The lordly Sun, sustainer of life and symbol of truth, sets afire the golden tip of the flagstaff, lights the east face of every building, and casts long rays across the Quad. The campus awakens serenely to a new day.

The campus is a stage where we Staters are actors and our role is action. For us a new day begins with a gong. Whether last night's headache has been slept away or not, we dash to breakfast or sometimes straight to class.

This book chronicles and pictures the days of a student year at Oregon State. It is a scene by scene interpretation of one act of a four-act drama, our undergraduate years on campus.

It is, of course, a play within a greater play that began long before we came on the stage and will still be unfolding long after we are gone.

Day by day we play our many parts. Our teachers coach and prompt us. Parents, friends, and the State look on. As we do well or ill, Alma Mater smiles or sighs. The play goes on. In truth we are the play: we Staters in large measure are Oregon State.

OSC Builds On and On

Man's knowledge, once partial like the light of dawn, now dazzles us with its multitude of disciplines, like the Sun at midday and in afternoon.

By endless toil and long searching, by courage and persistence, by dreaming and thinking, by counseling and cooperating with his fellows, man has amassed and preserved knowledge and skills to advance and protect his life and to delight his soul.

A modern university is a marvelous manifestation of man's hunger for knowledge and his will to achieve it. Oregon State, heir of the ages, has a Library of three hundred thousand books, seventy departmental faculties, and a hundred fields in which we may major as undergraduates or specialize in graduate school.

Here we learn skills of hand and brain. We study science and technology in laboratory, shop, and field. We read in literature, arts, and philosophy. We master facts and principles, discuss and debate, weigh and ponder.

Of course, we let many opportunities slip by us. Sometimes we may seem careless and thoughtless.

But we are here for a purpose. We make no mean gains. We pack into our lives values that will serve us through life and cannot pass away.

Our evenings, like our days, are divided between study and play.

Saturday Night Date

As each goodnight looks forward to tomorrow, so does Commencement—as we go forth Stater graduates, prepared for our part in whatever drama the future may bring in our country and world.

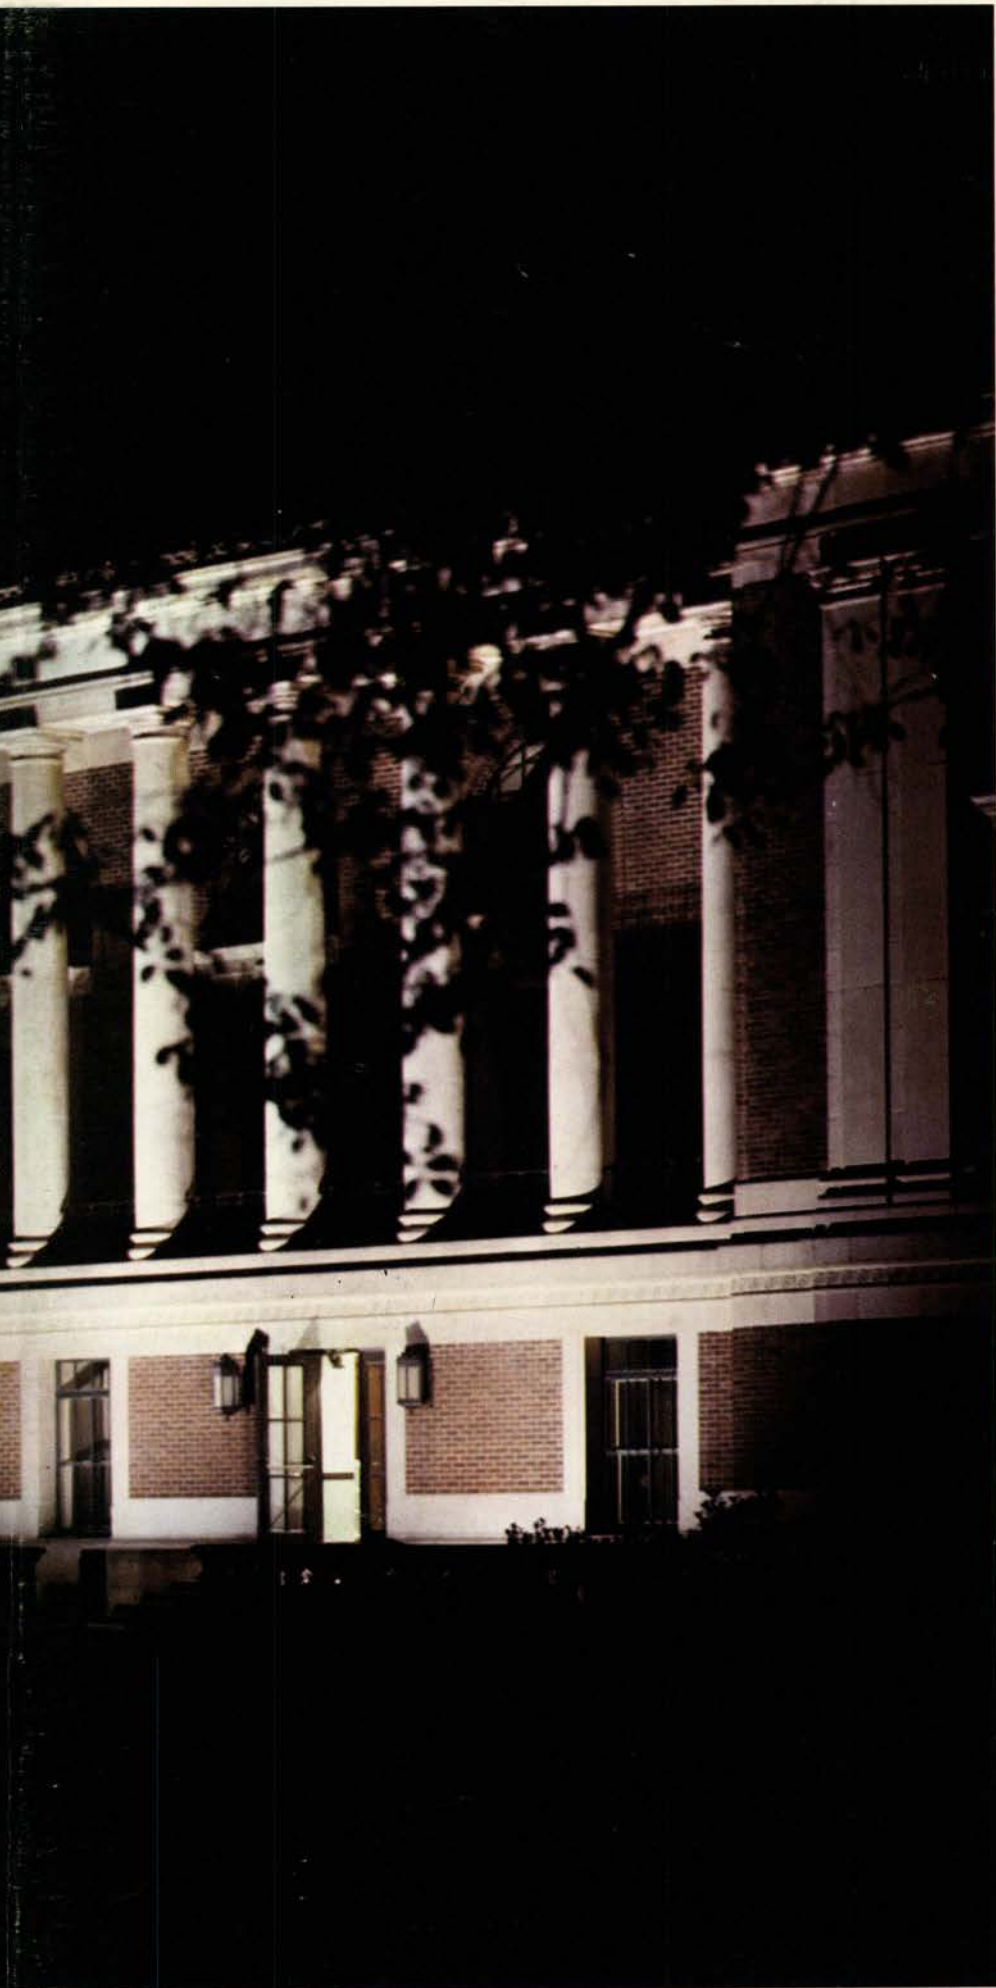

Chatting and Chewing

“Goodnight Sweetheart”

Evening transforms the stage on which we play. All that is real becomes tinged with the ideal. But the soft light from the moon and the planets in the dark sky is from the same old Sun.

Except on weekends study hour is always just around the corner. But there is the evening leisure of dinner hour, concert or meeting, band or choral rehearsal, and friendly conversation.

The enveloping darkness brings our lives into focus, draws us together, supports and strengthens us. Companionship reaches to friendship. We catch a glimpse of human experience that is as enduring as life.

In the years that will come to us, after college, in the midst of trials and joys, these campus evenings will thrill us the most.

In those after years, other students will be playing our roles. We shall be far from Oregon State, with heavier responsibilities, perhaps deeper sorrows and happiness.

But we shall be Staters still. The same Sun that wakes the campus each morning will light our days. Alma Mater still will call. We trust that, beholding us in our performance as citizens and alumni, she will be pleased.

ADMINISTRATION

There is never enough time for the administration as they must begin planning and scheduling early in the summer. Ruth Cereghino has assembled some of the formal and informal poses of the "powers that be," to show that they, too, are quite photogenic.

Interested in improving, advancing and furthering the higher education system in Oregon is Paul L. Patterson, who was recently appointed Governor.

Dean of Administration, E. B. Lemon, is the college's leader when Dr. Strand is absent. He also correlates activities of different schools.

Dr. Strand, Dean Lemon Chief College Officers

Functioning at the center of the Oregon State College administration is President A. L. Strand. Dr. Strand, as leader and coordinator, takes the initiative in forming the educational policies of the College. Besides performing his duties on campus, the President represents the College off campus at various educational and business meetings concerning college affairs. A familiar figure around the campus, Dr. Strand can be seen making spot checks in different buildings throughout the college.

When Dr. Strand is absent from the College, the Dean of Administration becomes the chief officer of Oregon State. Dean E. B. Lemon is also in charge of correlating the activities and projects of the different schools and departments.

Leaving the Commerce Building after a busy day Mary I. Bash, dean of women, and Martha Morton, assistant dean, pause to recall a past event.

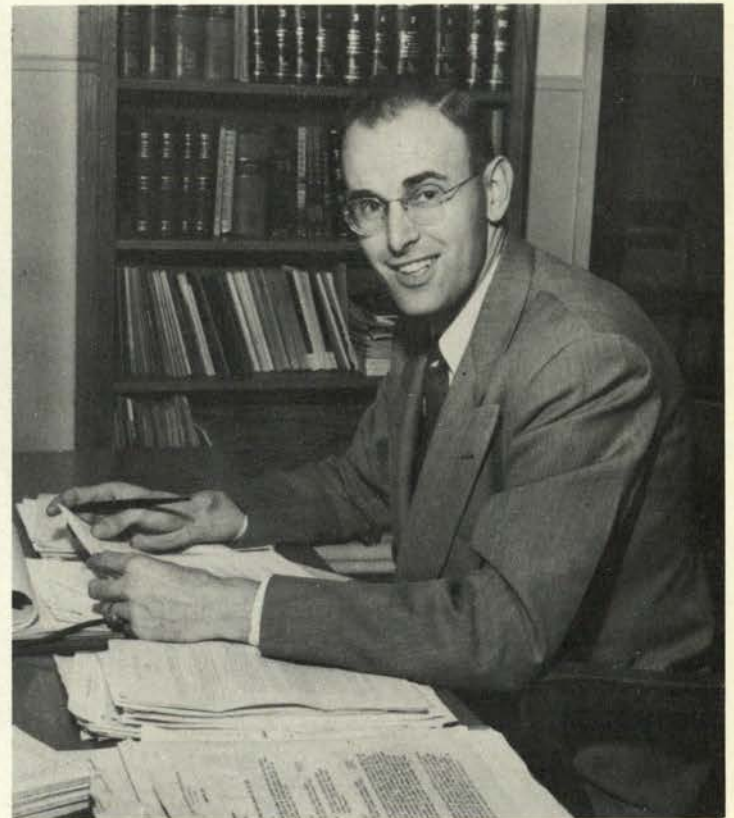

Always ready to aid the men students is Dan Poling, dean of men, opening the door for friendly L. E. Darlington, the assistant dean of men.

Dr. D. T. Ordeman, registrar, and Miss Eva Blackwell, assistant, check over an application for entrance to Oregon State. The registrar's office is responsible for student academic standings.

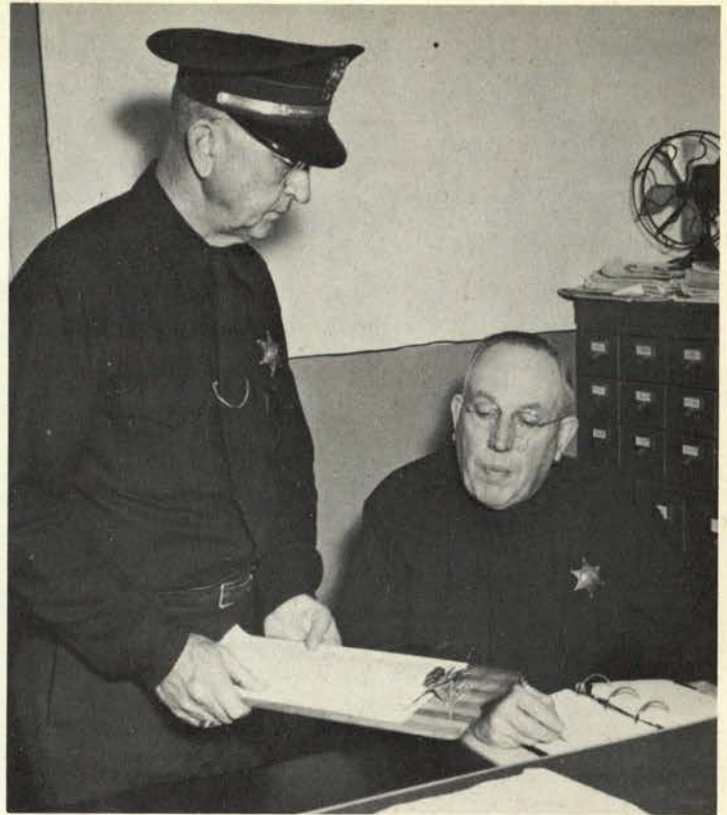

Dallas Norton, personnel coordinator, besides working with high school students, is in charge of academic deficiencies of all State students.

G. M. Robertson, college business manager, keeps the college's books. All income to the institution is received through Robertson's office.

College Officials Work Behind Scene

Some of the most vital administrative functions of Oregon State are those that are conducted by the lesser known college officials. Although they receive very little publicity for their work, these people serve every Oregon Stater and without them OSC could not survive as Oregon's largest institution of higher learning.

Guy Stover, the friendly campus marshal, checks with the desk sergeant on a list of student violators. Campus police control parking problems.

The maintenance crew works continuously making needed improvements on the campus.

The members of the campus police force enforce traffic regulations and patrol the campus in search of student violators of college rules for parking and driving in restricted areas of the campus.

Educational Activities board members Dean Dan Poling, Jim Welty, Irwin Harris, Dr. C. T. Yerian, Mrs. Ruth Herndon, Marilyn Rohe, Tom Poulsen, and Louise Morrison discuss problems of increased costs for publications and expanded traveling expenses for all important student activities.

Educational Activities Are Promoted by Board

The Educational Activities board, a joint student-faculty group, works cooperatively to promote and supervise the various student educational activities. The budgets of different student groups are sent to this board for final approval.

Irwin Harris, manager, and Dr. Yerian, chairman, discuss the Beaver.

Mrs. Ruth Herndon handles the tickets for the concerts and lectures.

Ted Carlson, assistant alumni manager, is editor of the Oregon Stater.

Robert P. Knoll, alumni manager, coordinates the OSC alumni activities.

Alumni Association Backs General Promotion of OSC

Numerous activities occupy the calendar of the Oregon State College Alumni association. Under the capable leadership of Mark Corwin of Eugene, the Association carried on an active campaign in furthering the plans for the new football stadium which is now under construction. Other projects included a travel program in which athletic personages from the college met with alumni and other groups throughout the state to increase the general promotion of OSC. The Oregon Stater, the monthly alumni publication, is also published by the alumni association.

Alumni officers and directors Hal Whiteside, Doug Chambers, Glenn Gregg, Mrs. Irene Carl, Mark Corwin, President; Bill Cloyes, and Crawford Graham held meeting Homecoming weekend.

Mothers Club Aids Student Interests

A yearly project of the Oregon State college Mothers Club is the contributing of funds to the college for the benefit of the students. This money is used for tuition scholarships, grants and emergency funds.

The Club is concerned and interested in furthering the interests and welfare of the students, and mothers of all college students are eligible to become members of the organization.

The annual meeting for all the mothers is held during Mothers Weekend in May.

Dads Club Brings Recognition to OSC

Taking a great interest during the year in the activities of Oregon State college is the Dads Club. The Club is interested in preserving the many traditions and future usefulness of the college and also in bringing more recognition to Oregon State. Members of the group include fathers and male guardians of students attending Oregon State college.

Each year an annual meeting for all the fathers is held on Dads Weekend, during winter term.

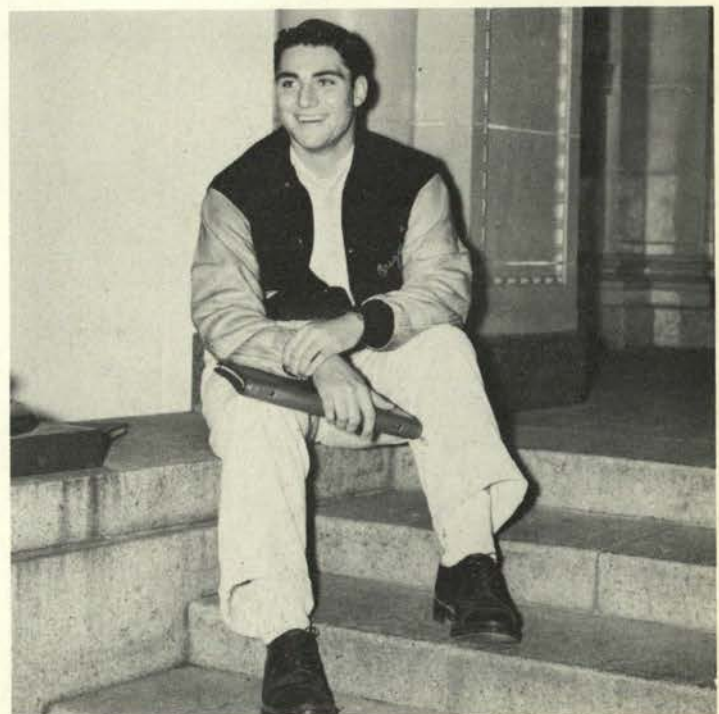

Don Van Allsburg, the friendly top executive of ASOSC, finds some spare moments from his busy daily schedule to chat with his numerous friends.

OSC Leaders Strive For Good Government

Another busy year was witnessed at Oregon State in 1952-53. Don Van Allsburg, the man with the perennial smile, guided the student body through an eventful year as the President of the Associated Students of Oregon State college.

Student government emphasized school spirit and more student participation in campus affairs. At the beginning of fall term, a student planning conference was held to discuss and obtain satisfactory solutions to problems of school spirit, the overcrowded social schedule and other current problems confronting the student body.

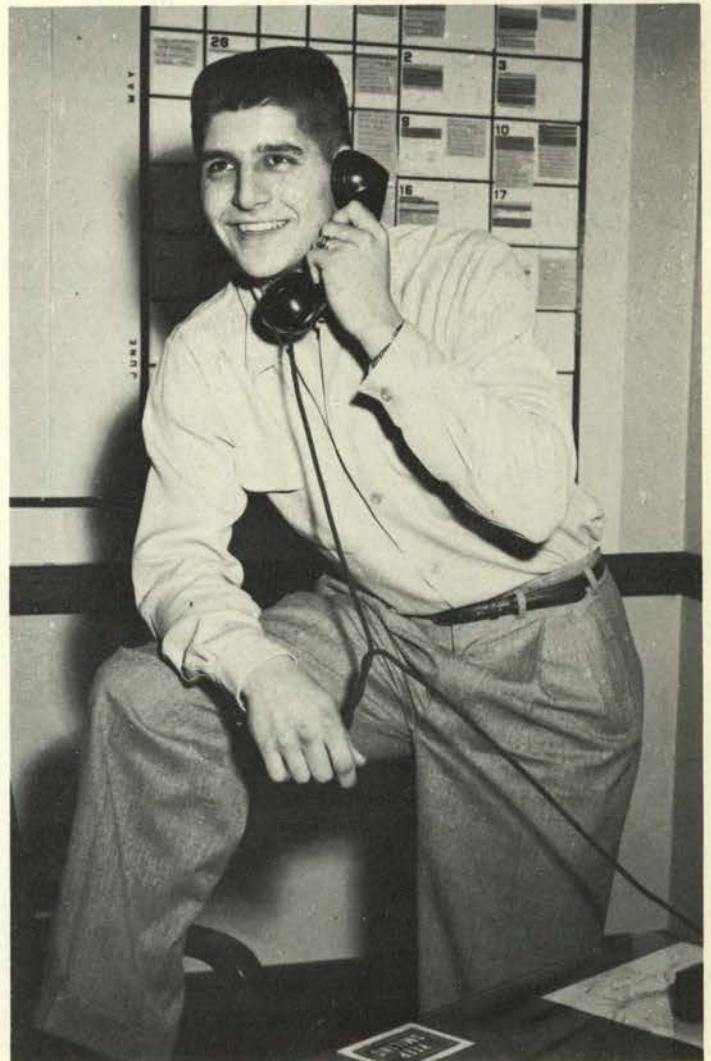

Taking time out from his duties as the first vice president of the student body, Tom Niebergall is efficient and friendly to everyone.

Easily recognized by that pleasing smile, Jo Wyman, the second vice president of ASOSC, usually finds time for "soshing" in the "O" Club.

When Ray Conkling, the ASOSC treasurer, was unable to be in school, Bud Wall took over his duties of handling the student body "greenbacks."

Phyllis Heilig, the capable student body secretary, kept the ASOSC office in excellent order and found time to enter other campus activities.

The Administrative Council is composed of deans, directors, and other administrative officers appointed to the Council by the President. It is concerned primarily with the coordination of administrative activities. Council members pictured from left to right are: (first row) Dr. Ralph Colby, Col. Rex Beach, Dr. F. R. Zeran, Dr. George E. Crossen. (Second row) Dr. Margaret Fincke, Pres. A. L. Strand, E. B. Lemon, Delmer M. Goode, Sam Graf. (Back row) Col. Christiancy Pickett, G. Morris Robertson, W. F. McCulloch, Roy S. Keene, Dr. F. A. Gilfillan, W. H. Carlson, George W. Gleeson, Dr. D. T. Ordeman, Dallas W. Norton, Col. Joseph Berry, Wilbur Coney, and Dr. H. P. Hansen.

Faculty Council Coordinates Work Of Administration

The major function of the Oregon State Scheduling Committee concerns planning the complete year's social activities for the campus. This huge responsibility rests on a committee of four members, including the dean of men, the dean of women, and two student members. The student members also act as a sub-committee of the Student Life Board to help prevent conflicts in scheduling and to correct any which slip past under their watchful eyes.

Committee Plans Social Schedule

Service Committee Functions for OSC

The Service Committee, composed of representatives from each of the campus service organizations, acts as a working center where the committees pool ideas and talk over problems. Activities such as ASOSC functions, campus elections, and pep rallies come under their jurisdiction.

One of the Service Committee's major projects this year was the production of a Leader's Handbook for use by the campus leaders.

