FOREWORD

LIKE a fragrant rose on its slender stem, redolent of the dawns and dusks of a delectable June, are the clustered memories, folded tenderly one upon another, of your golden days in college. As the rose has its supreme moment of beauty, breaking gently from bud to bloom, so in the succession of these happy years there may have been some occasion, momentous for joy or exaltation, rapture or despair, that determined the tone and fibre of your subsequent life. The pages of this book, reviewing the pageant of events for the year just closed, may recall for you, like a fleeting fragrance or a treasured souvenir, those moments of transcendent charm.

• If the reveries arising as you turn these pages are reminiscent of occasions that left their vivid imprint on your mind—the cheering multitude in the stadium as an Orange warrior broke loose for the winning score; the sparkling company in the evening glamor of the Memorial Union lounge or ball room; the whispered confidences of shy endearment under an October moon; the outpoured fellowship of singing comrades round the banquet board or the hearthfire of the “house;” the thrill of silent awe as a gorgeous sunset overflowed the purple shadows of the Coast range and glinted the domes and spires of the quiescent campus on the hill; the mood of reverence and patriotic pride, as the regimental standards pass proudly in review and the national colors tug bravely at their staff—if a 1934 Beaver recalls this to you, with a sudden uplift that leaves you wavering between smiles and tears, our mission and our hope will be fulfilled.

O R I A M.

TO THE ROSE FESTIVAL

Portland's annual invitation to the world to join her in the celebration of June's prodigal gift of roses; to revel in the beauty and fragrance of the queen of all flowers; to make holiday during a season of riotous and exhilarating merrymaking, when the Pacific Northwest is thronged with verdure and overflowing with color, when the tender loveliness of Mt. St. Helens and the mystic grandeur of Mt. Hood greet the visitor with never-failing charm, when the magnificence of the Columbia Gorge rewards the questing spirit of even the most remote of pilgrims, and when the woods and the waters and the salubrious weather conspire to weave a magic spell over day-break and twilight glow, noon's splendor and midnight's balm;

- TO THE WEEK OF REVELRY that makes Portland a fairyland of flowers, as the Mardi Gras makes New Orleans a frolic of fun,
- We dedicate this book, in a spirit of appreciation of Oregon's great metropolis, the Rose City, and with a glowing sense of pride in the brilliant festivities that herald to the world her hospitable message • FOR YOU A ROSE IN PORTLAND BLOWS.

ROSE CITY

When the moon rides o'er the mountains
And her magic softly gleams
On the blowing rose in the garden close
There's enchantment for your dreams;
All the shining lamps are fountains,
All the twining lanes are long,
And the river bends lead to happy ends
In the city of my song.

O sweet city of dream
Where the twinkling lights gleam
On the breast of the stream,
How I long for your song
And your roses that twine;
Like sweet rain after drouth
In the odorous South
Is your honey-moon mouth
And your call to us all,
O Rose City of mine.

When your brow is wreathed with roses
And the breath of June is sweet,
Out of many lands come the happy bands
Just to worship at your feet.
And to them the dawn discloses
How the gorges weave their spells
O'er the mountain walls where the waterfalls
Fill with music all the dells.

O sweet city of dream
Where the twinkling lights gleam
On the breast of the stream,
How I long for your song
And your roses that twine;
Like sweet rain after drouth
In the odorous South
Is your honey-moon mouth
And your call to us all,
O Rose City of mine.

ADMINISTRATION

Portland Rose Festival

Officially inaugurated in 1907, the Portland Rose Festival really had its origin many years before in 1889 when the Portland Rose Society held its first annual exhibit of roses. For several seasons the now-famous Festival was nothing more than a Rose Show each spring until the initial floral parade was sponsored by the society in the spring of 1904.

- A far cry from the elaborately decorated floats of pageants which feature Festival week was this first parade that wended its way through the streets. However, decorated vehicles—bicycles, surreys, phaetons and carryalls—were plentiful as well as a feature exhibit of four decorated automobiles.
- With this successful beginning members of the club and other sponsors worked unsuccessfully for such a parade as one of the highlights of the Lewis and Clark exposition in 1905. After this set-back the matter simmered until the spring of 1907 when far-seeing civic leaders backed not only a floral parade but also a two-day Rose Festival, the first of its kind in Portland.
- Besides the brilliant floral parade which featured the first "human rosebud" march of nearly 2000 school children, a gorgeous rose and floral exhibit was held in the old forestry building. A total of $4000.00 in prize money was distributed. As a result, so popular had the Festival proved to be, that on June 27, 1907, articles of incorporation were filed at Salem by the Rose Festival association in which the purpose to hold an annual Rose Fete were declared.

Student Administration

- Maintaining the dignity and prestige of our institution with the customs that have become traditional through the years of her existence, the administration of student affairs becomes ever of more interest to the group which functions in this regard. Wisdom and integrity on the part of the administration is the keynote to the ultimate cooperation thus acquired within the student body, with the utmost respect for that group whose aim it must be to care for the diversified interests of the school at large. Careful planning of curricula; keen insight in student affairs; wisdom and constructive inspiration in their advice, and an everlasting regard for the principles upon which Oregon State college is founded are the aims of those who have been chosen in the true merit of their worth to best maintain the high-mindedness and to gain world-wide acknowledgment of the undergraduates whose student activity has been centered here.

- Some have been here long, others are here today and gone tomorrow. Yet throughout the years the unselfish motives and influential personalities have established their mark in the portals of pride which are well-founded and beyond the scope of oblivion.

- Many of the accomplishments of Oregon State's graduates, much of their personal success and a large share of their affection may well be attributed to those who incorporate their personalities, who spend their greatest effort and who faithfully labor to further establish the ideals of our school—the administration.

ADMINISTRATION

— 1934 BEAVER —

President Peavy

- Member of the faculty since 1910, dean of the school of forestry since 1913, builder of one of the outstanding schools of forestry in the United States—with a building specially constructed and equipped, with an arboretum and a forest laboratory of 5,292 acres owned by the college and 75,000 acres of State forest land under the scientific management of the school,—George W. Peavy, senior dean of the college, comrade of all its staff members, and friend of all its students and alumni, was elected acting president of the college January 14, 1934. Hail to the new chief, seasoned in the love and loyalty for Oregon State that he expects, and will receive, from all of us!

President Peavy

Chancellor Kerr

Chancellor Kerr

• Chancellor of Oregon Higher Education since September 6, 1932, and chief executive of Oregon State college since 1907, Dr. William Jasper Kerr has been characterized by his fellow presidents of state colleges and universities as "one of the very ablest college presidents in America," "a statesman in education," "a prophet who has had the power to give reality to his own prophecies." In the words of one of the ablest and most revered of these university presidents, Dr. W. O. Thompson, President Emeritus of Ohio State University, we can bear witness to Dr. Kerr's "fine sense of honor characteristic of the scholastic gentleman" and repeat with him, in all sincerity, "We have trusted him, we have honored him, we have loved him."

Dr. Kate W. Jameson, Dean of Women

Dean of Women

• "What finer and more appropriate subject could students of an Oregon college choose as a symbol for their annual than roses? Roses!— one of nature's most beautiful products which grow in such profusion in this State. Is there not a resemblance between them and the flower of our youth as we find them in our higher institutions? As Oregon products, these young men and women too should give freely of these powers which they have gained and in their turn beautify not only the cultivated centers of society, but the waste places wherever they may be found."

K. W. Jameson

Dean of Men

• "So often this year all of us have heard that 'times are tough.' We have been told, too, that tough times develop personalities. However, more likely tough times reveal personalities . . . that is, show up what has already developed. As long as times are easy, almost anyone can get by, whether in a game, or in classes, or in living. But let a hard game come, let one be called upon to 'pinch hit', then whether or not he has trained readily shows up. The tough times, the crises, reveal the personality. We must remember that whether or not we have smooth sailing now, we may be assured of tough times, of crises, sometime. We are now getting ready what we will reveal then."

State Board of Higher Education

- The State Board of Higher Education renders a service to our school which commands the deepest appreciation and utmost regard on the part of our student body. The good judgment and keen foresight of this group have marked them true leaders in the skillful manipulation of the major executive problems of higher education in Oregon.
- Members of the board are appointed by the governor of the State with the approval of the Senate. One of their important decisions this year was the appointment of separate presidents here and on the University campus to work directly under the chancellor.

• "Education should equip students adequately for the duties of life and the responsibilities of citizenship. The State Board of Higher Education desires so to administer its work that the higher educational institutions of this state may guide their students into paths of usefulness, into the realm of high ideals and into the fields of success; so that their's may be the opportunity, the privilege and the honor to develop resources, promote progress, dignify service, contribute to the happiness of mankind and glorify the citizenship of the State of Oregon."

Deans

- It is fitting that a part of the Beaver be set aside for those who help to make the institution possible and who give it the character that makes up the Oregon State spirit. In the hope that students may become better acquainted with them than through news stories and general conversation, these pages are given to the deans and directors of the school.
- George W. Peavy, dean of deans at Oregon State college and head of the school of forestry since its beginning in 1910, is well known to college students because of his interest in them. He is chairman of the administrative council and his appointment to the office of acting president of Oregon State has delighted both students and faculty.
- R. H. Dearborn, head of the department of electrical engineering, was appointed acting dean of the school of engineering, in the fall of 1933 upon the resignation of Dean Harry S. Rogers. Well-known to the students of the various technical fields Dean Dearborn is doing his work well and is carrying on the high reputation of the Oregon State school of engineering.
- Carl W. Salsler, acting dean of education under Dean James R. Jewell on the University campus, came to Oregon State in 1929 and is assistant to the dean as well as professor of education. As head of the personnel and placement service he comes in close contact with and is known and liked by the students.
- M. Elwood Smith, dean and director of lower division, joined the staff in 1915. Before the changes were made in the administration he served as dean of the school of basic arts and sciences. He is particularly well-known throughout the country for his work as director of the summer sessions.

Milam

Packer

Schoenfeld

Deans

- Ava B. Milam, dean of the school of home economics is one of the best known members of the college faculty. She has traveled extensively, especially in the Orient, and has been visiting professor in four foreign universities as well as having established a school of home economics at Yenching university in Peiping, China. In 1911 Dean Milam took charge of the home economics work started here by Dr. Margaret Snell in 1889.
- Work in the school of science is centered at Oregon State college under the direction of Dean Earl L. Packer, who came here from Eugene in the fall of 1932, when higher education was reorganized in the State of Oregon. Science curricula include work in general science, bacteriology, botany, physics, entomology, mathematics, chemistry, geology, zoology and courses leading to nursing education and medicine. Dean Packard's special interests lie in the field of paleontology and particularly in deciphering the history of ancient life of Oregon.
- Adolph Ziefle, dean of pharmacy, is an enthusiastic promoter of the interest of his school. A department of pharmacy was established in 1898 and was organized into a regular school under Dean Ziefle in 1917. He is also secretary of the O.S.P.A. loan association.
- William A. Schoenfeld was made dean and director of the school of agriculture and the agricultural experiment station in 1931. His broad experience in the universities of Wisconsin, Texas and Tennessee and Harvard; his wide travels in European countries as agricultural commissioner and his wide experience in government work have made him eminently qualified for this responsibility. Scientific agriculture in Oregon will advance under his capable leadership.

Administrative Heads

- William A. Jensen, executive secretary of the school, has held that position since 1907, when he accompanied Chancellor Kerr to this institution. Mr. Jensen has worked faithfully to carry out the numerous responsibilities of his position since he has been on this campus.
- Erwin B. Lemon is another well-known figure to Oregon State students. In 1911 he graduated here in the school of commerce and then held a position as instructor until he was appointed registrar in 1921.
- Dr. Clair V. Langton, director of men's physical education, has been on the campus since 1928, and has held his present position since 1932.
- Paul V. Maris, former county agent leader for the State of Oregon, has been director of the extension service of Oregon State college since 1920. His work has been acclaimed throughout the State.
- Colonel William H. Patterson, supervisor of all military and R.O.T.C. activity, is largely responsible for the prestige of the military school here.
- Edwin T. Reed, director of college publications and perhaps more popularly known as college editor, has promoted journalistic activity since 1912.
- Edwin M. Smith, manager of the college business office, has a position of responsibility requiring the good judgment and purchasing ability that so obviously characterize this man.
- Lucy M. Lewis, head librarian of the Oregon State college library since 1920, was given direct charge of all libraries in the institutions of higher learning in the State of Oregon. The advancement came as a result of her work here.

STUDENT

Student Body Officers

Fred Saling, President

Student Body

- "The year 1933-34 has been one of accomplishment and progress for Oregon State. The success of our basketball and football teams has blazed the name of Oregon State into national prominence and and the grand spirit of those teams and their coaches has become imbued in the student body as never before. Similarly our activities in the fields of music, forensics, journalism and scholarship have equalled or eclipsed their former standings.
- "The year has apparently witnessed the end of the turmoil in higher education—the end of a chaotic period during which the students and faculty of this institution conducted themselves most commendably and for which they are being congratulated by the people of the State. Perhaps the upward swing of enrollment may be interpreted as a manifestation by the citizenry, of increasing confidence in the seriousness and fair-mindedness of Oregon State as an institution.
- "I am grateful for having had the privilege of guiding the student body as its president."

Board of Control

- "Student self government at Oregon State college places the responsibility of student life, conduct, habits and development with the entire student body as a group. The administrating organization is known as the Associated Students of Oregon State Agricultural college and within this general student body organization both men and women students participate. Their activities cover a wide range including the operation of intercollegiate athletics; student publications; forensics; dramatics; the Lyceum course, and different groups of musical organizations. The latter includes the band, the orchestra, the Glee club and the Madrigal club.
- "Supervision of these activities is vested in the Board of Control by the constitution of the Associated Students. The board consists of three faculty members appointed by the president of the college, one alumnus chosen from the alumni association and seven students. The student members are the president, first vice-president and secretary of the Associated Students; the editor of the Barometer; one man and one woman from the junior class, and one man from the sophomore class. Immediate supervision is authorized through the general manager of student activities.
- "Members of the board this year were Fred Saling, Kermit Linstedt, Dorothy Ann Sidler, Vera Weber, Henry Brands, Warren Reid, Walther Ott, Prof. C. V. Ruzek, Prof. C. L. Johnson and Jay Reynolds."

Kenneth Emery, President

Memorial Union Board

- The Memorial Union, center of student activity on the campus, was erected in memory of the graduates and undergraduates of Oregon State who lost their lives in the World War. Each year a board of eight directors composed of student body officers and alumni is appointed to supervise and maintain the building. Officers for this year were Kenneth Emery, president; Fred Saling, student body president; Dorothy Ann Sidler, secretary of the student body; Warren Reid, editor of the Barometer; Carl Lodell, graduate manager; Jack F. Porter, alumni member; E. C. Allworth, alumni secretary, and Professor G. V. Copson, faculty member.

Co-op Book Store Board
Kenneth Munford, President

Co-op Book Store

- The Co-op bookstore, student owned and controlled organization, is operated on a profit-sharing basis for the purpose of supplying students with all school necessities. C. Paul Irvine, manager for the last eight years, has been appointed by a board consisting of seven students and two faculty members elected annually to supervise the policy and operation of the store. Members for this year were Kenneth Munford, president; Hayden Whitehouse, vice-president; Ruth De Armond, secretary; Charles Pahl, Edwin McLaughlin, Stanley Thompson and Vernon Warren, student members, and Dean George W. Peavy and Prof. W. J. Gilmore, faculty members.

Campus Weekend

• The busiest three days of spring term or even of the whole school year probably are crammed into the climax of the last term—Campus weekend, often termed junior weekend. Everything from interclass competition to informal dances makes this period of happiness before final exams one to place in every student's memory book. Each class steps up a notch at this time and takes over the privileges and traditions of the new surroundings. Severity of the regular year is forgotten as crew races, polo games, track meets, baseball games, picnics, burning of the green and tug-o-war sends the participants in this colorful pageant of activity scurrying to all parts of the campus.

Homecoming

• Under the leadership of Forrest Lindsay the rally dances, parades, alumni registration, rook bonfires and house signs made Homecoming more memorable than ever. Committee chairmen were Dave Bronson, house signs; Waldemar Schmidt, midnight matinee; Don Rawlins, rook bonfire; Howard Lowe, rally dances; Vera Weber, student dances; Homer Welch, radio publicity; Helen Dorothy Haynes, stationery; Marguerite Welch, alumni registration; Hugh O'Neill, rally; Marvin Wilbur, publicity; John Hoffman, campus decoration; Charles Prah, field decorations; Stanley Bishoprick, programs and posters; John Mack, alumni banquet, and Al Lubersky, crew races.

Student Interest Committee

• The delicate task of maintaining a balance between academic and extracurricular activities at Oregon State is handled by the compact but efficient Student Interest committee. Members are U. G. Dubach, dean of men; Dr. Kate W. Jameson, dean of women; Dr. F. A. Gilfillan, scholarship head; Prof. H. T. Vance, housing head; Dr. C. V. Langton, physical education director; Fred Saling, student president; Kermit Linsteadt, independent student president; Warren Reid, Barometer editor; Forrest Lindsay, Interfraternity president; Margaret Zimmerman, women's president, and Barbara Graham, Pan Hellenic president.

Y. M. C. A.

• After several years of prominent work in advancing the campus Y.M.C.A., Charles Crumley, secretary, passed on his duties to a student advisory council and went to head the Boise Y.M.C.A. Despite loss of the guidance of the popular Crumley the organization at Oregon State continued to forge ahead and hold its place near the top of campus groups. Outstanding activities are deputation and boys' work, handling of freshman mix, help with International banquet and sponsoring of Hi-Y convention. Milt Carlson was student president this year.

