"Sold, for eighteen dollars!"

This bicycle, along with 68 others, was sold Tuesday during a bike sale held at the city shops. Jerry Hortsch (left), city finance director, auctioned the bikes with the help of Dick Ott, a city worker. The sale, which is usually held three times a year, disposes of unlicensed, unclaimed bicycles that have been picked up by the City police. Tuesday's sale brought prices ranging from $4 to $40.

Instructor preference gets trial

By Dennis Roler
Barometer Writer

Pre-registration for winter term will give students a chance to show a preference for an instructor for the first time — but it won't count.

During pre-registration on Tuesday, Dec. 7, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., the same procedure for registration except for this new feature will be used.

Pre-registration will be held in Gill Coliseum for all currently enrolled students on a set time schedule found in the 1971-72 Schedule of Classes.

Departments which have multiple section courses will automatically be provided with a set of pre-punched preference cards for each instructor.

At the department's option, cards will be given to each student requesting a multiple section course with a listed instructor.

The preference card should be placed immediately behind the particular course request card in the registration packet.

The instructor preference card procedure is an experiment only, however, and will not be used in the actual sectioning of the student body. The data collected will be used to test the program during winter term.

The results of the test will help determine when the program could become fully operational.

"We'll see how it works out and how many students participate in the procedure to see how effective it is," said Wallace Gibbs, registrar.

The scheduled pre-registration is on Tuesday, Dec. 7, but students can register any time after their scheduled registration time, Tuesday through Friday, without being penalized.

Gibbs said that after Tuesday, registration will not be centered in Gill Coliseum, however. After Tuesday, the student must first go to the individual department and then to the registrar's office in order to register.

The question of whether there will be classes or not that day is still not resolved.

A petition was circulated by University students asking the administration to cancel classes on pre-registration day.

The petition was presented to David Nicodemus, dean of faculty, last week by the students circulating it.

Jim Wigget, ASOSU first vice-president, said that the petition and the possibility of no classes on pre-registration day was considered Tuesday night by the ASOSU Senate.

Ecuador film tonight

Adventurer-photographer Hugh Pope will present a film on one of the least known countries in South America and its Pacific archipelago, "Ecuador and Darwin's Galapagos," Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Home Ec auditorium. Doors will open at 7:30.

This will be the first number in the 1971-72 World Around Us travel film series sponsored by Student Activities. Admission prices are $1.50 for adults and .75 for students.

Pope's all-color film begins in Quito, second highest mountain capital in the world where Spanish traditions are still very much part of everyday life. The sequences continue to Otavalo, named after the Indians who inhabit the village, where native markets are shown with ponchos, shawls and blankets made from wool spun on hand looms.

Car rallye planned

A car rallye, Tower I, is being presented by the OSU Sports Car Club. Any type of car is eligible for the 3 to 3 and one-half hour, 120 mile rallye.

The cars will register at 11 a.m. on December 5, at the Gill Coliseum parking lot. The first car will leave at noon. There will be an entry fee of $2 per car.

Pre-registration may be mailed to OSU Sports Car Club, P.O. Box 451, Corvallis.

As a trial period

Senate okays class Dec. 7

By Carol Bigelow
Barometer Writer

Student senate will recommend to the administration to hold classes Dec. 7, the day of pre-registration after action taken at Tuesday night's meeting. The vote was nine to 19.

The main point in favor of holding classes was that this was to be used as a test period to see if the idea worked. Some senators commented that there was a lack of communication about how the system would work and this was the reason for the dissent. Others noted that efficiency would be lost by holding classes that day.

A $675 budget for OSU Review, the campus literary magazine was passed by the senate. The Review staff has asked for $875. Salaries for the editor and business manager were cut as well as business supplies.

The Review sold 285 copies last year of 700 printed which was the basic premise for questioning the funding of the magazine.

A proposal by ASOSU president Ron Wilkinson was passed to be sent to faculty senate for consideration Thursday. The proposal supports a drop procedure for classes as follows: 1. A student may drop a course with his dean's approval through the third week; 2. after the third week and until the first day of dead week, a student may drop a course with the approval of his Dean and his instructor. No 'W' grade will be recorded.

