

Year Beaver Thinclads Meet for Duck Devastation Today

OSC Thinclads Vie in Civil War

By DON WEST
Barometer Sports Writer

The Northwest's two top-rated track teams meet today in a dual affair to take place in Eugene on Hayward Field starting at 1:00 p.m. Oregon State College and the University of Oregon resume their traditional rivalry in sports in this meet. So far this year, the Beavers have beaten the Ducks in football, retained the Chancellor's trophy in basketball, and with two games to go, have split in baseball with one game apiece.

In track, the Orangemen have pretty good chance to continue this superiority over the Ducks even though Oregon is rated as the top team. Both schools' teams are the best in many years, but for the Ducks, this not saying too much.

Oregon has long had fine track squads and have dominated the northwest in this sport for many years. Oregon State, however, has only been an "also ran" for the past decade.

This year the Beavers have finally come up with a winning team under the skillful coaching of Sam Bell. Coach Bell came up from Cottage Grove High School in 1959 to take over the head coaching duties here at OSC, and has since turned out two fine track squads.

Last year's record was two wins and two losses, a fourth place in both the Northern Division Relays, and the Northern Division Meet, eighth place in the PCC Meet, and a surprising eleventh place in the NCAA Meet. The number 11 spot in the NCAA Meet was the highest spot attained by a west coast school last year.

This year's record, however, is much better. The Beavers have won five out of seven dual meets so far, scored a third place in the ND Relays, being edged out of second by one point. The other track meets are still on the schedule, and the Orangemen are expected to place much higher than before.

Oregon State has not beaten Oregon in dual track competition since 1948, although they came close in 1949, losing by one point. After 1949 the Ducks have continually "run away" with every meet.

Taking best times only, the Ducks are favored by 12 points to beat OSC, but when two squads so evenly matched as these, anything can happen.

OSC Well Represented
Oregon State will be represented by some of the nation's best trackmen in this meet. A top 100 and 200, while Darrell Horn is an All-American in the broad jump, and only last week set a new school record in the low hurdles against the University of California.

Gary Stenlund, the Beaver's unbeaten javelin ace, is rated third in the nation's top college trackmen with a 236-6½ heave of the spear. Norm Hoffman is also among the top in the mile, 4:11.2 and the 800, 1:52.2.

Season's Best Meet
This will probably be the best track meet of the season for OSC, and Coach Bell says that the Beavers have a fine chance to win if everyone will give their support. Bell has been pushing the squad to its limit in training for this meet and each man should be in top condition.

The Oregon State Rooks will go against the Oregon Frosh in a meet running concurrently to the varsity affair. In an earlier meet this season the Rooks squeaked past the Frosh 66-65.

Officer Installations For MU Heads Set

The past year's activity council will give a brief outline of the responsibilities involved with their individual positions as they install the person who will assume their chairmanship. Dress for the affair is sport coats for the men and dressy for the women. All committee members are invited to attend.

Blue Key Gets Nine Members

Nine outstanding students at Oregon State were taken into Blue Key, national senior men's honorary, at initiation ceremonies Thursday night. A banquet in Wagner's Garden Room followed the formal initiation.

Ray Hawk, Dean of Men at the University of Oregon, was the featured speaker at the banquet. He spoke on the changes that must take place in education in future years to accommodate the expected rise in college and university enrollments.

Accompanying Hawk from the University was Walter Freauf, assistant director of dormitories at Oregon.

Turning to student leaders Hawk said it isn't enough to be popularly voted to a position of leadership. What is necessary is for the leaders "to stand up and be counted." By this he meant, "stomp on some toes. You may have won a popularity contest to get your position but to do the position justice you are bound to make enemies. This is necessary to be a leader."

Hawk brought out the need for good student leaders in our schools of tomorrow. He also discussed the need for revamping high school curricula to better prepare students for higher education. He noted the continuing change in requirements for entrance to colleges and universities using Oregon and Oregon State as examples.