ALUMNI

Alumni

Charles H. Reynolds, President

Alumni

- In 1875 the first Alumni organization of Oregon State college was founded and since that time has expanded until today it boasts a large group of life members backed by an irreducible trust fund of well over $12,000. As an extremely aggressive and active body the Alumni organization has fostered a great many improvements for Oregon State during the last few years.
- Along with alumni associations of some 200 colleges over the United States, Oregon State is a component part of the well-organized American Alumni Council which keeps alive contacts between graduates and their alma mater, with a wide representation from all parts of the country.
- Business of the Oregon State alumni group is handled by a board of directors, members of which are elected for five-year terms. Other representatives are three members on the Memorial Union Board of Governors, one on the Board of Directors and one on the Oregon State Board of Control.
- Finances in addition to the trust fund are furnished by $5.00 installment payments of members extending over a ten-year period; through $3.00 a year dues and from local and national advertising of the Oregon State Monthly.

Alumni

Ed. Allworth, Alumni Secretary

Alumni

- As the official publication of the Oregon State college alumni association, the Oregon State Monthly furnishes a well-molded link in bettering relations between alumni and the college. Through the Monthly unbiased information on political, financial and educational problems are presented to the Alumni.
- The Monthly in itself is practically self-supporting as a large number of national and local advertisements are run in each issue. Distribution of the publication is made to every member of the Alumni organization in good standing.
- Gone from the Oregon State campus for many years, former students are able to keep a line on the pulse-beats of the campus through the articles presenting nearly every side of college life. In addition to the college news, material from outside sources is given in the Monthly.
- Although each Monthly is built around a different phase of college life, many special departments of the magazine are devoted to following the course of certain matters straight through the year. Perhaps the most popular of these are the "Beaver Tales" section and the "Beaver Sports" pages.
- In "Beaver Tales" statistics, interesting sidelights of alumni and special short items help to make this one of the most widely read parts of the magazine. Clippings from newspapers, excerpts from letters and news and hints dropped by visiting alumni and friends keep "Beaver Tales" breezy and readable.

Mrs. K. Cooper, President

Oregon State Mother's Club

Oregon State Mother's Club

- "Because we believe in Oregon State the builder of men and women; because we have faith in education and know the priceless scholastic, personal and spiritual values which must be upheld and passed on to the future generations of Oregon youth, the Oregon State Mother's were organized in the Spring of 1933. We pledge our support to preserve all traditions of Oregon State college, to further its interest at all times and to cooperate with students, alumni, faculty and the President.
- "Membership is extended to all women in sympathy with and interested in this purpose. We urge the organization of Mother's groups in all cities and towns throughout the state, and also urge them to affiliate with our group of Oregon State Mother's.
- "Although this year has been abundant with accomplishments it is but the humble beginning as a whole, our student body, faculty, Alumni, Dad's and Mother's and friends of Oregon State, we can enhance its value and preserve our grand school until it represents a great gift to Oregon."

Mrs. Philis H. Cooper

Oregon State Dads' Club

J. C. Harrison, President

Oregon State Dads' Club

• "The organization of the Dads' Club of Oregon State college was in response to the need felt at the college and by many of the fathers of a better understanding by parents of the problems of Higher Education in Oregon. The first meeting was on October 2, 1933, by a group of nine men in Portland. J. C. Harrison was selected chairman and Allan Rinehart, secretary. Other meetings of this group were held, until on October 28, 1933, 150 Dads met at the college and organized the club. Dr. J. C. Harrison was elected president; C. E. Ingalls, vice-president; D. E. Finley, secretary; Hal T. Hutchinson, treasurer; W. J. Warner, E. B. Aldrich and H. A. Dick, directors. The following constitution and by-laws was adopted:

- "1. Belief in and loyalty to higher education in the State of Oregon.
- "2. To preserve the traditions of Oregon State college and the future usefulness of this institution in its position of training the citizenry of this great commonwealth.
- "3. The co-operation with similar and kindred organizations throughout the State. On March 20th a banquet with 200 present was given in the Crystal Room of the Benson Hotel, Portland, honoring Acting-President Geo. W. Peavy. On April 14th Dads' Day was observed at the college with 200 Dads present, with athletics and entertainment by the school and a banquet of 400 when the Dads had their sons and daughters as their guests. The club enjoys a membership of nearly 300."

J. C. Harrison

- The annual Mardi Gras creates an atmosphere of gaiety and exuberance with the participants engaging in this frolicsome carnival of carefree hearts.

CLASSES

Portland Rose Festival

- From a mere two-day affair in 1907 the Rose Festival jumped to a full week of busy activity the next year. Ruling over the fete for the first time was a king, Rex Oregonus, and a queen, Miss Carrie Lee Chamberlain, daughter of the governor. She was crowned "Queen Flora" and was the first of a long line of charming rulers who were selected each year to add regal splendor to the annual event.
- Even though the usual school children's parade, the rose show and the floral parade with more than 200 entries attracted much attention, the real feature was the first night electrical parade called "The Spirit of the Golden West." An enthusiastic crowd of 150,000 people thrilled to the brilliant pageantry of this parade of many imposing allegorical floats. Leading a long list of distinguished visitors for the 1908 event were Walter Damrosch, America's best-known conductor, and Rear-Admiral Swinburne, who brought two U. S. navy cruisers and five torpedo boats to the Portland harbor.
- A five-year period from 1909 to 1913 found few changes in the Rose Festival programs. During this time the fete was drawn out over a week, which has been too long during later years because of restricted leisure. Of the 1910 parade it was said that there were "five miles of decorated runabouts, roadsters, electric vehicles and ponderous trucks." One float was an airplane, entirely of roses, while another—a special six-car trolley train—gave onlookers a tremendous thrill by distributing 1,000,000 roses through the streets.

Classes

● Almost since their inception universities and colleges have been divided into four classes, each with its various insignia and identification and with varying degrees of collegiate freedom. Upon entering college the student is labeled "freshman." It is during this first year that he acquaints himself with the customs and traditions prevalent in the institution. Oregon State gives first year students the name of "rooks" and "rookesses" as a title to carry with the usual green lids and green ribbons. "Rookesses" must wear green ribbons on Wednesdays while the men must wear green lids daily until the turning time Campus weekend! At this time in the spring all classes advance one year. Shy freshmen become bold sophomores, bold sophomores become tired juniors and tired juniors change into blase seniors. Sophomores are not subject to requirements in dress as are freshmen with the exception of wearing "corduroys" by the men. The wearing of these trousers indicate the status of a junior or senior. Juniors are the most fortunate members of the student body. Their responsibilities are not heavy and they have all the rights and privileges of upperclassmen. Seniors assume the duties of major campus offices and are responsible for the supervision and direction of all underclassmen. At Oregon State this direction is done mainly within the living groups and their associations. The separation of students into these four groups serve as a means of control and works for a unified effort on the part of those making up each particular class.

SENIORS

McIntyre

Smith

- "The last turn has been made and some four hundred seniors are peering down the home stretch in search of the finish line—graduation.
- "Since the beginning of the race, and well may it be called such, barrier after barrier has confronted the contestants. Along the course economic depression has taken its toll; unforeseen hands have reached out and plucked strong, vigorous contenders only to place them in another race under different colors. Fair weather has not always prevailed. Lost confidence showed its presence when a storm of disturbance and confusion swept down and partially destroyed the tremendous encouragement of one great leader. Again invisible powers intervened, this time clearing the debris and placing the reconstruction program in the hands of Oregon State's dean of deans. Confidence has been restored, the storm has receded and the class of 1934, instilled with new hope and enthusiasm, fairs well to reach the finish line proudly, indicating the completion of one more chapter in the history of Oregon State college."

Everett Davis

Senior Class Officers

The Grads Line Up

• By far the busiest year for any college student in his last or senior period in school. After a couple of years as an underclassman and another in the hectic junior year, students apparently should be ready for a period of rest in college, but judging from the varied forms of activities offered just the opposite is the case.

• The five major events of the three final terms are the senior ball, the climaxing social event of a student's college career; the senior bust, an afternoon and evening of care-free enjoyment; the senior table top; cap and gown arrangements, and announcements for graduation. Louis Withers was senior ball chairman and sub-committee heads were Bill Callan, feature; Margaret Zimmerman, refreshments; Harold Finnell, floor; John Mack, music; Herbert Swenson and Joel Hedgpeth, co-chairmen of decorations; Linton Mushen, programs; Thelma Gregory, guests; Gordon McCrae and Charles Medley, sales, and Jeff Conway, publicity. Bill Callan was bust chairman; Leslie Richards head of the table top; Merritt Truax of caps and gowns, and Charles Medley of announcements.

CAMPUS WEEKEND

CAMPUS WEEKEND

Senior History

- Although about two-thirds of their number fell by the way-side in their quest for knowledge, approximately 400 seniors bid farewell to Oregon State after four glorious and profitable years spent on the campus. When the class entered in the fall of 1930 approximately 1200 were enrolled. Milton Carlson, president; Gail Burnett, vice-president; Velva May Jeffries, secretary; Marshall Harrison, treasurer, and Ben McElroy, sergeant-at-arms, were chosen to lead this rousing bunch of freshmen. The class faithfully performed the duties their station demanded and became loyal Beavers. For leaders during the sophomore year the class chose Fred Saling, president; Frances Marshall, vice-president; Helen Haynes, secretary; Norman Green, treasurer, and Tex Burroughs, sergeant-at-arms. Marsh Harrison was in charge of the cotillion which featured a nautical idea. Don Black, president; Shirlee Brownson, vice-president; Marion Gary, secretary; Kenneth Munford, treasurer; John Mack, sergeant-at-arms, and Marsh Grey, student councilman, led the class through the junior year. Grey did an excellent job as chairman of Campus weekend, supervising the Junior Follies and other events. Dick Brown and Hugh O'Neill teamed together to manage the junior prom. The dance featured an Oriental idea and was ruled by Queen Margaret Zimmerman. Climaxing four years of service to the class, the seniors elected the following officers to lead them through their last year: Everett Davis, president; Katherine McIntyre, vice-president; Eileen Morency, secretary; Norman Rudd, treasurer; Morris Smith, sergeant-at-arms, and Linton Mushen, student councilman.

• "Even though the junior class—the class of 1935—is one of the smallest to attend Oregon State in recent years because of institutional troubles the year of our entering upon that long four-year collegiate career, we have been able to carry our share of work and activities and this year hope to leave a mark for other junior classes in the future to work for. Despite a limited expense account, work of the class and especially the committee heads made the junior prom an all-school formal long to be remembered on this campus. Proving themselves equal to the strange situation, heads of the prom lopped off expenses at every turn and still made the affair a typical 'big time' formal. At just the opposite pole of formality in entertainment is the annual junior weekend with all its varied festivities and fun-making with informality the strict feature. Yet, after this school year of 1933-34 is completed this present junior class will move forward and under new leaders take over the natural guidance of Oregon State classes."

- Two highlights of the junior class year are the junior prom and junior weekend. The prom is an outstanding formal held during the second term and junior weekend is the gala event of the latter part of spring term. At this time the rooks burn the green, sophomores don cords, juniors try to raise moustaches and seniors worry about graduation.
- Committee chairmen of the junior prom who worked under Boyce Stanard were Wil White, decorations; Merwin Miller, programs; Ray Babb, feature; Marjory Dreisbach, refreshments; John Hamilton, publicity; Flora McMath, guests; Chuck Prahl, floor; Ed Creider, tickets, and Dave Longtin, queen selection.
- John Hamilton was appointed general chairman of the 1934 junior weekend. Chairmen of the varied activities under him are John Hoffman, all-college luncheon; Lydia Ann Storli, junior breakfast; Barbara Graham, campus convocation; Bill West, rook-sophomore tug of war; Maurice Staton, water sports; Earl Olsen, junior bust; Melvin Masterson, cord dance, and Judy Hyslop, junior play.

Junior Class

• Although it is the smallest in school, the junior class has produced many leaders in all activities since its members came to Oregon State in the fall of 1931. Many events, beginning with the rook dance and ending so far in Campus weekend have been successfully carried through by the class of 1935. To lead the class as freshmen Bob Lucas was elected president; Marian Selberg, vice-president; Catherine Boone, secretary; and Merwin Miller, treasurer. The freshmen successfully put over the rook dance, took part in their share of the homecoming program and Campus weekend when they defeated the sophomore tug-of-war team. After becoming sophomores the class successfully put on the sophomore cotillion under the direction of Milt Campbell. A Colonial idea, featuring many silhouettes was the decoration scheme. Officers for that year were Willard White, president; Ruth Hill, vice-president; Alice Mann, secretary; Bill Jamieson, treasurer; Bob Lowry, sergeant-at-arms, and John Herbert, representative on the student council. The class by this time had produced football, basketball and other athletic stars, up and coming representatives on publications, debate and other lines of extra-curricular activities. This year the class has been called upon to take part in the leadership of the underclasses and has accomplished many and varied activities. The officers of the class have been Milt Campbell, president; Alice Mann, vice-president; Mary Whitelaw, secretary; Dave Bronson, treasurer; Merle Taylor, sergeant-at-arms, and Clyde Devine, student council. The junior prom, all-school formal, was successfully put on under the direction of Boyce Stanard, general chairman.

• "As we, the class of 1936, review our sophomore year at Oregon State we have a feeling of satisfaction in looking over the accomplishments of the class as a campus organization and in the attainment of our individual members in scholarship, in all fields of athletics and in all extra-curricular activities.

• "Throughout the year the class has been ably assisted by the following class officers: Ellen Hastorf, vice-president; Gertrude Steel, secretary; Emil Johnson, treasurer; Albin Nordquist, sergeant-at-arms, and Wayne Chaney, representative to the student council. Melvin Breese and his committees were responsible for the success of the cotillion, the first all-school formal of the year.

• "Finally, as the end of the year draws near, we find ourselves taking an active part in the events of Campus weekend. The election of officers for the coming year will be the starter towards our junior year with its many opportunities for more accomplishments."

J Al Head

Sophomore Class

The Water Looks Cold

- "The class of '37, full of pep and enthusiasm, soon discovered that O. S. C. is truly a great college. Its members came in search of knowledge and adventure and to prove their loyalty to Oregon State.
- "Following the celebrated freshman week, the class held its first business meeting which resulted in the election of Margaret Warner, Medford, vice-president; Alice Reed, Corvallis, secretary; Frank Nicholson, Portland, treasurer, and Joe Harlan, Schnectady, N. Y., sergeant-at-arms. These officers filled their positions splendidly and have carried out their duties in excellent fashion.
- "Campus weekend completed one of the most successful years that a freshman class has had at Oregon State college. The president wishes to convey his thanks to the class of '37, one and all, for its wonderful spirit and sincere cooperation shown during this first year at Oregon State and hopes that the following years will be even more successful than the one just ended."

Freshman Class

- One of the most pleasing activities sponsored during the Festival is the out-door plays given in the park blocks. The plays are written and produced solely for the Rose Festival.

ACTIVITIES

Portland Rose Festival

- From 1914 to 1917 the Festival rolled along in an increasingly fast manner with added features each year until the United States' activities in the World War brought a rude halt to the historic event during 1918. Although a queen was crowned each year with Rex Oregonus, it was not until 1914 that the nominal rule of the Festival was turned over to a fair maiden—a new one to be selected each year.
- The 1915 season was featured by a children's chorus of 2700 voices and in 1916 the Festival began to take on a wider scope which has spread not only over the state but the Northwest as well. That year the time was cut to four days and was an all-Columbia River event. The Queen entertained as her special guests, King Neptune and Queen Tynne of the Astoria Regatta. It was during this spring that dedication of the Columbia River Highway took place.
- In 1917, the first war year, the Festival was militaristic in motif with the climax an unveiling of a statue of Liberty in the Festival Center. Still smacking of the war days, the Fete was resumed after one year in the discard with a "Victory Rose" theme. Tremendous throngs crowded to the Park blocks to hear a chorus of 5000 trained voices.
- A new high in Rose Festival activities was reached in 1920 when the Festival and national Shrine convention practically were merged into one huge celebration. A feature which attracted nation-wide notice was the sensational night parade which was estimated to have cost nearly fifty thousand dollars.

Student Activities

- A chance to excel in the type of work one most enjoys is given each student who takes an active part in Oregon State campus activities. Opportunity for leadership in widely different fields such as group and class organizations, athletics, journalism, social service, dramatics, music, dance, military, forensics and economic affairs is included in the yearly program.
- Leaders are carefully chosen for their enthusiasm, high scholarship, service and popularity with the student body at large.
- The benefits students derive from wholesome participation in campus affairs have long been praised. Outstanding among these are the making of lifelong friendships, the feeling of social indebtedness and the development of strong personalities. Furthermore, the wise use of leisure comes to the fore. In every normal student is the desire to divert himself from the daily routine and, often times, monotony of class work and to relax by enthusiastically taking an interest in campus affairs and by giving active service.
- Loyal, earnest effort for the realization and recognition of good college citizenship is an ideal strived for which later becomes a background and a stepping stone for good worldly citizenship. Not only do Oregon State's campus organizations promote in the individual initiative, poise, future hobbies, vocations and happiness but they are an evidence of a progressive, democratic student body that recognizes the privilege of modern students' independence.

PUBLICATIONS

Barometer

- "Although the Barometer has conducted no great campaign this year, I feel that the year has been a most successful one and that the staff is to be commended highly for its splendid work. Our efforts have been more in the form of reorganization to suit the curriculum of Oregon State, a necessary step since the school of commerce, long a leading contributor to the Barometer staff, was moved to Eugene and the school of science moved here in its stead.
- "Theater passes, cash awards and the staging of the annual Barometer bust have all contributed to building up the spirit on the staff. The addition of the Associated Press leased wire increased interest in the paper both from the standpoint of staff members and from the student body.
- "With this reorganization completed and with several outstanding features lined up for next year I see no reason why the 1934-35 Barometer should not be one of the leading college dailies on the coast."