Senate Works Hard To Solve Problems

The senate has representatives from all major schools and the campus organizations. One of the divisions of their program was the promotion of a student insurance plan.

Student Life Board Aids Social Groups

Lending a helping hand to solve all-school problems, endorse the new groups on the campus and to approve budgets for campus wide activities is the Student Life Committee, directed by Paul X. Knoll. Student Life is a committee of the Student Senate. Both faculty and students are represented on this committee.

Round Table Projects Asset To Students

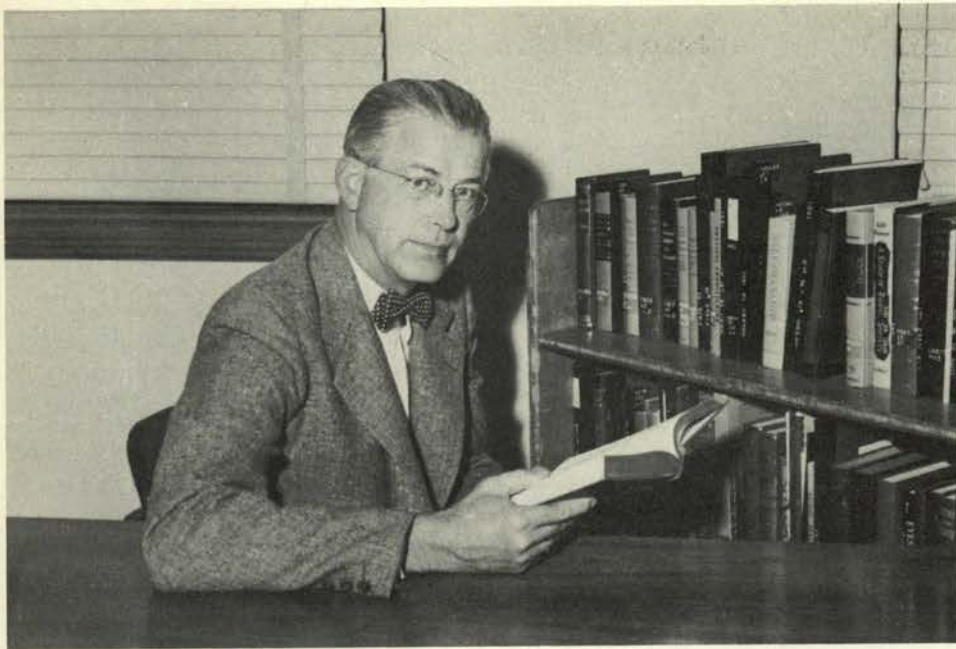

The student YM-YWCA organization on the campus is Round Table, which sponsors numerous important activities. Its projects include the United Fund drive, firesides, forums, study groups, student and industry projects, student displaced persons, and the International week. Service is this organization's middle name, and it organizes several religious, social, and service projects.

The group takes an active part in orientating new OSC students during Freshman week by organizing Rook and Rookess counselors. These counselors, who are picked during spring term, are also members of the Round Table organization.

Members of Round Table listen to a report by Tom Constans on International Week activities. The group holds meetings regularly at the M.U.

Director of Libraries W. H. Carlson keeps the library up to date by acquiring many new volumes.

OSC Library Serves College Students

Oregon State college is fortunate in having one of the finest libraries in the nation. Besides having a complete array of technical and trade volumes, the library also has a wide selection of fiction books. The many rows of book shelves are divided into different rooms by categories. One room of the library, as an example, has a wide selection of the nation's magazines and newspapers. This room, a favorite among students, is a place where one can catch up with home-town or national news. During final week, the library reaches its busiest peak when students use it as a place to study.

Co-eds Sharon Casey and Janet Woolcutt scan a volume from the McDonald room.

Miss Bessie Tressler, order librarian, handles the business transactions of the College library.

Friendly Mary Nixon serves the Associated Women Students as president. Mary was elected to this office during spring term. Four other officers besides the president are elected by OSC coeds.

AWS Activity Center For Women Students

Under the capable direction of President Mary Nixon, AWS has made this another successful and eventful year for the women students of Oregon State.

Activities began early in the fall with nickel hops the major activity of the term. The annual carnival with booths sponsored by the women's living groups was held in January.

Spring term AWS held the annual Mothers Weekend, filled with several special events and the honor convo for recognition of outstanding women students.

AWS projects keep these officers busy. The women who help to formulate AWS plans include (left to right) Joan Little, vice-president; Ethel Doyle, treasurer; Sue Morgan, sergeant-at-arms; and Patty Daum, secretary.

Members of the legislative council of AWS include: (first row) Bev Heater, Laurie Welling, Janet Sande, Ada Lofts, Polly Nixon. (Second row) Sue Morgan, Ethel Doyle, Patty Daum, and Joan Stimmel who make AWS plans for the year.

Student Board of Reference members handle the problems of conduct and social regulations for women. Members are Barbara Lindfors, Marilyn Renn, Jo Countryman, Janet Albert, Ada Lofts, Peggy Robb, and the secretary is Carol Hansen.

Activity Council members include: Pat Densmore, Shirley Ritter, Sara Archibald, Margaret Schafer, Millie Patton. (Standing) Alice Lehman.

E. C. "Major" Allworth, manager of the Union, pauses to set the clock in the M.U. lounge.

Memorial Union Activities Are Supervised by Board

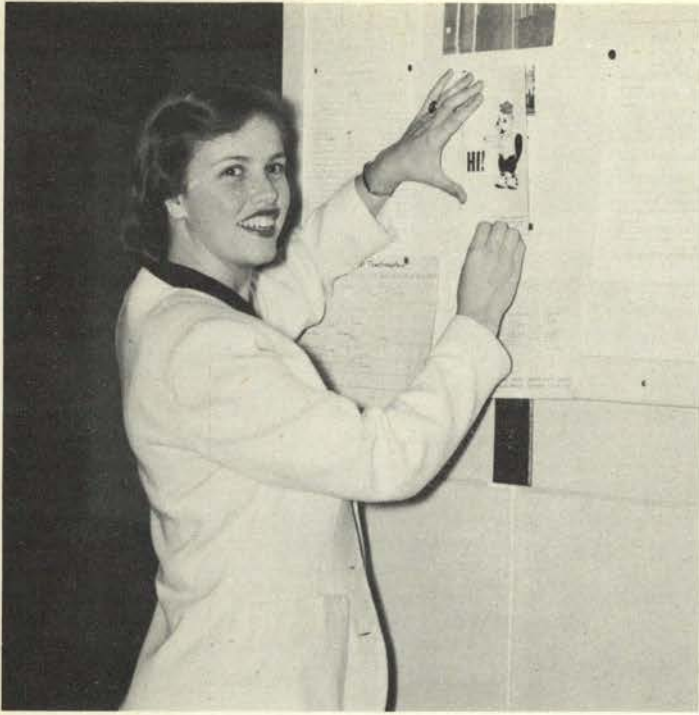

The major function of the Memorial Union Board of Directors is the supervision of all activities of the Union so that it will continue to serve the students' needs and desires. The Memorial Union serves both Oregon Staters and the people of Corvallis. It coordinates the work of the various committees and is the center of all campus activities. The Board is under the capable direction of Major Allworth.

The Memorial Union Activity Council, organized by the Memorial Union Board, provides activities such as art, dancing, public relations, forums, music, movies, hospitality, games and recreation, junior toastmasters, and the camera club for the interest of all students.

The board members for the Memorial Union: (front row) J. F. Porter, Mrs. Tracy Johnson, Audrey Daum, Royal Tarter. (Back row) Irwin Harris, Duane Fitzgerald, Major E. C. Allworth, Dr. H. B. Nelson, Tom Poulsen, and Don Van Allsburg supervise the student activities of the Union.

Audrey Daum, Memorial Union president, posts the busy senior weekend program.

Memorial Union is Center For Student Activities

Offering a wide variety of activities and other interests to Oregon Staters, the M. U. has become the hub of campus life. The Memorial Union has an activity program that interests every student and also contains the offices of varied student governmental groups, publications, educational activities, and the alumni association.

The Memorial Union activity program centers around the activity council which is composed of student chairmen of the various activities. This council meets twice a month to discuss problems and plans for improving the activity program. Through these numerous activities, leaders are developed and by contacts with people of different types, wider and better personalities are the results.

Many delegates attended the Student Planning Conference held at President Strand's home.

Planning Conference Held To Solve Campus Problems

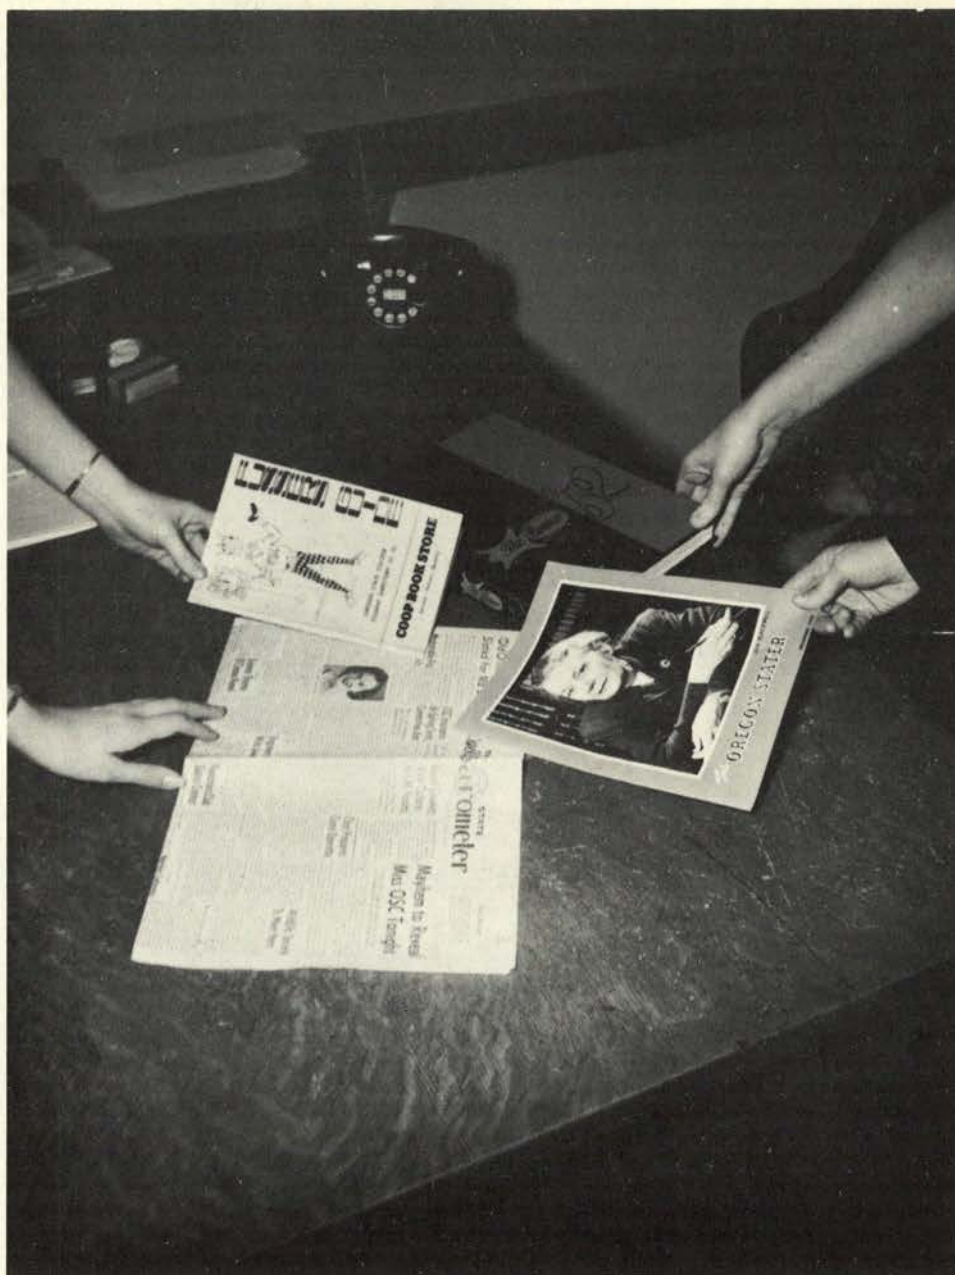

At the beginning of the year, a student planning conference was held at President Strand's home to discuss problems concerning school spirit, the overcrowded social schedule, and other difficulties. President Strand, Dean Poling, Mrs. Tracy Johnson, and many student leaders attended.

Nancy Halladay, Audrey Daum, President Strand, Bud Henning, and Howard Neal discuss suggested plans of adjusting the crowded social schedule.

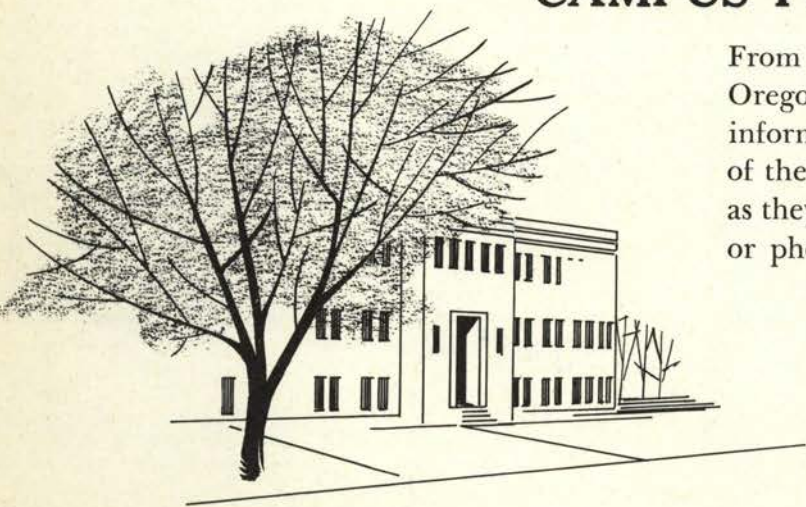

Making a list of major problems discussed at the planning conference are Hal Mahon, Janet Albert, Don Van Allsburg, Jo Wyman and Jim Webb.

CAMPUS PUBLICATIONS

From the Fusser's Guide to the Daily Barometer, Oregon State's many publications keep the students informed. Section editor Jean Gervin catches some of the behind-the-scenes work of campus journalists as they strive to meet the demand for the latest news or phone numbers.

Beaver is Born Amid Clamor and Coffee

From deep within the dark and dismal recesses of MU 203 comes the busy clack of typewriters and the muffled sound of voices cursing the gods above and the gods below. Punctuated by the blinding glare of flash bulbs and the soothing gurgle of swallowed coffee, the Beaver is born.

The chief physician, Nancy Halladay, issues orders and guides the attending servants in this hour of crisis as the deadline nears. Then in a last burst of frenzy, all is over—the noise ends, the confusion ceases.

The 1953 Beaver is here. All is quiet again in MU 203.

Nancy Halladay, 1953 Beaver editor, swings around in her swivel chair to deliver a cheery hello. The staff, always kept smiling with Nancy's repertoire of jokes, occasionally found time to work.

Nancy Nelson, living groups editor, and Jean Gervin, managing editor, plow through never-ending pictures to find just the right one.

Kathie Miller, clubs and honoraries section editor, checks work while assistant Don Sump gladly records progress on Beaver deadline chart.

Important events at OSC are recorded in the chronology section by Betty Shideler and Kathy Aysta while Dick Coyner, section editor, supervises.

“Office Next Door” is Beaver’s Right Arm

Glenda Cotton, watchful business manager for the Beaver, keeps tabs on her staff wandering in the M U concourse below.

Telephone books, Fusser’s Guides, anything to get buyers, say Bob Greendale, book sales manager; Erwin Pearson, page sales manager; and Mary Mee, office manager.

Denise Beale, Joan Bussell, and Alice Kropp, secretaries, keep some of the office in order with typing and filing occupying the largest part of their time.

Ed Zottola, assistant book-sales manager, starts salesgirls Phyllis Spreeman and Carol Kincaid on the right foot with several salesbooks.

Barometer Reports Keep OSC in "Know"

Tom Poulson, the editor, pauses several minutes from his work at the typewriter. Notice that the dictionary is his faithful guide.

Editorial board members: (standing) Flora Schuster, Donna Sparling, Dick Davis, Walt Vockert, Gina Willey, Jim Fisher, and Neil Wissing. (Seated) Carl Plog, Elaine Yunker, Bev Heater, and Sherrill Carlson review the latest issue of the Barometer for editorial material.

Day and night editors: (standing) Carl Plog, Fred Kluth, Carolyn Colby, Barbara Lindfors, Dick Coyner, and Jim Fisher. (Seated) Sherrill Carlson and Bev Kerns, are unusually neat and wide-awake after meeting their deadlines.

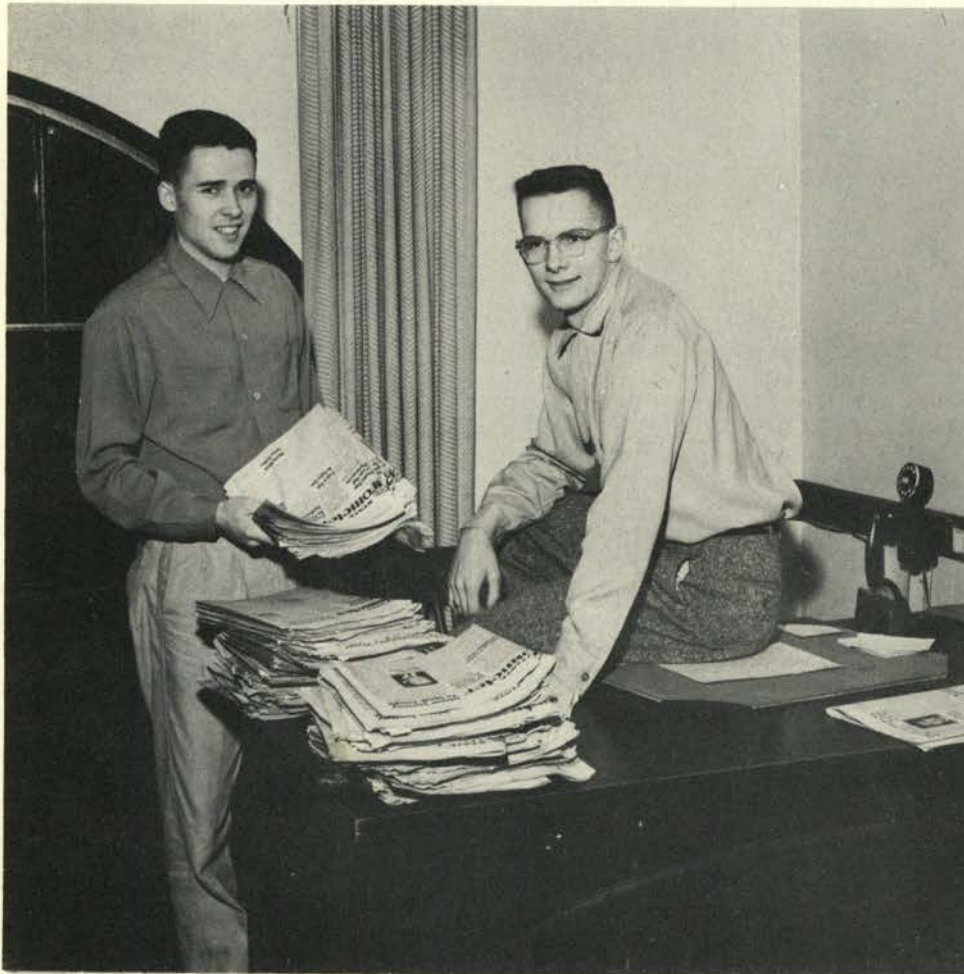

Gina Willey, society editor, and Barbara Snyder, her assistant, give the weekly "sassity page" a workout for Barometer readers.

A steady flow of sports news comes from sports editor Walter Vockerts' typewriter. Ad libbing to fill the holes is Jim Fisher.

Barometer Business Busies Office Crew

Don Wilks with smile and convenient telephone handles the Barometer business under the title of Business Manager.

The Barometer's bread and butter is planned by national ad manager Bruce McGregor and classified ad manager Chuck Hornecker.

Some of the people who keep the office running are Steve Croley, bill collector; Nancy Paulson, office manager; Margie Dillard, proofreader, and Phil Briggs, circulation manager.

Ads don't just walk into the Barometer office. Just ask the people who go after them: Greg Hornecker, Betty Pritchard, Nancy Allworth and Janice Clark.

Fusser's Guide is OSC'S Date Bureau

Editor Jim Fisher and Business Manager Jack Saling sample some of Fusser's Guide wares after grueling experience of editing comes to an end.

Assisting with the many jobs in turning out the college student name guide are: (back row) Tom Poulsen, Bev Heater, Sherrill Carlson, Don Wilks, Margie Dillard, Tam Moore, Walt Vockert and Carl Plog. Seated are Flora Schuster and Kathie Miller.

Tech Record is a magazine for engineers designed to keep its readers up to date on the facts. Responsible for the magazine: (back row) Larry Larson, Bruce Brown, Bob Sharp, Bob Knollin, Burt Carlson, Herb Altman, John Ferguson, and Gene Andrews. (Seated) Jim Colburn, Fred Kluth, Gordon Wade, Gene McFarland, Fred Tinker.

News Bureau Knows All About Staters

Among other jobs, Sam H. Bailey, Fred Zwahlen, and Irwin Harris gather news involving Oregon Stater's and send it to the home town papers.

OSC Publications Board serves the many publications on the campus by being ready with advice and help regarding the policies and procedures of the publications. Members are: Nancy Halladay, Tom Poulsen, Dean Dan Poling, Fred Shideler, George Martin, Don Wilks, Glenda Cotton and Irwin Harris.