Closing his speech Hawk said that it isn't enough any more to be satisfied with four years of college. He suggested the need for further education, bringing out the examples of those in attendance at the banquet who were continuing their education after graduating this year.

Those initiated into Blue Key were Terry Lehman, Gwil Evans, Dick Roy, Dick Seideman, Larry Baugh, Bill Looney, Mike Griggs, Tom White, and Darrell Horn.

Men are selected for the organization on the basis of their achievements in a academic and extra-curricular activities and on the basis of their leadership potential. New members are selected each spring term and again at the beginning of fall term.

Packed House Sees Comedy

By MARY JO BAILEY
Barometer Exchange Editor
With 24 cast members, over half of them new to Playhouse productions, "Mr. Roberts" delighted a full house at its premier Thursday night. The packed play was certainly a triumph for the Playhouse staff.

Mike Harris was versatile as the well-liked, melancholy lieutenant JG, Mr. Roberts. No newcomer to the OSC stage, Harris proved his experience by his ease of presentation.

Lazy, likeable laundry and morale officer, Ensign Pulver, portrayed by Howie Smith, was the brightest interpretation of a long many bright performances. Maybe some of his naturalness as a Navy man may be attributed to his four years at the Submarine Base, Pearl Harbor.

Commons Shows Talent
A small but distinctive part gave Sandra Commons a chance to show off her talents as "Red Label" Lieutenant Ann Girard. Always Convincing, Jack Knutson gave a realistic performance as the unreasonable Captain. He huffed and puffed about the stage and generally stirred up the crew as well as the audience.

Other members of the cast who performed so well together as a group are Gary Nielsen, Tom Shuehl, Mike Burton, Bob Watrous, Bob Greenwood, Mickey Simonson, Jerry Carlton, Hayes Anderson, Conrad Heintzelman, Bud Root, Bill McCarthy, Dale Wynn, Don Hawley, Jim Goodrich, Dick Staub, Jack Fontenot, Bud Reed, Fred Sterk, Dick Ennes and Ken Shaw.

Henry Deserves Credit
D. R. Henry, deserves much credit for his direction of the play as he successfully welded the 24 member cast into a working unit. E. S. Cortright was responsible for the stage setting which was unique. One scene featured a ships deck. A large and permanent hole was cut in the stage floor so that the men would be able to climb in and out of the ship's boiler decks.

The Navy theme was carried out into the audience as men from the OSC Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps handled tickets at the door and escorted playgoers to their seats.
All performances for "Mr. Roberts" have been sold out since the first day of sales.
Next production, "The Importance of Being Earnest" will debut May 26 and run through May 28.

Cheat Study Being Made

Academic honesty forms, whose purpose is to discover trends in cheating at Oregon State, will be passed out at 9 a.m. classes Wednesday, May 11. These forms are part of a study being made by Blue Key honor fraternity on academic honesty at OSC.
For the purpose of the survey cheating is defined as giving or receiving of any information about a specific test either before or during the time the test is given, provided the information is of a nature other than that allowed by the professor, according to information on the form.
Blue Key has sponsored the academic honesty forms the past few years and are accumulating the data obtained to discover group trends.
Students receiving the forms are asked to answer the questions freely and truthfully. It was also brought out that the forms will in no way be traced to its originator.

Professor and Research

While browsing through some of our exchange papers we found the following editorial from the Michigan State News, Michigan State University's daily paper. Annually an outstanding professor of Oregon State College is selected by the students here. Food for thought in the selection of and judging of your professor's merits may be gained from this editorial.

While preparing a lively and informative classroom lecture takes a great deal of thoughtful preparation, yet most of his spare time is taken up by his own scientific interests.

In many schools noted for their scientific work — e.g., U. of Chicago — the teaching caliber is falling. Students are drawn to the big name, but later find that they get little value from the lectures.