- The Oregon State Daily Barometer, official publication of the Associated Students, is published daily with the exception of Sunday and Monday for the purpose of informing the student body of campus, state and national news. It also provides an outlet for student opinion.
- Edited by Warren Reid, the Barometer this year boasts the largest staff of any publication on the campus and is organized on an efficient working basis from the beginning staff worker to the higher executive positions. Reid is aided in the publication work by a managing editor, an assistant editor, an executive news editor and a number of department editors. Five day and night editors and their assistants are held responsible for their respective editions. As the requirement for general staff work is one term of elementary journalism, most of the copy is written by members of beginning classes.

Barometer

- "The financial success of the Barometer during the past year has been due primarily to the increasing tendency of the students of Oregon State college to recognize their responsibility to the Barometer by assisting greatly in proving to its advertisers that their advertisements are read and patronized and to the ability and willingness of the staff that has assisted me. They have all done excellent work. Many times those in the subordinate positions receive little or no credit for their many hours of labor when in truth the success or failure of the paper rests almost wholly upon them.
- "It is with a feeling of confidence that I turn the business end of the paper over to its new management. With continued assistance from the students and earnest, hard work from the staff there is no doubt in my mind that the Oregon State Daily Barometer can be an increasingly better publication."

- To the Barometer manager and his staff of assistants belongs the responsibility of the business administration of the paper. It is their duty to solicit advertising to make the paper a financial success. Men in charge this year were Boyce Stanard, local advertising; Joe Johnson, national advertising; Mansfield Howells, promotion; Don Eckman, collections; Kenneth Klein, distribution, and Bob Kellogg, circulation. The Barometer is affiliated with the major college publications represented by the A. J. Norris Hill advertising agency through which the national advertising is solicited. Local advertising is solicited daily from the merchants.
- It is the duty of the manager to draw up a budget and submit term financial reports to the graduate manager's office besides supervising all staff work.
- Surveys made this year by the promotion staff aided in obtaining national advertising. National advertising this year was greater than in the past three years.

Beaver Editorial Staff

- "In the production of a yearbook in which all work is done voluntarily it is gratifying to see the alacrity with which students and organizations respond in giving their cooperation. Naturally one becomes more intimately acquainted with the activities of the students than in any other student position. It affords great satisfaction not only to know of their worthwhileness but also to become acquainted with some of the constituents.
- "The staff of Volume XXVIII Beaver worked diligently and performed the countless tasks with an attitude pursuant to good workmanship . . . the result you have in your hands. Especial commendation must go to the upper editorial staff and the section editors for their willingness and enthusiasm throughout the year. From the outset they were beset with difficulties because of the many different layout styles necessitating exacting copy requirements. The response to the heavy demands on their time was splendid and full credit is due them for their perseverance."

• The 1934 yearbook was laid out with the purpose of giving the reader a pictorially pleasing review of campus activities and an index for reference purposes. The dedication to the Portland Rose Festival was a tribute to the nationally distinguished feature that has become an institution in the State of Oregon and is without equal in the United States.

• Sue Hyslop, assistant editor, took charge of all copy and kept the production up to schedule. Helen Dorothy Haynes, assistant editor, gave her attention to the office management, the indexing and senior activity lists. Charles Buxton, associate editor, handled all photography and the major portion of the rewriting necessary. Signed statements were used to add speed to the copy and were under the direction of James Moe.

• It was necessary to call upon many out-of-town organizations and individuals for contributions, and we thank them for their cooperation.

Beaver Managerial Staff

- "At the beginning of a year beset with financial difficulties a loyal managerial staff rallied around to put over the greatest selling project known on the Oregon State campus. George Todd, aided by Merritt Truax, instigated many 'buying appeal' schemes for outside advertisers. Ralph Boden and Anne Wilson handled the difficult detail connected with selling campus pages and the collections. The two circulation campaigns under the direction of Morry Staton, Harold Bondeson and Lucy Crossett rocketed the sales well above the percentage sold in previous years.
- "To Robert Veale, assistant manager, goes a great deal of credit for management of the countless office duties. The secretaries, Janet Johnson, Ardath Hutchinson and Peggy Jones, worked faithfully and deserve praise.
- "I wish to extend my appreciation to the staff for their loyal support and to the student body for their faith and allegiance, without which a book of this type could not be published."

- Through the consideration of the registrar and the business office Volume XXVIII Beaver was allowed the privilege of selling the book by an assignment of the student deposit fees. An initial selling scheme, modeled after a football touchdown campaign, had the famous "ironman" backfield leading the four teams. Art Baum was awarded a silver loving cup as high salesman. A succeeding campaign took the shape of a war of roses between picked teams representing the red rose and the white rose.
- Advertising was sold more easily by supplying without charge additional space to the advertisers in student notebook dividers which were published and distributed winter term free to each student by the Beaver. Page agreements were entered into with organizations on the campus and collections made from them. The detail office work and all the correspondence were handled by the assistant manager and the secretaries.

• "The student directory is a book published twice each year by the student body to list all students on the campus, their year in school, home town and local address. The book is affectionately known as the 'fussers' guide' and in addition to the names of students it contains officers of various organizations, members of boards and student body officers. In the back of each edition is a complete directory of all faculty members on the Oregon State campus. The student directory has proved itself an invaluable asset to college life. Due to the failure of Phil Brainerd, editor for fall term, to return to school, Sigma Delta Chi, national professional honor fraternity in journalism, took over the job of editing the book. I was given the editorship and was assisted by Chuck Buxton, Herb Summers, Warren Reid, Jim Heartwell, Fred Anderson, Cap Cooper and Lila Wagner. The fraternity undertook to put out the directory when no eligible successor for Brainerd could be decided upon and succeeded in printing an accurate and complete book in a short period of time. The business staff for the directory was headed by George Robertson, manager, who was succeeded by John Hamilton when the second term started. Milt Campbell was advertising manager."

Louis Withers, Chairman

Senior Ball

• "Our social 'swan song,' the senior ball, was one of the best achievements of the class of 1934. Everyone connected with it did his best to make it a fitting climax to the activities of the class of '34."

Louis A Withers

• The final social function of the class of 1934—the annual senior ball—was held May 5 in the Memorial Union ballroom. Amid a profusion of spring flowers and greenery dancing couples wove their way through the festive throng, enjoying to the utmost their "farewell party" to the four years they had spent in college. At this last social reunion of the class many friendships were made more lasting with the realization that underneath the gaiety of the occasion was the solemnity of partings, temporary and permanent, and coupled with it the knowledge that never again would they all meet on the same common ground after the years have diversified their interests.

Junior Prom

• Something entirely "different" greeted formal goers when they arrived at the junior prom to find that the Memorial Union ballroom had been temporarily transformed into an Hawaiian beach. Palms placed at irregular intervals, the stage representing a little grass shack, the theme of the dance, aided in putting prosaic thoughts of college and its obligations far from the minds of the gala throng. Lights playing from unseen sources cast diffused highlights on the swaying crowd and the throne of Queen Virginia I, Virginia Fendall, who ruled over the juniors' annual ball. From Jim Dierickx' orchestra came the muted strains of "The Little Grass Shack," keeping the Hawaiian atmosphere ever present.

• "Oregon State's largest formal function this year proved to be the most entertaining and outstanding dance held on the campus. Committee and class members worked diligently to insure its success."

Sophomore Cotillion

• "The sophomore cotillion in my mind was the best dance of the year. The blue and silver decorations made a perfect background for the 350 couples who attended. The committees deserve high praise."

Melvin H. Breese

• A midsummer sky, lavishly sprinkled with stars, surmounting a background of silvery blue skyscrapers formed the motif for the sophomore cotillion, opening ball of the formal season, which was held this year in the Memorial Union ballroom on January 27. The theme song, "Penthouse Serenade," softly played by Jim Diericks' orchestra, pervaded the gathering with an atmosphere of romanticism seldom found on a college campus. Vividly outlined by red and blue blinking spotlights, the dancers were serenaded at intermission by Miss Erma Bennet, a Eugene blues singer, and Bruce Sturm, campus vocal favorite. The programs, portraying blue skyscrapers, completed the scheme of modernistic fantasy.

Military Ball

• In an atmosphere of military pomp and ceremony, complemented by the uniforms of military officials and cadet officers, several hundred couples danced away the evening to the music of Jim Dierickx' orchestra at the annual Military ball. Flags everywhere gave an unusually festive appearance to the Memorial Union ballroom, and war pictures completed the spectacle of warriors relaxing from the stiff routine of duty. The highlight of the occasion was the pledging of new men to Scabbard and Blade, the sponsors of the ball. The impressive ritual was conducted at intermission time by Victor R. Griggs, one of the five founders of the organization.

• "Undoubtedly the most distinctive dance of the year, members of Scabbard and Blade should be proud to sponsor such a yearly function. The committees are to be congratulated for their splendid work."

Freshman Dance

- "The big 'little' dance of the year given by the freshman class showed more initiative and enthusiasm than any other function sponsored. Congratulations to all the dance committee members."

Margaret Warner

- In an atmosphere of brilliant apple green, traditional color for the yearling class, several hundred freshman lads and lasses danced away the night of January 12 in the Memorial Union ballroom to the music of Dick Mote and his orchestra. Overlooking the crowd of rooks only too anxious to acquire dates before "Home Sweet Home," were gigantic poster heads of a typical rook and rookess, decked in green, portraying a worldliness uncommon to such unsophisticates.
- Entertainment other than that supplied by unfortunate upperclassmen who thought they could "crash" the party was a skit, "Little Nell," and vocal selections by Al Treloar and Maureen Schoenborn.

• Admission to the Oregon State college Madrigal club, women's chorus, is much sought after since it is based on a test given by Professor Paul Petri, director of music. Founded in 1909, Madrigal has been active since then, giving its members an opportunity to become familiar with good music, both modern and classical, and to develop their natural musical ability at regular practice periods held twice a week under the direction of Professor Petri. Besides singing at various campus functions the chorus is presented twice a year with the Glee club in concerts. This year at Christmas time the combined groups were presented in Eugene as well as on this campus. The officers who guided the organization this year were Ruth De Armond, president; Virginia Dahlman, vice-president, and Rosemary Larson, secretary. The name Madrigal, chosen by the charter members, is applied to an ancient form of vocal composition.

• Men students at Oregon State college who are particularly interested in music are given an opportunity to test or develop their ability through the Glee club. Members are selected from applicants by Professor Paul Petri, director of music, on the basis of their ability to sing and their quality of voice. Previous musical training is not necessary. Practices are held twice a week under the leadership of Professor Petri to train the members of the group for appearances at convocations or other campus affairs. This year the outstanding appearance of the group was the one in which the Glee club combined with Madrigal to present a Christmas concert in Corvallis and Eugene. Since its beginning in 1909, the Glee club has been an active organization. Officers of this year's group were Don Tomlinson, president; Elm Petterson, vice-president, and John Comfort, secretary-treasurer.

• The Oregon State symphony orchestra, which has been directed this year by Rex Underwood, professor of stringed instruments, is among the outstanding musical organizations on the campus. Howard Halbert, instructor in violin, is assistant director. Through practice in playing their instruments with other students members of the orchestra are given an opportunity to develop their musical ability as well as to come in contact with finer types of music. During the college year the group presents two or three major concerts and also provides music for commencement and other important college functions. This year the orchestra was composed of 14 types of instruments and had a personnel of over 50 members selected from a large number of applicants. Officers were Bruce Beardsley, president; Ellen Lunn, secretary; Cyril Botts, librarian; David Washburn, manager, and Arthur Lamphere, assistant manager.

Men's Varsity Debate

- The men's varsity debate squad under the direction of Prof. P. X. Knoll engaged in 44 debates this season, winning 12 out of 29 decisions. All but three of the debates were on other campi.
- The first debate of the season was a non-decision contest with Stanford university on the question, "Resolved, that the salvation of the world lies in a democracy rather than in a dictatorship." Harold Allen and Vernon Donaldson upheld the affirmative. For the rest of the season the proposition formulated by Pi Kappa Delta was used as stated, "Resolved, that the powers of the president of the United States should be substantially increased as a settled policy."
- In the Linfield tournament Kenneth Scott Wood and Norman Rudd went to the quarter-finals, winning five of seven debates against other northwest schools. Wood and Allen won 3-0 against the University of Nevada when they upheld the negative of the Pi Kappa Delta question. Wood, Rudd, Allen and Donaldson were sent to the Pacific conference tournament at Stanford university where they defeated Washington State and lost to U. S. C. and Whitman. Other members of the squad were Kenneth Dart, Clifford Joy, Rich Warrington and Mansfield Howells.

Women's Varsity Debate

- Women varsity debaters competed in a total of 69 debated during the 1933-34 school year. Thirty-one of these were decision contests. All were on the question, "Resolved, that the powers of the president of the United States should be substantially increased as a settled policy."
- The climax of the season was reached during a two-week debate tour through California with Betty MacPherson, Pauline Paul, Maxine Peterson and Mary Whitelaw representing Oregon State. The long trip found the women debaters entering the Pi Kappa Delta invitational at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena; dual meets with Redlands university, University of Southern California, University of California at Los Angeles, San Francisco State Teachers' college and San Jose State Teachers' college.
- Twelve Oregon State women participated in the Linfield debate tournament at McMinnville during the middle of February. Three teams entered to win seven and lose eleven of the events. Before this tourney five two-member teams participated in the Linfield practice tournament. Just before the southern trip a non-decision debate was held with Linfield on the Oregon State campus.

Oratory and Extempore Speaking

- Upholding the fine record of Oregon State in intercollegiate forensic competition was the job of the oratory and extempore speaking squad representatives who placed in five of six contests preceding the Old-Line Oratorical. The season opened with George Robertson winning second in the State After-Dinner Speaking contest, talking on "Everything's O.K." "The New Deal for Peace", presented by Ralph Boden, won the third consecutive first place for the Beavers in the State Peace Oratorical contest held in Corvallis. The State Extempore Speaking third prize went to Gilbert Finlay, March 9. He spoke on "Wolves on Education's Trail."
- With six states represented in the Pacific Forensic League contests at Stanford, Dick Barss took second in oratory with "The Great Stampede." John Hamilton, who, with Barss, was a second-year man, received third in extempore speaking, talking on "Effect of the Depression on the Younger Generation". Ending the season, Nelson Smith spoke on "The Spoilers in Our Political Temple" in the State Old-Line Oratorical contest. Under the coaching of Dr. E. W. Wells, associate professor of speech, many students were trained in forensic work even though only six of the number could enter into competitive matches for Oregon State.

MILITARY

Regular Army Instructors

Colonel Patterson, P. M. S. & T.

Military

- Our R.O.T.C. Corps consists of three units—an Infantry regiment, a Field Artillery regiment and a battalion of Combat Engineers. As a compliment, it has associated with it an inactive Regular Army Field Artillery regiment, the 32nd. Colonel W. H. Patterson, Infantry, the commandant, is assisted by seven officers, six non-commissioned officers and twenty other enlisted men of the Regular Army.
- The Corps is justly proud of its standing with the War Department. In 1928, 1930, 1931, 1932 and 1933, it was rated "Excellent", the highest attainable. Under the old rating system, it was "Distinguished" (the highest rating then given) nine times from 1917 to 1927.
- R.O.T.C. instruction aspires to prepare students for places of responsibility and leadership; to give a training which makes for alertness and coordination; to teach cooperation, management of men, duty, honor, courage, self-respect, respect for others, sacrifice and love of country and its constitution and institutions; it emphasizes good citizenship and develops concentration and powers of observation; it makes for good health, builds character and inculcates high standards of personal honor and patriotism. It also teaches precision, promptness, order, neatness and truthfulness and its courses provide a means of applying practically matter taught in the academic schools of the college. The R.O.T.C. courses fit graduates to efficiently serve their country in times of emergency. Each R.O.T.C. graduate receives a commission as Second Lieutenant, Organized Reserves. Juniors attend a summer training camp of from four to six weeks' duration. Transportation is furnished each student from his home to the place of camp, and return. Each receives a monetary per diem allowance while in attendance at camp, and is provided with subsistence, lodging, medical attendance and emergency dental treatment, and with recreational amusements and healthful, supervised diversions. Students are furnished a liberal allowance of rifle and pistol ammunition for instruction in marksmanship and the use of rifles and pistols and target materials, and the services of expert instructors. Advanced students are paid commutation of subsistence throughout the year and are provided with a complete uniform for use in the R.O.T.C., and, later, in the Organized Reserves.

- The Corps has 75 horses which are used for instruction in equitation, in Field Artillery work, and for individual riding. An excellent polo team is maintained. The rifle team has an enviable record and has in its possession the "Doughboy of the West" trophy. Each spring a military tournament and horseshow is held in the Armory. In all of our units full responsibility is placed upon all Cadet Officers and non-commissioned officers.
- Military organization is based upon the number of men who can be controlled by a single leader. This organization is based upon the Infantry because, in all modern armies, Infantry is, by virtue of its numbers and importance, the principal arm. Since the introduction of firearms, Infantry has gradually increased in importance and numbers as compared with other arms. Since the end of the World War, Infantry has developed in a far more diversified manner than the other arms and its weapons have been renewed and improved. The steady development of combat principles has made many changes in Infantry organization. Infantry has gained importance in combat alongside the other arms, especially since the combat and instruction principles of all armies have been based upon the demands of open warfare and warfare of movement. Close coordination of all arms, in spite of painstaking preparations beforehand, may fail during actual combat so that the Infantry is left to its own resources.
- The Field Artillery Unit is organized as a 75mm. regiment, so formed as to offer the maximum opportunity for the exercise of command and leadership. Its training program is a varied one and contains many subjects which tie in closely with the programs of students of the schools of Engineering, Forestry, and Agriculture, who form the personnel of the cadet regiment. The benefits derived have their appli-education in civil as well as military life. The ultimate object of the four years' training is to create a large number of well-informed and capable junior officers of the Organized Reserves who will be available in event of national emergency to organize, train and handle efficiently batteries of field artillery, conserve the nation's manpower through the avoidance of mistakes, and contribute in a practical way to the maintenance of National peace.