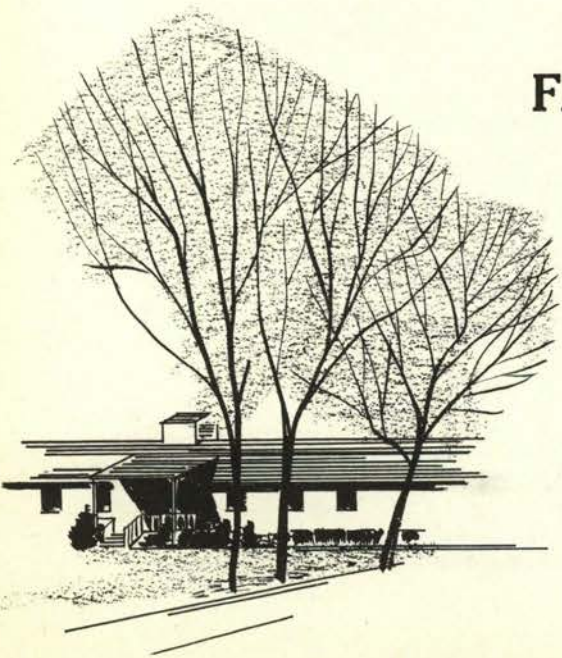

Advisory Boards Serve Publications

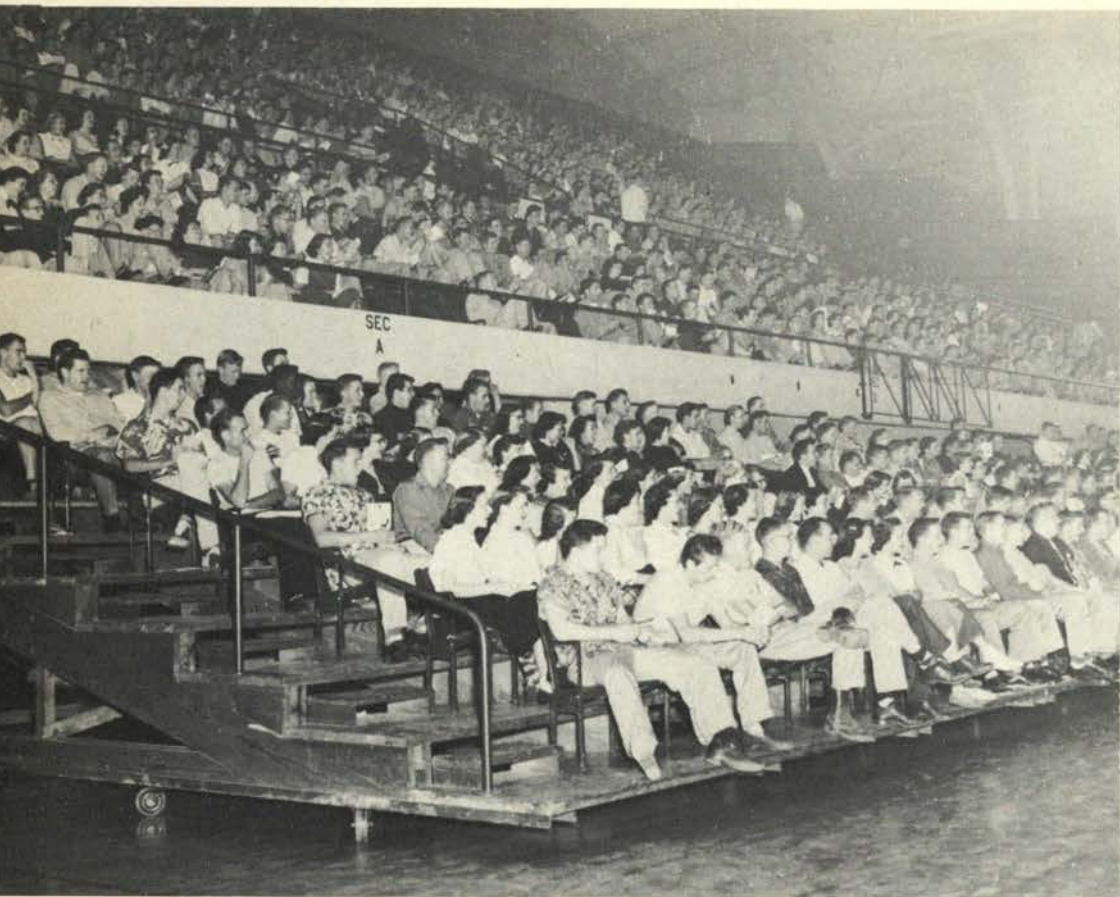

The Beaver Advisory Board is a new committee to aid the Beaver and get varied campus opinion on different phases of the book. Helen Wrolstad, Jim Fisher, chairman; Neil Wissing, Jean Gervin and John Marshall are members for the '53 book.

FALL'S FAMILIAR FUN

From the first warm welcome to the many goodbyes each spring, Oregon State College means lasting friendships and new experiences, as well as academic advancement. Dick Coyner has collected some familiar scenes of campus life, which will always remain as pleasant memories.

The entire student body assembled for a meeting? No, it is just part of the Rook class as they attend one of the daily convocations. These convos always were at 8 a.m. and sleepy faces were present.

Rooks Rumped By First Week

College just isn't all that it is cracked up to be. This is the opinion of the many new students during the first week of school which is used for the orientation of the new Rook class.

During this week they take tests, attend lectures, take more tests, attend convos, take more tests, learn about traditions, and are the honored guests at the annual Freshmen Mix where they indulge in picking up paw-paws, a favorite OSC pastime.

ORIENTATION?

Information tables scattered around the campus were the new Rook's answer to where, when, and how of the week's doings. They received more pamphlets adding to the mounting pile of material.

Paw-Paw Picking Time on Campus

Everybody ready for the fun to begin? Jim Heston points out the route that the two Talons are to follow to get to the Paw-Paw patch. Thanes, Talons, and Rook and Rookess counselors lead . . .

Out on the field everybody does a few simple dances to get limbered up for the picking . . .

Swing partner and pass her back. Coleman field was the start of all the fun and frolic . . .

Up in the air with "Little Liza Jane". All of the dances at the Paw-Paw mix were traditional ones for the new Rooks. After it was all over, everyone headed for the open house at the women's dorms.

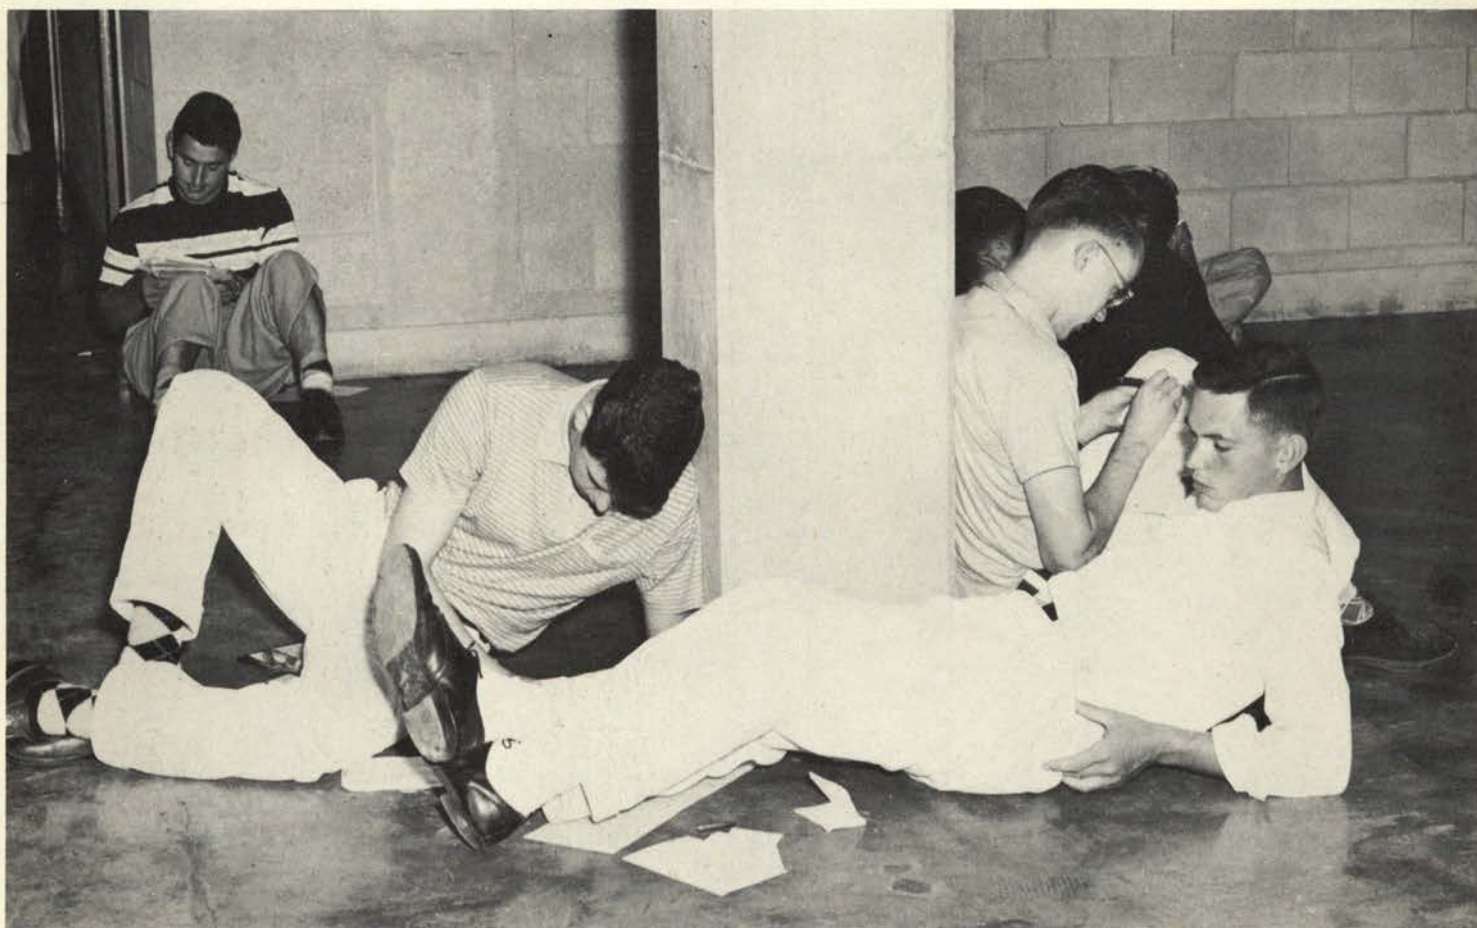

Professors may replace popcorn booths in the coliseum, but business booms just the same. Students spent more time standing to be sectioned than they did filling out "train tickets."

Ohh, Happy Day; Registration

Fall term always seems to get off with a bang during registration. At no other time during the term are there so many bottlenecks, so many lines, or so many frustrated students.

One of the most disconcerting items of registration is the "train-ticket". So many vacant lines to fill in in triplicate; so many forgotten facts required. Many of the students tried to pull strings to get inside the coliseum earlier than they were supposed to, but these trys were often unsuccessful.

A trial study sheet can become a real trial. One class filled before an Oregon Stater can sign up for the course, and he's likely to spend the rest of the day designing a new schedule. After that he spends many unhappy minutes filling out those miles and miles of train tickets. Oh, for a rubber stamp!

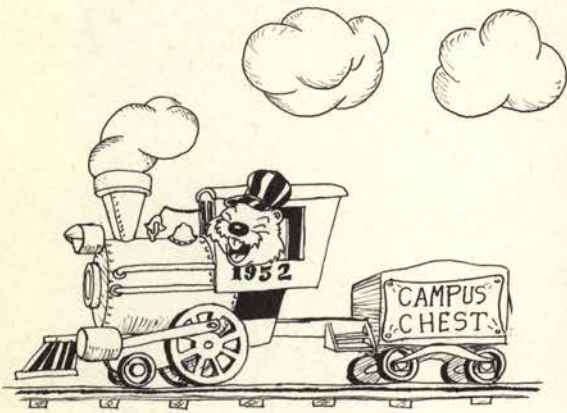

After registration comes one of the more expensive aspects of college. Buying books is an experience which no person should be without. After standing in line for hours at registration the students stand in line at the book-store, only to discover that the text they want has been completely sold out.

The puzzled expression shown by this young lady is typical of students as they are sectioned. Everybody can work in conflicts if they try.

Community Chest Drive Hits OSC

Don McKenzie performs as auctioneer as various members of the faculty are auctioned off to various living groups. Among those that went on the block were President Strand, Dean of Men, Dan Poling, and Assistant Dean of Women, Miss Martha Morton. Bidding went fast and soon all were bought.

Another car on the Campus Chest train is placed by Thane Bob Minor, who built and painted the cars. Each living group which contributed 100 per cent to the drive was allowed to put one car on the train.

The engine of Campus Chest train heads out into the M.U. squad. The train attracted many students who followed the progress of the drive. More than 2360 dollars was collected.

Boys clog up the registration desk at Sackett A while they buy tickets and declare their living groups. At times it was impossible to find SRO.

Waldo Hall's Nickel Arcade was a popular stopover for the many who hopped. Prize was offered to the men who were the hoppingest hoppers.

Women's Living Groups Target as Men Nickle-Hop From House to House and Dormitory to Dormitory

For the second year in a row the men of Tau Kappa Epsilon won the hopping. As a prize they received the services of the Thetas who entertained them with dessert.

Entrance into the dancehall was always a problem as dancers filed into the Memorial Union ballroom where the dance was held. The dance was formal and many men wore their dress uniforms.

Military Units Stage Big Ball

The ROTC units on campus combined to put on the annual Military Ball, complete with the crowning of a Little Colonel, the awarding of a trophy to the AFROTC detachment, and military decorations.

Bill DeSouza's orchestra furnished the musical background as the dancers enjoyed themselves to the utmost. Miss Vicki Stuart, vocalist with the band, furnished many popular ballads.

An overall view of the Military Ball shows the band in the background while lovely Vicki Stuart warbles one of the latest melodies. The motif of the dance was equally divided between the army, navy, and air force ROTC units, and each unit decorated a corner of the ballroom with military equipment.

The camera catches Marlene Hankins just as she is declared Little Colonel of the 1952 Military Ball. Marlene, who represented Kappa Alpha Theta, will act as official ROTC Hostess during 1952-53.

Jim Harmes receives trophy and congratulations from Mayor John Anderson of Tacoma for AFROTC detachment's excellent work at McChord Field.

Dancers swirl and sway among the decorations of the various military units which sponsored the annual dance. Music was furnished by Bill DeSouza's orchestra.

College Unions Hold Confab

The Memorial Union is always being used as the headquarters for some convention. This term the M.U. acted as host for the regional conference of the Association of College Unions.

The delegates were able to see the OSC Union as it actually is; always busy with its many offices, lounges, and student activities. The conference lasted for two days, and was typical of the many meetings that the M.U. has held in its rooms.

Delegates check in at the Memorial Union east bay. As the students signed in they were given their credentials and their daily programs. Colleges from all over the West sent delegates to the meeting.

Many fine friendships developed during meetings. The cameraman was able to catch several discussions with his lens during a morning break.

A break for coffee was a welcome event during the day-long sessions and discussions. The convention delegates were able to relax, talk and sip.

Grandpappy's barn floor was never like this. The dancers cut fancy swirls on the Coliseum flooring as the Square Dance Jamboree gets into full swing. Better than 250 couples attended the big dance.

Square Dancers Hold Jamboree

A fad that has hit the nation by storm hit the Oregon State campus equally hard. That good old fashioned music that characterized the dances of the 1880's along with leather-lunged callers keep the OSC students do-si-doing rather than doing the mambo.

Of course not all of the student body square dances, but enough do to enable the campus to act as host at a big Square Dance Jamboree during fall term. So lets all join hands and circle four . . .

Among many popular dances done at the big jamboree were the Texas Star, and Diving for the Oyster. All join hands and circle four above.

Homecoming always starts out with a house sign contest, and 1952 was no exception. The Sig Eps won first among the fraternities with this one.

Alumni Return to Campus for Annual Homecoming

The noise parade wandered through town to the Rook bonfire with a steady bedlam of honking, tooting, and pounding. Marchers gave way to no-one, including a freight train and indignant crew.

Rooks worked all day Friday, and when they finished, a thirty-foot pyre burned brightly.

Around the Rook bonfire the rally squad leads the crowd, who accompanied the noise parade, in songs, yells, and cheers. Students proved they were completely in back of the team in the grid-game.

Alumni Treated With Barbeque

Saturday of Homecoming featured registration, a big barbeque in the armory, the Homecoming game against Idaho, a coffee-doughnut jamboree, a dance for alumni at the Country Club, and a Homecoming dance at the coliseum, which was attended by some 1700 persons.

The armory was turned into information booths, registration tables, and barbeque pits for the big feed. After the game with Idaho was over, the alumni streamed back into the building for hot coffee.

The coffee and doughnut tables did a thriving business after the game. The day had been cool enough to make the hot coffee appreciated.

Even the kids stopped off for a warmer-upper. Except for the loss of the game, it was a perfect ending for a day of football.

The Oregon State college marching band puts on a good show during halftime. The band, under the direction of Ted Mesang, has formed a carriage with the wheel going round and round. Other halftime entertainment was furnished by the OSC cheering section and their colorful flash-card pictures.

30 House Dances Cause Full Weekend Calendar

House functions were predominantly formal with glamour and romance playing a one-night stand. Kappa Deltas and dates relax at pledge dance.

The one weekend of fall term left free from football games, vacations, and Homecoming was transformed to the biggest weekend of all. Thirty house functions in two nights, the social calendar read, and Staters outdid themselves in trying to get to them all.

Formals and crepe paper were taken from moth balls to prepare for the big nights. Those places that were once living rooms, dining rooms, and smoking rooms became havens for heavenly hosts and dens for designing devils.

The functions, mostly formals, kept everyone busy either decorating or dancing. The day after it was agreed. . . "a good time was had by all".

Intermissioning during Sigma Chi's annual Sweetheart Ball, couples await the announcement of the 1953 Sweetheart. In spite of temporary capture of the court, Arlene Hendricks received the title.

Kiddies Parties Hit OSC Campus

Santa arrived in Beaverville two weeks early this year, and put in a full day's work attending college-sponsored Christmas parties.

Sunday afternoon saw Waldo open its doors to approximately 150 children from the Farm Home outside of Corvallis. Later that afternoon, Santa crossed the street to the M.U. lounge where the M.U. hospitality committee had staged their fifth annual Christmas get-together. Here, too, the kids fared the best, and after it all, the bewhiskered old gentleman retired to the North until his next visit December 25th.

Santa Claus, alias Don McKenzie, '53, stole the show at the M.U.'s fifth annual get-together of faculty and students while candy canes got the eye of their kids. In true spirit, the yule log was burned.

Waldoite Kathy Taylor helps anticipate the stuffings of a stocking as over-size candy canes decked the hall for the "Candy Cane Lane" party.

An estimated 150 from the Children's Farm Home were on hand to receive gifts and goodies two weeks early from Santa at Waldo's annual party.

The Memorial Union lounge is a favorite studying place for those who like complete silence while they concentrate. The silence of the lounge is also favorable for other final week activities like sleep.

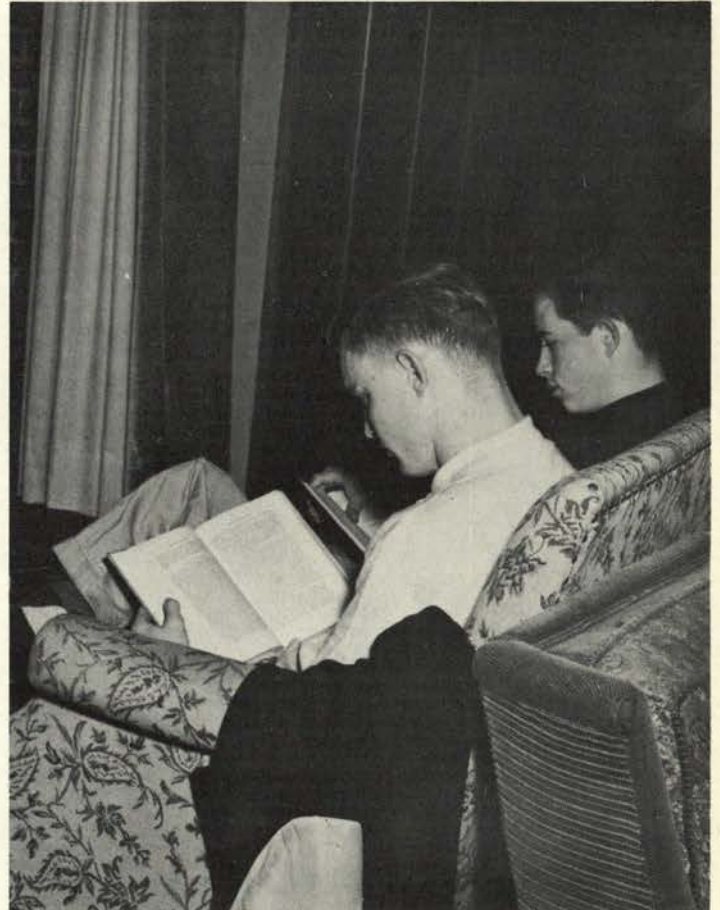

Finals Descend, Students Scurry

Final week brings much weeping and wailing as students realize that the time for alibis is over and now professors want results.

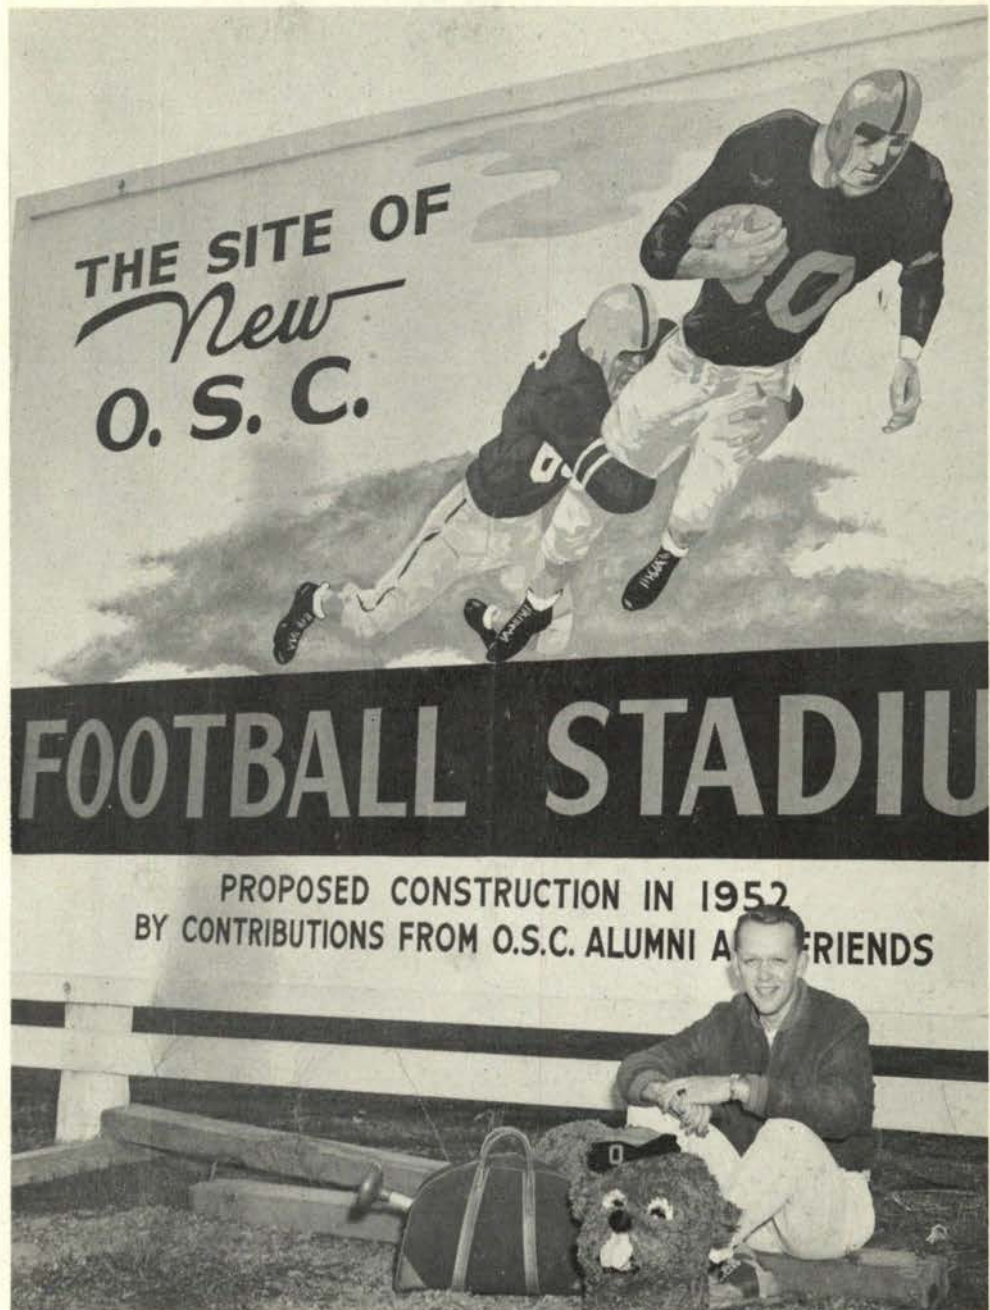

Some of the most typical final week pastimes are the movies, bowling, sleeping, and sometimes studying. A few of the more serious students adjourn to the library where they can be assured of peace and quiet while they hit the books.

The reserve book room is always the place where it is possible to find bookworms. With pages of notes spread before them they study and read.