Faculty senate is considering going back to the old procedure of petitioning after the sixth week and this is a counter-proposal.

Campaign regulation bill passed, which will eliminate all campaign signs of campus during elections. Display boards are to be established, with plans drawn up by the end of winter term.

Comments on the bill from senators included that other means of communication could be used for campaigning and perhaps this would stimulate initiative in the candidates.

Those opposing the bill suggested limiting the number of signs, but not eliminating them all together, since signs generate a feeling of an election and add to the campaign.

Phase II will have 'a very basic change'

According to Anthony Birch, University budget officer, there is "a very basic change" between Phase I and Phase II of President Nixon's economy plan regarding academic employees on campus.

He said that academic employees of the University who were affected by the Phase I price and wage freeze will receive their raises approved last July.

The raises, however, will be effective only from Nov. 15 when the freeze was lifted, he said.

According to David Nicodemus, dean of faculty, the number of academic employees affected by Phase I was about 1,100 most of which are on nine month appointments.

This Phase II situation may be modified though, according to Birch. "We're still in a situation of expecting further developments from the chancellor's office."

Junior Class asking for ideas for concert

The junior class wants input from students as to who they would like to see at their spring term concert, according to Tom Corlett, junior class president.

Everyone is asked to fill out either the ad appearing in today's Barometer or a separate sheet of paper listing their first three choices as to what group or person they would like to be featured at the early spring concert.

All choices should be turned in to the Activity Center no later than Dec. 10.

Corlett said results of the questionnaire will be made available for publication once they are compiled.

He explained that the junior class will make every possible effort to work with Encore and Irwin Harris, director of public events, in attempting to bring the requested performers to campus.

Faculty senate should follow ASOSU senate pleas on drops

The Faculty Senate meets Thursday, and on its agenda is a recommendation to discontinue the interim policy of allowing withdrawal from classes through the Friday before dead week.

If it approves that report, it will be thwarting a plea from the ASOSU Senate. And it will be denying a number of students who have found the later drop date beneficial to their academic opportunities.

The ASOSU Senate recommended last spring that the drop date be extended later in the term. Instead of approving that, the administration came up with a plan to allow withdrawal from classes up to the Friday before dead week.

What that means is that you can drop a class through the sixth week of the term, without it appearing on your transcript. After that, with prof and adviser's permission, you can withdraw from a class with a W grade.

The report asks to revert back to the six-week drop date, with withdrawals allowed after that date by petition only. That means going through more red tape, and your petition probably would be denied.

The report says dropping a class after six weeks, unless it is for reasons outside a student's control, suggests that "a lack of determination and responsibility prevails." And it notes that students should be able to determine their adaptability to the class by the end of the sixth week.

What if the prof doesn't return the test taken in the fourth week until eight weeks are gone by? Does this suggest a lack of responsibility by the student?

The question of responsibility on the part of the student is far overshadowed by the fact that academic standards are not impaired, as the report shows. Faculty Senate ought to consider this when it takes up the drop-date proposal.

Playboy pushes registration

Getting the young people to register to vote since the 32nd amendment was passed has been a big problem.

The problem of time and money needed to conduct a national campaign is so large that only local campaigns have been organized and these haven't been adequate to mobilize the youth.

But now the Playboy Foundation is sponsoring a nationwide "register to vote" campaign. The brunt of this drive is centered towards the country's colleges.