- Personnel of the Engineer Unit is selected from students taking the academic civil, mechanical or electrical engineering courses. The object of their instruction in this unit is to give them a background of military training upon which they can base further experience in becoming proficient leaders of small military engineer units. Most of the duties of the Corps of Engineers are to assist the other arms by engineering works. The military engineer must understand not only engineering, but also the tactics and technique of the associated arms. The Engineer Unit seeks to train its members to employ small forces on jobs designed to assist the operations of other troops.
- The Band has always been an important part of the R.O.T.C. at Oregon State. With the splendid support it has received in recent years from the Military Department and college in general, the band has developed in proficiency as a military and concert organization until it has become a real factor in bringing students to the college. The spring concerts attract music lovers from all parts of the valley. Standards have been raised from year to year, and only players of considerable background and of training and experience are admitted to the first band. Members of the second band strive hard to earn places in the first band.
- Many graduates from the Oregon State R.O.T.C. Band are now occupying high positions as soloists and bandmasters throughout the country.

Associated Women Students

- "The goal of the Associated Women students this year has been to build a closely knit organization of women to further friendship among all women's organizations and to coordinate women's activities. Through perseverance and continued striving this goal has been reached and at this time I feel with all confidence that the Associated Women students are more than an activity group and are keenly aware of the scope and depth of campus projects. Members may be justly proud of the progress made by this organization during the past year and should welcome a new year in which to carry on the aims and ideals of the Associated Women.
- "The Legislative council, which represents women from every women's organization on the campus, together with the five elective officers represent groups of women with interests bounded together by a common ideal. With the success of the past year as a goal for the oncoming members to achieve and surpass it is my hope that the new members will assimilate the spirit of endeavor for a better Associated Women's group."

Legislative Council
Y. W. Cabinet

Legislative Council

• In an effort to avoid conflicts among women's organizations in activities at Oregon State, the Legislative council—a representative organization of the Associated Women Students—is selected each year to govern extra-curricular activities of the fairer sex. Vice-presidents of each group, the five A. W. S. officers and the secretary of the student body make up this council which directs the actions of women's organizations over the campus. Largely through the efforts of this council a special allotment of $750 was set aside by the Associated Students during the 1933-34 school year for an extensive lyceum and educational program for the whole student body.

Y.W.C. A. Cabinet

• For the purpose of developing leadership ability among women students of Oregon State, the Y.W.C.A. cabinet each year prepares an extensive program in the extra-curricular field. Not content with this alone the organization devotes much of its time toward making the new experiences of college more interesting and liveable for the incoming freshman women. Among the campus activities sponsored by the Y.W.C.A. are Rookess counselors, Freshman commission, inter-collegiate discussions and the International banquet. Officers during the school year were Marian Dunham, president; Mary Whitelaw, vice-president; Alice Griffin, secretary, and Candace Rumbaugh, treasurer.

Co-ed Ball
Rookess Counselors

Co-ed Ball

• Portraying "Scenes from an Old Family Album", more than 300 Oregon State women students frolicked without benefit of male company at the annual co-ed ball held during 1933 on October 12. Decked in strange-appearing costumes, co-eds each year take part in this popular affair which is sponsored by the Associated Women Students to aid new women students in becoming better acquainted with upperclass members. Committee heads were Betty Steel, chairman; Marjory Dreisbach, guests; Marian Gary, stunts; Inez Oatfield, refreshments; Flora McMath, orchestra; Alberta Hynes, publicity; Mabel Sandoz, arrangements; Winifred Flower, tickets; Mary Whitelaw, prizes.

Rookess Counselors

• Sponsoring one of the most extensive "getting acquainted" programs on the Oregon State campus, the Rookess counselors' duties extend from the opening hours of freshman week until near the close of spring term. Better known as the "Big Sisters," this busy organization of sophomore women adopted the more appropriate and collegiate name of "Rookess Counselors" during the 1933-34 school year. Activities of the organization vary from the ever-popular "freshman mix" to teas and special meetings with freshman women. In addition, contacts are made with prospective women students. New members to the organization are announced at the honor convocation.

Women's Day

- Women's day—the most thrilling day of the entire school year for many a co-ed! The Saturday before Mother's day brings the annual honor convocation with installation of officers, the naming of awards and pledging to women's honor societies.
- In the evening the mothers are honored at a formal reception and banquet in the Memorial Union building. The reception is followed by the Oregon State Mothers' club annual mass meeting. A dance recital presented by Miss Betty Lynd Thompson's dancing pupils is the final event of the weekend—a weekend planned and carried out by the women of Oregon State for the mothers of all Oregon State students.

Retreat—Kinlani Lodge

- At the end of a winding trail, overlooking the waters of the Mary's river, stands Kinlani lodge—"house of many people".
- Long known as the "reatreat", the cabin has been used time and again by different groups of women students for picnics and camping parties. Coming on foot, on horseback or by car, they bring their food and bedding and take possession of the lodge, finding the place ideal for recreation and merry-making.
- Built by Cap and Gown, senior women's honor society now affiliated with Mortar Board, Kinlani lodge is sponsored by the A. W. S. Helen Spring was in charge of the cabin this year.

Women's Athletic Association

- Tennis, swimming, basketball, golf—these and many other sports are made available to women students each year by the Women's Athletic association. Intramural tournaments in each sport were held this year and plaques were awarded to the winning houses.
- Officers for this year were Mary Stevenson, president; Waivo Lenon, vice-president and intramural manager; Esther Stahl, secretary; Rebecca Oglesby, treasurer; Mabel Sandoz, custodian, and Margaret Simpson, publicity manager. Managers for the special sports were Sarah Callan, basketball; Grace Brown, dancing; Dorothy Bruns, volleyball; Lyle Porter, golf; Mabel Sandoz, hockey and baseball; Mary Whitelaw, swimming; Mary Brownson, tennis; Rebecca Oglesby, badminton; Leah Bradley, deck tennis, and Gladys Swarner, horseshoes. Miss Jeanette Brauns, one of the instructors in physical education for women, acted as advisor for the organization.
- The award presented annually to the outstanding woman in W.A.A. was given jointly to Ruth Warnke and Constance Ayer, whose names were engraved on a plaque in the club rooms of the women's building. This is the highest award given by the W.A.A.
- Other activities of W.A.A. were the rookess party fall term, inter-class competition in sports, the dance recital given winter and spring terms which was sponsored by Orchesis, local honor society in dancing, the annual intercollegiate telegraphic archery tournament spring term and the water carnival spring term sponsored by Aquabats, the swimming club.

Orange "O" Association

- Reserved sections at football games and front benches at basketball games—these are two of the privileges given to wearers of Orange "O" sweaters, the highest award for women in athletics.
- Membership in Orange "O" association is won by Women's Athletic association members who have earned 1000 points in athletic activities and have been outstanding in womanliness, leadership, scholarship and service to the W.A.A. Points are earned by participation in the individual sports—golf, badminton, deck tennis, swimming, dancing, tennis and archery—as well as the team sports—basketball, baseball, hockey and volleyball. Points are also given for hiking on specific routes. One point is earned for each mile hiked.
- Waivo Lenon was appointed chairman of the Orange "O" association by Mary Stevenson, W.A.A. president. Other active Orange "O" members are Dorothy Lachmund, Miriam Bleamaster, Mary Stevenson, Mabel Sandoz, Margaret Whipple, Mary Whitelaw, Rebecca Oglesby and Helen Spring.
- The first award given to women who are outstanding in athletics is the minor "O." This letter is presented to women who have earned 500 points in sports and may be won at the end of the freshman year if ability is shown in all sports.
- Each year the Orange "O" association and Parthenia, the local honor fraternity for women in physical education, join in sponsoring a homecoming breakfast for alumnae of the organizations who have returned to visit the campus.

Swimming
Volleyball

Swimming

• Aquabats, swimming club for women, sponsored two types of competition this year. One type new on the campus was the participation in a telegraphic swimming meet open to college women throughout the United States. The second type of competition in swimming was in the field of life saving. The girl making high score is awarded an individual cup, presented each year by Miss Natalie Reichart, instructor in life saving. This cup was won last year by Dorothy Gillanders. Swimming has long been a recognized sport among Oregon State college women, having been a varsity sport before the point system was introduced and continuing as a class and intramural sport.

Volleyball

• Volleyball probably is the outstanding sport on the winter term athletic calendar for women at Oregon State college and combines exercise with all-around competition. During the second term this sport attracts a great many participants and is on an intramural basis with a long schedule of contests, sponsored by the women's athletic department, which start early in the term and extend into late March. Even though this sport is strenuous, its advantages of team-work and close contact with others make it outstanding on the winter program.

Badminton
Basketball

Basketball

• Basketball for women of the inter-collegiate type which was so popular a quarter of a century ago, has been abandoned at Oregon State and in its place an inter-house and inter-class intramural program is sponsored each year. During the course of the tourney which holds most of the interest for co-eds during winter term, major and minor teams selected from each class swing into action in an intensive schedule of contests. Following the close of the season, an honor team, which is selected by W.A.A. from the best players of each team, is named secretly. Names in the line-up are not disclosed until the W.A.A. all-sports banquet early in spring term.

Badminton

• Badminton, a new intramural sport, includes both intramural and inter-class competition. A round-robin tournament was introduced last year. In this kind of tournament every team plays every other team twice. An elimination tournament is held for intramural competition. Last year fifteen different groups were represented. Phrateres proved to be the most successful group winning over the other fourteen. Attendance, managing, and winning games are the most interesting features. These go to make up the W.A.A. points which are given to each individual player. A bronze plaque is the award given the girl making the highest score.

Women's Athletic Association

- Through the year-round athletic program sponsored by the Women's Athletic association, co-eds of Oregon State college are given a chance not only to participate in athletic activities but also to obtain recreation, qualities of leadership and an efficient, healthy body. To gain membership in the group a girl must win 50 points in any W. A. A. sport. A popular inter-house intramural program started by this group in the fall of 1932 has been growing in size and popularity since that time. For awards co-eds must win 500 points for a minor "O" sweater, while those making 1000 points are awarded an orange "O" sweater for service to W. A. A.

Women's Physical Education Club

- A French blond, somewhat tarnished by the passing of many years, strangely enough is the ardent desire of some 700 women for one night during each school year. The lady's name is Miss Giocosso and for 364 days a year she leads a nun-like life hidden away in some unknown corner of the women's gymnasium. On the eve of the fun-fest day, sponsored by the Women's Physical Education club, Miss Giocosso, clad only in a pink satin bouffant-period gown, is brought from her place of hiding for a few brief hours. To the winner of the evening's class competition goes the honor of whisking the elusive Miss Giocosso back to her hiding place again.

URING THE YEAR

OREGON STATERS' CAUGHT HERE AND

- Speedboats cleave the placid waters of the Willamette, furnishing one of the major attractions of the Festival. The river show plays an important role in the festivities.

ATHLETICS

Portland Rose Festival

- A fleet of United States warships and two Canadian destroyers entered the Portland harbor for the 1921 Festival. Floats from far-flung points on the Pacific coast added color and interest to the grand floral parade of the 1922 event. Revival of the "human rosebud" parade featured the 1923 Festival with 8,000 students participating.
- The initial Rose Festival pageant, "Rosaria", was held in 1925. Doris Smith, now internationally famous in the dramatic field, directed the affair while Charles Wakefield Cadman wrote the musical scores and Anthony Euwer the poetical adaptations. Two thousand people were included in the cast.
- The new Civic Stadium, built the year before, was the scene of the 1927 "Rosaria" pageant. In 1928 a third of the now nationally famous extravaganzas was staged under the name of "Where Rolls the Oregon." Dean Collins wrote the very excellent manuscript for that production. A huge circus proved to be the chief Festival attraction during 1929.
- A new idea for selecting the Queen was introduced for the 1930 Festival. During that year and each season since the queen and her seven princesses were named from the graduating classes of Portland's eight public high schools. Featured events were the rose show, coronation in Laurelhurst park and a mammoth children's exhibition. The 1931-32 Festivals were along the same lines while the 1933 event was the Silver Jubilee anniversary. This anniversary marked the twenty-fifth year of this huge yearly celebration.

Oregon State

- Oregon State athletics are divided into two groups, major and minor sports. Football, basketball, baseball and track compose the major classification, while golf, tennis, swimming and polo fall into the minor group. Crew, a new but rapidly growing sport at Oregon State college, is not recognized as a varsity sport as yet, but numerals are awarded to all crewmen recommended by the coach.
- Freshman athletics are carried on in all of the sports mentioned above, for which class numerals are awarded men qualifying for them. Managers of athletic teams are awarded letters corresponding to the sport they are in, but with a small "M" attached.
- The major letter is an orange block "O". For all minor sports except polo a smaller letter is used and is enclosed by a seven-inch orange circle. The polo letter is similar to the major emblem but has a polo stick running diagonally across it. All letters are worn on black sweaters with orange service stripes for each year of competition. When a three-year letterman has completed his college competition he may wear a white sweater with orange letter and service stripes.
- All major sports at Oregon State are members of the northern division of the Pacific coast conference and meet Universities of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana in regular scheduled games. Football teams, of course, play all members of the Pacific coast conference and in addition usually schedule one or two intersectional games.

Graduate Manager's Office

Associated Students

- The office of the graduate manager handles all business of the Associated Students from national athletics to student body meetings. Carl A. Lodell took over the helm of this link in the make-up of Oregon State college in 1922 and since then has been improving local and national conditions regarding the reputation of O. S. C. with similar institutions. In 1933 Art Taaffe, '26 in commerce, took over the role of assistant graduate manager in addition to his duties as director of the Oregon State college athletic news service. His most important duty on the campus is almost direct charge of supervision of publications.

Men's Physical Education Staff

Men's Physical Education

- The men's physical education staff, made up mainly of coaches, handles all instruction in class room and gymnasium for men undergraduates. Dr. Clair V. Langton is head of the department, assisted by Alonzo Stiner, football; Amory T. Gill, basketball and baseball; Grant Swan, track; Jim Dixon and George Scott, rook athletics; Major F. W. Bowley, polo; B. T. Sims, tennis; Roy Hewitt, swimming; O. C. Mauthe, gymnasium, acrobatics and fencing, and Ralph O. Coleman, director of intramural athletics. This group of men has brought about the slogan of Dr. Langton, "Every Oregon State man student should participate in some form of athletics."

Varsity "O" Association

- Composed entirely of major athletic award winners in football, basketball, track and baseball, the varsity "O" association each year sponsors such a large number of campus events that it has been dubbed one of Oregon State's "live wire" groups. Besides helping with work on the campus the lettermen find plenty to do in caring for their special room in the Memorial Union which is used for a lounging place or a study room.
- In this picturesque room the wearers of the orange "O" have brought together trophies gained from years of competition up and down the Pacific coast and across the continent. Pictures, old footballs, trophies, cups and battered relics give the "hide out" of the varsity men not only a collegiate but a sporty air as well.
- Most outstanding of the activities sponsored by this group is the all-college wrestling and boxing meet held every winter term. During the three months of this activity more than a hundred athletes compete for the right to wear the all-college title in their respective events. Upon the broad shoulders of Bill Tomscheck, varsity football player, fell the presidential duties of 1933-34.

“Stinerism” in Oregon State Football Drive

• Aided by a footballistic “new deal” this year which boasted just about everything from a re-vamped coaching set-up down to new orange and black jerseys for the team, Oregon State climbed out of the gridiron doldrums in which she had lain so long and took a place near the top in the Pacific coast conference standings for the first time since 1926. Three teams—Southern California, Oregon and Stanford—tied for first place, and but for a short schedule which included only four conference games Oregon State might have stepped up from second into first place along with the winners. Oregon State lost only one conference game as did each of the winning teams.

• Considered by many the weakest team in the conference at the outset of the season by virtue of a new coach, youthful and inexperienced, a none too promising squad, and a conference record for the last few years poor enough to discourage the most optimistic, the Orangemen, led by this same new coach, blossomed forth with one of the smartest, toughest and fightingest teams seen on the coast for some time.

• Not only as a team did the Orangemen far outdo expectations, but also as individuals. At the end of the season Oregon State, for the first time in the history of the school, was able to boast an all-American football player—in fact, two of them. Norm Franklin, left halfback, and Ade (Tar) Schwammel, tackle, were named on several of the all-American teams and rated practically all of the all-coast teams. Franklin had performed throughout the entire season in a manner which left little doubt in the minds of the powers-that-be as to his ability. Schwammel, after playing a consistent and steady game throughout the season on the Pacific coast, romped away with his all-American honors against Fordham by snatching a pass and returning it to the Fordham three-yard line and again by pounding out a 46-yard place kick which eventually spelled defeat for the Rams. Another long place kick in the Oregon game spoke highly in his favor.

Southern Oregon Normal and Willamette

- Oregon State opened the season with a double-header played on Bell field. Southern Oregon Normal and Willamette university furnished the opposition. The first string played almost all of the initial game with the Teachers and pushed over three touchdowns to win without much difficulty. In the Willamette game Coach Stiner started the reserves. After three quarters, during which Oregon State was held scoreless by the fighting Bearcats, Coach Stiner called the first string out of the showers to send them into the game. The first string rang up three touchdowns in the last quarter and the Orangemen registered their first two victories by identical scores—20 to 0.