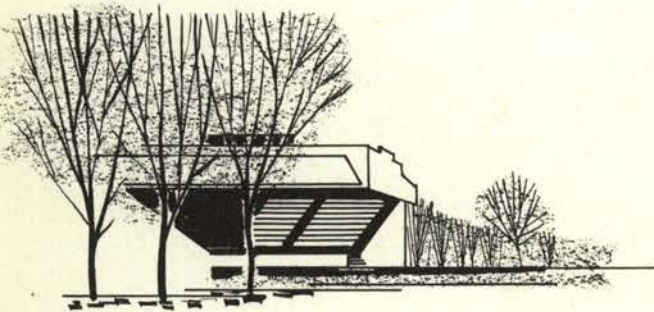

Are these students studying or are they reading a historical novel instead? Whatever it is, the concentration radiates in all directions.

FALL SPORTS

Hoarse throats, rosy cheeks, and waving pompons show that sports play a big part in the lives of loyal Beavers, as they sing "Hail to Old OSC" throughout the year. Bart Williams has collected records of the athletic events of fall term, displaying the progress of the orange and black.

OSC 14; Utah 7

The 1952 Beaver grid machine started its season with a 14-7 win over the University of Utah. The night game, played before 15,000 fans in Salt Lake City, saw the Orangemen unleash a well-balanced attack. The running of Sam Baker spearheaded the Bevo's ground game. Despite the narrow margin of victory, Coach Kip Taylor's charges outclassed the Utes in every department with the exception of punting.

An unidentified Oregon State Beaver brings a Utah Redskin to the ground late in the second stanza of play, as team-mates Wally Jackson (number 48) and Ted DeMerritt (number 76) close in to offer assistance. The Orange and Black were never headed after scoring twice in the first quarter on sustained ground drives. Utah scored in the second quarter on a 50-yard pass play. Baker made the two touchdowns for the Beavers.

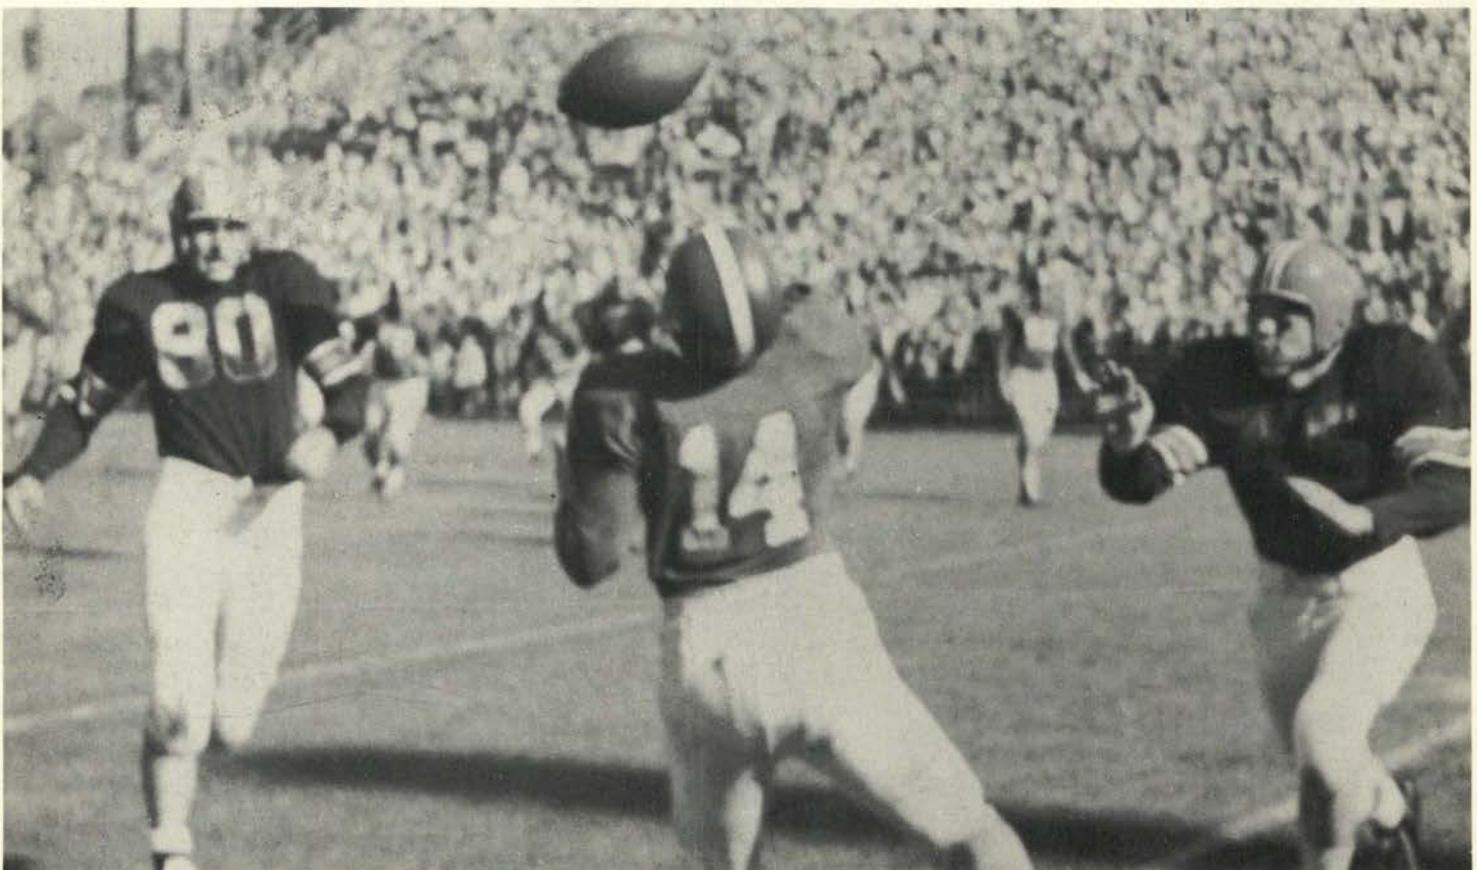

A whole host of Michigan State Spartans strive to bring an OSC ball-carrier down to the turf. Don Dohoney, number 80, an MSC end, has been able to turn the play inside and piles the runner up for no gain.

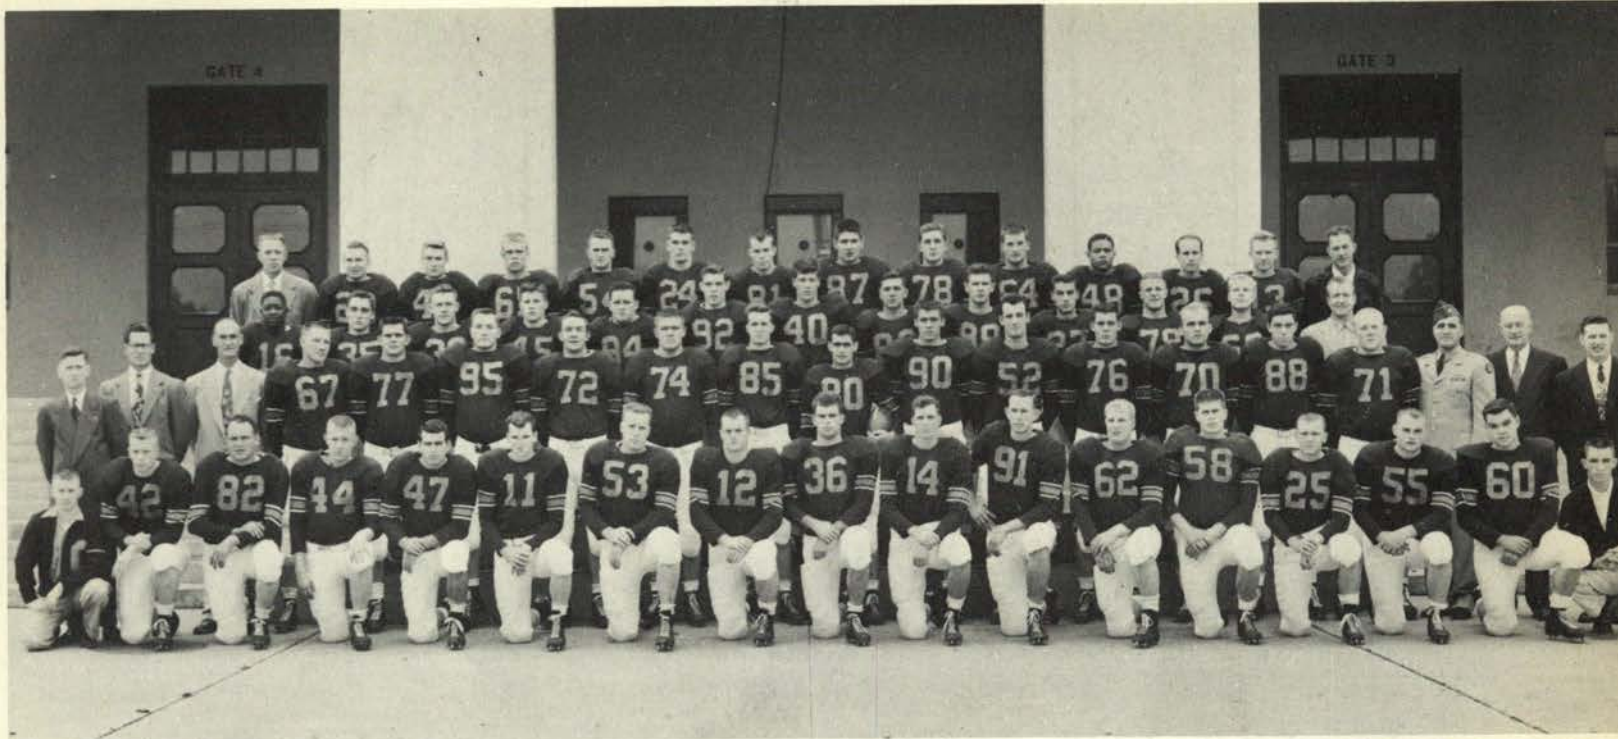

OSC 14 MSC 17

An aroused Beaver team spotted Michigan State two touchdowns in the first half and then came surging back to knot the score late in the final quarter. The Spartans staged a desperate drive in the closing minutes in an effort to score and hold their 16 game winning streak.

With two seconds left, and the ball on OSC's 9-yard line, Eugene Lekenta, MSC fullback, dropped back for a field goal attempt. His attempt was wide but the Orange were penalized for off side. The big fullback's second kick was good, and Oregon State lost the most thrilling contest ever witnessed in Portland's Multnomah Stadium.

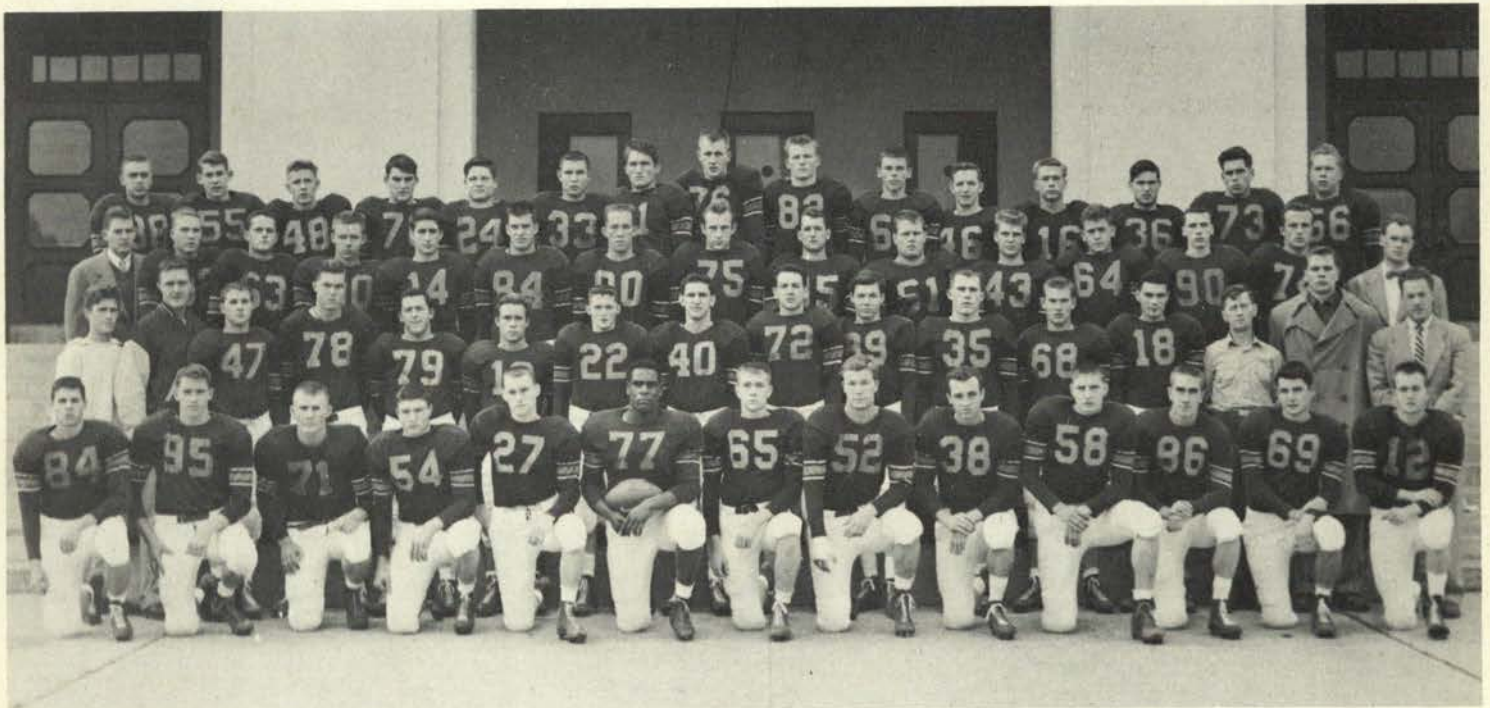

Tommy Wells, number 14, Spartan scatback, goes high into the air to receive a pass. Jim Cordial, number 80, and Ron Siegrist, number 45, move in for the kill. Oregon State had to come from behind to tie the score at 14 all, and except for an off-side penalty, would have broken MSC's streak.

OSC 28; Stanford 41

Three quick touchdowns in the first quarter and the Stanford Indians proved too strong to overcome as the Beavers succumbed to their second straight defeat, 41 to 28. Coach Kip Taylor's gridgers came back fighting in the third quarter and quickly scored the first of four Orange TD's.

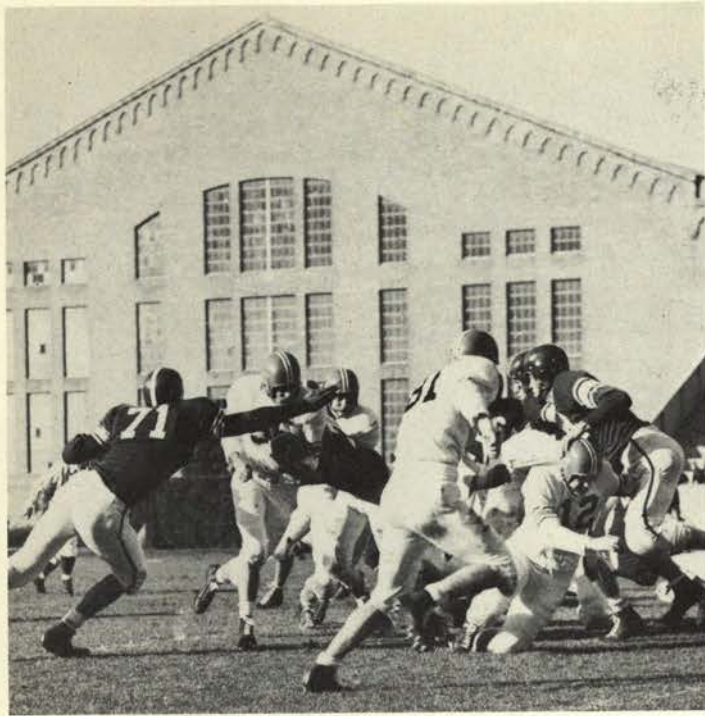

Although their defeat was decisive, the Bevos could at least say that they gave the Indians the scare of their lives when the Orange and Black started scoring almost at will in the last quarter.

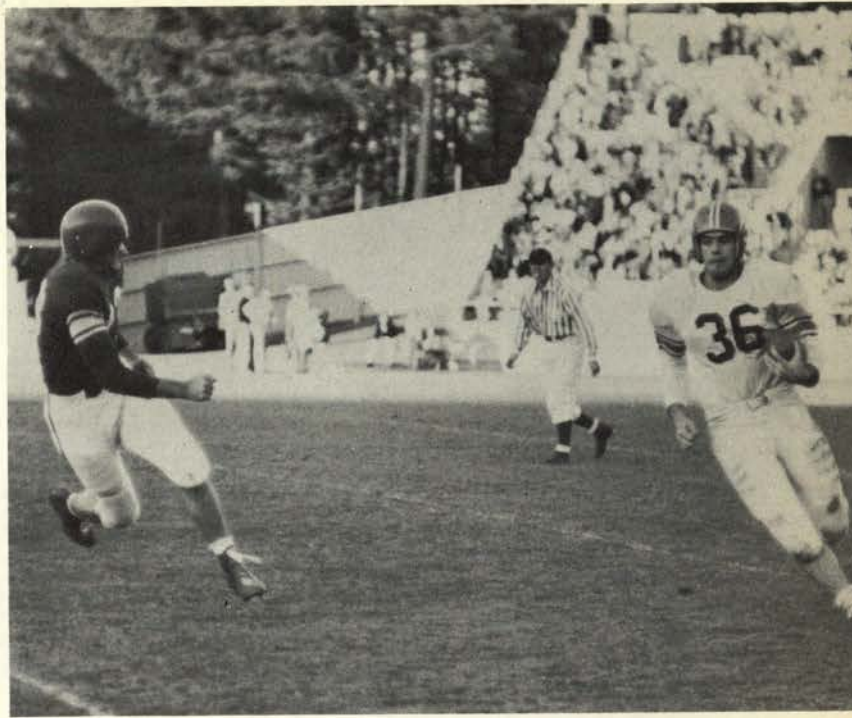

This Indian didn't get too far, but others did and the Beavers went down in defeat, but not before they too got into the scoring act. Fumbling cost both teams heavily as they tried to put together a drive.

Big Bob Mathias, number 49, has the ball pulled from his arms by Bill West, number 40, as he tries for yardage. Mathias, Stanford's fullback, was one of the most consistent ground-gainers in the contest, despite the alert OSC defense, which was spearheaded by Cordial and West.

Fullback Sam Baker, number 36, goes pounding off tackle during the long OSC scoring drive. Big Sam had a good day picking up needed yardage.

It's Slamming Sammy Baker again, this time around left end. Sam broke Ken Carpenter's old rushing record this year and he can punt and pass also!

Yes, you guessed it, the ballcarrier is Baker again. This time he is pretty well covered by the opposing Cougar linemen. The Cougars took a while to get going, but when they did, the Beavers couldn't stop them.

OSC 20; WSC 33

WSC's Cougars broke a four-game losing streak by stopping the Bevos 33 to 20 in a homecoming game played at Pullman. WSC had to come from behind in the last quarter to put the game into the Cougar win column.

Going into the fourth quarter, the Beavers had a 20-to-6 lead, but the Cougars flew back to score 27 points for the win.

The Beavers' scoring was started by Lineman Doug Hogland who fell on a blocked Cougar punt in the end zone. Then with five seconds left in the first half, QB Jim Withrow tossed a 26-yard pass to Halfback Ken Brown in the end zone.

The last Beaver score was sparked by Fullback Sam Baker. The score was the result of an 80-yard drive with Baker finally crossing over from the six.

Big Sam Baker clears the way for Kay Booth as he heads round right end. Despite Oregon State's first rapid touchdown, the Beavers didn't stand a chance against the mighty USC Trojans. Carmichael and Sears put on an exhibition that proved the Trojans had as good an offense as defense.

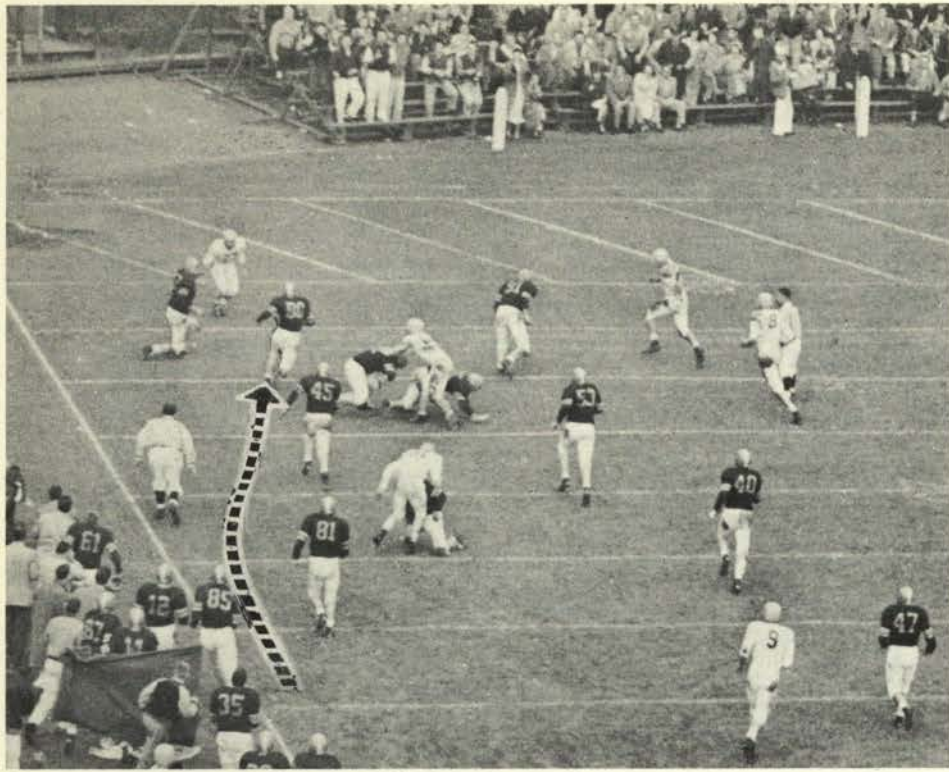

OSC 6; USC 28

Combine the best defensive line in the country with a versatile single wing offense, and you will have a team called the Trojans from the University of Southern California. This same aggregation of gridiron monsters all but ran the Beavers out of Portland's Multnomah stadium when the two teams tangled early in the season.

The only conclusion that could be drawn from the contest was that if Michigan State was the top team in the nation, then the Staters must have run into some men from Mars.

End Claret Taylor, number 81, packs the mail against the vaunted Trojans from Southern California. The Orange and Black just couldn't put together the necessary drive to score points.

Big Jim Cordial heads for the Huskie goal line after intercepting one of Don Heinrich's aerials on the Huskie 35. The Huskies stopped Cordial on the one-yard line, but Baker punched across.