Certainly the value of research and publications should not be underrated, but it does not seem right that they should be the key factor in promotions and salary raises, as is now the case.

There are several alternative means of judgment which are now used only sparingly by the administration and department heads. While no one of these methods is a calculating machine for figuring teaching ability, a combination of them, together with reasonable records, could be used more fully in selecting faculty for promotion.

The scores of a teacher's students on departmental exams can also have some value, but if over-emphasized, could lead to the kind of teaching aimed purely at high exam scores.

A university is primarily an educational institution, not a scientific laboratory. While research is desirable and adds to the growth and scope of a school, it alone does not produce educated and well-rounded graduates.

A scientist may be a great asset to society, but if he cannot communicate with and interest students, he should not be a teacher.

Research alone is not an adequate criterion for determining a good teacher. However, the selection of faculty from other schools, salary raises and rank promotions are largely based upon the amount of research or the number of publications a man has after his name.

This is a fine means for judging scientific ability of a writer, but is invalid for judging a man's teaching ability. Some of the top research men fail miserably in the classroom.

While some research experience improves the caliber of a good teacher, giving him vitality and the ability to interest his students, it can also have a negative effect upon an instructor's classroom ability.

The scientist or writer frequently takes too much knowledge for granted on the part of the students. His lectures contain large conceptual gaps which he expects the student to fill in on his own.

Then, too, the man who is in the midst of a research project or a book may have little time for the individual

Despite optimistic predictions made earlier this term, the rain did not keep away the Grosbeaks. So now we have rain and Grosbeaks, truly a delightful combination to spread spring term joy.

Chuck Wenstrom's griping in his Friday column is certainly justified. Like many activities on campus, everybody has gripes and suggestions, but nobody is willing to work. However, I think it should be pointed out that the long hours of hard work of Baro under-staffers are rewarded by more than the pride of a job well-done; in other words — money.

I don't usually plug products, but don't miss next week's Life magazine. On the last page Miscellaneous department is one of the most heart-warming pictures I have seen in many a moon — I don't miss it.

ONE YEAR AGO: Harley Smith was chosen outstanding senator; Paul Irvine, Coop manager, was elected vice president of the National Association of College Stores; Diane Myers was chosen "Miss OSC"; and the United Steelworkers began their talks with the steel industry.

THREE YEARS AGO: Cindy Lee was named Miss Football; the spring term final schedule was out; 18 fraternities tried out for the IFC Sing; the senior class selected a seal for the quad as their gift; Les Brown was coming for the Sophomore Cotillion; and Sharon Spencer was crowned Rose of Pi Kappa Phi.

TEN YEARS AGO: Phi Kappa Tau won the IFC Sing, with Beta Theta Pi second and Kappa Sigma third in place. "The Outlaw," starring Jane Russell, was billed at the Oregon State as "Too startling to describe." Fraternities were again under the gun across the U.S.A. due to an ATO initiation death.

K Personally Ordered U.S. Plane Shot Down

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet leaders reported yesterday that an American plane was shot down Sunday by a rocket which Premier Nikita Khrushchev personally ordered launched. They rejected U.S. explanations of the incident as "nonsense."

New details emerged before the Supreme Soviet (parliament) of what observers believed was the first firing in anger of a ground to air missile.

—Marshal Andrei A. Grechko said a single anti-aircraft rocket downed the U.S. plane on the first firing.

—Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko rejected the U.S. State Department report Thursday on the incident and gave a tough preliminary warning on Berlin.

Gromyko repeated Khrushchev's warning of Thursday that the Americans were "playing with fire." He said that attempts to maintain the status quo of West Berlin by force would be met by force.

Claims Earlier Violations Gromyko dismissed as "nonsense" allegations by the State Department that the pilot of the downed American plane had fainted before crossing the frontier from Turkey and said Washington was unable to provide any coherent explanation.

Gromyko said there had been several previous violations of Soviet air space and that American pilots had opened fire on Soviet planes.