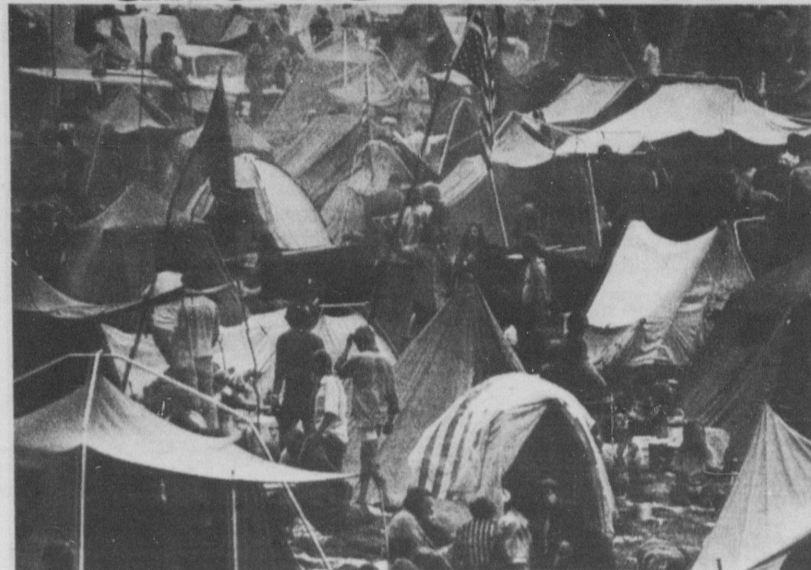

At each university and college posters have been distributed by volunteers to greek houses, dorms and other living units.

Also booklets about student voting rights are being distributed to university student presidents, newspaper editors and other officers of the universities.

The Playboy Foundation is doing this project solely for the purpose of getting the youth of the country registered. They are getting no remuneration for their posters and are not asking for free publicity for the Palyboy Foundation.

As the Barometer has been urging students all year to register, the effort now has been taken up by a much larger and stronger organization. Hopefully students will take advice from the Foundation and register to vote.

Task force wants satisfaction

Editor:

As co-chairman of the President's Task Force on Recreation Facilities and Programs, I was glad to see the good Barometer coverage on the proposed coeducational physical recreation building.

To clarify a few points, the proposed building has been authorized $1,805,000, which really isn't that much, from the Oregon State Board of Higher Education. Every student in Oregon's eight state colleges pays $10 per student per term, OSU contributes approximately $450,000 per year, for funds which are distributed to the schools. OSU students will probably pay for the maintenance of the new facilities, which will approximately increase incidental fees $2 per student per term.

There has been some misunderstanding that the new coed physical recreation building is to be for physical education. The main priority of the building will be what the students need for intramurals and recreation.

What to put inside the four walls of this proposed structure is only one charge given to the task force by MacVicar, but it is the most urgent issue. At pre-registration Tuesday, a questionnaire will be distributed and collected concerning the students needs in this area.

Why should the students be concerned? It is your $30 per year that is paying for the proposed facility. OSU students have finally got the long needed money for an intramural-recreation building, but the task force would like to make sure that the students are satisfied with the results.

What each OSU student should be doing right now is making himself aware of the existing facilities and programs, knowing his preferences when asked, and telling the right people what he wants.

Football reflects modern ideas

Editor:

Many argue that intercollegiate athletics have no place on today's campus. I philosophically disagree, believing football to be a modern sport, an extension of a modern university.

Let a referee's call go against us and we scream, swear, stomp our feet and write protesting letters to conference commissioners. But let us be on the favorable side of a bad call, a call we know to be wrong. Do we decline the penalty like men of honor?

No! We cheat, take the yardage and go on. How typical of modern man.

So our football team is very up-to-date, very modern. Modern in its attitude towards morality, tragically modern in its ante-bellum attitude towards race.

Oregon State does not have a losing season because of referee's decisions. It has a losing season because of its own mistakes; its own fumbles, interceptions, poor coverage, missed blocks, poor play.

And besides, how important is an Arizona game? The purpose of a fall season is not a victory over Arizona. It is a Rose Bowl berth. Not a win over WSU or Oregon, after we have thrown away a game to Stanford.

Our leadership has not been sportsmanlike, let alone victorious. Clearly it is a time for a change of attitude, and hopefully a change in leadership.

'Drop' deadline Senate topic

By Jenna Dorn
Barometer Writer

A retaining of the six week drop deadline which existed prior to last spring term will be recommended at Thursday's Faculty Senate meeting by the Academic Requirements Committee.

An interim policy is in effect this term which enables a student to withdraw from a class after the six week deadline, with the approval of the instructor of the course and his adviser, and the signature of the dean of his school.