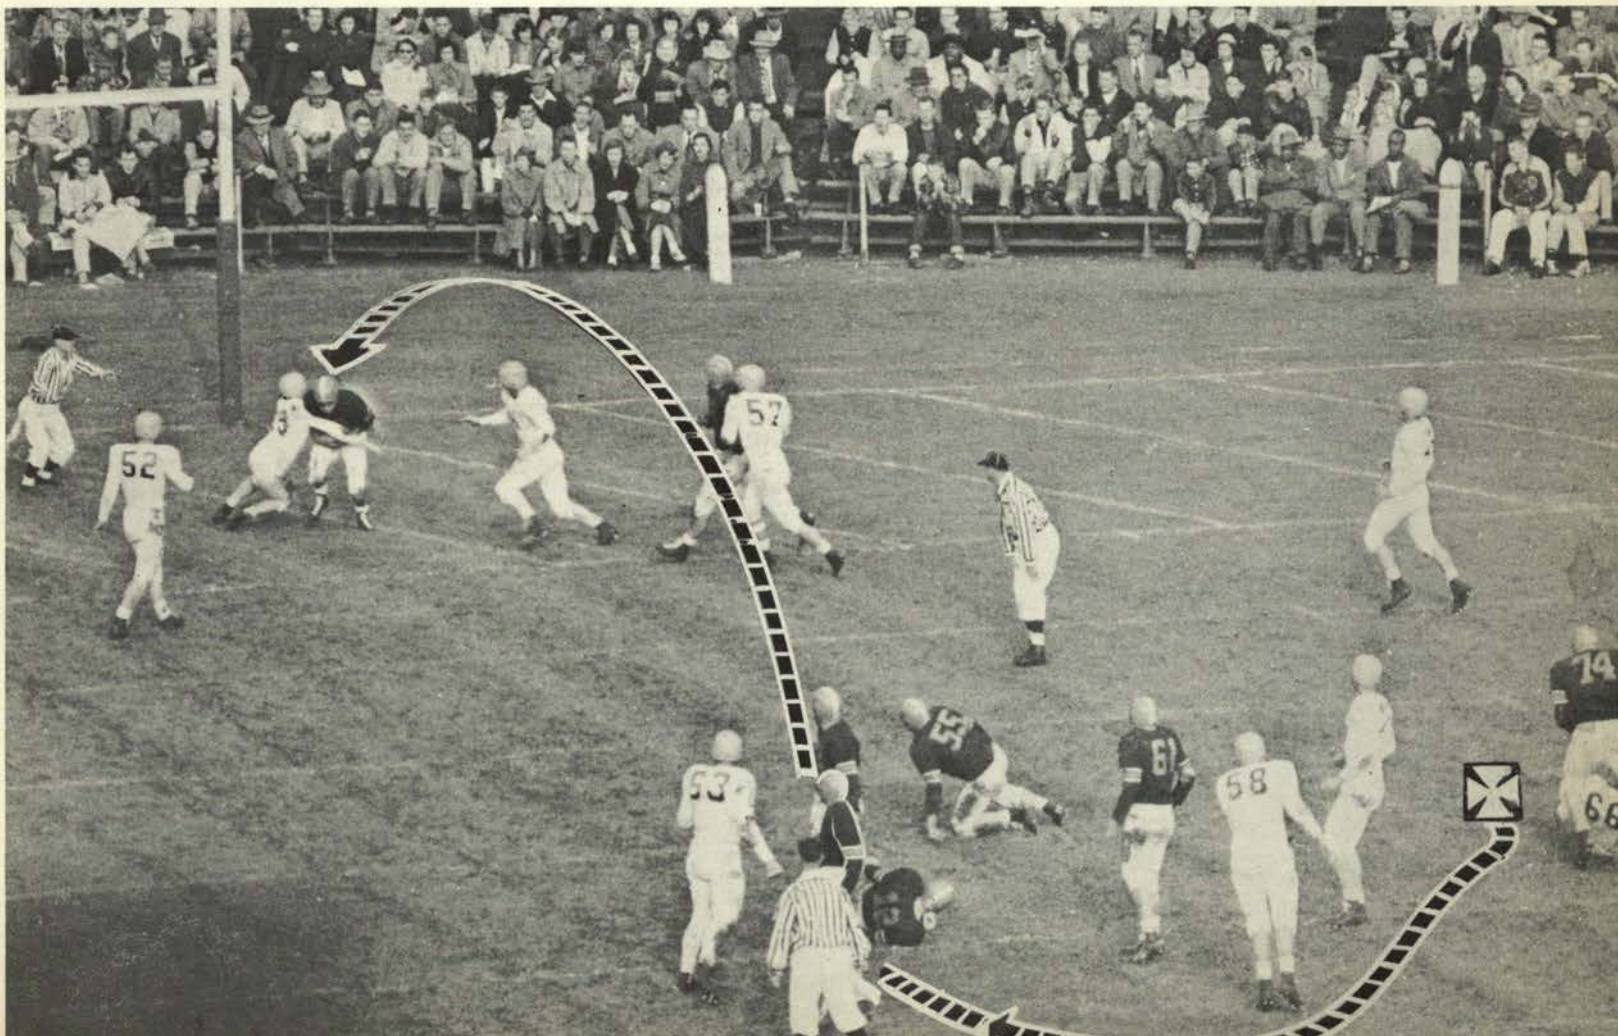

OSC 13; Washington 38

With Don Heinrich doing the passing, the University of Washington rumbled over Oregon State in Multnomah stadium, 38 to 13. Heinrich, an All-American quarterback, completed 19 passes in 37 attempts for a total of 167 yards and three touchdowns.

The two Oregon State tallies came as the result of a pass and an interception. For the first score, Jimmy Withrow flipped a 12-yard aerial to Wally Jackson. The final Beaver score followed an interception by Cordial.

The Beavers were unable to cross the goal line in the second half while the Huskies kept building up the score. The previous year the Beavers had stopped the Huskies 40 to 12, almost an exact reversal of the 1952 score.

"X" marks the start of the second OSC scoring play. Quarterback Jimmy Withrow ran wide to the left and then flipped a 12-yard pass to Halfback Wally Jackson in the Huskie end zone. The Beavers were unable to cross the goal line in the second half, while the Huskies kept building up the score.

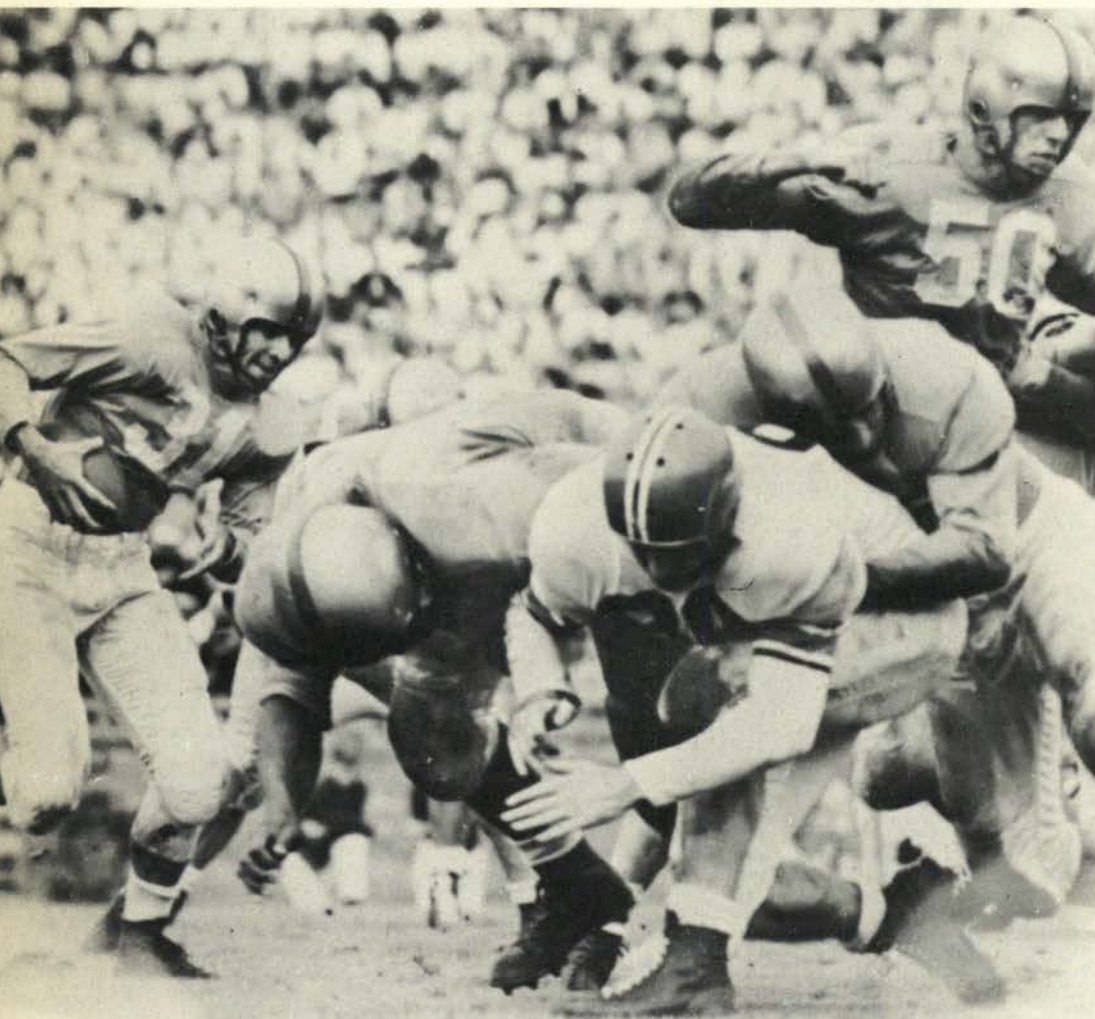

OSC 0; UCLA 57

The 1952 UCLA-OSC football contest will be one the Beaver fans will want to forget in the future. Played in Los Angeles, the Bruins took the Beavers to the tune of 57-0. The Bruins started their unending chain of scores on the first play of the game when a Beaver fumble was recovered in the end zone by Jim Cordial, OSC end, giving UCLA two points on a safety.

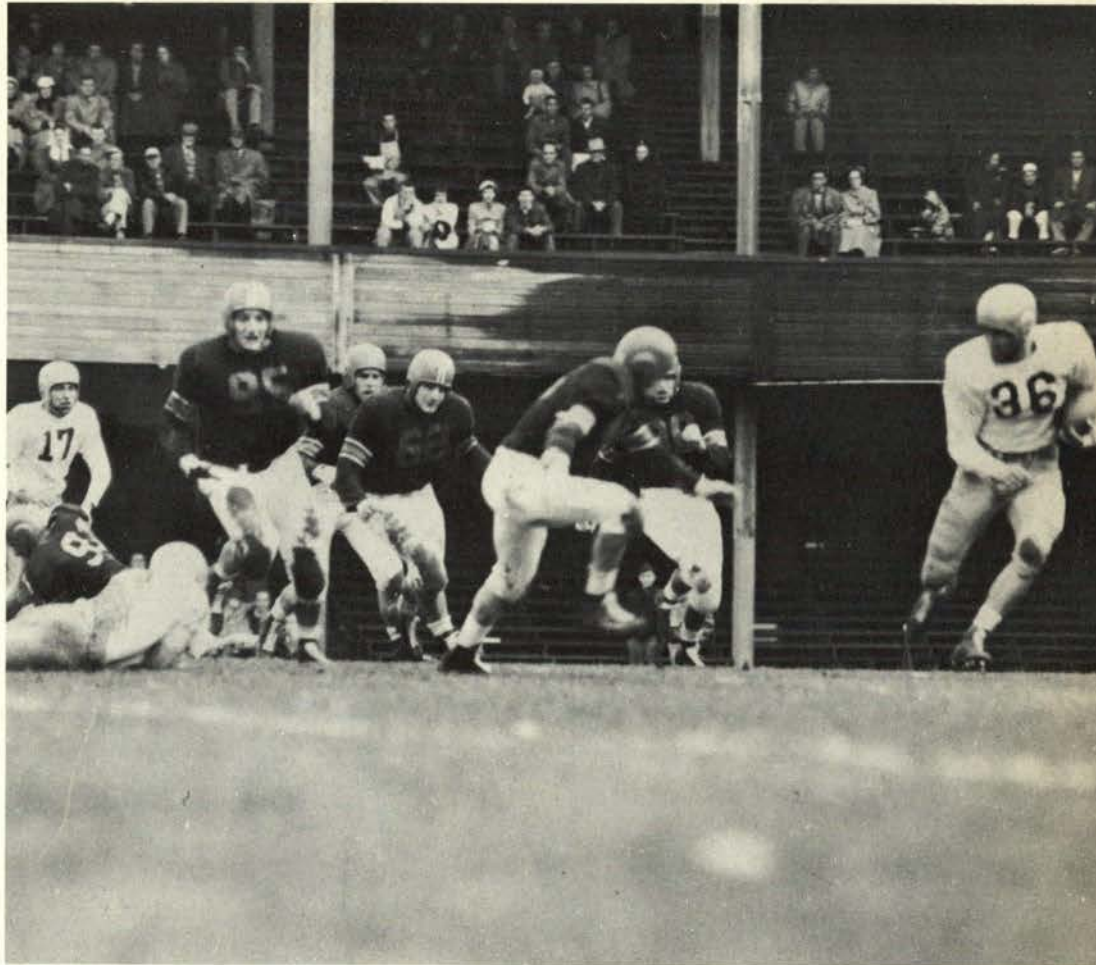

The loss, besides being the worst ever received by an OSC grid team, was the seventh in a row for Coach Kip Taylor's club.

Ron Seigrist, number 45, dives in to stop Paul Cameron. Despite the OSC loss, two bright spots were noted on the Beaver's behalf; the passing of Chuck Brackett and the punting by Big Sam Baker.

The camera catches a bit of illegal offensive holding, as an unidentified OSC Beaver is taken out of a UCLA running play.

Bob Lee, Idaho fullback, heads around the left end in an attempt to escape the horde of OSC Beavers who are bound to cut him off.

Jack Pinion, Oregon State halfback, has his journey toward the goal-line rudely interrupted by an eager Vandal. The homecoming game was played before a crowd of alumni on old Bell Field turf.

OSC 6; IDAHO 27

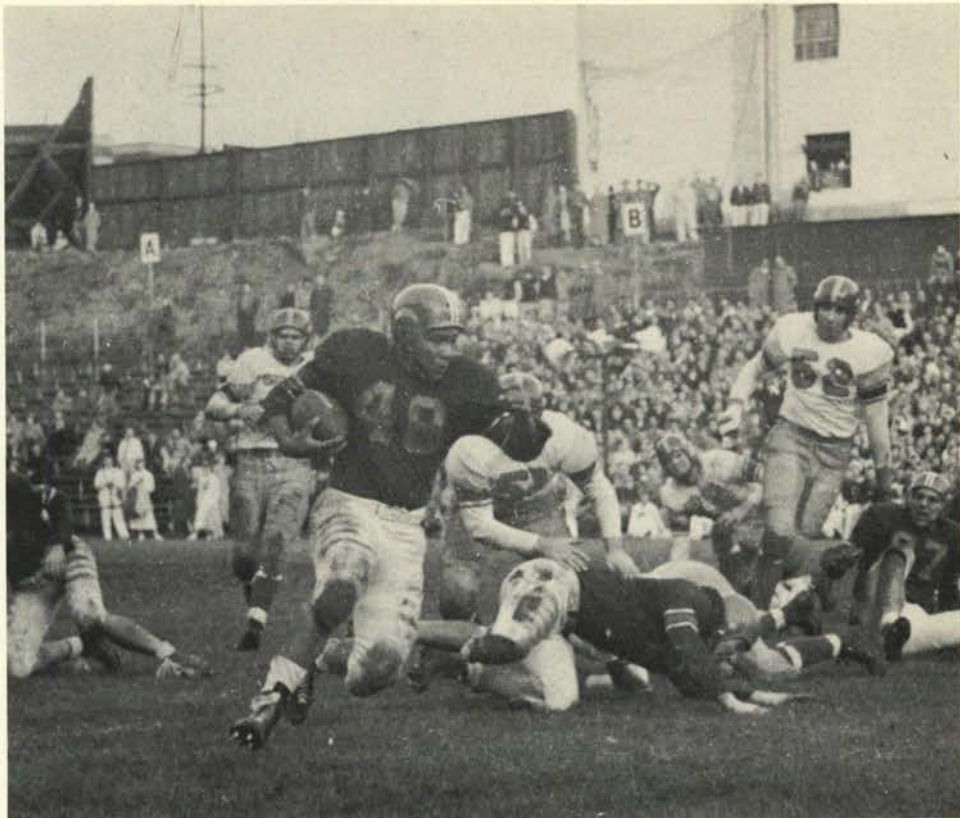

The University of Idaho spoiled a homecoming game for the Oregon State Bevos as the Vandals over-powered OSC 27 to 6. All the Beavers could seem to win was the flip of the coin. Played before 8000 fans in old Bell field the game was never in doubt after the first half.

Idaho completely outplayed Oregon State. In the statistics column the Vandals were credited with 13 first downs to OSC's five, and 279 yards total from rushing and passing to OSC's total of 130 yards. The Beavers held the Vandals scoreless in the first half, but the visitors came bounding back in the second half to put the game on ice.

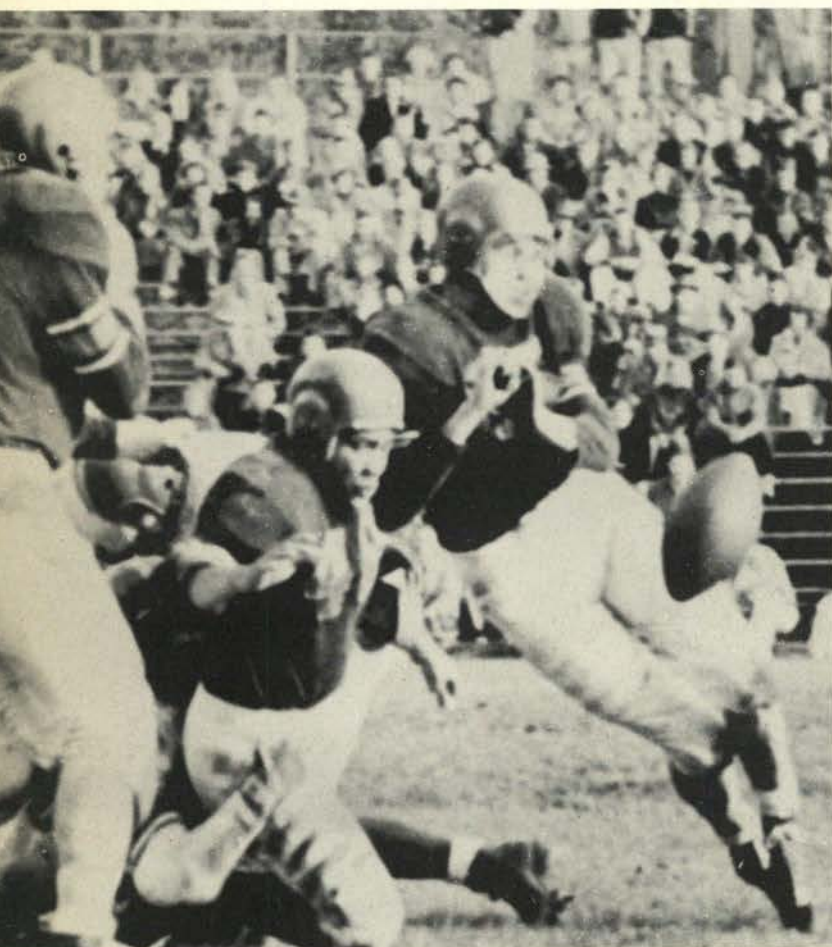

OSC 22; Oregon 19

Oregon State's Beavers continued their domination over the University of Oregon by beating the favored Ducks 22 to 19 at Portland's Multnomah stadium. It was the fourth in a row for the Beavers over their Willamette valley rivals.

The Ducks relied mostly on passing while the Beavers used a running attack to collect the victory. Actually, End Jimmie Cordial was the day's hero as his three-point field goal, booted in the final seconds of the first half, spelled the difference between a victory and a tie.

Wally Jackson, number 48, smashes off tackle to pick up needed yardage for the Orange and Black. The game wasn't decided until the final gun as the infuriated Ducks fought to prevent defeat.

A loose ball, and it's surrounded by Oregon State Beavers who start scrambling for it. The game was marked by few fumbles despite the hard hitting tackles.

Hard-running Chuck Brackett strains to cut around end as desperate Ducks give chase. All but sixty-six yards of the OSC total yardage came from rushing.

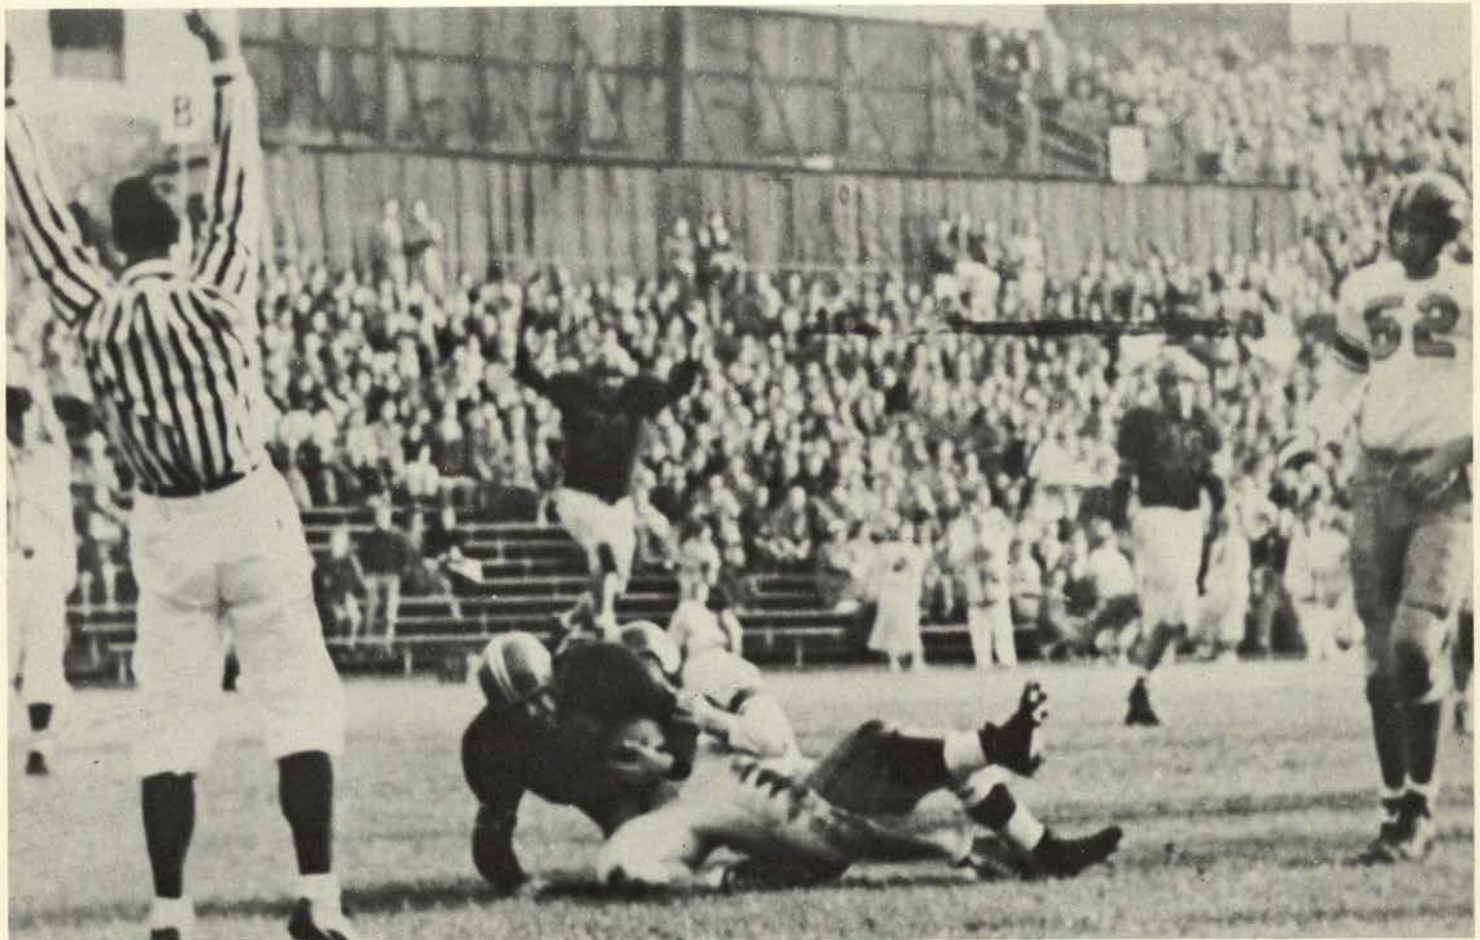

OSC came back in the second quarter to tie the score at 6-all on a line plunge by Sam Baker. OSC scored again when Cordial booted his 17-yard field goal to give OSC a 9-to-6 edge at halftime.