"Do you want to say that they also lost consciousness?" Gromyko asked. "I wish to stress one fact—the carelessness of people who are playing with fire," he said.

MOODISMS

You ask me how I received these scars on my shins? Behind these tortured thighs lies a story that only now can be unveiled, after years of being shrouded in secrecy.

Shortly after the outset of the yodelling and pizza season my sophomore year, the word flashed across campus that I Draina Poppa, local sorority, was scheduling a house dance. This threw the male set into a state of panic, for although these coeds weren't too undesirable, they had acquired a reputation that made the innocent fun-loving college lad somewhat leary of accepting a date with one of them.

I was well aware of the infamy of the group and strove mightily to by-pass the area inhabited by these frivolous ladies. One afternoon, however, I had succumbed into a trance in trying to devise a scheme whereby I could smuggle Cromwell into the next variety show without a student body card.

and I inadvertently turned down the lane which would past their hair. I was shuffling peacefully along, when suddenly the pavement gave way and I found myself crumpled at the bottom of a pit.

As I shook my dazed head, I heard a shrill voice cry, "We got another one, Morphine."

I was roughly hauled into a dimly lit room and found myself surrounded with ominous appearing coeds. I knew at once I was a victim of the I Draina Poppas. I was extremely unnerved by the suddenness in which I had fallen into their clutches, but soon managed to calm myself enough to discover their plot.

I was required to sign a statement that I would attend the aforementioned house dance with a Mildred Morganlan before I could take leave of the mysterious confines. The presence of a notary public made my future all the more cloudy.

I hurried home as rapidly as my chubby little legs would carry me, and after taking note of Mildred's picture in the annual, spent the ensuing three days and nights on the roof, alternately walling at the sun and moon in despair. I soon became ravenous, however, and went down to eat. Upon devouring six olive and banana sandwiches, I had the idea. I would take my frolicking companion Cromwell with me for protection.

The night of the dance found me bouncing up the stairs of the IDP house with an extravagant corsage of Indian Paint Brush and Holly in hand and Cromwell at heel. Even before introductions had been made, Cromwell had Cromwell and Mildred have since become inseparable. They can be seen daily trudging together to the veterinarians to be curried.

Oh yes, my scarred shins... well, maybe next week.

Throng Give Royal Couple Great Cheers

LONDON (UPI)—The princess and the commoner were married yesterday. Princess Margaret and Antony Armstrong-Jones were as nervous as any other couple, and the queen mother wept.

And hundreds of thousands of cheering Britons proved beyond doubt they approved this marriage performed before Westminster Abbey's great altar even if most of Europe's royalty stayed home.

Stricken once with stage fright, the little princess stumbled over the lines "for better, for worse," and had to repeat them again after the Archbishop of Canterbury. When she promised to love, cherish and obey the man of her choice, her voice barely was audible.

Armstrong-Jones rubbed his thumbs together and nervously fingered his upper lip until the Duke of Edinburgh whispered to him and his serious face broke into a smile.

Queen Is Serious The princess pronounced them married "in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost," a tear trickled down the face of the queen mother.

Near the queen mother sat Queen Elizabeth, far more serious than usual. Once she heaved a deep sigh, and she smiled only twice. That was when Margaret curtsied to her before leaving the abbey and when Prince Philip called her attention to the eight little bridesmaids sitting primly on cushions in the aisle of the nave.

A wedding day is supposed to belong to the bride. And this one did—from the moment when she left Clarence House in the celebrated glass coach to the time when a cheering crowd of half a million roared its demand that the newlyweds appear on the balcony of Buckingham Palace.

Appear Before Crowd "We want Margaret and Tony!" the thousands chanted. They appeared on the balcony then, Margaret, a tiny figure, waved, her right hand held high. Armstrong-Jones stood smilingly at her side, obviously amazed at this outburst of affection for the princess who could have had endow. Then there was the signing of the register and the ride back through the cheering throngs in the glass coach to Buckingham Palace and a wedding breakfast given by the Queen.