"If we return to the policy which existed prior to last spring term," said Ms. Wanda Leach, administrative assistant to the registrar, "a student would be able to drop a course up until the end of the sixth week of the term, and no drops or withdrawals would be granted after that date without the approval of the Academic Requirements Committee."

When a student withdraws from a course, as he can now do with the permission of his instructor and adviser, a W appears on his record, Ms. Leach explained. But when the student drops the course there is no record kept of his taking the class.

Last May the Faculty Senate passed a recommendation that the drop date be extended until the first day of dead week, with the permission of the instructor. An interim policy was instituted because of problems associated with the implementation of these new procedures, however.

The Academic Requirements Committee has since studied the issue and now recommends the return to the former six week drop deadline policy.

According to their report, the present interim policy creates both undesirable pressures on instructors and uncertainties for students, and leads to inequities among students.

The committee noted, however, that they did not reach unanimity in terms of the recommendation to retain the former six week drop deadline policy (R3e).

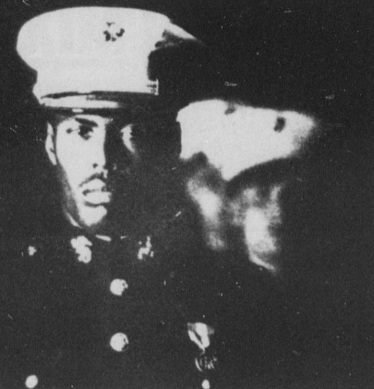

Those members of the committee who were opposed to the extension of the six week drop date stated in their report that because "10,000 student drops are processed each quarter, it is clear that much time, effort and mental turmoil are involved. Since students have the opportunity by approved petition to drop courses any time during the term when circumstances outside their control develop, all other drop activity suggests that a lack of determination and responsibilities prevails."

Another argument for a maximum drop date of six weeks, said the report, concerns the loss in teacher and student effort when class members become dropouts.

Those in favor of the extended drop date added that the costs incurred in classes which are dropped are largely borne by the affected students.

Some men just want responsibility.

A few men seek it.

The Marines are looking for a few good men. Apply now for leadership training this summer.

"The Marine Corp Officer Selection Team will be at the Administrative Services Office, Room B-008 from 9 am to 4 pm today through December 2'71 to conduct interviews for Aviation and Ground Officer programs. Undergraduates can qualify for draft deferred status."

Leaders to meet Friday

By Cathy Case
Barometer Writer

A leadership conference involving Gov. Tom McCall, various other state leaders and 21 student leaders from throughout the state will be held in Salem Friday.

Charles Dunn, student coordinator for the conference, discussed last minute plans for the conference Monday night with the governor.

They decided to invite Sen. Vic Atiyeh, who is chairman of the Education Interim Committee. He will join other officials from the Governor's office and the State Board of Higher Education at the conference.

The conference has three discussion sessions planned with prepared topics already suggested, but Dunn said these topics are for take-off purposes only. The conference will be wide open, he emphasized.

The conference will begin Friday at 12 noon with a luncheon for all delegates. This will be followed by small group discussions at 1, 2 and 3 p.m.

"Neither myself nor the Governor sees this conference as being worthwhile if it is only a one shot type thing," said Dunn. "It's just a beginning."

"I was reassured in talking with the Governor of his real interest in our education," Dunn added. "The Governor stressed his interest in the conference being very informal, a sort of an informal dialogue," he said.

The three discussion sessions will be followed by a summary of the day at about 4 p.m.

Dunn said the twenty-one student delegates from the seven state schools will meet at OSU Thursday at 9 p.m. in the administration building.

Mary's Peak road closed by landslide

The road to Mary's Peak, the highest peak in the Oregon Coastal Range, approximately 35 miles from Corvallis, has been blocked by a landslide two miles from the entrance.

The road was recently opened after being closed for over a year for reconstruction.

Until further notice the road will be closed to the public, according to Spencer T. Moore, supervisor of the Siuslaw National Forest.

Students to answer questions on rec

Students will have another form to fill out at pre-registration for winter term.

