels on Art Ramponi's hack squeak despite all the oil cans at the Phi Delt house.

If all the coffee served at the EI were dumped into a lake the whole thing would be a big lye.

Guests at the annual Eta Eta Eta's Rounders' day banquet this spring arrived in taxis and left in the Black Maria.

If all the publicity committeemen for various campus functions were laid end to end the college would be much better off. (Proof can be obtained from Dr. Fred Shideler.)

Satire's Hall of Fame

KERMIT JOHNSON

For his unselfish desire to back anything for O. S. C. and ability to make and keep friends—a wonderful personality.

MAXWELL COOK

For his unsophisticated mannerisms, ability to refrain from apple polishing and remarkable taste in promoting cap and gown pictures for the senior section of this Beaver.

JOHN DIEFELL

"Upon my honor, Gentlemen—"

BOB PEACOCK

The pride and joy of dear old Pi Kappa Phi (social for men) who is included in this section to take the place of his predecessor, the eminent Ranson Meinke.

AL BAILEY

Included in this section for no good reason. For his achievements we refer you to Beard's Manual. If this is not sufficient write a letter to congress.

More Vice

Plans are well under way for the remodeling and reopening of Philomouth College, famous for its spiritual uplift movements and Jackie Horner. According to Ralph Buerke, who has been chosen president by the "bored" of education, if present arrangements are carried through it will be a matter of only a few years until the reorganized institution will supersede its contemporaries in the state of Oregon and be in a position to buy football players with the best of them.

"Fraternities of the living group variety will be barred from the campus," stated the new prexy in an interview. Such a restriction he believes will curtail any suspicion on the part of revenue agents and eliminate the problem of social probation. The building program of the institution calls for the remodeling of the present structure into what will be the administration building. The two upper stories will be changed into dark rooms for students in photography. This course is expected to develop a lot of enthusiasm and the first two basements will be devoted entirely to stills.

There, there little freshman
 Don't you cry,
 Sign up with the eagle scouts
 And pledge Lambda Chi.

The Sigma Nus like their booze
 But do you realize,
 The Sigma Nus are losing out?
 We're tanks—us Sigma Chis.

Huzza! Phi Delta Theta!
 We've athletes by the score,
 And when rushing season comes around
 We'll pledge a dozen more.

Gamma Phi Beta tra la, tra la! Credit rating of this firm has been better since Van Loan extension. This condition has done much to offset crisis effected by Glade stock liquidation. Situation has been more or less Duff since withdrawal of Paul Troeh and old faithful Gaiser. Green-Brown merger said to be most colorful in concern's career. Business conditions more quiet since Hystad-Merrill panic. William's foundation unstable.

PROGRESS...

Sound - Safe - Sure!

Because of an ever present desire to keep the store constantly growing, expanding, enlarging its sphere of usefulness to the public, Portland's Own Store has grown from the humble 25x50 foot one-story building of 1857 to the establishment that ere 1931 is ended will be a fifteen story, block square structure.

Meier & Frank Co.
"PORTLAND'S OWN STORE"

famously and receiving treatment befitting a king when the prexy extended me his hand with, "Congratulations, old boy, the brooms and dust mops are in the first closet to your right." Then came the sad awakening and the realization that I was just one of their playthings!

One of my greatest surprises came when I discovered that my instructors were serious in suggesting that I study and some actually got huffy about my cutting classes. Being broad-minded, however, I overlooked their disgusting attitude and decided to make the best of things despite the fact that I was anything but scrupulous when it came to fussing.

Most of my associations with the opposite sex during my rook year were with Kappas. For I had not forgotten the advice of my brothers—that if I expected to get anywhere, I must date "big" women. Inasmuch as the inmates of KKG carried as much weight as any I decided to pitch my tent there.

But if there's anything more griping than to rise and find the socks you had washed out the night before still dripping on the radiator, it's to have a babe up and tell you the night before a formal (after you've shot your last dime for the floor tax and sold your body for a tux) that her folks unexpectedly arrived in town and etc., etc., on into—. So can you blame me for adding another feathered friend to the girl friend's zoo?

Five years have elapsed and at last I have received my sheep-skin. Five years of hard work. And now I am ready to enter my chosen field—posing for "before" in before and after advertisements of physique developing correspondence schools.

Should I fail to find my niche in this profession, which is improbable after submitting myself to fraternity meals for so long, I have an alternative. Who was it that said anyone can get a job as dean of men?