Princess Margaret, helped by her husband, carefully cut the 150-pound, three-tiered cake. An orchestra played for the 120 guests and at the end six pipers entered the room to play their Scottish airs.

Next on the schedule was a honeymoon trip to the Caribbean aboard the royal yacht Britannia. The itinerary was secret but there was the possibility the newlyweds might enter American waters.

Prime ministers of the British Commonwealth attended the wedding, as did a former prime minister of Great Britain—Sir Winston Churchill.

A great roar of cheers greeted him as he alighted from his car to enter the abbey for the wedding.

Audience of Millions Two thousand guests were seated in the abbey where television sets had been installed to assure that all could see.

Never was a wedding watched and listened to by so many persons. In addition to the throngs along the curbstones of London, there was a 13-nation European television broadcast which may have been seen by as many as 350 million. Another estimated 250 million listened to a radio broadcast.

This was a marriage that ignored many royal traditions. It was the first time a commoner had married a princess of the blood royal at the great altar which for 900 years has been the crowning place of Britain's kings.

Near Queen Elizabeth sat the divorced parents of Armstrong-Jones: Another first for royalty, which frowns on divorce.

In Parliament blunt questions had been asked about the cost of the wedding and the honeymoon on the royal yacht Britannia.

Tongues Cease Wagging Not since Edward VIII abdicated for the love of Wallis Warfield Simpson has there been so much whispering about a royal romance.

Among top-rank European royalty, only Queen Ingrid of Denmark accepted the wedding invitation.

There was criticism of Armstrong-Jones' friends, including Miss Jackie Chan, the Eurasian actress who was a guest in the abbey.

Jeremy Fry, first choice as best man, withdrew under circumstances that set tongues wagging freely.

But all the gossip and criticism melted away on this perfect spring day. Gray old London put on her party dress for the occasion.

Senate Passes Bill Stated For Vetoing

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate approved a 251 million dollar area redevelopment bill yesterday and sent it to President Eisenhower, who has indicated he will veto it.

Senate approval of the House-passed bill was by a roll call vote of 45-32.

The measure, politically significant in economically distressed areas, would provide a loan and grant program to rehabilitate communities unable to shake high unemployment even during relatively prosperous times.

The program, which the House approved Wednesday night after a parliamentary free for all, is nearly five times larger than the $389,500,000 bill the Senate approved last year.

The Senate approved the House bill after Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Texas) and other Democrats charged that the Eisenhower administration helps foreigners but neglects the needy at home.

Eisenhower Tuesday warned against election-year enactment of big spending proposals. He particularly mentioned the distressed areas bill, which has strong support in depressed regions of West Virginia, Kentucky and Pennsylvania.

Being a westerner, by heritage and habit, I have found certain Eastern trends both interesting and amusing.

Campus life itself at The American University in the nation's capital varies little from that of any co-educational institution throughout the country, except perhaps in the area of dress. "Typical" is not a word applicable to college fashions on this campus. The well-dressed coed wears anything from a kilt to a leotard outfit or the sneaker-look to nylon and heels and is quite in style.

Because the more than 7,500 students include many students from work-part-time in downtown Washington, there is little conformity in dress.

One student who lives on campus and pays little or no attention to making public transportation connections for downtown excursions, life is rather casual. bermudas in the cafeteria, bermudas in the library, bermudas in the bookstore, bermudas anywhere on the campus, and for even in the classroom — later being frowned upon by a dean of women AND a few professors.

This observation comes as quite a shock to the student who has raised in the "skirt philosophy" of "a skirt, always a skirt, wears a skirt everywhere when in public."

To categorize the more typical campus combinations at AU, I attempt a classification.