In the second half, Oregon took a 12-9 lead when Cecil Hodges scored.

Cordial set up the next OSC score on an interception. OSC scored again with 10 minutes left in the game on a one-foot plunge by Baker to give OSC a 22-to-12 lead. Final tally came with 7½ minutes left after Barney Holland chucked a 55-yard aerial to Manning Barber on the OSC four-yard line.

An Oregon end squeezes past Safety Kaye Booth and stretches for a long, deep pass. The main Oregon attack was through the airways as Holland, Shaw, and the Barber twins connected.

Halfback Wally Jackson bucks over for the second Beaver touchdown in the third quarter to give Oregon State a 15 to 12 lead. The score was set up when End Jim Cordial intercepted an Oregon pass and ran it back to the six yard line. Cordial was the hero of the day with his play and field goal.

Coach Laverne Taylor reminisces at his bulletin board in the coliseum where he plans Beaver strategy with his staff of assistant coaches.

Modern Gridiron Methods Taught by OSC Coaches

Coach Laverne "Kip" Taylor piloted the OSC Beavers as head coach this fall. "Kip" has been with the Beavers for several years. He is a well-renowned figure on the Oregon State campus.

Assisting Coach Taylor are the line coach, Leonard Younce; backfield coach, Ward Cuff; end coach, Butch Morse, and freshman coach, Hal Moe.

Although the Oregon State team did not win many games last fall, the entire coaching staff feels that large gains were made in experience and teamwork.

Rally Squad Adopts Benny Beaver

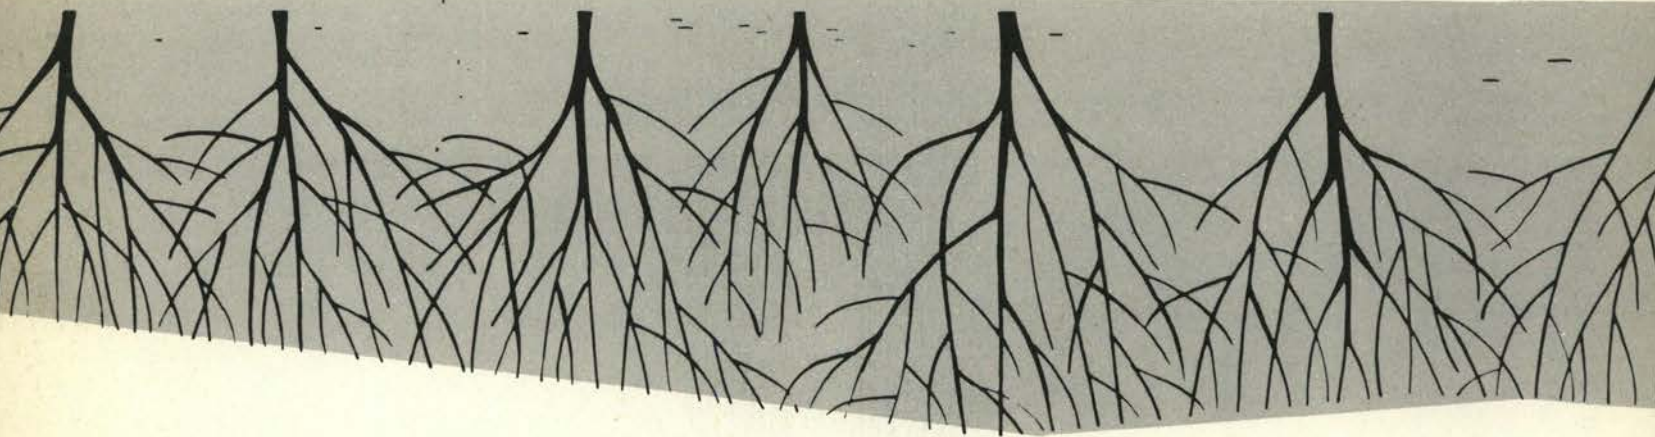

The Oregon State Rally Squad, including Grace Ann Jackson, Willa Wilshire, John Phias, Eddie Johnson, Yell King Bill Sundstrom, and Bill Turner, a fall term replacement for Eddie Johnson who suffered a broken ankle early in the season, brought variety to the varsity games by creating Benny Beaver for the fans. The true identity of the animal was not disclosed until the end of basketball season. Then the mask was lifted and Ken Austin was exposed as the masquerader. The squad enjoyed a fine season.

The Orange Rally kids admire their new member, Benny Beaver, whose appearance at games kept student spirit at a high pitch through the entire year. Members of squad: Eddie Johnson, Willa Wilshire, Yell King Bill Sundstrom, Gracie Ann Jackson, John Phias, and Benny Beaver, alias Kenny Austin.

Feminine roles are played to the dramatic hilt in the Lillian Hellman play concerning life's frustrating problems and the characters who succumb to them.

"And there I was!" young song enthusiast Bob Simmons thrills Pat Daum, romantic counterpart, during opening act of "June Moon" comedy.

Elwood P. Dowd, Harvey, and Mrs. Chumley carry on a spirited conversation during the play. The show was one of the most enjoyable of the season.

Elwood P. Dowd's sister, Veta Louise Simmons, comes home from a restful session in Doctor Chumley's hydrobath. The white rabbit stayed on and on.

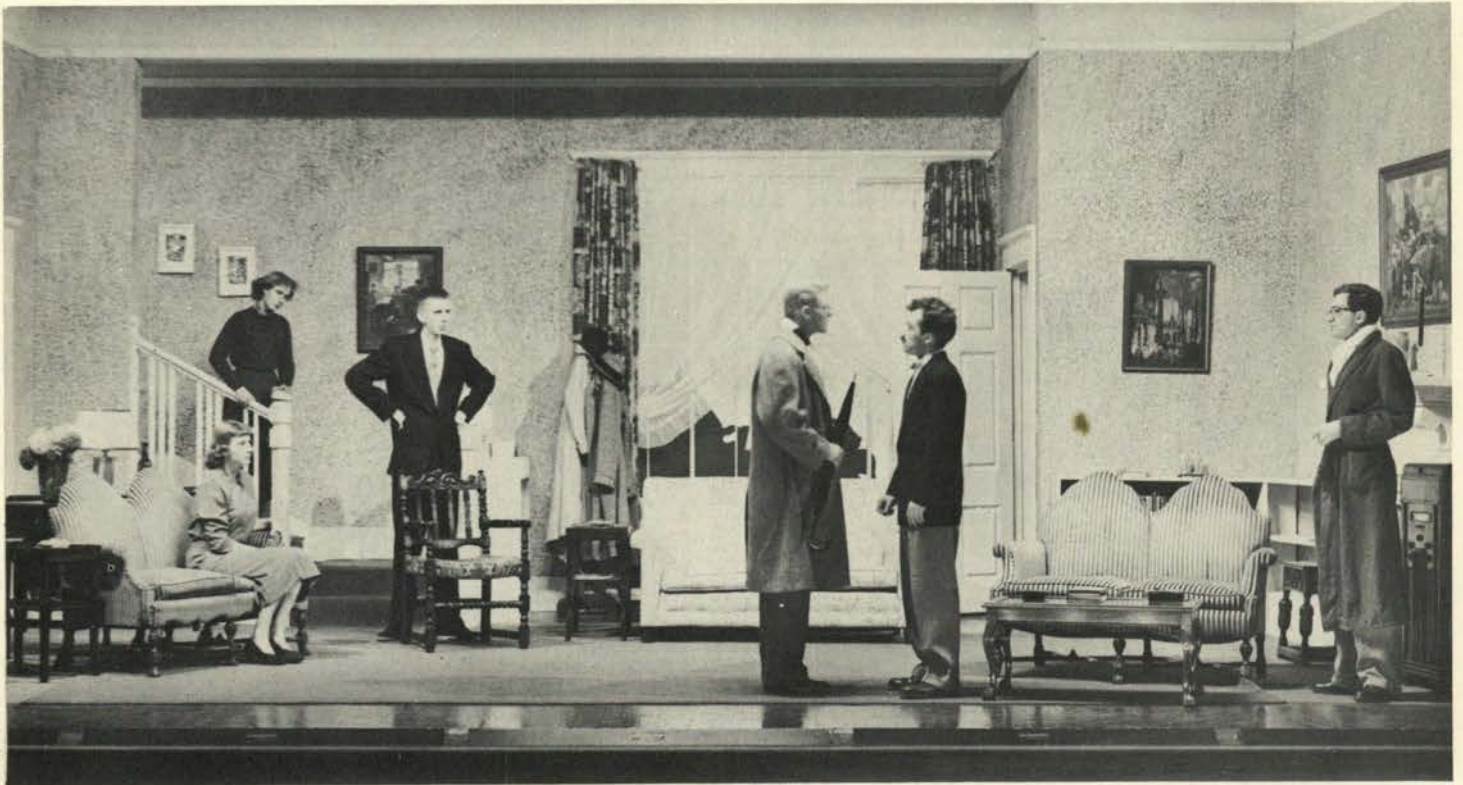

THE MALE ANIMAL

Professor Tommy Turner (Bill Bardy) reminds his wife, Ellen, (Nancy Halladay) that bicarbonate of soda is not a suitable cure for family misunderstandings. Both students are members of National Collegiate Players.

At packed Dad's Day performance, Tom Constans and Susan Steed look on as campus football hero (Jack Young) makes date with coed, Gail Gatter.

A tense moment shows varied effects upon characters as Dean Damon (Tom Canstans), informs the President of the Board of Trustees, Paul Fillinger, that there are more important things than new stadiums. Written by Elliott Nugent and James Thurber, the play was vivid satire of college life with serious overtone.

OUR TOWN

Ably portrayed by Stuart Beals, the stage manager narrates the story of life in "our town."

The Gibbs family has breakfast on a typical 20th century day. The Pulitzer prize winning play uses no scenery, and theatre-going audiences supply background from own experiences or use imaginations

A poignant message is left with the audience as an emotional third act shows Emily (Diana Stevens), in the transition from life to death. Long a favorite with the audience, actors, and critics, Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," portrays life in three stages: early years, young love and marriage, and death.

The A Capella Choir, under the direction of Prof. Robert B. Walls, sang through a tight schedule of performances and got top billing on a Mutual radio broadcast.

A CAPELLA CHOIR

OSC's songsters, the A Capella Choir performed in top quality caliber with melodies the whole state enjoyed. Highlighting the Christmas season with the "Messiah," they continued throughout the year, appearing on an average of at least once a day. Singing on into springtime, their schedule included special weekend programs, their "Oregon, Land of Romance" concert, and two Mutual radio broadcasts. Of special interest was their operetta "Trial By Jury."

OSC BAND

Music, music and more music kept the College Band rehearsing weekly with director Ted Mesang in preparation for their schedule of shows and special performances. Accompanying the choir, the band participated in the spring term "Oregon, Land of Romance" concert, and assisted with the "Messiah" at Christmas time.

As always, the orange-and-black clad music-makers were on hand to cheer with OSC fans and fellows at games and meets. In addition to their Corvallis performances, the band yearly tours the state, giving concerts for Oregon high schools and civic groups.

Band practices make busy evenings for players, rehearsing under the baton of Ted Mesang in Benton Hall. Concert tours in Oregon towns and special programs kept the music-makers busy.

In full dress with their orange and white uniforms, the concert band poses, ready to present their music to college students, townspeople and the many Oregon high schools and civic groups included in their state-wide tours. The group is seen making music at OSC games and other athletic events.

New full-dress uniforms of navy blue skirts and white blouses marked this year's Madrigal group, OSC's women songsters, who specialize in folk songs and novelty numbers. Regular campus performances and a spring term schedule of out-of-town concerts kept the Madrigal girls busy with rehearsals.

MADRIGAL

Folk tunes, and special novelty numbers are the speciality of Madrigal, women's glee club, which not only joins forces with the Men's Glee to form the College Chorus, but also performs at campus-wide functions and conferences, presenting a repertoire of light, enjoyable music.

Spring term tours in Southern Oregon kept the girls busy with tri-weekly practices, under the direction of Donald Sites, music professor.

Donald Sites, music professor, directs Madrigal, keeping the girls in fine vocal shape with practices three times a week. The group joins forces with the Men's Glee club to form the College Chorus.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

Resounding from Benton Hall are the seventy-four voices of the Men's Glee club. Practicing weekly under the direction of Donald Sites, the men prepare for frequent performances at campus functions, and for local conferences and Corvallis civic groups. Varied musical numbers marked this year's program schedule, which took the club to Albany and Monmouth for special performances.

Obeying the directing hand of Donald Sites, the Men's Glee club warm up in preparation for the numerous singing appearances before campus conferences, local civic club, and out-of-town groups.

Variety in music marked the Men's Glee club this year, as they lent a helping hand in department programs, in addition to their own schedule of shows.

The OSC Symphony Orchestra poses in formal dress, ready to present one of their three concerts for Corvallis music-lovers. In addition to these performances, the group, which is composed of faculty members, students, and townspeople, accompanies the choral groups in seasonal programs.

OSC-CORVALLIS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The accompanying backbone of OSC's music groups is the symphony orchestra, composed of faculty members, students, and townspeople. They were found in the pit performing for the "Messiah" during Christmas time, and during the "Oregon, Land of Romance" spring concert. The group also gives a regular winter concert and this year presented two special children's concerts for Corvallis grade-schoolers.

Under the directing hand of John O'Conner, the orchestra practices in preparation for concerts, among them two of special children's music.

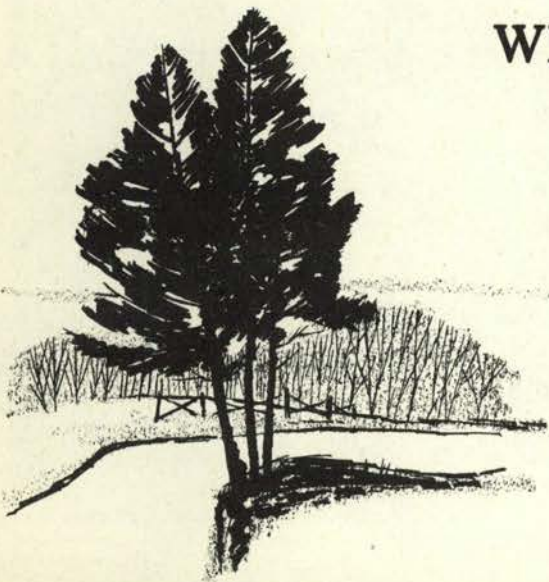

The cellos warm up as the orchestra rehearses for one of their appearances, which included the "Oregon, Land of Romance" spring concert.

WINTER'S MUD SCRAMBLE

Winter term finds Beaverville drenched in rain, but there is no apparent dampening of the students' spirit. Sloshing through the rain and mud to classes creates a deluge of interest in dances and inside events as a busy social calendar prepares Beavers for spring term.

Engineers' Ball Unusual Affair

The Engineer's Ball, one of the annual activities of the engineering school, was held this year amid the intricate machinery in the electrical engineering laboratory of Dearborn Hall. Intermission activities arranged by the various engineering societies included demonstrations of high voltage, gas turbines, and smoke tunnels. Coeds stood wide-eyed as their dates explained to them the more confusing points of engineering equipment and processes which they make use of daily in class. Johnny Lusk and his orchestra provided the music.

Intermission demonstrations by the various engineering societies highlight evening at the Engineer's Ball, as engineers attempt to explain their course to bewildered coeds. Programs were miniature slide rules.

Fellows receive opportunity to display ability in "engineering" dates through unusual obstacle course.

Dancers enjoy the unique atmosphere of electrical equipment in Dearborn Hall, as they move to the music of Johnny Lusk and his orchestra. The Ball, a major annual affair, presented no decorating problems.

Sophs Prance in "Stormy Weather"

"Stormy Weather," depicted with umbrellas, streaks of lightning, and a central figure of Old Man Winter, was the theme of the annual sophomore cotillion held in the Memorial Union ballroom. A contest for the best original song following the theme was originated by the committee to create interest and publicize the affair. Intermission entertainment included the appearance of a professional ballet dancer. Frank Elliott and his "Moonlighters" provided the musical background.

Intermission among the colorful umbrellas saw students waiting for the announcement of the winning song in the sophomore-sponsored contest. Gamma Phi Beta produced the winning entry following the theme.

Two Staters and their dates dance beneath the clouds and lightning which decorate the Memorial Union ballroom. Apparently palms survive storms.

Many Beavers turned "rabbit" at Cotillion to display their hopping talents when Frank Elliot and his "Moonlighters" played the familiar Bunny-Hop.

Kimona-clad Pi Phi coolies hauled grinning males about the armory in watering wagons. Women's living groups set up and manned booths for the fair.

Crowd Tries Luck At AWS Fun-Fair

Balloon shaving, slaves for sale, and ten cent coolie rides marked AWS's annual carnival, this year called "Fun-Fair Internationale" to fit into International Week on the campus. Prizes of everything from movie tickets to frosted cakes kept the armory humming with fun-seekers after the Beaver-Duck basketball game. Proceeds from the carnival went to support the year-around activities of AWS.

Crowds of game-goers dropped in at AWS's "Fun-Fair Internationale" to try their luck at pie-throwing, balloon shaving, and to see the sights of an International side show. Alpha Chi's copped the winning booth award with an oversized pinball machine. A O Pi's and Pi Phi's placed second and third.

Mr. Internationale was chosen from this line of native-dressed fellows. Dick Stockman, depicting Scotland, won the title for the Delta Chi's.

With a spin of the wheel, beautiful slaves from A O Pi's International market were sold for 10-minute excursions into the wilds of the army.

Ring tossing with hopes of hitting the bullseye kept a crowd of 1500 handing out AWS script.

Corvallis city crews survey some of the damage caused by the twister, which brought a loss of about $100,000, as estimated by the city fire chief. The flooding Willamette River caused additional destruction.

Freak Tornado Brings Beaverville Brand New Twist

Things took a new twist one morning for Corvallis townspeople and students, who are used to complaining about rain. On the morning of January 20, a twisting "tornado" roared into town, causing damage in a large part of the business area and a power failure over most of the town. Damage from the twister was estimated at $100,000, and destruction from the floods which followed totaled nearly $400,000 from all reports.

The roof of the Kline building in downtown Corvallis was blown off and landed in the alley behind, cutting power lines and knocking out transformers.

The false roof section of a shoe repair building toppled into the street and sidewalk below. The piece was about 10 feet high and weighed nearly a ton.

This large tree on Western Avenue south of the city was included in the list of tornado victims. Winds were recorded at a velocity of 100 miles per hour.

The carport of a Corvallis architectural firm was carried by the wind into the front yard of Roosevelt grade school, littering the grounds with debris. Here a lone spectator surveys the damage created by the twister. The Corvallis city crews later appeared on the job to clear the mess.

It is Mardi Gras time in New Orleans, and the girls have brought out their boy friends in force for the annual Mortar Board Ball. The dance was held in the M.U. ballroom and it was "real george".

Women's Choice; Males Trapped

The annual Reversia Dance, sponsored by Mortar Board, national senior women's service honorary, was once again the outstanding social event of winter term. The theme was "In Old Orleans".

This is the dance at which strong men shudder, play coy, and in general, act like they think the women have acted during the last term. The purpose of this dance, to which girls ask boys, furnish corsages, and generally act chivalrous, is unknown to the men who attend, but everyone enjoys it just the same.

Two dates walk through the doors to the Memorial Union as their escorts gallantly hold them open. The corsages are tradition at the annual ball.

Two couples happily pose in front of murals that decorate the walls in the ballroom. The question is who should have their arm around whom?

Time out during intermission allows the boys to sit down and talk the situation over. The women pay for everything during the evening's fun.

The popular Kirby Brumfield dances by the camera with his corsage waving in the passing breeze.

The Spanish Ballroom, just off main ballroom, was decorated to resemble the New Orleans waterfront. This area was rather dark and isolated until the camera flash lit up the area with a bang!

Registration day finds fathers from all over the state pouring onto the campus, much like eager students coming back to school. The registration was held in the M.U. during the most of the day.

Dad's Weekend Big Success

Once each year, the students of Oregon State fete their fathers with their own special weekend. This year Dad's Day was complete with tours, wrestling matches, plays, and a basketball game with the Northern Division champs, the Huskies of the University of Washington. The big banquet in the Memorial Union was sold out days in advance, with the resulting overflow crowd being fed in the M.U. Tearrooms.

Students and their fathers prepare to embark upon a tour of the Oregon State cyclotron. The majority had never seen the machine previously.

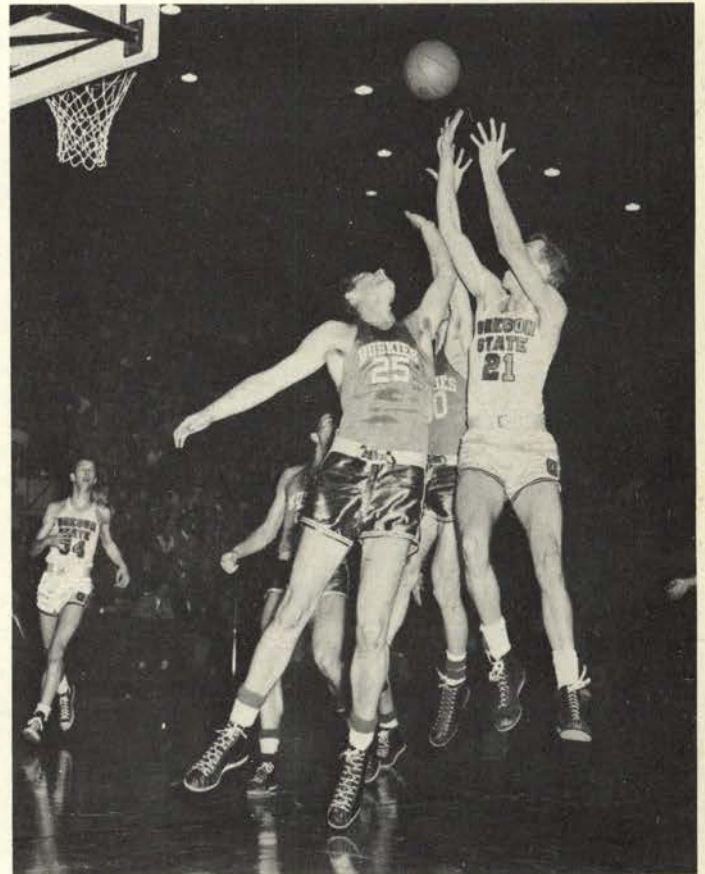

The noon luncheon in the M.U. tearrooms provided the "old man" with a chance to sit down and relax from the hectic schedule of events and tours.

Many of the visiting parents attended the speech department's play, "The Male Animal" during the special matinee performance.

For those that preferred sports in the afternoon, there was always the intercollegiate wrestling match between OSC and the champions of WSC.