The time they take to answer it could well affect future recreational facilities at the University. The questionnaire concerns student needs and preferences regarding recreation.

The form was prepared by President Robert MacVicar's Task Force on Recreational Facilities. Anyone wanting a sneak preview of the questions before pre-registration day can find a copy of it posted on the Activity Center bulletin board.

The questionnaire surveys present student participation and attitudes towards recreational programs and facilities as well as anticipated use if the facilities are expanded.

The survey is an important criterion in what will be the task force's recommendations about what goes into the new student recreational building, scheduled to be built this summer, said Donald Sanderson, chairman of the task force.

Scholarships available to rec majors

Two $100 scholarships are being offered to qualified recreation majors at OSU and the University of Oregon.

Oregon Park and Recreation Society will give the scholarships to the students best meeting the requirements of grade point average and state residency.

Applications can be obtained from Royal Jackson, scholarships chairman for OPRS, Waldo Hall 327, recreation department.

Closing date for applying is Feb. 1, 1972.

NAACP runs local hiring survey

The President of the Corvallis Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), Calvin O.L. Henry, announced that a survey of preferred hiring practices in the Corvallis-Philomath-Albany area has been completed by the branch.

The collected data has been analyzed and mailed to all employers who have requested the information.

The chairman of the branch's Labor and Industry Committee, Mae Banks, stated that "The Corvallis Branch of NAACP was greatly encouraged by the large numbers of employers who completed and returned our questionnaire."

Guided by information derived from the questionnaire, Ms. Banks said her committee has initiated a special program known as PAACE (Personal Affirmative Action by Contacting Employers).

Employers who have part-time jobs for minority students are asked to call the NAACP office, 753-1125, between 2 and 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, or to call Ms. Banks at 752-0035.

Hawaii awaits Beavers

By Larry Langley
Barometer Writer

Six weeks of practice and a three day Hawaiian vacation have prepared the Oregon State basketball team for their 29 game campaign, which gets underway tonight in Honolulu against the Subpac Raiders, one of the outstanding service teams in Hawaii.

Coach Ralph Miller announced that he would start Freddie Boyd and Ron Jones at the guard positions, Neal Jurgenson at center and Sam Whitehead and probably Steve Ericksen at the forward spots.

"Chances are I'll start Ericksen, but Rick Reed can come off the bench without any trouble," Miller said.

"Our front line will play close to equal time. I think if we can rest Whitehead and Jurgenson here and there it will do them good. Our sixth man should get plenty of time to play."

In the varsity-Rook preview a week ago the varsity scoring was pretty even. Whitehead led the varsity with 23 points, followed by Boyd's 21, Jurgenson and Ericksen's 20 and Gary Erickson's 19 points. Rick Reed was next with 18.

Miller realizes that the offensive attack of the Beavers is there, but is not sure about the defense.

"I wasn't very impressed with their defensive play," he said. "It was a high scoring affair with comfortable leads and how do you have to play defense." This was in reference to the basketball preview.

The Subpac team is comprised of former collegiate players, who are serving their time in the armed services playing basketball. They lost four starters from the 1970-71 squad, which ran up a 22-2 win-loss mark.

The lone returning starter is Tom Henderson, a 6-5 forward from the University of California, who led the Raiders in scoring last year with a 16.5 average.

"Subpac is one of the best service teams around," Miller said. "They usually have fine personnel. They usually have 12-15 men with some college ball experience. Since they have enough men, they can substitute freely much like the pros."