Ring Ceremony Set For Dance By Navy RO

The annual Navy ROTC Ring Dance in honor of graduating seniors will take place Friday night, May 13, from 8:30 to 11:30 at the Corvallis Women's Club.

At the spring formal the impressive "ring ceremony" takes place. This is when the NROTC midshipman after completing his third year of academic studies, is entitled to receive the Naval Officers' ring. The custom and tradition behind this ring date back to 1869 when the idea of a class ring was first initiated at the Naval Academy. Part of the present day tradition dictates the manner in which the ring shall be received.

Upon entering the dance, the midshipman's date receives the ring, which is worn around her neck, suspended by a blue and gold ribbon. At the time of the ring ceremony the girl removes the ring, and, after dipping it into a binnacle containing the waters of the seven seas, places it on the third finger of the left hand as required by tradition. With a kiss, the ring is wished on in a giant replica of the ring.

Week Draws Many Women

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department reports 7,500,000 women across the nation are observing National Home Demonstration Week this week.

Home demonstration is an educational program in better homemaking planned by and for homemakers. It is conducted cooperatively by the Extension Service of the department, state land-grant colleges, and county governments. Through it, homemakers learn to apply the latest approved methods developed by home economics research to become more efficient in their homes.

One purpose of National Home Demonstration Week is to encourage more women to learn and use research findings related to home and family.

The department said most women participating in home demonstration work seek to learn better use of their time, money, and energy to reach family goals; to choose food, clothing, home furnishings, household equipment, and other essentials to attain a satisfying way of life; to keep the household running smoothly; to provide a comfortable, convenient and attractive home; to understand the relation of nutritious food, suitable clothing, and adequate housing to the health and well-being of each family member.

The way home demonstration work is carried on varies with the needs and interests of participants, and also with the areas where families live. Intensive education is provided about 1,300,000 homemakers through more than 64,000 organized groups in all 50 states and Puerto Rico. These homemakers select their own volunteer leaders, now totaling about 619,000. These leaders are trained and assisted by home demonstration agents who are in continual touch with sources of the latest research information, and who professionally guide the program.

By JANET FISHER
Barometer Society Editor
College life for the typical coed was portrayed in a style show Saturday night at the ADPI house for Mother's Weekend. After the show a poem was read, telling that one part of the coed's life had been left out. A dark blue candle with white carnations was then passed to show an engagement announcement, this one for CAROLE CRAWLEY and MAX MILLIKEN, Phi Kappa Tau. May baskets of colored paper and doilies containing chocolates were passed as favors.

A photographer went to the DG house Saturday to take class mother and daughter pictures. When he opened his suitcase to get a flash bulb, he found a decorated candle bearing an engagement ring. He lit the candle and passed it around the room. It was blown out by HELEN LERBACK, announcing her engagement to RAY SUNDEAN, who is the USC and G Survey, Seattle. Wedding bells on which their names were written were given as favors.

Rooks Defeat Ducklings 1-0

Rain and one run combined to give the Oregon Rooks a 1-0 victory over the Oregon Frosh yesterday at Coleman Field.

Cecil Ira gave up only five hits and struck out five holding the Frosh scoreless for five innings until the steady strike turned into a downpour stopping the game.

Bill Candee reached second, after a passed ball on a swinging third strike, to start the Rooks one run rally in the second frame. Chuck Stronach followed with a single sending Candee to third. Ira then sent a little pop fly down the first base line which the Frosh first sacker scrambled and crawled after, but couldn't get. Candee crossed the plate and Ira won his ball game with a scratch hit.

The Oregon State tennis team will meet the University of Oregon in a tennis match this morning if the weather clears up. This will be the second meeting between the Ducks and the Beavers this season. The first match was won by the Beavers by a score of 7-0, this will be the last match between Oregon and OSC before the Northern Division Tourney here May 20 and 21.