Montana

- Montana invaded the Orange campus on the following Saturday and Oregon State handed them a 21 to 0 defeat. Montana, one of the weaker teams of the conference, did not give the Orangemen many bad moments and the game was not a big test. The win, however, put them at the top of the coast conference percentage column, along with the early season favorites.

Gonzaga

- Things looked black for the Orangemen after the next game which was with Gonzaga at Portland. Oregon State pushed the Bulldogs all over the field and got within reach of scoring territory several times but failed to score. The game ended in a scoreless tie.
- The wise ones nodded and waxed pessimistic. Coach Stiner and the team were greatly disappointed but settled down with new determination and energy to polish up the weak points and prepare for the San Francisco university game played in San Francisco the next Saturday.

San Francisco

- The Dons from the Bay City put up a stiff fight and Oregon State barely eked out a 12 to 7 victory. Norm Franklin thrilled the California sport writers and the few thousand people who saw the game with his 97-yard return of the opening kick-off. The red-head took the ball almost on his own goal line and dodged through the entire San Francisco team on his long scoring jaunt. His passing, punting and ball-carrying were the big features of the game. Late in the game the Dons came back to push across a touchdown and convert the try for point. For a few minutes it looked as though they had a one-point victory within their grasp. But in the final minutes of the game Franklin dropped back and threw a beautiful pass to Hal Pangle who snatched it out of a wild melee of players and scampered across the last chalk line for the six points and victory. It was in this game that Oregon State first pulled its "iron eleven" performance, eleven men with only one substitute—Don Wagner for Harry Field at tackle—playing the entire 60 minutes.

Southern California

- Southern California, coast champion for the last two years and touted as even stronger this year, loomed as Oregon State's next opponent. Southern Cal was a heavy favorite to win what would have been its twenty-sixth consecutive victory, but the Orangemen, not in the least awed by the impressive record of the champion Trojans, were determined also to keep their own undefeated 1933 record unmarred.

The outcome of that game was one of the biggest upsets of the year, and the fame of the Oregon State "iron eleven" went all over the country. Although the result was a scoreless tie, students and Oregon State rooters took it as a victory. The Orangemen went through the entire game without a substitution and came out fresh and with few injuries. The Trojans later admitted that the Oregon State team was the toughest they had played against. Despite the bitter fight of both teams on the field, perfect sportsmanship existed between the two elevens. After the game Captain Ford Palmer of the Trojans handed the battle-scarred ball to Vic Curtin, Oregon State's acting captain, remarking, "Here, Vic, you've earned it." Football tradition is that in case of a tie game the ball goes to the visiting team.

Washington State

- Following the Southern Cal game a new enthusiasm settled over Oregon State and even a steady downpour of the traditional homecoming rain could not drown the spirit on the Orange campus as preparations for the Washington State game, main homecoming attraction, approached. The Orangemen went out on Bell field on that wet October 28 and played a hard, steady game to win by a close score—2 to 0. A punt blocked by Clyde Devine, lanky Orange center, was responsible for Oregon State's margin of victory. The ball bounced off Devine's chest and rolled across the end zone and out of bounds before a man could down it and automatically it netted two points. Despite a soaked field which made punting and ball-handling very ticklish, both teams played fine ball with few errors. Bill Tomscheck, veteran left guard, was injured during the game and the "iron eleven" combination was thus broken, but Stan McClurg, sophomore, stepped into the breach and took up the battle with aggressiveness. Norm Franklin's sensational punting kept the Cougars constantly at bay.

Oregon

- The crucial test of the season, the Oregon game, was next on the Orange schedule. Not only because of the bitter football rivalry always existing between the schools, but also because of its bearing on conference ratings, the game took on huge and important proportions. Oregon State had only to defeat the Webfoots to complete its conference schedule undefeated and to be assured of at least a tie for first place in the conference. Oregon, also undefeated, had yet to meet Southern Cal before completing its conference season. These factors and the additional fact that it was an Armistice Day game made it a "natural" and over 32,000 people—a record crowd for the northwest—swarmed into Multnomah stadium to watch.
- The Orangemen had a weekend layoff between the Washington State and Oregon games. With every man on the squad doing his best to earn the trip east to Fordham after the Oregon game, Coach Stiner had great difficulty in keeping his hard-working lads from going stale. By game time, however, the Oregon State team was keyed to high pitch and played one of its bitterest games of the season, only to be turned back, 13 to 3. "Tar" Schwammel's field goal in the first three minutes of play threw the Webfoot ranks into confusion for a time, but the great power attack of Mikulak and clever deceptive runs by Gee and Temple of Oregon finally proved too much for the Orange defense. The Orangemen, however, kept fighting and twice near the end of the game came within the proverbial frog's toenail of scoring. Oregon State uncovered its famous pyramid play used in blocking kicks in this game. The play was used against Washington State but was not noticed. It consisted of hoisting the tall center, Devine, onto the shoulders of tackles Field and Schwammel, from which point he could reach out and knock down any ball headed for the goal posts. This ingenious play of Coach Stiner's again sent the fame of Oregon State throughout the country and even led several coaches to the rules committee for a restriction in the use of such a defense for blocking tries for point.

Fordham

• The night of the Oregon defeat twenty-six Orangemen left for the east where they were to play Fordham. The eastern jaunt was the longest made by any coast conference team during the year. The Fordham Rams, who had defeated Oregon State, 8 to 6, last year, were one of the strongest teams of the east and the Orangemen were anxious not only to avenge their defeat of the year before but also to maintain the superiority held by Oregon State teams over sectional rivals. In this game it was Franklin and Schwammel who were largely responsible for the 9 to 6 victory. Franklin took the opening kick-off for a 93-yard scoring gallop to startle the 40,000 spectators and also to take a strangle hold on at least all-American mention. The Rams evened the score later in the game and then Schwammel dropped back to boot a 46-yard place kick through the uprights and give Oregon State victory. On another play Schwammel, roving behind the scrimmage line, seized a pass and raced to the Rams' three-yard line before being stopped.

Nebraska

• The football season was then officially over, but the players, enthusiastic over their recent victory, begged for a game with Nebraska, Big Six champion. The game, after much official consideration and hesitation, was finally scheduled for Thanksgiving Day. Without discrediting the strong Nebraska team in the least, it may be truthfully said that Oregon State was not at its full strength in that game. Sickness, the prolonged eastern stay, worry over coming final examinations and a team morale unavoidably undermined by continual excitement proved too great a handicap, and Oregon State lost to the Cornhuskers, 22 to 9. Even in losing, however, the Orangemen looked good and it was only in the last part of the game that Nebraska was able to show much superiority. Oregon State alumni were enthusiastic over the showing of the Beavers. In fairness to the Cornhuskers it may be said that they played their toughest conference game less than a week before the Thanksgiving Day game and were also under a handicap. Oregon State players had nothing but praise for the Nebraskans and said that Sauer, later named all-American fullback, was the best player they had seen during the entire season.

Oregon smacks the iron wall. 10 minutes, 10 yards and S. C. failed

- The Nebraska game ended the 1933 season for most of the Orange gridders, but Schwammel, Field and Pierre Bowman, regular right halfback, were invited to participate in the annual East-West Shrine game in San Francisco New Year's Day. Field and Schwammel, competing against stars from all the coast section and as far east as Nebraska, won berths on the starting lineup for the West, and Bowman, although he did not start, saw much action during the contest.

- Prospects for the 1934 football season are not at all dull with eleven of the twenty 1933 Oregon State lettermen eligible for play next fall. Coach Stiner and his cohorts—Coaches Jim Dixon, George Scott and "Slats" Gill—had a long spring session during which they were able to lay foundations for their next Orange football edition instead of only the two weeks of spring practice which were held last year because of the delay in appointing a head coach.

After their first view of the available players for next year the coaches began a wide and intensive search for strong tackle material to take the place of Schwammel, Field and Don Wagner, all of whom will be lost. Other positions on the Oregon State team will not be so difficult to fill as there is plenty of promising material on hand with which to work. Coach Stiner also hopes to have a greater supply of dependable reserves for his 1934 team. Lettermen lost from this year's squad are Ade Schwammel, Harry Field, Don Wagner,

Vic Curtin, Vernon Wedin, Hal Joslin, Russ Acheson, Johnny Biancone and Pierre Bowman. Next year's "iron men" with a season of "Stinerism" preceding them will have an opportunity to lift football at Oregon State to even greater heights.

Rook Football Squad

Freshman Football

- Although they lost two of their three scheduled games this season, the Oregon State rook gridsters more than lived up to expectations. Little exciting material reported to "Slats" Gill, new freshman coach, at the start of the season. Of these men several of the most promising were lost by ineligibilities and injuries before the season got under way. As a result the rooks were doped to lose hands down to all their opponents.
- In their first game against the strong Oregon frosh, the rooks put up a bitter fight but lost by a narrow margin, 7 to 3. Tommy Swanson, rook left half, booted the field goal which partly offset the Duckling touchdown.

- Southern Oregon Normal next invaded the Oregon State campus to play the rooks. The Teachers' power and deception proved too much for the babes and they were trounced, 39 to 0. The Oregon frosh later held the Sons to a 7 to 0 win and were thus much-favored to take the rooks in their second game on the basis of comparative scores.

"Slats" Gill, Coach

- The frosh, however, succumbed to a determined rook team, 6 to 0, in the final game of the "little civil war" series. Ray Woodman, quarterback, broke through for a 51-yard touchdown run to chalk up the essential points. The rooks played the game with only 12 men.

- Rook numeral winners this season were Carl Axelsen, Jack Brandis, Ed Butze, Pat Cassidy, Jack Chapman, Howard Collins, Gordon Coward, Pete Delano, Ken Deming, Don Fisher, Joe Harlan, Herb Hiatt, Don Rawlins, Ed Strack, Tom Swanson, Hub Tuttle, Bert Vollans, Merle Wickett and Ray Woodman.

Orange Champions Drop Coast Title

- After a year at the top of the Pacific coast conference basketball standings, during the 1934 season Oregon State dropped to third in the northern division. Minus the services of Edward Collins Lewis, all-American center of the 1933 championship team, they were on the spot from the start. With Lewis went about one-third of Oregon State's scoring punch and the combined efforts of hold-over veterans and newcomers failed to furnish the necessary point-making required to keep Oregon State at the head of the flag chase.
- Prospects were fairly bright at the start of the season with six lettermen—four of them regulars from the conference flag winners—back for action. The only weak position was center, but that proved to be the stumbling block for Oregon State's chances in the pennant chase as neither Wilbur Kidder nor Cliff Folen, both sophomores, had the finish or scoring power necessary to adequately replace the great Lewis.
- Although Kidder drew first call during the opening conference tilts Folen improved so rapidly in the last 10 games that he played nearly every minute. So promising was the showing of Folen that sports experts predicted at the close of the season that the 6 foot 6 $\frac{1}{4}$ center would make basketball fans forget all about the sensational playing of Lewis. Only a bit behind Folen was Kidder who may be shifted to a guard post for the 1935 season. This pair of tall, rangy lads will have two more years of competition and should give Oregon State a decided advantage in the tip-off department over other northern division outfits. Folen was the fourth highest Orange point-maker.

After Season of Basketball Upsets

- Steady and often sensational defensive play coupled with points made when they were most needed brought Red MacDonald, three-year veteran, a place as one of the guards on the northern division all-star quintet. Nearly every selection included MacDonald while several gave George Hibbard a forward position and Carl Lenchitsky either a first- or second-string guard berth. Teams rated by MacDonald were Associated Press and Barometer northern division all-star while Hibbard was named by "Hec" Edmundson, coach of the champion Washington Huskies, as one of the best forwards on the coast. Lenchitsky was only a little behind his running mate, MacDonald, on the final choices.
- With the completion of the season against Oregon, three Orange regulars turned in their outfits for the last time. Skeet O'Connell, Orange captain, and the veteran guard duo—MacDonald and Lenchitsky—are the men lost to the 1935 team, having completed their three years of competition under Orange colors.
- Lettermen available for next year will be Hibbard, Merle Taylor and Wally Palmberg, forwards; Folen and Kidder, centers, and Fred Hill, guard. Two or three promising prospects from the freshman team and a transfer from another school in addition to a strong group of reserves will give Coach Gill a fine bunch of material to work with during 1935. Should the occasion arise, Coach Gill may use Hibbard and Taylor, two-year veterans, at the forward positions and shift Palmberg to one of the guard posts.

Pre-Conference Games

- While college students were wending their various ways homeward for the Christmas vacation, 10 Oregon State basketball players swung into an arduous eight-game schedule as a preliminary to the opening of the northern division season just after the turn of the year. The Orangemen returned victories in seven out of the eight and fell just short in the other contest of making a clean sweep of the contests. Opening their season on the home floor the Orange hoopmen ran wild to ship Multnomah Athletic club of Portland by a lop-sided 44 to 22 score. However on the following night the Orange quintet hit a real snag in the Union Oil outfit of Portland, led by Ed Lewis and several other former college "greats." They dropped the game 31 to 27.
- In the only road trip of the vacation period Oregon State invaded Portland and made up for the Oilers' victory by winning both games 28 to 22 and 26 to 23. Despite the wide difference in scores of the first Multnomah club game, the Orangemen had no easy time winning a return tilt in the Rose City by the score of 25 to 24.
- After a 41 to 24 victory over Willamette university in Salem on the way home Oregon State players wound up activities by handing the strong Southern Oregon Normal team a double defeat on the Orange court. The first contest with the SONS was a farce with every Gillman finding the basket from any angle and ended 71 to 29. The Orangemen had a tougher time the next night but collected a 40 to 30 win.

Five Varsity Plotters

Washington Series

- The peak of Oregon State basketball destinies for 1934 was reached in the opening two contests of the annual four-game series with University of Washington Huskies. Although the Orangemen could do no better than split the four affairs, the opening pair were captured in the clinch giving Oregon State's pennant chances another week of life.
- In mid-season the rampaging Huskies came out of the north after eight straight conquests at the expense of Washington State and Idaho without a single defeat. On the other hand the coast champion Orangemen had encountered stormy seas and already had four defeats offsetting four victories. Only an outside chance remained for Oregon State to reach pay dirt and in the first two games with the Huskies displayed a brand of basketball which smacked of the championship days of the year before when Oregon State took three of four games from Washington.

"Jump ball right here!"

Basketball

- The eight-game Washington winning streak was abruptly halted in the opener on the Orange court when the Oregon State zone defense effectively halted the Huskies while enough points were being scored by the Gillmen to post a 25 to 21 victory. Oregon State took the lead in the first 30 seconds of play on a sensational basket by Captain O'Connell and never relinquished the advantage.
- After piling up a 13 to 5 lead at half-time and running the count to 17 to 5 with only 16 minutes left in the final period, the Orangemen watched their advantage whittled to a mere two points in little more than five minutes. However, a long field goal by Red MacDonald followed soon after by Carl Lenchitsky's one-handed push shot put the Orangemen out of danger. During the final five minutes Oregon State players went into a stalling shell and rarely lost control of the ball.
- Even greater was the Orange margin in the second contest as Washington dropped game number two by a 28 to 18 count. George Hibbard and Lenchitsky teamed nicely in this game to score 17 markers between them. Again in this game the Orange quintet took the lead within the first minute of play and were never to be headed. They held a neat 18 to 7 lead when the half-time gun sounded.
- When Oregon State played Washington in Seattle a couple of weeks later a surprise defeat by Idaho had just about eliminated the Orange hoopmen for serious consideration in the pennant chase. To make the situation doubly sure, the Huskies clinched the crown by dumping the Orangemen two straight on the huge Seattle court.
- The third contest of the year was a donnybrook with the Orangemen falling just short of victory. Final score favored the Huskies 25 to 21 after the Beaver quintet held a slight margin of two points with less than five minutes left. The last clash found Washington on the long end of a 35 to 26 score. Outstanding stars of the Washington series were Hibbard and MacDonald. Hibbard played some of his best ball while MacDonald constantly kept the enthusiastic crowds in an uproar with his rough but clean ball-hawking tactics.

Oregon State's Varsity Rooters

"Skeet" O'Connell, Captain

Washington State Games

- Although Oregon State basketball players took two of four games from the Washington State Cougars, lack of control of the tip-off so greatly handicapped the Orangemen that they were constantly in trouble. The Cougars opened the northern division season at Oregon State and were soundly drubbed by the Orangemen by the score of 26 to 16. In this game Wilbur Kidder of Oregon State and Bob Houston of Washington State, rival centers, received their baptism under conference fire. Despite his great height advantage Houston could do little better than jump on a par with the rubber-legged Kidder.
- Finding a great deal more spring for the second night's contest, Houston took almost every tip-off for his team mates and with this advantage the Cougars squared the series by the score of 26 to 24. Oregon State led to within the last minute or so of play but a couple of long shots by Washington State players coupled with bad errors on Orange players parts soon dispelled the advantage.
- Again Oregon State rode the crest of victory in the third game which was played in Pullman although the final 26 to 23 score was in doubt until the gun. The final Washington State game was a sad affair for the Orangemen not only because of the 24 to 15 defeat but also because Oregon State players could only score three field goals during the whole 40 minutes of play. So completely were the Orangemen bottled up that after Captain O'Connell caged a bucket early in the game it was not until 32 minutes later that another Orange basket was chalked up.

Try and Get It!