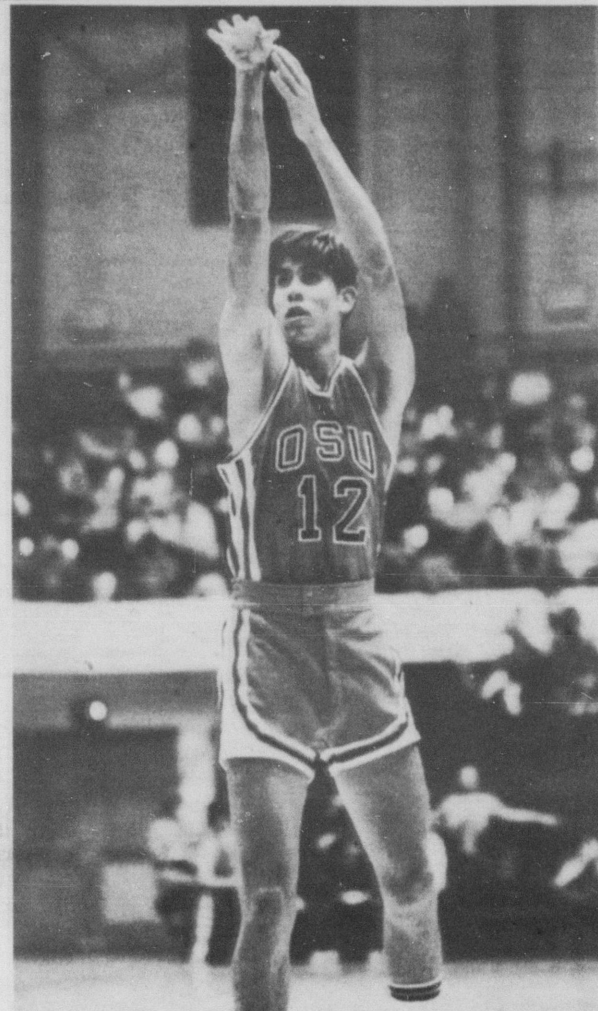

This year's Subpac team is not very tall in comparison to OSU. Their biggest man is 6-7 center, John McKee. Their forwards average 6-5 and the guards are 6-0.

The Beavers will match Subpac's lineup with a possible 6-11, 6-9, 6-6, 6-2 and 6-2 starting five, if Steve Ericksen starts.

The Subpac game is the first of a three game series in the Islands. Following their return on Sunday, the Beavers meet Idaho on Monday before leaving for Stillwater, Okla. on Thursday, Dec. 9, for a two game weekend series with Oklahoma State.

"The three games in Hawaii are as tough a three that we could find," Miller said. "But we'll gain a lot of knowledge and practice there."

Ron Jones a promising sophomore guard, will probably be in the back court this week with Freddie Boyd when the Beavers take on Subpac, the Hawaiian service team and the University of Hawaii in two games.

Wooden clarifies rule position

United Press International

Los Angeles, Calif.

UCLA's John Wooden says he couldn't tell the NCAA Rules Committee what to do even if he wanted to.

And, Wooden told the Southern California basketball writers Monday, he did not lobby for a new national collegiate rule opposed by Bob King of New Mexico.

The new NCAA rule calls for a five-second count and jump ball if a defensive player is within six feet of the offensive player in the forecourt area.

The NCAA already has a five-second count in the midcourt area.

"I'd say it would be impossible for anyone to have any influence of that type on the Rules Committee," Wooden said.

"I should know because I was on the Rules Committee for five years and there were many changes I wanted to see that were not made. I think the Rules Committee does a tremendous job."

King accused Wooden and Adolph Rupp of Kentucky of trying to protect their teams' supremacy through their influence on the Rules Committee.

The New Mexico coach said the NCAA's latest action will eventually lead to a 30-second time limit between shots. Wooden said:

"I have been advocating a 30-second rule for a number of years but I've been in favor of it only to prevent the stall game. I was not in favor of the five-second rule. I think it will make the game more difficult."

UCLA, winner of five straight national championships and seven titles in the last eight years, opens its season at home Friday night against

The Citadel. The Bruins host Iowa at Pauley Pavilion Saturday night.

Bob Boyd of University of Southern California called Wooden's club "the team to beat" in the Pacific-8 although the Bruins have only one starter back from last season's 29-1 outfit.

"The team that wins the Pac-8," Boyd said, "will have to beat UCLA. The teams that are capable of this are USC, Oregon State and Washington. Not necessarily in that order."

"If I had to pick a team to win the national championship, it would be a grab bag."

Championship on tap Added points aid OSU

The defending champion Iranian Students and Beta Theta Pi, last year's runners-up, will vie for the all-University "A" volleyball championship Wednesday night at 7:30 in the Men's Gym.