The Beaver lineup will be Gordon Brynildsen, Dick Stafford, Dick Hahn, Roy Stangeby, and Bob Semon all in singles. The two doubles teams will include: Brynildsen and Hahn in 1st, doubles and Ellerby and Reynolds in 2nd. Doubles. This is only a tentative lineup according to Coach Irwin Harris.

Rich Ellerby is still suffering from a bruised hip bone which he received in the Washington match. He will probably see limited action against the Ducks.

The Friday match against Portland State College was canceled because of rain. Also the Willamette match which was to be last Wednesday didn't take place due to a mix up of scheduling. It is now set up for next Wednesday, May 11.

Thomas Goes 7 Feet 18th Time In Career

BOSTON (UPI)—High-flying John Thomas has failed to top his five-day-old outdoor high jump record, but he has cleared the 7-foot mark for the 18th time in his career.

Boston University's 19-year-old sophomore barely failed Thursday in three assaults on the 7 foot, 2 1/2 inch mark at a special Olympic development meet sponsored by BU.

Thomas, whose 7-foot, 1 1/2 inch leap at last week's Penn Relays bettered the world record, cleared the bar at 7-feet, 3/4 inch Thursday. It was the third consecutive time in outdoor meets and the 18th time in his short career that the lisse six-footer jumped more than 7 feet.

Dixon Second In Decathlon

Arnold Myers of Triangle Lake was the individual winner with 8136 points followed by Dixon with 7843.24. Stewart Bogra of Crow finished third with 7094.32 followed by Kane with 6512.32. Kane, however, did not compete in the mile and 440 because of a pulled muscle, so his score was based on eight events.

Alsea plans to enter Kane, Joe Hendrix, Lloyd and Floyd Dixon in the Cascade "B" Decathlon at Cascade Locks May 27-28.

Eugene Beats Salem Twice

United Press International Salem's Senators broke their "first inning jinx" Thursday night but it didn't do them any good.

For the first time this season, Salem shut out Eugene in the first inning of both double header games, but still lost both contests 3-2 and 5-4. Salem has now lost six straight to Eugene.

The pair of wins moved the league-leading Emeralds a game and a half ahead of Yakima and Lewiston in Northwest League standings.

Yakima beat Tri-City, 8-4, and Lewiston downed Wenatchee 6-4 in the final games of their series.

With the score tied 2-2 at the end of seven innings, Dick Mitchell singled in the eighth to score Felix Maldonado and give Eugene its 3-2 first-game victory.

Gary Krupsky, who had driven in all three Emerald runs in their Wednesday night win, blasted a two-run homer in the top of the seventh of the second game to knot the score 4-4. The game went into extra innings.

Jerry Robinson singled, bringing home Jack Scramaglia to cinch the second contest in the eighth. Denny Mendyk, who had batted in all four Salem runs with four hits just couldn't do any more for the Senators in the bottom of the eighth. One of his hits was a two-run homer.

Four double plays and three home runs aided Yakima in their 8-4 victory over Tri-City. Tippy Johnson homered with one on in the Bear half of the first frame. The blow was the 10th hit in 13 times at bat for Johnson in the series against Tri-City.

Daryl Hadley and Denis Menke caught the power bug in the second and eighth frames respectively, each hitting a solo homer. Tommy Agosta connected for a round-tripper with none on in the fourth for Tri-City.

A wild pitch allowed the winning run in the Lewiston-Wenatchee game as Bronc Bob Delgado spiked the plate for the deciding count. He had doubled to get Jim Pyles opened the Lewiston scoring in the third, doubling in two runs. Pitcher Bob Villanor doubled home another in the fourth and scored on a single.

TRACKMAN of the WEEK

Oregon State's only world's record holding trackman, Gary Stenlund, has been selected for outstanding trackman laurels this week. Stenlund, a 19-year-old sophomore, is the ace javelin thrower on the OSC track squad. His world's record came last year in the California Relays when he heaved the spear 240 feet 10 1/2 inches to set the record for 18 years old and under in this event.