The Referee Points

Idaho Series

- Two out of four games was the best Oregon State could do against the cellar-winning Idaho Vandals despite a greater showing of scoring power than at any other time during the season. To open against the Vandals, the Gillmen had to make the long trip to Moscow for a two-game series and before the road kinks could be removed Idaho had pasted the Orangemen by the score of 31 to 25. Road weariness was the big factor in this defeat as the Oregon State players on the following night experienced little difficulty winning 32 to 23 to square matters. This, by the way, was one of two games during the 16-contest northern division schedule that the Orangemen were able to push the scoring bell above the 30 mark. The other was in the third Idaho game.

- In a slow and uninteresting contest Oregon State basketball players walloped the Vandals soundly on the Orange court by the score of 40 to 14. At no time did Idaho have a chance and after taking the lead within the first two minutes of play the Orangemen had little difficulty in running it to 21 to 8 at half-time. During the first six minutes the tilt was fairly even with the Vandals netting the score at five-all after five minutes of furious play. The final period was marred by frequent substitutions and many fouls. A total of 19 men saw action during the contest while 14 fouls were called on Idaho and 11 on Oregon State.

- Flashing a complete reversal of form in the final game Idaho basketball players rained the basket from every angle to defeat Oregon State by the score of 34 to 22. Although Idaho held only a 15 to 12 lead at half-time it took the Vandals just four minutes in the second period to run the score to 25 to 12. This 10-point flurry put the game on ice for the Vandals as Oregon State was able to close the gap only one point during the final 15 minutes. Idaho took the lead from the opening whistle and managed to stop several first-half Orange rallies.

Oregon Clashes

- Not at all successful were the Orangemen against their traditional rivals—the rejuvenated University of Oregon Webfoots. After being the door mat for most of the other teams during 1933 the Webfoots suddenly about faced and not only won three of four games from Oregon State but also took second place in the conference. The opening two contests played early in the season were split with Oregon winning the initial fracas in Eugene by the score of 30 to 26 and Oregon State the next at Corvallis by a 16 to 9 count.
- In the opening game the Orangemen were decidedly off and came only within knocking distance of victory. However, a week later they so tied the Webfoots in knots that the Oregon basket column for the game summary showed only four field goals. Half-time score of this contest was 6 to 3 for Oregon.
- When time for the completing duo of Oregon games arrived both quintets were tied for second place with the final series needed to decide the uncontested owner of this position. A comfortable eight-point margin gave the Webfoots victory in the third game by the score of 33 to 25 on the huge McArthur court at Eugene. Even though Oregon State took some two shots for every one by Oregon in the final game, not enough of the looping casts dropped through the net to offset Webfoot accuracy. As a result the wind-up game as well as second place went to Oregon by the score of 24 to 21.

Rook Basketball Squad

Rook Basketball

- Seven wins and four defeats was the record turned in by the Oregon State freshman basketball team for 1934. The rooks were coached by George Scott, who took over the duties for the first time this year.
- Art Merryman, Chester Kebbe, Hub Tuttle and Rudy Kappel were the outstanding players for the Orange yearlings. These men are expected to make strong bids for varsity positions next year. Tuttle scored highest with 76 points, and Kebbe was runner-up with 59. Kappel came in third with 53 points although he did not gain a regular position until half the season was over. Merryman suffered hard luck and was kept out of the first four games by injuries but sunk enough baskets to make 39 points.

- Twelve players were awarded numerals by the board of control. Those receiving numerals were Dick Wellington, Clarence White, Chester Kebbe, Tom Hoover, John Anderson, Ken Deming, Rudy Kappel, Hub Tuttle, Art Merryman, Charles Ruzek, Ed Torgerson and Bob Ingalls.

George Scott, Coach

- The rooks broke even with the University of Oregon frosh in their four-game series, which were by far the most important games of the season. Salem high school, state champion a year ago, and Albany college handed the Orange babes their other defeats. The rooks came back to even the count with Salem, however, and also took one from Albany.

Baseball Starts Climb in Conference Rat

- One of the worst athletic springs in years was the lot of Oregon State baseball players in 1933. Even the gloom cast on baseball by the curtailed spring budget did not compare with the dark days of April and May with their constant downpours of rain and sloppy playing fields. Only once or twice during the season were the pitchers able to get a sun-soaking long enough to shake the kinks out of their arms.
- "Slats" Gill, Orange baseball mentor, no sooner finished winning the Pacific coast conference basketball title in early March than he issued his first call for varsity aspirants. Waiting for better weather conditions which never developed, the Orangemen had a couple of weeks of indoor practice. With only a few days of outdoor work the Orange players started their season which pitted them against nearly every college in the Willamette valley. The only northern division team played was Oregon in a six-game series.
- Instead of spending a great deal of time with his few veteran holdovers from the 1932 season, Coach Gill gave the new men every chance to improve and to play, possibly with hopes of developing a strong contending team for the 1934 conference season. As a result Oregon State has a baseball nine with a great many lettermen dotting the lineup and with a veteran infield to give added strength to Orange chances in the northern division conference chase. During the year out of the conference Oregon State had a better than average season with a split in the six contests with Oregon as the highlight. After several years in the batting doldrums, three or four of the Orange regulars pounded the horsehide around the .500 mark.

- Head batsman of the Orange clan was Jimmy Clarke, steady though not colorful third baseman. "Sleepy", as he was dubbed by the sports writers, pounded the pellet at a .417 clip in 112 times at bat. So well did the players themselves think of Clarke's ability that they elected him captain at the close of the season. Bud Keema, dependable catcher, led the 1933 nine.
- Lettermen were Keema, Clarke, Boyd Rasmussen, James Rittenhouse, Jack Woodard, Ed Creider, Dan Mitola, Bill Callan, George Hibbard, Tom Ward, Clarence Weber, John Biancone, Karl Jensen and Wallace Marsden, service award. Returning stripe-winners for the 1934 season were Clarke, third base; Rasmussen and Woodard, pitchers; Creider and Mitola, first base; Callan, second base; Hibbard, short stop; Ward and Weber, left fielders.
- Oregon State apparently is on the up-trail again in the diamond game after several seasons of only medium success. Not many years ago the Orangemen were one-two in the northern division but lack of material cut the showing recently. Under Coach Gill, who has been headman of baseball only a couple of years, the Orangemen have become noted for their dangerous possibilities.
- Lack of outstanding pitching material, the main Orange weakness in the last two or three springs, should not dog Oregon State longer as Coach Gill has a pair of promising young moundsmen in Woodard and Rasmussen. Woodard is a speedball right hander while Rasmussen tosses his slants from the port side. Little is known of the strength of newcomers from the first-class rook nine, but the two veterans will be in suits for the 1934 and '35 seasons.

Pre-Oregon Games

• The Oregon State nine opened the season with a two-game series against Monmouth Normal and won the first game here, 11 to 8, but dropped the second at Monmouth by the score of 3 to 0. Jack Woodard, who relieved Boyd Rasmussen on the mound for the Orangemen after the fifth inning in the first game, held the Normal men well in hand while his team-mates put the game on ice in the last innings. Charles, Monmouth hurler, was responsible for the second game victory, as he shut out the Beavers.

Baseball

- Following the opening games with Monmouth came three minor tilts for the Orange team, all grouped within a four-day period. Dan Mitola sewed up the first of these, with an alumni all-star team, by pounding out a circuit clout in the seventh inning to break a 7 to 7 tie. In the second game, against Linfield, the Oregon State team was forced to come from behind to win by the close score of 6 to 5. The powerful hitters of the Orange squad came to life in the third game which was played against Pacific Dental college, and pounded two opposing pitchers for 13 hits and a 9 to 2 victory.
- Coach Spec Keene's Willamette Bearcats proved to be tough competition for the Oregon State team and the two clubs broke even in a duo of games. The Beavers took the first tilt on the home field by the score of 9 to 7. The game was slowed up considerably by a cold wind which blew swirls of dust over the field and at times completely obscured the outfield. The return game played at Willamette proved to be a thriller, and the Bearcats barely squeezed out a 3 to 2 victory after 12 innings of airtight baseball. Tweed, Willamette pitcher, held the Orange heavy artillery well in check for the entire dozen innings. Woodard, who hurled for eight innings for the Beavers, and Lefty Rittenhouse, relief man, did almost as well, but allowed one more hit than the Willamette star.
- Oregon State baseball players looked impressive indeed in a double victory over the team from Columbia university of Portland by the scores of 8 to 1 and 8 to 3. These games followed the only week of real practice weather that Oregon State had during the season, and the Orangemen were in tip-top shape as the scores indicated. Rasmussen, promising left-hander, pitched the first contest and let the Cliff-dwellers down with but six hits. Ray Parrish, a right-hander, then tossed a four-hit affair the next afternoon.

Oregon Series

- With years of intense rivalry back of them, Oregon and Oregon State baseball players swung into action against each other six times on the turfed diamond during one season. Although northern division teams usually played only a four-game series each spring, dissolving of the conference for early-season sports led the traditional rivals, who are situated only 40 miles apart, to resume hostilities six times during one brief spring.
- Just as in any such sport event with the tremendous background of rivalry and tradition, dope meant very little. Even though Oregon State batters pounded out nearly a dozen more runs than the Webfoots in the long series, each nine came to the top with three victories apiece. Only two of the contests were even close and three tilts were decided by lop-sided scores.
- The first game, played on the University diamond, was a pitchers' battle for seven full innings with the Webfoots nursing a 3 to 2 lead. A scratch single by an Orange batter in the last half of the eighth gave Oregon State the impetus for a rally which brought the score to 11 to 3 before the third man was tagged out. The game ended with Oregon State ahead 11 to 3.

Baseball

- Not satisfied that Oregon State had a wide margin of superiority, the Webfoots journeyed to Corvallis and dumfounded the experts by pounding the full staff of Orange twirlers for a 14 to 6 victory. Early in the third inning a western drizzle started which soon had the diamond slippery and made playing extremely difficult. Despite adverse conditions the two nines skidded and fumbled for better than two hours to complete the full route. John Biancone, Orange centerfielder, made it a big day at bat by contributing a pair of doubles and a triple in five trips to the plate.
- In the third contest the Orangemen went on a wild batting spree from the opening canto and chased three or four Webfoot hurlers to the showers under a 14 to 2 victory. Rasmussen pitched a heady game for Oregon State while Ward, Clarke and Mitola sparked the batting attack.
- Oregon State took a big lap in the series by winning game number four by the score of 8 to 5. This gave the Orangemen a big advantage of three games to one—although it proved of little aid in the remaining tilts. Clark, captain-elect for the 1934 season, continued his batting rampage, getting three perfect blows in four trips to the rubber.
- Although the margin of victory was only one point in each case, Oregon squared the six contests by winning 9 to 8 and 3 to 2 in a pair of pitching duels. The fifth game was more or less a parade of pitchers with both nines batting at timely moments. After trailing 7 to 0 for seven frames, the Orangemen apparently lost all patience with the situation and pounded the horsehide to all corners of the field to take an 8 to 7 lead going into the ninth. A couple of long-distance clouts coupled with an Orange error or two and Oregon had the ball game.
- A real pitchers' battle was the bill of fare of baseball fans who trekked in large numbers to the final Oregon-Oregon State game. The Webfoots pushed across two runs in the second but Oregon State netted the affair with a duo of points in the fourth frame. The pitchers' holiday continued until the final inning when Oregon scratched across a lone counter. Rasmussen topped a fine first season with a five-hit contest.

Freshman Baseball

- After displaying "in and out" form through all its preliminary games, the Oregon State college freshman baseball team suddenly clicked and rounded out its season successfully by defeating the old southern rivals from Eugene three out of five games in the annual "little civil war" series. The rooks, coached by Roy Lamb, won five and lost four games during the 1933 season.

- The freshmen started their schedule in fine style, polishing off Albany college and Salem high school by the respective scores of 13 to 2 and 20 to 2. The Albany nine came back in a few days, however, and evened things with the Orange babes by a 10 to 8 win. Molalla high school handed them another loss, this time by an 8 to 1 score, in the last game before the Oregon-frosh series.

Roy Lamb, Coach

- The Orange yearlings got the jump on the frosh and won the first two games of the series by the scores of 8 to 5 and 9 to 5 respectively. The Lemon-Yellow first-year men came back to win the third, 8 to 2, but the rooks sewed up the series by annexing the fourth game by the score of 4 to 3. In the final tilt, played just before the end of the school year, the frosh scored a 10 to 9 win from the indifferent Oregon State freshmen.

- Fifteen baseball numerals were awarded to rook baseball players by the athletic board of control. Men receiving numerals were Willard Booth, Don Ruppe, Jack Zanello, Earl Peterson, Lee Sheller, Harold Toedtemeir, Robert Bergstrom, Clifford Conrad, Kenneth Valberg, Arthur Durland, Joe Wilson, Brownie Mitchell, Clyde Hoffman, Ercel King and Edward Burchell.

Dixon and Stiner Bring Cindermen Through

- Despite general curtailment of all spring sports during 1933 because of low finances, Oregon State's track and field squad participated in five intercollegiate meets. The Orange trackmen swung into action during the dull and rainy spring against University of Washington at Corvallis, University of Oregon at Eugene and five Willamette valley colleges at Corvallis in an invitational affair, followed by the northern division intercollegiate wind-up in Pullman. Runners had their afternoon in the annual Oregon-Oregon State dual relays at Corvallis early in the season.
- Not a great amount of outstanding material greeted Lon Stiner, Orange track coach, when he issued first call for material. Nevertheless Oregon State contributed a surprise victory in the Oregon relays and a pair of individual champions, undefeated during the season. Even the elements conspired against Coach Stiner, leaving the conditions far from good for training new men.
- After only a month with his trackmen—most of which time was spent under cover of the armory, Stiner was required to turn his attentions to spring football practice following his appointment as varsity grid-iron mentor. During the time Stiner was directing football, Jim Dixon, freshman track coach, helped the varsity men.
- For the 1934 season, however, under the new coaching set-up of only five men, Grant Swan, who is also trainer for other varsity sports, will take over the duties as head man of Oregon State track. Swan was one of the greatest long distance runners on the Pacific coast while he was enrolled at Oregon State not many years ago, and his experience should aid him in developing a fine squad.

Season with Two Undefeated Champions

- In Forrest "Skeet" O'Connell and Mush Dunkin, Oregon State had a pair of the steadiest track performers in the northern division. O'Connell specialized in the broad jump, although he found time enough to run the 100-yard dash and several times the 220. Upsetting the dope was nothing at all to the husky Dunkin, who during the football season was a better-than-average blocking halfback. In every race he entered during the 1933 season, Dunkin was just an outside favorite to place. In spite of it he not only won every high hurdle event but cracked a couple of records to boot.
- As a sophomore Dunkin was a member of the Orange shuttle relay team which smashed the world's record in that event, but during his junior year failed to show much in the way of outstanding ability. On a cold bleak day in early April Dunkin outstepped a pair of the greatest high-stickers in the United States to set a new home record of :14.7 seconds for the 110-yard event, taking five sure points away from University of Washington. Dunkin capped his successful season with another :14.7 sprint over the high hurdles to win the northern division individual title.
- Considered one of the greatest competitors in Oregon State athletic history, O'Connell finished an undefeated season with a sensational leap of 23 feet, 3 inches to win the northern division broadjumping title. Although Dunkin has completed his three years of varsity competition, O'Connell will be back for another season. With two years of experience back of him the limber-legged O'Connell should be a five-point man in nearly every meet and should not be far from a new northern division record.

Oregon-Oregon State Relays

• Given only an outside chance to defeat the great bunch of Oregon sprinters—considered the best in the northern division—in the annual Oregon-Oregon State dual relays, Oregon State runners staged a real surprise by taking five of the eight events and the meet. The Orangemen stepped out in front in the first event to clinch the relays before the highly-touted Webfoots could get under way.

"Coley" tells 'em

Track

• Events won by the Orangemen were the quarter-mile relay, the two-mile relay, the sprint medley and the four-mile relay, while Oregon captured the half-mile relay, the distance medley and the mile relay. Perhaps the most spectacular race of the windy afternoon was the narrow Orange victory in the sprint medley.

• "Skeet" O'Connell, who led off for the Orangemen in the first 110-yard lap, nosed out Paul Starr, Oregon's record-breaking sprint ace, on the first part of the feature event. Bill Patrick increased the lead in the next 110-yard lap by out-sprinting Bill Schomp of Oregon. Art Holman, Oregon's northern division champion in the quarter-mile, beat Ned Gleason, Orangeman, in the following 220-yard stretch, giving Bill Bowerman, Oregon anchor man, a nice lead over Tom Colasuonno, last Orange runner. Bowerman, still in front as the two straining athletes pounded down the home stretch, failed to match strides with the fast-coming Colasuonno and was nipped at the tape by a scant foot. Despite the adverse weather conditions, the time was 1:35 minutes and less than a second over the record.

Washington-Oregon State

• Running true to form from the opening event, University of Washington track and field team defeated Oregon State on Bell field by the score of 83 $\frac{1}{4}$ to 47 $\frac{3}{8}$. Of the 15 events the Huskies found little difficulty in winning nine and tying for another. Only in the long distance events, high hurdles and broad jump were the Orangemen able to show much strength. Bob Patrick, short-legged Orange sprinter, showed his heels to the Washington runners in the 220 for the big upset of the whole afternoon's proceedings.

Invitational Meet

- Even the weather man declared a holiday for the first big Willamette Valley invitational track and field meet held on Bell field a week after the Washington run-away. Instead of the usual cold winds and dark, gloomy clouds a brilliant sun and ideal track conditions greeted the pick of cinder artists of Pacific university, Willamette university, Oregon Normal at Monmouth, Oregon State varsity and Orange freshmen.
- Although the Orangemen were conceded a majority of the firsts with greater material in the background, competition for other places in each event and in the final added zest to this novel get-together of valley colleges. University of Oregon did not compete because of a conflicting date but more than likely will enter a squad in the 1934 invitational, as the success of the first meet indicated its becoming an annual fixture.