The 1970 finalists both moved into the finals again this year with convincing three set wins in the semi-finals. The Iranian Students defeated Varsity House 15-3, 15-12 and 15-4, while the Beta's dropped Weatherford 3 East 15-6, 15-7 and 15-7.

Following is a list of the time available for open use of the Men's Gym for the next two weeks:

Today — 3:45 p.m. to 9 p.m.
Thursday — 3:45 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Friday — 3 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.
Saturday — 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Monday — 3:45 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Tuesday, Wednesday — (Main gym floor will be closed for repairs, but weight room and pool will be open as usual).

Thursday, Dec. 9 — 3:45 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Friday, Dec. 10 — 3 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Saturday, Dec. 11 — 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Dale Thomas considers himself a lucky man this year and for a very good reason. Because of a rule change this year, falls are now worth six team points compared to five in previous years.

The rule is a welcome addition from Thomas' point of view because the Beavers had 45 pins last year while being pinned on only four different occasions themselves.

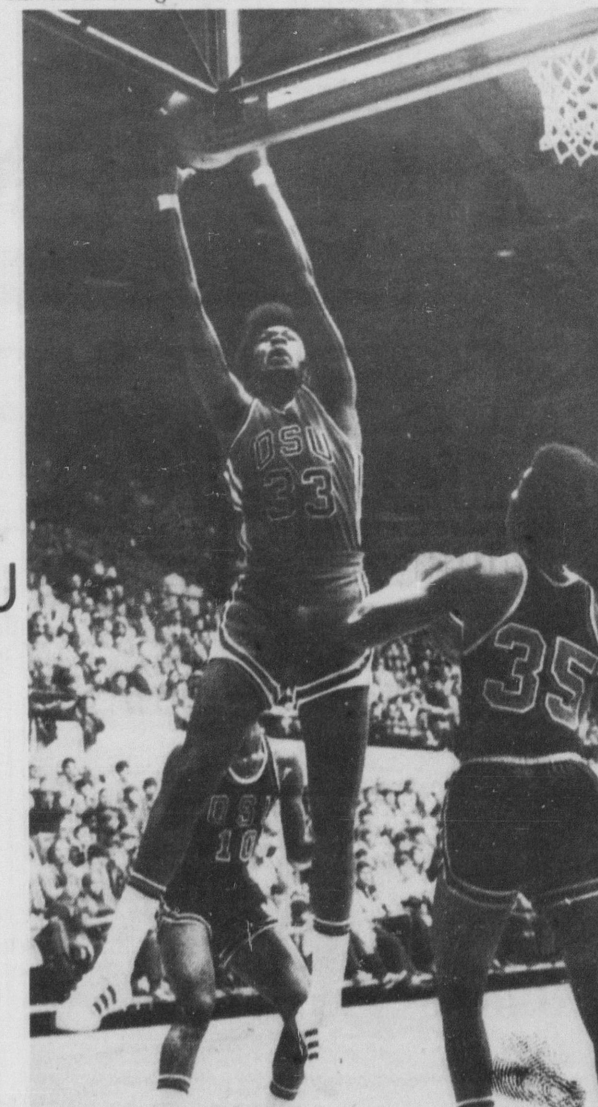

Another important change in the rules concerns decisions. In individual matches, four points will be awarded to the winning team if the decision is made by 10 or more points while three points will go to the winner if the decision is won on fewer than 10 points.

The Beavers this year while relatively free of injuries have been hard hit by the flu bug and will be without the services of some of their top performers from last year's squad.

Mike Crumbley, an NCAA runner-up two years ago, may be redshirted this year because of his bout with the virus coupled with an ankle sprain.

Mike Jones, another NCAA runner-up last year, will also miss the Arizona and California trip this weekend along with Steve Thomas.

Sam Whitehead, the Beavers leading rebounder as a sophomore last year, will be in the lineup this week for Oregon State's three road games in Hawaii. The 6-6 junior should give the Beavers great backboard strength and inside shooting.