Come the Very Nicest Things
Anyone Could Possibly Want

DIRECT TO LIPMAN, WOLFE'S

Since 1850, when the pony express and slow sailing vessels brought us the things we offered for sale, people have associated this store with the finer kinds of merchandise. Nowadays fast express trains and airplanes bring merchandise to us . . . and, as in the past, it is the nicer things they bring . . . upholding the tradition that Lipman Wolfe's is the store for better goods and better values.

YOUR SYMBOL —AND OURS

The Beaver, Annual of Oregon State College, is representative of the high character of an outstanding institution, and of the ardent and loyal spirit of both students and faculty.

As our symbol, the beaver represents skill, experience, and the most modern processes in the making of fine printing plates.

Truly, we have much in common.

BE A BOOSTER—

Every O. S. C. student should be a loyal booster for the college, for all its varied activities and the features that will make it a bigger and better institution.

It is also a good plan for the men and women of O. S. C. to become a booster for a bigger bank balance. While the future cannot be predicted it can be prepared for by starting a savings account now in this bank and adding to it regularly. By keeping everlastingly at it, with the object in view of accumulating sufficient funds to make a good start after graduation. The stringent banking laws of Oregon, under which this bank operates, provides every guaranty of safety to its depositors.

Better begin to be a booster by beginning to save.

WHEN YOU THINK

of college days, it is the pleasant memories which clamor for recognition. We look back on the past year as one of the most prosperous of the seventeen years has served Oregon State Students. As the thought of our delightful acquaintances, or the wonderful spirit of co-operation which you as students and faculty have shown springs to our minds, we can only wish you a pleasant summer vacation and happy days ahead.

THE CO-OP

"THE STUDENTS OWN STORE"

Electrolux

The Gas Refrigerator

is rapidly becoming standard equipment in the finest homes and apartments.

Over 180,000 in use!

Electrolux is the one automatic refrigerator that can't make any noise because it has no moving parts to create noise.

Silent when you buy it, Electrolux remains silent forever after.

MANAGERS

HERE are two men you will enjoy knowing. They are H. C. Butterfield, who for seven years has managed our MacMarr Store at 128 South Third Street, and Leo Herb, manager of our store at 234 So. Third Street for the past four years.

These men have always taken an interested part in community and collegiate activities. They are 100 per cent for Oregon State College. Drop in the stores and meet them. You always will find a hearty welcome at MacMarr's.

PIONEERS

"OLD OREGON TRAIL"

What memories to conjure with—The Trail blazers for our present high state of civilization and the comforts and pleasures we enjoy today. Are they not worthy of our highest respect and consideration?

THE BALL STUDIOS too, are pioneers—Pioneers in the art of building a better and more artistic Beaver.

For twenty years we have grown with Oregon State College, until today there is no photographic organization on the Pacific Coast so well equipped to take care of the needs of a fast growing student body.

Established in 1911 with a working force of two people taking care of 600 students. Today a staff of eight people, each an expert in his own line, is required.

As we review in succession the many annuals of Oregon State College, we cannot fail to recognize, in picture and in story, the outstanding contribution which has been made by students and faculty alike, to the progress of this historic institution.

APPRECIATION

The production of such a publication as the Beaver is brought about only by the cooperative labors of a large group of persons. Few publications of any sort embrace the large volume of diversified material that a yearbook contains. Compiling of the material and its composition into type; gathering of photographs and art pieces and their engraving into plates, comprise a year's program of fastidious work that never realizes a momentary cessation until the book is in the hands of the subscriber.

There is no adequate expression in words of the gratitude felt toward those who have so loyally assisted in attempting to present a book this year that is pleasing and representative.

We are greatly indebted

To C. J. McIntosh of the journalism department for his dependable advice.

To George Corley for his artistic genius and the designing of even the wildest desire.

To Allan Rinehart, Ferd Schoene and Walter Scott of the Beaver Engraving Co. for their enthusiasm and willing cooperation.

To Don Abbott, W. J. Maguire, J. A. MacKinnon, A. P. Blankholm, J. O. J. Braun and George Eichhorn of James, Kerns & Abbott printing company for their undivided services.

To Sam Babcock of Weber-McRea cover designers.

To Robert Ball and the loyal staff of the Ball Studio for their willingness to help at any time.

To the staff of student assistants too numerous to mention, but who have all supported their publication to the last in one great effort to compile an outstanding Beaver.

It has indeed been an extreme pleasure to work with these many enthusiasts.

—The Editor.