Dunkin—Undefeated

Three "high-stickers"

- With Skeet O'Connell, best broad-jumper in the northern division, out because of a strained leg muscle, Bob Hart, one-man track team from Monmouth Normal, stepped to the fore winning the only first for an outside team. In the other 14 events Oregon State trackmen experienced not a great deal of difficulty in taking the blue ribbons. Although Mush Dunkin and Norman Franklin tied for individual scoring honors with 10 points as the result of two firsts each, Hart put on a great show, taking second in the century and another second in the high-jump for a total of $9\frac{1}{2}$ markers.

- Given his first afternoon of near tropical climate of the whole spring, Franklin, who had a wonderful prep school record and a fine showing as a rook, was able to unlimber his muscles enough to step the hundred in ten seconds flat as well as dash the 220-yard event in fine style. Dunkin turned in a :15 for the 110-yard high hurdles.

Oregon-Oregon State Dual Meet

- A well-balanced University of Oregon track and field team experienced little difficulty in defeating Oregon State spikemen in the final dual meet of the year by the score of 84 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 46 $\frac{3}{4}$. With one of the best sprint groups on the coast the Webfoots breezed to 11 first places, a tie for another and cracked three dual records. Although the Orangemen could do no better than three first and a tie for another, Mush Dunkin skimmed over the high sticks to set a new Oregon-Oregon State record of :14.7 in the 110-yard high hurdles.
- By the aid of a light breeze Paul Starr, sensational Oregon short distance runner, posted new marks in the century and furlong despite the soggy condition of the track. Hot on the trail of Starr in the hundred was Skeet O'Connell who was penalized one yard before the race for jumping the gun. Only by inches did the record-breaking Starr snap the tape before the speeding Orangeman. After a try at the 220-yard event, O'Connell found time enough to leap better than 23 feet for a first in the broad jump.

Northern Division Meet

- Although Washington State, Oregon and Washington finished, in the order named, above Oregon State in the 1933 northern division meet held in Pullman late in May, Orange followers gleaned a great deal of satisfaction from the showing of a pair of individual Orangemen. The toughest competition in the northland only spurred on Mush Dunkin to another :14.7 run-way in the high hurdle event while Skeet O'Connell easily was out-leaping the field in the broad jump.
- Only a couple of years before, Dunkin's mark was not only a northern division record but a world record as well. Had the Orange high-sticker been given a really warm spring for practice instead of the bleak two months of early 1933, he might have been close to the record which is a little less than :14.5.
- At the close of the 1933 season Everett Davis, captain and two-year letterman in the weight events, handed his duties to Don Anderson. Captain Anderson tosses the javelin as a side-line to his discus throwing and shot putting activities. Trackmen winning letters for the 1933 season were Anderson, Davis, Robert Bryant, Mush Dunkin, Norman Franklin, Howard Gibson, Frank Little, Hugh Nicholson, Forrest O'Connell, Robert Patrick, Charles Prah, Willard White, James Coleman and Virgil Heath.
- After a year's sojourn at the Oregon campus, the state high school track and field meet will be staged on Bell field during the spring of 1934. Action of the State Board of Higher Education moved the event to Oregon on an alternate basis after being an annual affair here since 1927.

Rook Track

Rook Track

- The Oregon State freshman track team completed a successful season in 1933 under the coaching of Jim Dixon. Although the rooks lost a dual contest to Pacific university by the score of 66 to 55, they won both the dual relay and the dual track and field meets from their traditional rivals, University of Oregon frosh. The Orange babes also won third place in a five-way invitational meet held here with colleges of the Willamette valley. Only the Oregon State varsity and Pacific were ahead of the rooks in this contest.

- Ernest Guggisberg, anchor man in the medley race, figured largely in the five to three victory in the relay meet with Oregon. He beat Paddock of Oregon by a yard in the fifth and deciding event after overcoming a 60-yard lead. Against Pacific the rooks' lack of second and third place strength cost them the victory, as they took seven firsts and tied for another in the 14 events. The Orange cindermen won 11 first places and the relay event to sew up the meet with the Oregon yearlings, 80 to 42.

Jim Dixon, Coach

- Guggisberg, Ralph Olson, Don Eckman, Wilbur Kidder and Bob Rushing were the most consistent point-getters for the freshmen. Kidder turned in a new rook mark in the 220-yard low hurdles with a :25.7 record, and Eckman, high jumper, also set a rook record by clearing the bar 5 feet, 11 inches.

- Twenty freshmen received awards for competition in track. These men were Stanley Gilmore, Charles Hoskins, Walter Noack, Bob O'Donnell, Lloyd Williamson, George Bruns, Robert Carpenter, Donald Eckman, Ernest Guggisberg, Doran Huston, Woodrow Joslin, Norman Reynolds, Wilbur Kidder, Jack Nichols, Ralph Olson, Emery Reitz, Bob Rushing, Warren Stover, Vernon Warren and John Derbyshire.

Varsity Swimming

- Oregon State's swimming team turned in victories over two out of its three dual opponents this year, winning from Washington and Washington State but losing two meets to Oregon.
- Only by a hair-line decision did the Washington win go to Oregon State. The teams were deadlocked at the end of the meet, but by virtue of having won the medley relay Oregon State was given an extra point. The final score was 43 to 42.
- University of Oregon defeated the Orange mermen by scores of 52 to 32 and 49 to 35. At Eugene in the first meet Captain Al Van Gilse and Vic Smith broke two Pacific coast conference records—the 200-yard breast stroke and the 100-yard free style events respectively.
- Oregon State defeated Washington State in its telegraphic meet by the wide margin of 47 to 25.
- Lincoln Chapman defeated nine of the best divers in the northwest to win the Pacific Northwest championship at the meet in Portland.
- Men recommended for letters by Coach Jack Hewitt were Ray Stewart, Chapman, Smith, Van Gilse, Clyde Devine, Lloyd Lillie, Morrie Staton, Les Richards, Bud Dockery, Bill Hanberg, Bill Welder, Tom Robins and Roy Mueller.

"Hell-Divers"

Hell Divers

- Hell Divers, local life saving corps at Oregon State, was organized during the year of 1932-33 to give experience to swimmers and aid in the promotion of interest in aquatic sports at Oregon State college. In little more than a year this organization has grown from just a small group to a lively corps of swimmers trained efficiently and well by Jack Hewitt, swimming coach, on correct handling of oneself in water.
- New officers elected were Maurice Staton, president; Einar Flood, vice-president; Bill Welder, secretary; Bill Demme, corresponding secretary; Hamilton Johnson, treasurer; Don Cooper, sergeant-at-arms. In addition Dr. E. H. Kelley and Jack Hewitt were re-elected corps physician and advisor respectively.
- Members are elected from outstanding student swimmers of the college who show their ability during the year. Under the stringent training and working program of Hell Divers the swimmers become better in their different specialties and also become thoroughly familiar with all the approved types of life saving and safety methods of swimming. When Oregon State varsity swimmers entertain invading colleges in dual meets and other competition, members of this group always are handy.

Oregon State Polo club

Polo

- Polo at Oregon State is sponsored almost entirely by the R.O.T.C. For this reason larger squads than are necessary are maintained in order that as many men as possible may receive training. Most polo squads carry 12 or fewer members, the Orange squad this year averaged around 50 men for the entire year.
- Major F. W. Bowley completed his fifth and last year of coaching here this year with Lieut. F. A. Garrecht as assistant. Fall term practical horsemanship was given attention and in winter term intramural and indoor games were played. Spring term gave the mallet-swingers a chance to work on the outdoor field.
- Seven men awarded letters this year were Joel Hedgpeth, Hugh O'Neill, Louis Withers, Ray DeLancey, Al Sewall, Hal Pangle and Gordon McCrea, manager.
- Intercollegiate matches with Stanford and California were included in the Orange schedule this year. The southern teams played two games each at Oregon State winter term, and O. S. C. went south during spring term for return games. Stanford defeated the Orangemen twice here by scores of 16 to $5\frac{1}{2}$ and $19\frac{1}{2}$ to $7\frac{3}{4}$, but California lost both games to the Orangemen by scores of 23 to $10\frac{1}{2}$ and $12\frac{1}{2}$ to $5\frac{1}{2}$.

Intramural Managers

- All men students at Oregon State are encouraged to participate in athletics, and one of the most complete intramural departments in the United States has been built up for this purpose by Ralph O. Coleman, director of intramural athletics.
- Of the 1176 men enrolled in school this year 792 took part in the program. Only 989 of those in school were accounted for at the intramural office, and 80 per cent. of this group competed in at least one of the 24 sports offered by the department.
- Intramural teams are divided into two groups, fraternity teams and teams from dormitories and downtown. Each group plays for its own championship, and then the winners compete for the all-school title. Schedules are drawn up by the intramural department and all equipment is furnished.
- Statuettes are given to club and fraternity winners in each event. An all-college trophy is awarded each spring to the organization having the highest total of points for the year's competition.
- A corps of volunteer managers assists Director Coleman. Managers this year were Verne Harrison, Bob Ramsay and Crans Fosburg, seniors; Warren Gibson, junior; Bill Morris, Ken Anderson and Couch Wallace, sophomores.

Beta Theta Pi, Speedball
Phi Sigma Kappa, Sigma Delta Psi

Speedball

• Beta Theta Pi won the all-college championship in speedball this year, defeating Cauthorn hall to cop the title. Sigma Alpha Epsilon, runner-up to the champion Beta team, put up a bitter fight in the finals of the fraternity league but was defeated after two over-time periods. Bud Dockery was the stellar performer for the Beta team and was also high scorer for the entire league. Speedball was inaugurated a year ago on the intramural schedule. The game is a modified form of soccer, but it is not so strenuous.

Sigma Delta Psi

• First honors in Sigma Delta Psi, national athletic fraternity, for the 1932-1933 season were taken by Phi Sigma Kappa. Although the Phi Sigs qualified only a couple of men for membership, all-around ability of a large group in the house brought this much sought after honor. Members during 1933 were Al Van Gilse, Charles Prah, Maurice Harrison, Leon Underwood, John Alskog, Bob Williamson and Tom Haley. To become eligible for the organization students must go through three terms of athletic activities which not only prove ability in each of several sports but a great all-around knowledge of all sports.

Phi Delta Theta, All-college Track
Sigma Nu, Baseball

All-College Track

• Phi Delta Theta sent one of the strongest intramural track teams ever seen on Bell field to take the intramural title for the year of 1933. In 14 events Phi Delta Theta cindermen managed ten firsts to give them a total of 32 points. The nearest contenders in the annual spring term event was Sigma Alpha Epsilon who came in second with 24¹/₁₀ points. The turnout for all events was greater than last year. Twenty different teams, composed of different fraternities and clubs, with an individual count amounting to 126 men vied for points in the contest.

Baseball

• Playground ball took an upshoot in popularity last spring when the two contenders for the championship warmed up for the title game. Sigma Nu represented the fraternities and Cauthorn hall the independent men. Both teams had come through the season with enough wins to give them the chance to try for all-school honors and both were on their toes to win. Sigma Nu gave Cauthorn more than a stiff workout and only managed to take the championship through the stellar performance of an air-tight infield that worked like a machine.

Beta Theta Pi, Dual Swimming
Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Track Relays

Dual Swimming

• Beta Theta Pi, in keeping with its showing in other swimming events during the year, swept all competition aside and easily won the dual swimming cup for 1934 by walloping Cauthorn for the all-college title. Theta Xi offered the only real competition in the fraternity league but was unable to stop the versatile Beta splashers. Bob Runyon, sensational backstroker of the title-winners, was the star of the meet. He clipped several seconds off the old 100-foot event and posted a new mark which may stand for several years. His time was :19.8. A total of 172 men participated in the events.

Track Relays

• Sigma Alpha Epsilon runners upset the favorite Phi Delta Theta outfit to cop the annual spring track relay title. The Phi Deltas, who clipped several seconds off the record in 1932, saw their title fade away on a bright afternoon in 1933 when a quartet of speedy S. A. E. cinder churners nosed out a victory at the tape. The winning team was Hal Moe, Charles Hoskins, Ralph Olsen and Tom Haley. Each man has to carry the baton around the track once before passing it to his teammate for the next 220-yard stretch. Fine weather conditions aided the winners in their drive to the title.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Touch Football
Theta Xi, Cross country

Touch Football

• A lone touchdown in the final few minutes of play gave Sigma Alpha Epsilon the 1933 touch football championship over the strong Buxton hall team. The contest was marked by rough play throughout and was just about even until Leon Underwood broke loose on a wide end-around play to dash nearly half the length of the gridiron for the lone score. Sigma Pi was runner-up in the fraternity league but failed to show much strength against the all-college champions. Buxton had a tough time reaching the final round and managed to do so only after a thrilling struggle with Prokyon club.

Cross Country

• The speedy Theta Xi cindermen pounded their way into first place in the all-college cross country event with a total of 364 points. Their win took the two-year champions of Cauthorn out of the play for a third possession of the cup. Cauthorn ran up a total of 352 points for the season. Dave Shephard, Alpee, turned in the lowest time for the two-mile course with a time of 10:01. This annual competition is proving more valuable each year in the development of distance runners for the varsity track team. Many of the outstanding milers and two-milers on the varsity have gotten their training in this event.

Theta Xi, TurkeyRun
Phi Gamma Delta, Golf
Jack Graham, S. P. E., Ping Pong

Intramural Department

Turkey Run

- Theta Xi swept all competition aside and won the annual fall term turkey run by amassing a total of 299 points. A new course record was set by Dave Shepard, Alphee, who defeated all other individual contenders but the solo win was not enough to defeat the Theta Xi group.

Golf

- Don Johnson and Henry Brands, Phi Gamma Delta golfing stars, won their second intramural title in the spring of 1933 when they drove to victory over Delta Upsilon in the finals. They are the strongest two-some that has been in intramural golf since its inception.

Ping Pong

- Jack Graham, Sigma Phi Epsilon, easily eliminated Elmo Cox, Beta Kappa, in the finals of the all-school pingpong tourney to win the cup in a field of 105 entries. This is the second time S. P. E. has won in succession.

Beta Theta Pi, Dual Swim Relays
 Lambda Chi Alpha, Foul Throwing

All-school Wrestling Champs

Intramural Department

Swimming Relays

• Beta Theta Pi set a new all-college swimming record of 1:22.4 when they splashed to victory in the winter swim relays. Delta Upsilon was second and Theta Xi third. Fred Moss, Lewis Burris, Don Bennett, Stewart Mayo and Bob Runyon swam for the Betas'.

Foul Throwing

• Lambda Chi Alpha converted 333 out of a possible 400 foul throws to snap up the intramural championship during fall term and to set a new intramural record in that event. Delta Upsilon come in second. Hal Higgs, Lambda Chi Alpha, showed a steady eye and took individual honors.

Wrestling

• The six wrestling crowns this year went to the following men: Kenneth Boyle, 125, Alpha Sigma Phi; Amo DeBernardis, 135, Poling; John Herbert, 145, Sigma Phi Sigma; Bill Patrick, 158, Phi Delta Theta; Romar Stein, 175; and Stan McClurg, unlimited, Kappa Sigma.

Hesperian Club, Handball

Delta Sigma Phi, Volleyball
Phi Gamma Delta, Tennis

Intramural Department

Volleyball

- Delta Sigma Phi breezed through to its first volleyball championship winter term by easily defeating Cauthorn hall for the all-college title. Delta Upsilon offered the biggest barrier for the winners in the fraternity league but lost in the Greek finals.

Handball

- Hesperian club pulled one of the major intramural upsets of the season by defeating Kappa Sigma for the all-college handball championship. Owen Davis and Harold Hertz played sensational ball for the winners and led the field all the way.

Tennis

- Phil Brandt and Jim Moe captured the all-school intramural tennis championship for Phi Gamma Delta last spring by defeating Martin Leidig and John Wilkins, Delta Upsilon, in the finals, 6-2, 6-3.

Hesperian Club, Basketball
All-school Boxing Champs

Beta Theta Pi, All-college Swimming

Intramural Department

Basketball

• Given only an outside chance to win, the Hesperian basketball quintet upset all the dope by defeating the strong Sigma Nu five, fraternity winner and defending champion, by a record-low score of 11 to 8. Chester Kebbe, Hesperian center, was the big gun in the victors' attack.

Boxing

• Winners of the all-school boxing tournament were John Bergen, 126 pounds; Dave Perkins, 135 pounds; Jack Lyons, 147 pounds; Norman Franklin, 160 pounds; Russ Acheson, 175 pounds, and Frank Little, heavyweight. Nearly fifty men entered the meet.

Swimming Meet

• Beta Theta Pi made it a clean sweep in all intramural swimming events for the year when it won the all-college meet held at the close of winter term. The stellar Beta team took all but two first places.

REVISED 1988

- Crack military bands are featured in the many parades during the days devoted to the salutation of the rose in Portland. This year Canadian marching organizations will supply martial music.

ORGANIZATIONS

Portland Rose Festival

- Many new features should add interest to the 1934 Rose Festival which will be held June 11 to 14, making it one of the largest and most popular in the history of the annual fete. The Canadian Legion convention will be held in Portland during that time and the programs of the two events will be blended. Crack bands and uniformed marching bodies of Legionnaires will add gaiety and color to the festivities. Besides the ever-popular grand floral parade there will be a junior festival pageant in which thousands of kiddies will participate; knighting ceremonies in which distinguished guests will be knighted; a military exhibition, and a huge illuminated marine pageant on the Willamette. One of the features added to the week of festivities this year is the Junior Olympic games. This event is planned for the benefit of and participated in wholly by the youngsters of Portland.