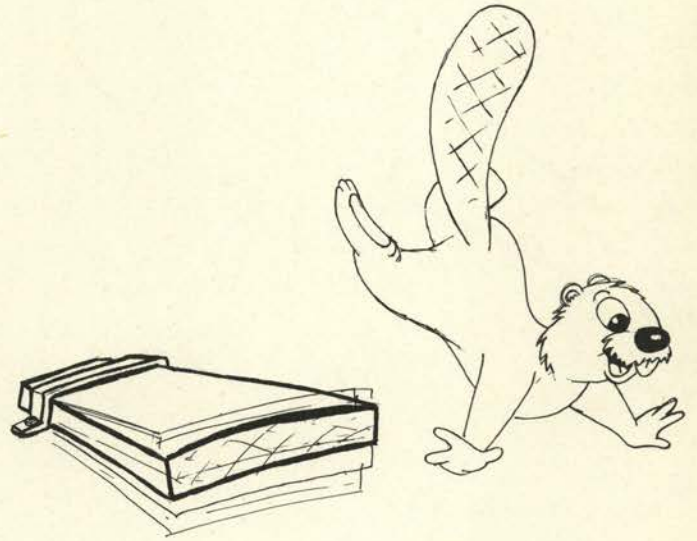

The weekend drew to a close with the basketball game between the University of Washington and the Beavers. The Huskies won to a tune of 69-53.

Seahorses Splash Away In "Aqua Extra" Edition

AAU swimming champs, Judy Cornell and Virginia Pietz, made their Corvallis debut in swimming relays depicting the sports section of "Aqua Extra."

Amusements from the extra edition of aqua entertainment saw a ten-girl cast in "On the Town." Costumes for the show were built upon regulation bathing suits and caps, with special staging effects achieved through lighting, properties and music. Members of WRA were business managers for the aquacade.

Crowd of Students See Three-Night Showing

Large crowds of students and townspeople saw splashing, slapstick, and songs combined into Seahorses' and Aquabats' water show called "Aqua Extra." Depicting a newspaper by water antics, the show followed the theme by opening with the sensational news, "Slaughter on 10th Avenue." The aquacade continued through 11 acts, ending with news from the society section, a water-wedding. Entertainment between acts on the deck of the women's building pool kept the show rolling, as it played a three-night stand on campus.

Climaxing the aquacade was top society news, a water-wedding, complete with preacher and entire wedding party. Helen Poling, P.E. instructor, accompanied with a "Wedding March" rendition.

Dry-land entertainment between acts featured such numbers as this sack dance by Pat Seidler and Marilyn Nebrovbig to the music of "Goofus."

From the comics of "Aqua Extra" was a comedy diving duet of Bill Burgis (above, in outdated gear) and Bob Walker, portraying the Katzenjammer Kids.

President A. L. Strand presents the loving cup, signifying Miss OSC, to Joan Paine while the remainder of the Queen's court watch. The crowning marked the climax of a marvelous and entertaining show.

Fun, Frolic at AIS "Mayhem"

The annual Associated Independent Student's Mayhem was presented during Winter term this year instead of Spring term as it has been done in the past. Highlight of the evening was the crowning of Miss Joan Paine as Miss OSC. Miss Paine was chosen from five finalists in the annual contest, and was crowned by Oregon State college President A. L. Strand.

The band warms up as they prepare to contribute musical backgrounds for the performance. This group kept the show moving at a rapid pace.

The prize-winning act of the evening was "Smoo White" and her many little helpers. Poor "Smoo White" is on the floor with holes in her shoes.

The stag line stands and watches as the dancers swirl past. The Squeeze, held after the second OSC-U of O home basketball game, was attended by students from both of the competing institutions.

Ducks, Beavers Mix After Game

Students from Oregon State and the University of Oregon get together at an annual Lemon-Orange Squeeze after one of the home basketball games between the two schools. The purpose of this Mixer is to establish better relationships between the student bodies of the two institutions. The dance is held in the M.U. ballroom here, and at the new Student Union at Eugene.

The crowded dance floor attests to the popularity of the annual affair. Many of those who attended the Squeeze dance were able to renew old acquaintances from past years and past Lemon-Orange Squeezes.

Lower Campus Gets Face Lifted

The vast expanses of lower campus underwent alteration winter term as a building project commenced. Despite student comment, trees were removed, ditches dug, and sewer pipes scattered. The student discontent was directed at the thought of a new street running through the area and adjoining Apperson Way, adding more traffic to the narrow streets surrounding the campus. A favorable aspect of the building was construction of Azalea House, a women's cooperative sponsored by the Home Economics Extension Women's Council.

Construction crews remove a tree to prepare for the new street. The construction was first planned in the original campus layout.

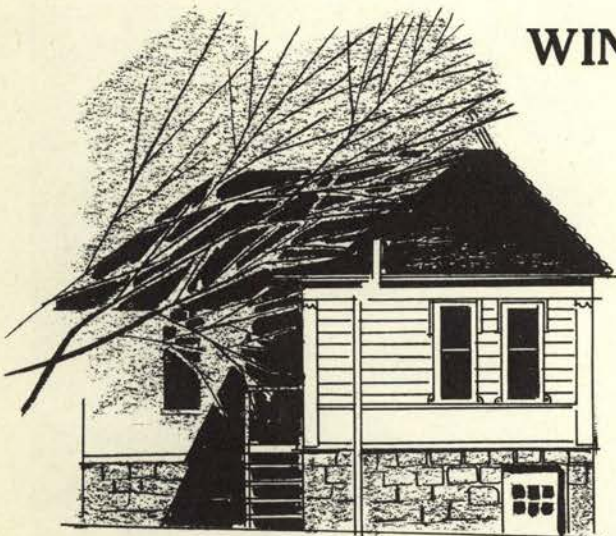

The new Azalea House, almost ready for the finishing touches, stands on lower campus. It will be ready for occupancy in the fall.

WINTER SPORTS

The roar of the crowd and the spirited music of the band echoes from the domed ceiling of the Coliseum as Beaver fans once again turn their attention to basketball. Section editor Bill Strader records some of the outstanding athletic events of winter term in Beaverville.

Oregon State staged an extensive pre-conference season this year. The teams on the agenda were some of the most formidable of the following season. Santa Clara, who surprised the basketball world last year when they upset many favorites in the NCAA, fell prey to the Beavers in one of two games. Pre-season experts had picked the Beavers to be strictly on the improving list this year, and this was borne out by the many close games played by the Orangemen. Many of the losses sustained by the tall quintet were by one and two point margins. A bright spot on the record book was the opener against the University of Oregon Ducks. The game was played in Portland, and resulted in a 72-62 overtime victory for the men from Oregon State. The entire Portland crowd was on its feet as a foul was called on Oregon, which enabled the Beavers to knot the score as the game ended. The Beavers soon wrapped up a victory in the five-minute overtime that followed. Another highlight was a 58-46 victory over Stanford, which definitely showed Beaver fans that the sophomores of their team would display some great playing in years to come. Coach Slat Gill and the entire staff seemed well satisfied with the showing made by the team as it emerged with a five won, seven lost record for the season.

Cougars Trim Beaver Five

The hopes of Oregon State fans fell when the Washington State Cougars clawed their way out of the Northern Division cellar by beating the Beavers three games out of four. A closely-guarded opener ended with the Beavers on top with a 39-27 win, but the next night the WSC quint dumped the Orangemen 50-45. When the Beavers visited the Palouse Hills, the Cougars defeated the Gillmen twice in some of the season's most closely matched play.

Tex Whiteman goes for a score against Idaho. Oregon State's players entangle with the Vandals in a mad scramble for the ball in midcourt.

Oregon State broke even with the Idaho Vandals as each team won two games. The Bevos invaded Moscow on their winter trip to the inland empire.

Oregon State lost the first game to the tall easterners, 65-49. The Orangemen led going into the second half, 28-22, but the Vandals revived and won.

In the second contest, the Beavers caught fire and downed the Vandals 59-55. A screaming Moscow crowd saw their favorites lose in a tight contest.

Back at Gill Coliseum, the Beavers played out their hearts in a 62-49 loss that kept every fan on edge, and lost out only in the game's final seconds.

The final game between the Beavers and the Vandals saw the Orangemen even the score by swamping Idaho 78-52. This closed the Idaho campaign.

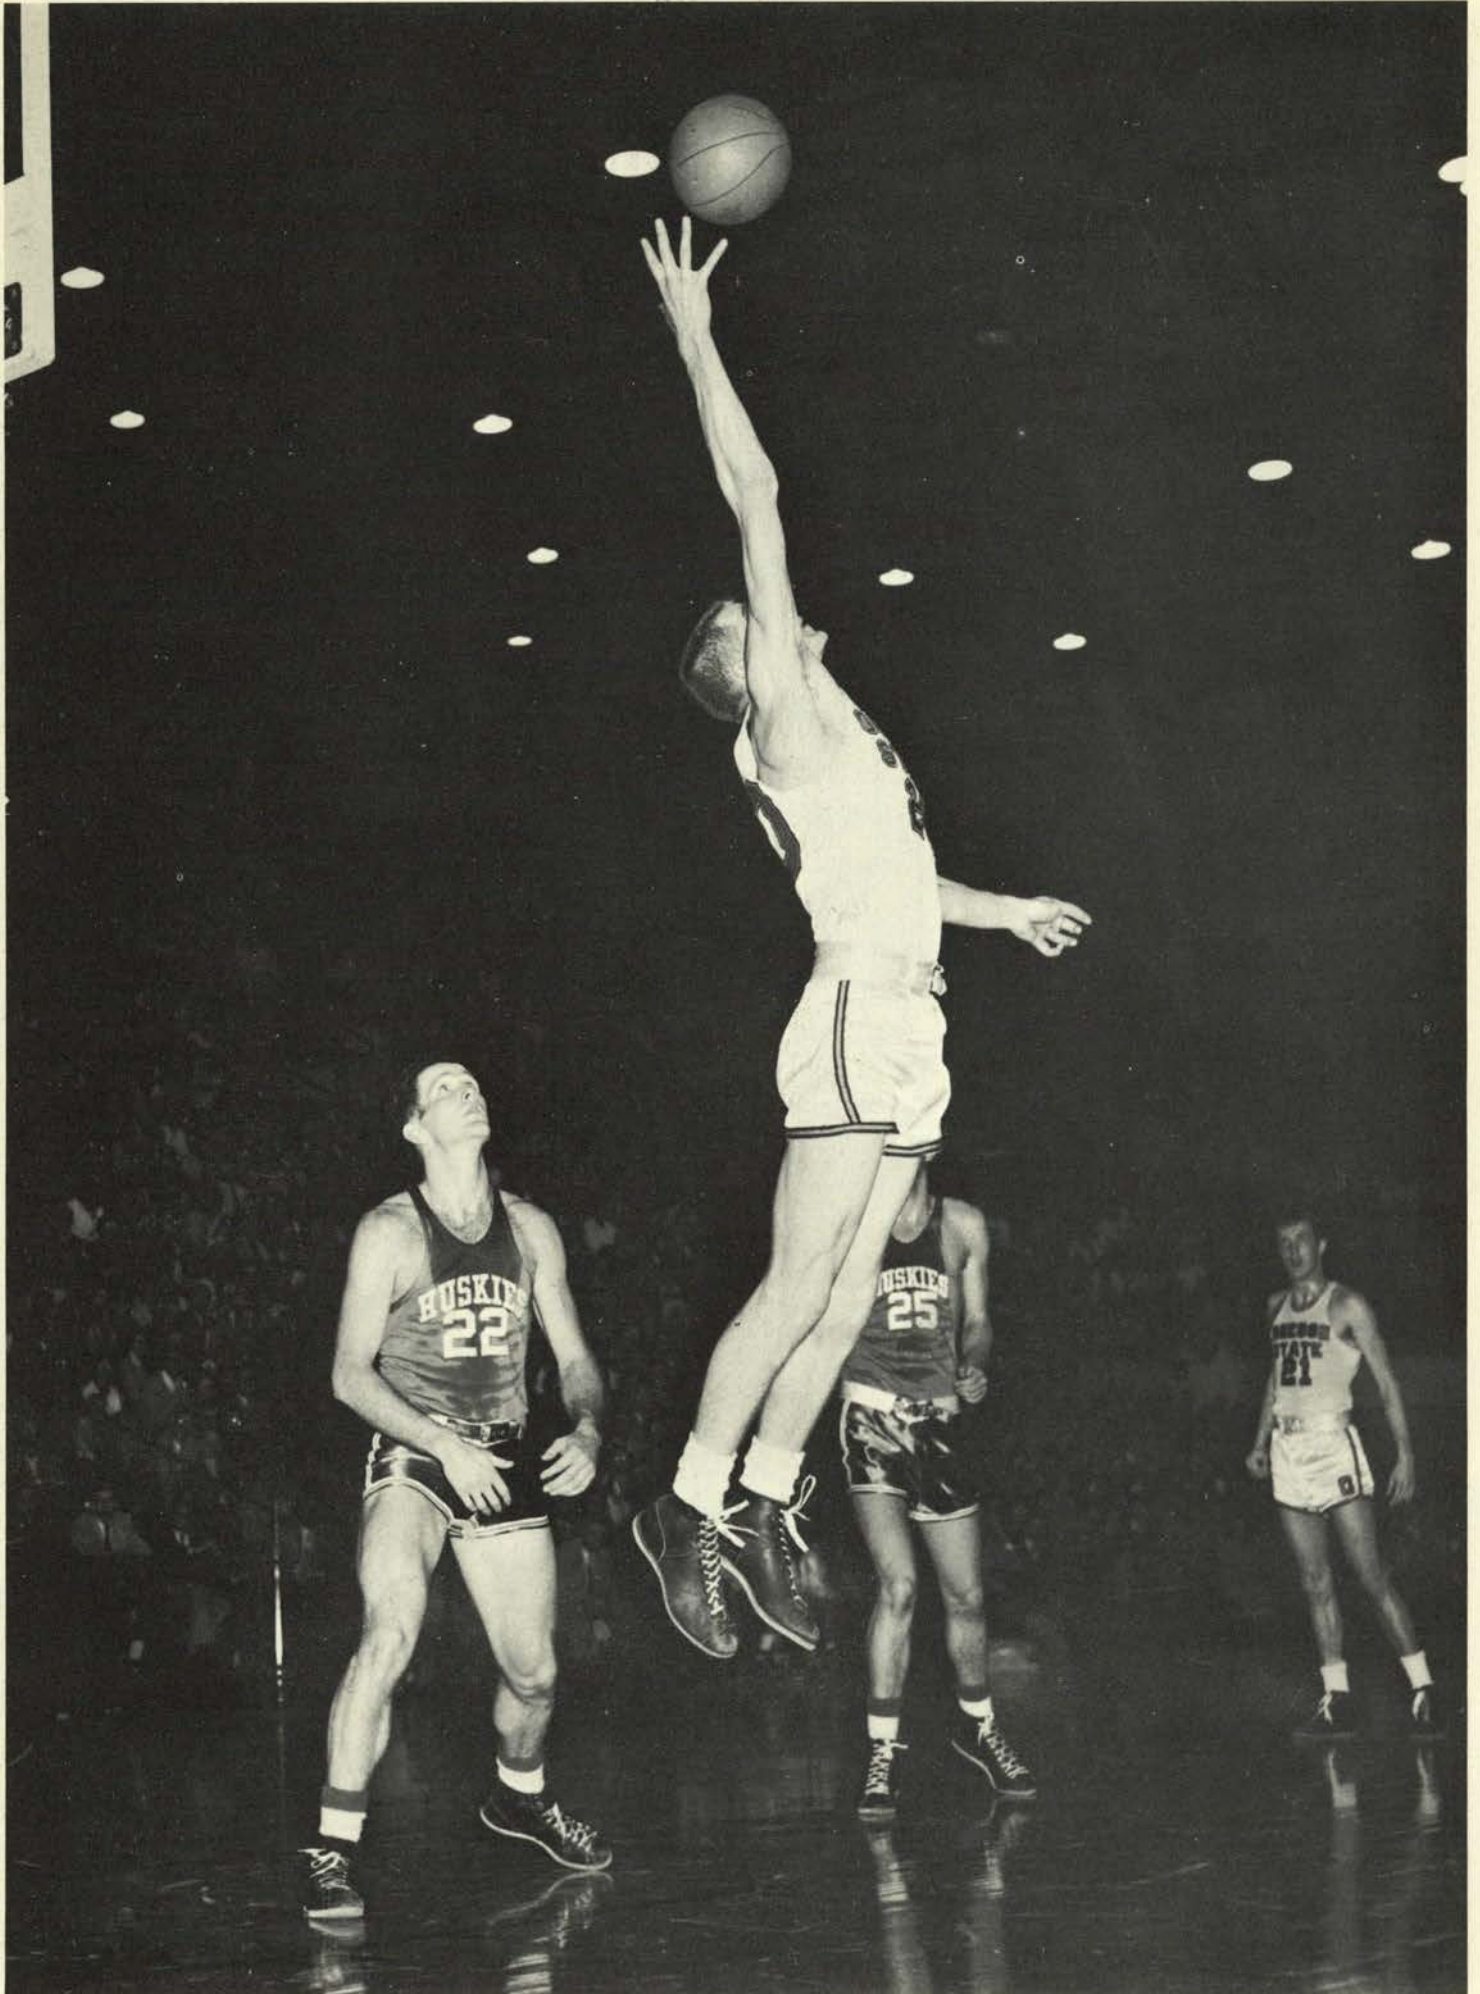

Outstanding in the Idaho contests was Oregon State center, Tony Vlastelica, who outscored Idaho's ace, Hartley Kruger, with 92 counters in all.

gave in 76-54 and 68-56 to the talented northerners. When the Huskies came to Gill Coliseum, they staged a repeat performance by cooling the Oregon State hoopsters by scores of 68-53 and 73-60. Despite the losses, the Beaver fans were proud of their team's showing.

Breaking through Duck opposition is Jim Sugrue, outstanding in the Oregon series. Beavers took three games to beat traditional rivals.

The Gillmen rallied forces to soundly sweep the Oregon series by taking three out of four games. Underrated by the experts, the Beavers took the opening thriller at MacArthur Court 67-65 in over-time play. The following tilt gave the Ducks something to quack about as they beat the fighting Oregon Staters 73-63 in Gill Coliseum.

In the following contests, the Bevos cinched the Chancellor trophy before cheering fans by dropping the tall Eugene team 75-74 and 59-55 in two close games. Although the teams seemed fairly evenly matched, the entire Beaver squad displayed outstanding teamwork in winning the series against their rivals.

Slats Gill, Oregon State Beaver basketball coach, has guided his teams to victory many times when the odds were against them. Famous for his coaching style, Gill's ability always threatens foes.

Gill, Valenti; Casaba Coaches

Oregon State was blessed when Amory (Slats) Gill became its head coach some 25 years ago. Since then, he has established an enviable record at OSC and has become known as one of the best coaches in the business. Rook Coach Paul Valenti, a former OSC basketball great, has created an equally good record for himself with his power-laden teams.

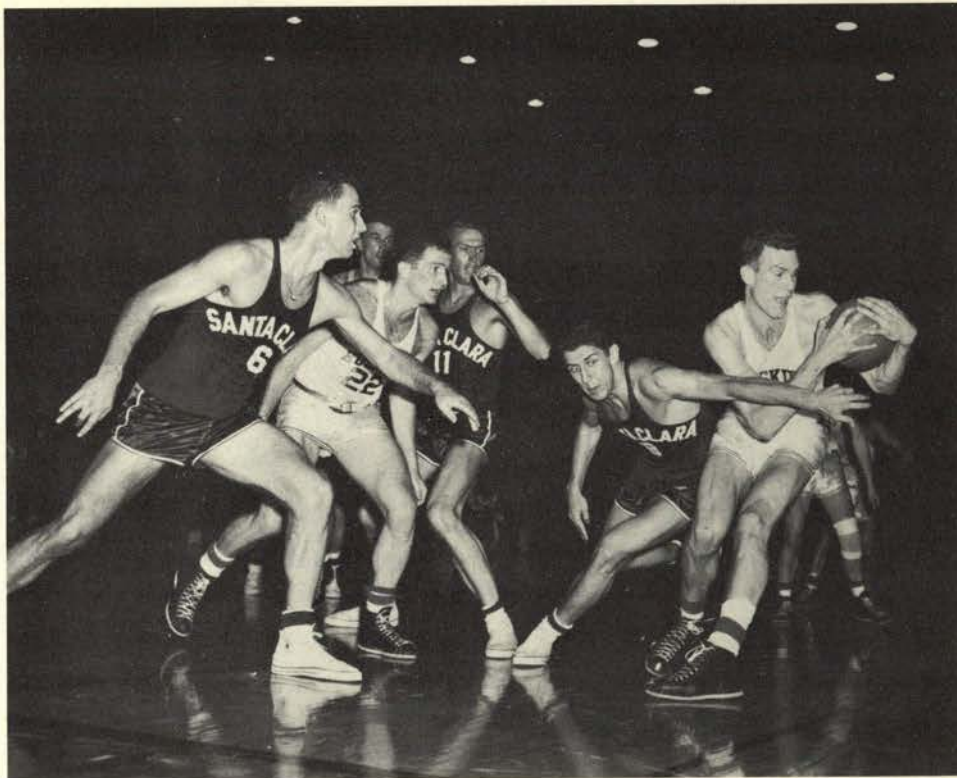

Oregon State teams have always been able to make the game interesting for the fans and players.

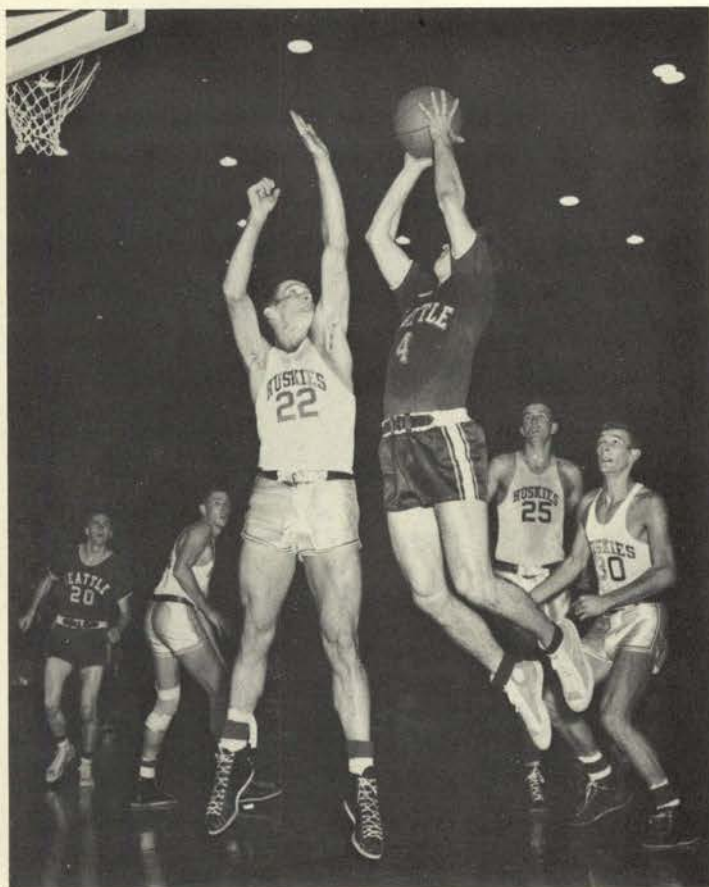

Rook Coach Paul Valenti set many records with his 1952-53 team. Led by the Splendid Spire, Wade Holbrook, the team only lost one in a rough 18-game slate against AAU and College Fresh teams.