Born in Longview, Washington, Stenlund spent his high school years at David Douglas High School in Portland where he now lives. He credits his success to the good start given him by his high school coach.

Stenlund also stated that Coach Bell has helped him quite a bit here at OSC. Stenlund says that Coach Bell is a fine coach and is a "real likeable person" which according to Stenlund is also one of the reasons that Oregon State has such a fine track team.

Stenlund presently lives at Cinder City an apartment located at 26th and Monroe. He is the second member of that living group to make outstanding trackman of the week, the first being miler, Norm Hoffman.

As for the future, Stenlund only says that his desire is to keep breaking his previous records. He said that no one knows how well they will do, but he added that each person should keep trying to improve.

Stenlund does not make any predictions about today's meet with Oregon, but said that the dual meet could go either way. He said that he hoped Oregon State wins because he would hate for the track team to let Coach Bell down since he has worked so hard for this victory.

Alum Footballers Schedule Workout

Joe Francis, quarterback-coach of the alumni football team that will meet the Oregon State varsity in the second annual "spring game" on May 28, has asked prospective alum players to attend a practice Saturday.

Marsh is one of 10 runners who have done 9.5 in the 100-yard dash. Three runners have been clocked at 9.4 in collegiate ranks this season.

Dyrol Burleson of Oregon leads the mile with his 3:58.6 and is third in the 880 with a 1:50.0 best.

Thompson Favored to Win

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Tension almost cracked in the air at Churchill Downs today where 14 colts await Saturday's running of the Kentucky Derby but nerves in the stable area are more relaxed than usual only one day before the big race.

The men with the favorite carries the heaviest burden. But Bob Wheeler, who trains Tompion for C. V. Whitney, felt a lot more confident this time than he did a year ago. Then he was "shooting at the moon" with a filly and now he says, "I wish we had run Silver Spoon in the Kentucky Oaks instead."

Wheeler has been taken ill with an attack of alternating chills and fever with symptoms of influenza. But before the illness he radiated confidence, although the haunting fear of injury gnawed at his peace of mind just as it does with every horseman with a good chance to win the first of the Triple Crown classics.

He was confident for many reasons. His colt had won four races in a row, including the Santa Anita Derby and the Blue Grass Stakes. After the Blue Grass Stakes he "went on" to run the full mile and one-quarter Kentucky Derby distance in the sparkling time of 2:01.45, fast enough to win all but three rose runs.

Tompion has been training like a champion and is at his physical peak according to his veterinarian Dr. Jack Jacoy.

Wheeler had nothing to fear if it rains, for Tompion has run several good races in the mud.

Bally Ache, Tompion's chief rival in America's thoroughbred extravaganza, revels in the mud, moving up several lengths in the estimation of most handicappers.

Sees No "Boat Ride"

Wheeler by no means thinks Tompion has a "boat ride" ahead of him in the 8th edition of the first Triple Crown classic. He has a lot of respect for Bally Ache, for Vespene Way and for Victoria Park, a colt "that runs hard races," he says.

Jimmy Pitt, who trains Bally Ache, has been tabbed as the happiest man in the place.

But then everything has been going his way from the injury which took Beau Purple, another speed horse, out of the race, to the draw for post positions, to the possibility of rain.

Vic Sovinski firmly believes he has a good shot at America's most coveted racing prize. He came closest with Lincoln Road, second to Tim Tam two years ago. He believes Venetian Way can make it.

Dorm Elections Set as Disc

Results of the recent Interdorm council senator elections will come under the scrutiny of IDC when it meets in the Weatherford ball cafeteria tonight.

The major topic to be discussed is the legality of the election procedures at Friday's voting for IDC senator. Candidates for the position were Ernie Gourdin and Ray Wood.

Sources say that the west lunch line in Weatherford Cafeteria did not have a ballot box for about 30 minutes on the day of elections. Students voted as they moved through the lunch line and were