- Another outgrowth of interest in the theme flower of the Festival is the international rose test gardens established several years ago in Washington Park. These rose testing grounds have won world-wide fame.

- In 1915 the Royal Rosarians, an organization with an elaborate ritual in which homage to the "Realm of Rosaria" is featured, was formed by 100 prominent Portland business men. Knights of the Realm, when knighted with elaborate ceremony, swear allegiance to the Realm, and to each is assigned a rose which the member pledges to cultivate and foster. So popular has this organization become that the membership has been increased to 200. The Royal Rosarians have become sponsors of the annual Festival and have charge of the coronation ceremony and the grand floral parade.

Student Organizations

• Organizations exist as social outlets for students on the Oregon State campus, as rewards for work well done in some particular field or for general high scholarship. Different clubs offer opportunities for anyone interested to develop himself along special lines of work. Approximately 25 honor societies, most of them national in scope, elect annually from the student body a limited number of those who have maintained a superior scholarship and possess qualities of leadership and personal character. Membership in these various groups is highly prized and the all-around experience gained by work in the fraternities make them worth while indeed. Every type of activity is connected with clubs, the membership of which consists of anyone desirous of learning more about the type of work or hobby in which he is most interested. Activity in the various clubs may lead to election to honor fraternities. Of course, books and activities are not the only interests which occupy the minds of the average college men and women.

• The campus boasts of 44 sororities and fraternities and two dormitories, one for women and one for men. These offer splendid facilities at a reasonable cost and help to foster a finer spirit in group living. Group living offers social advantages which may not otherwise be acquired while in school. Altogether membership in organizations, whether they be social or honor groups, offers a maximum of benefits to students in giving them the best that may be obtained in college life and in preparing them for the work they wish after they have graduated from Oregon State.

• "Alpha Delta Sigma, national professional advertising fraternity, was established at Oregon State college in 1926. Membership is drawn from the managers of the various campus publications, the advertising managers or from those men who major in advertising and selling. The fraternity sponsors meetings with men who are actively engaged in advertising throughout the State. Each chapter is named after some prominent newspaper or advertising man. The name the chapter is to bear is selected by the chapter at the time of its installation. The chapter on this campus is the Herbert T. Vance chapter. Alpha Delta Sigma is well represented by many of the prominent advertising men of Oregon."

• "The primary purpose of Alpha Lambda Delta, national scholastic honor society for sophomore women, is to stimulate scholarship among underclass women. With this stress during the first two years there is a stepping stone to upperclass honor societies and to the higher goal of Phi Kappa Phi. Our chapter was founded on the Oregon State campus in the spring of 1933 by a group of sophomore women who felt the need of some definite reward for freshmen women who had maintained a high grade average during their first year. The national organization was founded in 1924 and has spread rapidly. It now has chapters in most of the major colleges and universities in the United States."

• "Alpha Tau Delta, national honor society in nursing, endeavors to form a strong bond or union among those women who are taking a combined college and nursing course. It fosters the building of those ideals and sentiments which make for a lasting success in a nurse's life. Only students pursuing the five-year course in nursing are eligible for membership. The Oregon State college chapter was organized in the spring of 1933 as a branch of the Eta chapter of the University of Oregon. This year the organization has sponsored the bringing of doctors and nurses from different parts of the State to their regular meetings to discuss different phases of nursing."

• "Alpha Zeta is a national professional fraternity in agriculture. The purpose of the organization is to promote the profession of agriculture by fostering and developing high standards of scholarship, character, leadership and a spirit of fellowship among agricultural men. The activities of the chapter center around helping the school of agriculture. There are four classes of membership—student, Alumni, associate and honorary. Student membership is from the upper two-fifths of the junior and senior classes. The chapter at Oregon State college was established in 1918. • "Orchesis, national honorary society in dancing, is one of the few national organizations which has no national officers or dues. The original chapter was founded at the University of Wisconsin many years ago and since that time each graduate in physical education has founded a chapter on the campus to which she went. The purpose of the organization is to create and maintain more interest in 'The Dance' and to show that through dancing a beautiful body as well as high mental aspirations may be developed. Each year the local chapter sponsors the Dance Recital winter term and the Spring Festival which is presented during Mothers' weekend. At these affairs Orchesis members give both group and individual dances."

• "Phi Chi Theta is a national honor fraternity for junior and senior women who are specializing in commercial subjects. The local chapter was established on the campus in 1920 and is one of the oldest national honor fraternities at Oregon State. The fraternity has for its purpose the fostering of high ideals and cooperation among college women who intend to go into business as a career. In an endeavor to encourage scholarship among the women students in business administration and commercial subjects the chapter presents ten dollars in gold to the sophomore woman who, during her freshman year, maintained the highest average among the entire class of first-year commercial students.

• "Phi Kappa Phi is a national all-college scholastic honor society corresponding to Phi Beta Kappa which exists only in liberal arts colleges. The primary objects of this organization are to emphasize the scholarship side of life in the minds of the students and to stimulate mental achievement by the honor of selection to membership. An exceptionally high average is essential for initiation. The group stands for the unity and democracy of learning. It is not the aim of the society to interfere or to compete with other societies by action or purpose but to aid them and at the same time to further its own purpose. Phi Kappa Phi was founded on the Oregon State campus in 1924."

• "Phi Lambda Upsilon, a national honor fraternity in chemical engineering, has as its purpose the promotion of high scholarship and original investigation in all branches of pure and applied chemistry. Phi Lambda Upsilon chooses its members from those students who have chosen chemistry as a major and whose ability and personality have made them outstanding. It is a tribute to industry and a recognition of achievement to have been selected for membership in this organization. The chapter of Phi Lambda Upsilon at Oregon State college was founded in 1927. Since that time its activities have made it one of the most desirable and worthwhile honors in the field of chemistry."

• "In the spring of 1933 the former Oregon State college mathematics club joined with the University of Oregon chapter of Pi Mu Epsilon, national honor fraternity in mathematics, to become a branch of that group. Members are chosen from those men and women who are taking upper-division mathematics courses who have received high grades in those courses and who have also had above-average all-round scholarship. At meetings during the year members of the group and outside speakers present mathematical treatises of much interest to the group in that the speeches deal with mathematical history or bring up present problems which are related to mathematics."

• "Scabbard and Blade is a national military honor fraternity which was established on the Oregon State college campus in 1920. The aims of the organization are to raise the standard of military training in American colleges and universities and at the same time to increase the standards of those taking the training as American citizens. The fraternity also attempts to unite the students in closer relationship to the military departments; to encourage and foster the development of the essential qualities of good and efficient officers, and to promote intimacy and good fellowship among the cadet officers. Members are chosen from the outstanding men taking advanced R.O.T.C. work."

• "Sigma Alpha is a national honor fraternity for men in physical education and has the honor to be the only national fraternity founded at Oregon State. The society was founded in 1923 and in 1928 became national in scope when representatives of several western colleges and universities met in Los Angeles and organized as a national. The purpose of the group is to develop professional spirit, interest and fellowship among the men who intend to take up coaching or other lines of physical education. The Oregon State chapter has turned out a number of outstanding men since it has been organized and is instrumental in bringing physical educators to address the group on methods of instruction."

Our aim is not only to honor women with membership in the organization but also to keep their interest in journalism ever growing after they become a part of the group. We edit the co-ed Barometer during Mothers' weekend and in that paper attempt to give a resume of feminine life on the campus. Matrix table, to which we invite faculty members and prominent students on the campus, is another yearly project for which we bring a speaker who presents a subject of interest to the group."

• "Sigma Tau is a national professional society for engineers and has been established at Oregon State college since 1913. Members are taken into Sigma Tau when they have proved that they are outstanding both in point of scholastic achievement, activity and desire to know more about their profession than may be obtained in classrooms. Attainments of men now in the engineering field are also recognized by initiation, so that some members are not taken in when they are in college. Local graduates of the school of engineering who have been members of Sigma Tau have gained high rating in their chosen profession. The society brings many outstanding engineers to the campus to deliver addresses."

• "The Oregon State college chapter of Intercollegiate Knights, a national honor and service organization for sophomore men, is known as the Beaver Knights. Members are chosen at the close of the school year from those freshmen who have been outstanding during their first year in school. The group acts as a 'pep and tradition' committee for the college. Members instruct the new freshmen in songs, yells and traditions of the school. We see that rooks wear green lids and attend all traditional college functions. The Beaver Knights in conjunction with the Rally committee receive and entertain visiting athletic teams and function at all college events."

• "Talons, local service honor society for sophomore women, was founded at Oregon State in the spring of 1933, at which time the local chapter of Spurs, national service group, went out of existence. The purpose of Talons is to promote all activities in which the student body takes part and the upholding of all institutional traditions. The rookies are under special charge of the society which enforces the green ribbon tradition and sees that freshmen women attend convocations. New members are chosen from the freshman class Mothers' weekend and are initiated at the end of spring term by the retiring officers. New members selected are those who have been outstanding as freshmen."

- In place of the more formal designation—"Daughters of the Temple"—Temenids is the official title given to the national social organization for Eastern Star women on college campi. Since its establishment on the Oregon State campus in 1922, Aleph chapter of Temenids has fostered many activities of a lighter nature which help to bring the women of Oregon State together.
- Perhaps the climax of the year's activities is "Kensington." It is an affair given each season by Mrs. Kate W. Jameson, dean of women, and after a short tea moves rapidly from shop talk to an enjoyable sewing party. Besides the entertainment value of this annual event, a great deal of real work is done for needy Eastern Star women.
- Regular meetings are held twice a month with either parties or dinners following completion of business. In addition initiations are held, one during fall term and another either winter or spring term.
- Under the leadership of Grace Workman, president, the organization was extremely active during the the last year and carried out many activities for the betterment of the organization as a whole as well as for the individual members themselves. A great deal of the success of the yearly program depends on the very efficient Mrs. S. H. Peterson, faculty advisor for the group.

4-H Club

A. S. A. E.

• The Oregon Student Branch of American Society of Agricultural Engineers, through the co-operation of several commercial companies and their own efforts, made a tour by bus to the World's Fair in Chicago last summer. Nineteen students, who made the trip, started plans for the tour two years ago and raised $400 of the expense money with a corn crop which they planted and marketed. While on the trip several farm implement companies were visited as well as the convention of American Society of Agricultural Engineers. The purpose of the society is primarily educational with stress placed upon actual conditions and materials used in connection with farming.

• The 4-H club, an organization of students who were club members prior to registration in college, stimulates interest in 4-H club work at Oregon State college. Active membership in this group, in addition to creditable scholarship, prepares students for pledging to Mu Beta Beta, local honor society in 4-H club work. Leadership training is fostered through committees which conduct special radio programs over station KOAC. The club also aids with the convention of 4-H clubbers from all over the State who come to the campus each year in the early part of the summer for a two-week short course. Several Union Pacific scholarship winners are attending Oregon State this year.

Forestry Club
Annual Cruise Staff

Forestry Club

Kermit Linstedt, president
Stanley Bishoprick, vice-president
Joe Lammi, treasurer
Dick Bottcher, secretary

- The forestry club is maintained to build up a better group fellowship and interest in forestry between the faculty and the students in the school of forestry. All men registered in this school automatically become members of the forestry club. Two of the most important events which the club sponsors are Arboretum day and the annual club banquet. Arboretum day is held each term at the Peavy Arboretum where students get the practical side of their education by direct contact with the various trees in the arboretum tract. At the banquet which was held in February, C. J. Buck, regional forester for Oregon and Washington and a Yale graduate, spoke on "The Expanding Fields of Forestry."

The Annual Cruise

George Burnett, editor
Stanley Bishoprick, manager

- The Annual Cruise, a forestry publication, is put out every spring term by members of the school of forestry. This year the Cruise will be dedicated to George W. Peavy, dean of their school and acting president of Oregon State college. The magazine will deal with all manner of subjects of most interest to foresters, including various articles about the activities of the school of forestry in general and about the forestry club. The field trip which the foresters take during spring term to the Pacific Logging Congress in Portland and in Cathlamet, Washington, will also be discussed. George Burnett is editor of the 1934 edition and Stanley Bishoprick is manager.

• The American Society of Mechanical Engineers was formed to promote a feeling of friendship and cooperation between the practicing and student engineers, and the student branch at Oregon State college exists to further that good fellowship. An annual convention with representatives from Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana, the purpose of which is to make special trips to industrial plants and to form closer contact with the student engineers from other schools, was held in Seattle this year during spring term. At a meeting in Portland prizes were given to students who wrote outstanding technical papers. A joint meeting was also held in Corvallis to discuss problems of current interest.

• The Oregon State college student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers was established in 1925. The national organization, founded in 1852, is the oldest professional engineers' society in existence. Prominent engineers of the northwest who are outstanding as State or consulting engineers are guests at different monthly meetings at which they discuss engineering enterprises in a technical or non-technical fashion, depending on the nature of the subject matter. The organization holds a Sunday morning breakfast once each quarter in order to discuss general educational topics under the guidance of faculty members or prominent engineers.

• The Oregon State chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers was organized in 1932. Its main purpose is to provide both professional and social contact between members of the chemical engineering profession and students. Different phases in the far-reaching importance of chemical engineering are discussed at monthly meetings at which outstanding faculty members and chemical engineers are guest speakers. Each year a prize is awarded to the most outstanding freshman in chemical engineering by the organization. Thurston Yokum was president of the society this year and G. W. Gleeson was of great assistance to the organization in his capacity as faculty advisor.

A. I. E. E.

Everett Harrington, president
Ray Gallagher, vice-president
Kenneth Klein, secretary
Rudolph Thielemann, treasurer
Clyde Robinson, junior vice-president
Alvin Funk, chairman of safety committee
F. O. McMillan, counsellor

• Membership in the Oregon State college chapter of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, a student branch of the national organization, entitles the students to a subscription to the monthly magazine, "Electrical Engineering," and other valuable and worthwhile privileges. They frequently invite out-of-town men to their regular meetings which are held approximately once a month, to speak before the members on various subjects related to electrical engineering. All meetings of the group are informal, and student members are given the opportunity of making personal contacts with speakers who are practical engineers in the field of electrical engineering.

Ellen Hanson, treasurer
F. W. Parr, faculty advisor

• The will of the late Dr. Bernard Daly of Lake county provided that a sum should be set aside so that young people from that county might attend a school of higher learning. Under the terms governing the administration of the fund each of the students receives necessary college expenses to a maximum of $600 each year. As a result of Dr. Daly's foresight more than 30 students from Lake county attend Oregon State college under the benefits of the Daly fund. These students have banded themselves together into an organization called the Bernard Daly club, whose purpose is to further the interest in the development of Lake county and to promote higher scholarship while in school.

Pharmaceutical Association

Henry Levinger, president
Wellington Pollock, vice-president
Valerie Bolton, secretary
George Palmer, treasurer
Dean Adolph Zieffe, faculty advisor

• All students registered in the school of pharmacy automatically become members of the Pharmaceutical association. It has for its purpose the promotion of a closer contact between students and faculty in the school. Outstanding men in the field of pharmacy are often guests of the organization to bring them subjects of interest. Films, too, are sometimes shown at meetings to demonstrate more clearly the importance of the work of the pharmacist. Actual practice in various lines of pharmacy work is also shown. General pharmaceutical activities are promoted during the school year with the object of building a stronger interest in professional attainment.

THOROUGH AND CONSCIENTIOUS EFFORTS TO PLAN
ECONOMICAL Quality YEARBOOKS

320 S. W. BROADWAY

PORTLAND, OREGON

A P P R E C I A T I O N

- The Editor of Volume XXVIII Beaver wishes to acknowledge appreciation to . . .
- Editor E. T. Reed for his writings in the opening section and aiding in the gathering of material for other sections of the book.
- Allan Rinehart of the Beaver Engraving company for his advice, extra time and energy that assured the book of its production. Especially, for his work in supplying material for the Rose Festival theme and making contacts, without which the volume could not have been complete.
- Donald Abbott for his constant attention to details in printing and excellent advice in composition and layouts. W. J. Maguire, J. A. Mackinnon and A. P. Blankholm are thanked for their excellent work and interest in Volume XXVIII.
- Dr. H. R. Laslett and Sergeant C. C. Woodberry for their encouragement and votes of confidence long before editorial responsibilities came to the editor.
- Howells Studio for their willingness to expend time and energy to aid in the completion of Volume XXVIII Beaver.
- Wayne Bagley and his distinctive and clever art work, and especially for his work in planning layouts.
- Worth Caldwell for his aid and cooperation and for giving the editorial staff access to files and pamphlets pertaining to the Rose Festival.

Editor

A P P R E C I A T I O N

- Were it not for the kind cooperation of our friends in Corvallis and Portland who offered needed advice and tendered helpful suggestions, the management of this publication would have been made more difficult.
- On behalf of the managerial staff I wish to personally thank the following people:
 - Mr. Carl Lodell, Graduate Manager, for his guidance in business procedure and school policy.
 - Mr. E. B. Lemon, Registrar, and Mrs. Ruth Wagner, Cashier, for their cooperation in connection with the sales campaign plan and sale.
 - Mr. Allan Rinehart who generously gave his time to help the staff make valued acquaintances in Portland.
 - Mr. Charles Stidd, President of the Advertising Club of Portland, for the opportunity to present our medium before the advertising people in Portland.
 - Mr. Worth Caldwell, Secretary of the Portland Rose Festival Association, who made arrangements for publicity.
- The loyal supporters of Oregon State who have extended themselves in their subscription of advertising space deserve much credit for their cooperation. Without such kind friends, this publication might have been seriously curtailed.
- And finally, the managerial staff points with pride to the manner in which the living groups and the honor societies contributed their share in the purchase of pages to make this edition one which we trust is truly representative of this year on our campus.