OSC Once Again Hosts NCAA

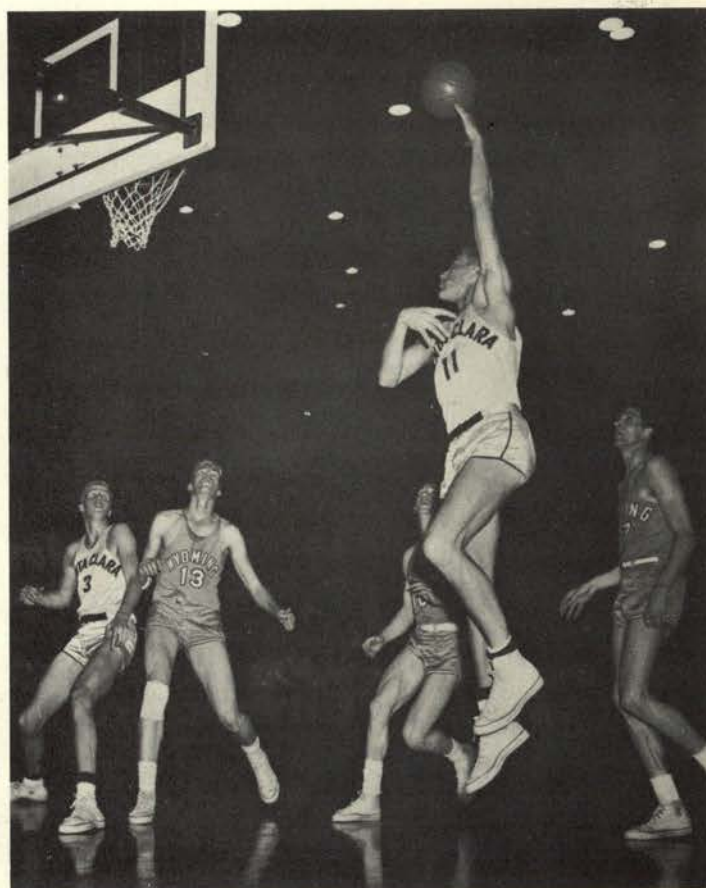

Oregon State College once again served as the site for the Western Division playoffs of the NCAA. The four teams that participated, Wyoming, Seattle University, University of Washington, and the University of Santa Clara, were paired in a round-robin single elimination tournament which saw the University of Washington Huskies emerge victorious.

Varsity Rifle Team Wins Fourth Place in NCAA

The sharpshooters of the Oregon State Varsity Rifle Team won praise from Beaver fans as they emerged with a fourth spot in the National Intercollegiate Rifle Meet. Coach Harold Green instructed the team throughout the season, and was highly pleased with the results. Another bright spot in the rifle season was a victory in the Northern Intercollegiate Rifle Meet which sent the Beavers to the national contest.

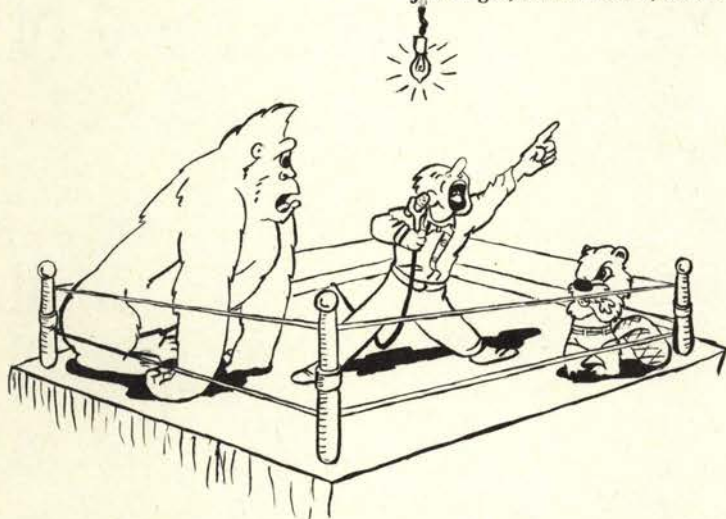

Varsity squad: front row; A. Schwinkendorff, H. Newton, T. Ebner, J. Rice, D. Sheldon, unidentified, and W. Jackson. Back row; R. Johnson, B. Stevenson, J. Parshall, D. Clapp, and E. Tracy.

Wrestling Coach Jim Dixon piloted the varsity bonebenders to a successful season. Despite the loss of many fine wrestlers from last year's group, the team managed to win a majority of their contests. Definitely on the build for next year, they gained much valuable experience through a full schedule of meets. High point of the season was a trip to San Louis Obispo in California, where the Beavers pitted their brawn against many teams from the Western colleges.

Varsity "O"

Soundly established in their Gill Coliseum quarters and in the hearts of OSC sports fans, these Beaver lettermen are active supporters of the college. Official duties of Varsity "O" included arranging housing and officiating at high school meets held on campus and ushering at home games.

Athletic Board

The members of the Intercollegiate Athletic Board meet throughout the year to decide the major policies of Oregon State College's department of athletics. The board is in complete charge of the hiring of coaches, the relationship of athletics to the Oregon State student body, and the policies of the institution toward participation in varied collegiate sports.

Jim Barrett, the likeable athletic business manager, is kept busy with assorted money problems.

The Women's Recreation Association Council plans a well-coordinated program of activities in physical education and guides interested students in participation in this program.

WRA Has Busy Schedule

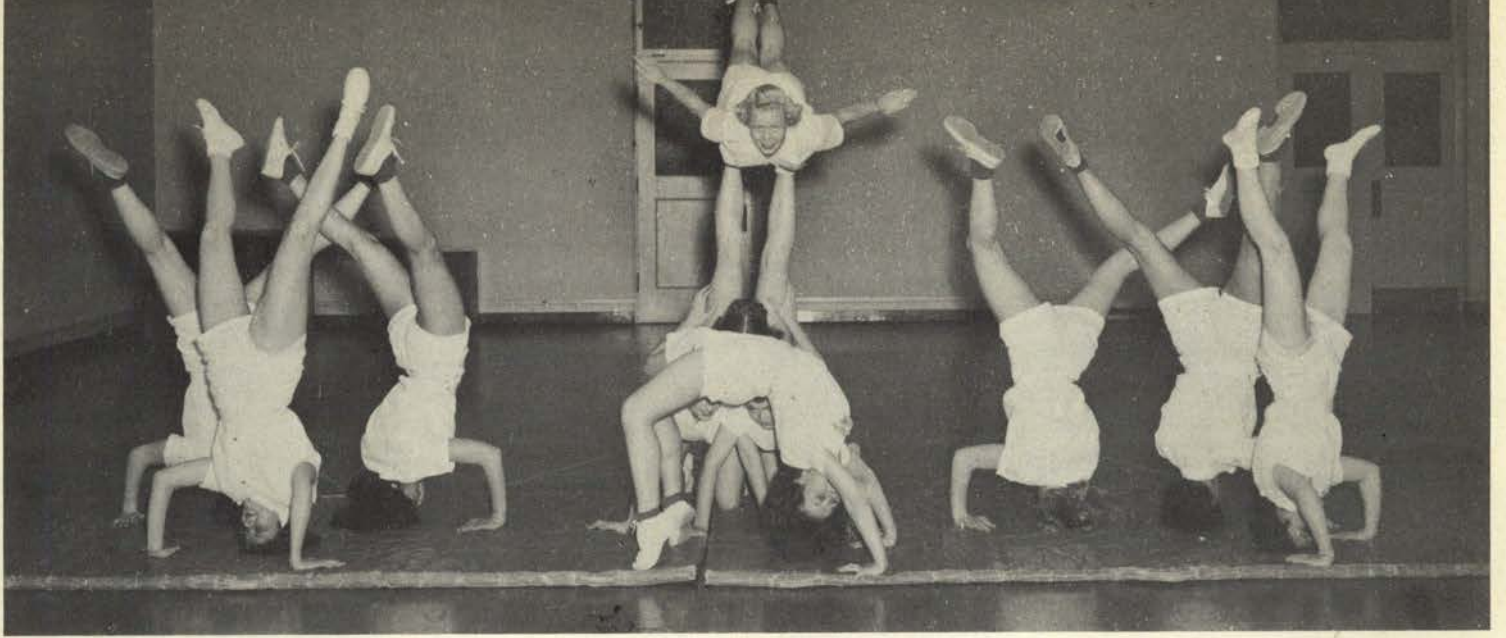

Members of the Women's Recreation Association Council coordinate the physical education program for women and provide an interesting variety of extra-class activities. Active each year in promoting intramural sports, the annual Amazonian Review heads the schedule of events. President this year was Lou Richardson, with Miss Milliken acting as faculty advisor.

Games Program Offered Students

Competition between the various living organizations of the campus is encouraged in a wide range of women's intramurals, ranging from jacks to softball. A manager from each living group acts as contact man for the physical education department. A highly successful part of college life, the women's program creates spirit, friendships, and sportsmanship.

A representative from each women's living organization on campus attends meetings of the W.R.A. Managers group, which sets up an active program of intramurals for interested women students.

Retreats to the coast fall and spring terms provided an opportunity for planning the year's work. AIS sponsored a war orphan under the foster-parent plan and took an active part in Mayhem.

Under the leadership of president Howard Neal, the council has consistently strived to create better relations with all campus groups.

In by-monthly meetings the Inter-fraternity Council, composed of one representative from each of OSC's 30 fraternities, discussed the problems of fraternity life and worked to promote good will among all.

Rushing rules were revised this year. The Council has promoted a "help" week instead of a "hell" week and all fraternities co-operated with Corvallis churches in a painting and cleaning project spring term.

Spring term found the Alpha Chis sunbathing in the loggia, yet taking time out for their annual Easter lily sale for crippled children.

Upon returning in the fall they were greeted by a house with a new look, and participated in a formal dance, scholarship dinner, Christmas party, and an intramural novelty tournament for which a trophy was won.

Winter term was highlighted by an alumnae tea and the costume dance.

Showing an active interest in sports, the Alpha Delta Pis have won the intramural ski trophy for the last two years.

An interesting spring function was a dinner, Southern Barbeque, which was given in honor of the faculty.

For their fall term project, the ADPis expressed the true Christmas spirit by giving a Christmas party for the Farm Home children members.

Fall term for the Alpha Gams ended on a seasonal note with caroling and a Christmas party.

Winter term was highlighted by a valentine faculty dinner, while spring term brought the founders' day banquet, senior breakfast, and an Easter party for the Farm Home children.

The national Alpha Gamma Delta altruistic project consists of aiding cerebral palsy patients, for which money was raised by a white elephant sale this year.

Philanthropy marks AOPi girls. Every year a "tucky party" is held to obtain food and clothing for underprivileged people in Kentucky.

Another project is assisting at a Corvallis hospital. Each member and pledge spends an hour a week there doing odd jobs for the nurses.

AOPi is also active in contests. First place was won in the Homecoming noise parade, and second place in the AWS carnival was obtained by these girls.

ALPHA
PHI

Well represented in the journalistic field, the Alpha Phis received four awards.

Alpha Phi remembered less fortunate people by raising funds for its philanthropic project, cardiac aid.

Members' efforts at Homecoming were rewarded with third prize in the sign contest.

A highlight in this year's memory book was a trip to Eugene where a national officer spoke.

Contributing to the success of the Homecoming show was the Alpha Xi Delta quartet.

Service activities included sponsoring an OSC scholarship for a foreign student whom they honored at a tea, and support for the national philanthropy of aiding tuberculosis patients.

Intramural sports were enjoyed by all, and spring term of '52 brought the bowling trophy home with the Alpha Xi team.

CHI
OMEGA

Chi Omega proved to be a generous living group on campus by winning the Campus Chest drive for which Dean Maser acted as houseboy.

Well represented in all phases of campus activity and beauty queen contests, the Chi O's also showed an abundance of talent when the trio entertained last spring.

Appreciation was given to the faculty when the members entertained with a dessert and an evening of cards.

Fall term found the Tri-Delts honoring their new house mother with a tea. With beauty and talent, the can-can line participated in many campus shows.

Pancakes were served at the annual Aunt Jemimah breakfast winter term, and the Tri-Delts held a state meet with the Oregon chapter. Each spring term the annual Pansy breakfast is given.

Of interest to the whole campus are the two scholarships given annually by the Oregon State chapter.

DELTA
GAMMA

This year was full of activity for the Delta Gammas. Along with their studies they enjoyed a number of social functions.

The annual Founders' Day Banquet was held jointly with Willamette University and the University of Oregon chapters.

A Christmas party and a homecoming tea were two prominent events which honored Corvallis alumnae and their friends. Exchange desserts and firesides provided many fun-filled evenings during the year.

Delta Zeta's are the proud possessors of the second place title in the annual Homecoming sign contest Fall term.

Their activities in Philanthropics include Adventures in Friendship and Hearing Aids.

A worthy project was the sponsoring of the Brownie troop from the Farm Home. Spring term, the Brownies were given a party at the DZ house. To enlarge their community service, they also stuffed envelopes for the Easter Seal drive.

Dances, teas, and course studies, kept the Kappa Deltas busy this year.

An important event during winter term was the annual tea honoring the foreign women students on the Oregon State College campus.

Each year the house has a project for aid to local crippled children, and also supports the Crippled Children's Hospital in Richmond, Virginia.

Members are active in numerous campus groups, with a special interest is in journalism.

Kappas are well known on campus for scholastic standing and participation in student government.

The Lipman Wolfe award for the outstanding senior girl and the Druscilla Shepard Smith award for the senior woman with the highest g.p.a. for eight years were awarded the Kappas.

In addition to many campus activities the local Kappa house undertook the project of supporting a Greek child in Europe.

Spring term of '52 found The Pines participating in the all co-op picnic at Avery Park, taking a part in Mayhem, and giving a tea in honor of co-resident hostesses.

Good will projects included the painting of toys for the Waverly Baby Home and Christmas serenading to campus living groups.

House interest is high in WRA activities, square dancing, Mountain Club membership, and various church groups.

Fall term was a busy one for Sackett A's population of new freshmen.

A Halloween party was an event of late October. At the annual Christmas party gifts were exchanged. Presents were given to patients at the state hospital.

Firesides, exchange dinners, picnics, and dances kept Sackett A in the social whirl.

SACKETT B

A get-acquainted pajama party at Sackett B started a year of activity. First place prize was won in the Homecoming sign contest and the semi-finals were reached in volleyball intramurals.

Gifts exchanged at the Christmas party were given to the state hospital, and Sackett B helped support a war orphan.

These busy girls took time out to enjoy several exchange dinners and dances.

Sackett C members participated in an evening of fun fall term by sponsoring a sock dance.

At a Christmas party gifts were collected for the mental hospital. Interest was high in intramural sports, yet the girls found time to enjoy exchange dinners and firesides.

The annual Blossom Ball given by all four units of Sackett Hall was the main event of spring term.

SACKETT D

Fall term found Sackett D swarming with 72 new freshmen under the leadership of 6 sophomores.

Finalists in the Sigma Chi and Little Colonel contests gave Sackett D recognition for beauty queens.

Christmas caroling was a highlight of winter term and exchange dinners and term dances completed the social schedule.

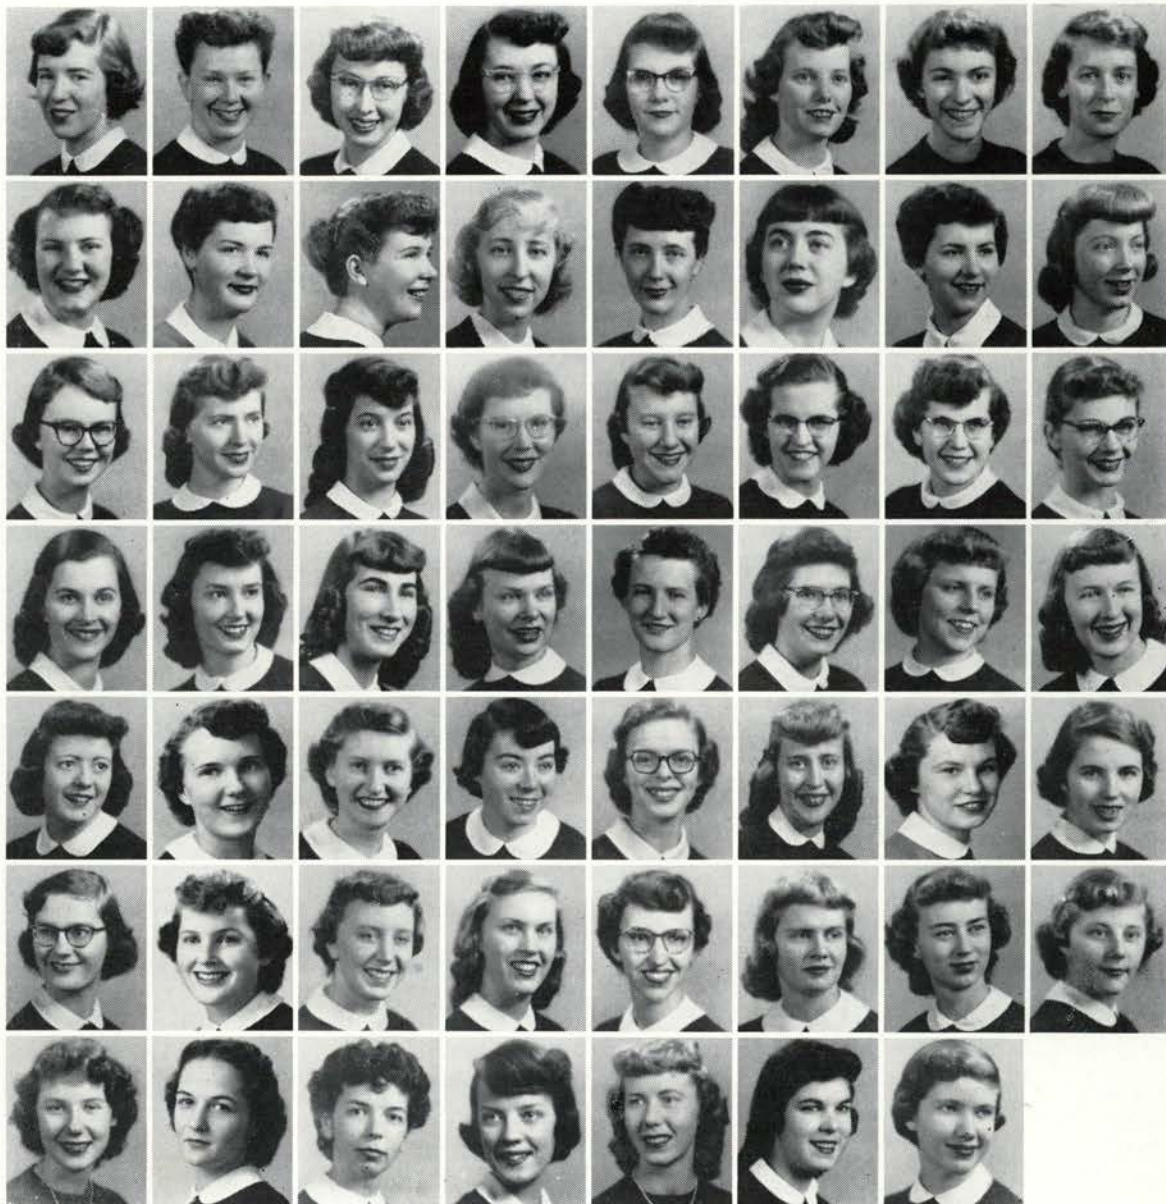

Besides contributing annually to the Marine Sea Coast Mission fund, the Sigma Kappa's supported the Campus Chest this fall by winning the percentage contest.

They won recognition by holding their annual Smorgasbord dinner. This dinner serves about 200 faculty members, alumnae, and house members.

Interest in activities is high, with representation in many clubs and honoraries.

WINSTON HOUSE

Spring term was a busy one for the girls of Winston House. Kotton Karnival, an informal dance, was presented, the singles badminton trophy was won, members supported the annual Co-hop, and a breakfast for college seniors was prepared.

Christmas gifts were given to needy children and members did baby sitting for the Red Cross free of charge. Campus Chest contributions reached 100 percent, and money was donated to help an injured student.

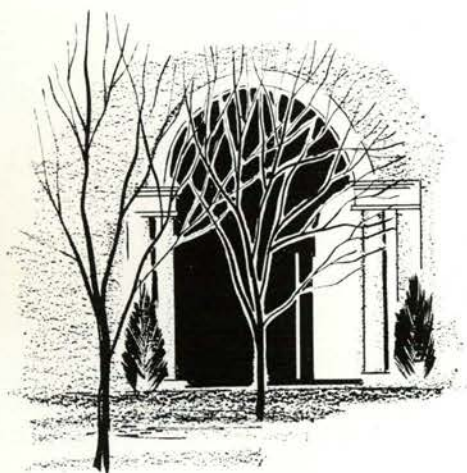

As well as various house social functions, two faculty-guest dinners are given each year.

MEN'S LIVING GROUPS

Most fellows remember the hours spent waiting for the phone, dialing a familiar number, or listening to the busy signal. Once underway, conversations lasted far into the night, while lamps burned and books waited in a room down the hall. This was one part of life at OSC.

ACACIA

Masonic open house and a dinner for faculty Acacians were the main social events of the year for Acacia fraternity.

Founders' Day activities were participated in as well as the annual beach outing and dinner-dance.

Intramurals were not forgotten, and the table tennis singles championship was won.

Members' hobbies are centered around hunting, fishing, and airplane flying.

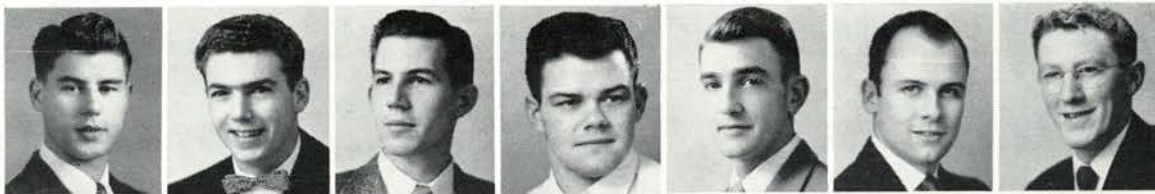

Newest addition to the OSC campus was the brand new Alpha Gamma Rho house which was constructed last spring.

The AGR's led the fraternities in grades last spring, and won the bowling championship for the second consecutive year.

This summer the Corvallis chapter will be host for the national convention which will be held in Portland.

ALPHA SIGMA
PHI

Alpha Sigma Phi showed an active interest in intramurals and won the fraternity championship in horseshoes last spring term.

Keeping in the social spotlight, the Alpha Sigs held a Beachcombers costume ball fall term, and the annual "red" dance was well attended winter term.

Of special interest spring term is the Talisman Rose dance with a dinner held before.

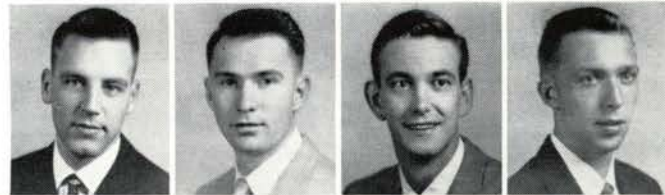

Fall term at the Alpha Tau Omega was highlighted by the annual pow-wow, a colorful Indian dance attended by over 100 braves and squaws.

Winter term the ATO's again held Tau Help Week, a new national policy of the fraternity to spread good will on campus.

Donations to the campus chest reached 100 per cent, and blood donors frequently volunteered. Participation in campus activities was good, and intramural sports were supported.

BALLARD HALL

Ballard Hall will sit in gloom, with the shades pulled down in every room. When the shades are up, the spirits boom. Binoculars flourish from room to room. Sackett viewers, I presume.

Even though living across from a girls' dorm, the members appear to take advantage of the situation.

When not participating in such collegiate activities, Ballard Hall members study, go out for intramurals, and engage in the many social doings of Oregon State College.

An interesting event for the students of Beaver Lodge was the winning of first prize at the spring presentation of Mayhem.

Some of the many activities of Beaver Lodge include exchange dinners, picnics in the spring, firesides, costume dances, and a winter formal.

Also, there has been enthusiastic participation in many of the campus functions and the Campus Chest.

BETA
PI

Claiming the dubious distinction of being the only fraternity mistakenly thought of as part of Oregon College of Education is Beta Theta Pi.

This year the Betas journeyed to Seattle for the annual Northwest Beta Sing composed of seven chapters. A ski dance was held, and the well-known Miami Triad was presented spring term.

The most interesting event of the year was unfortunately avoided when the Beta furnace was repaired sooner than expected, causing the fellows to move back into the house rather than Sackett C.

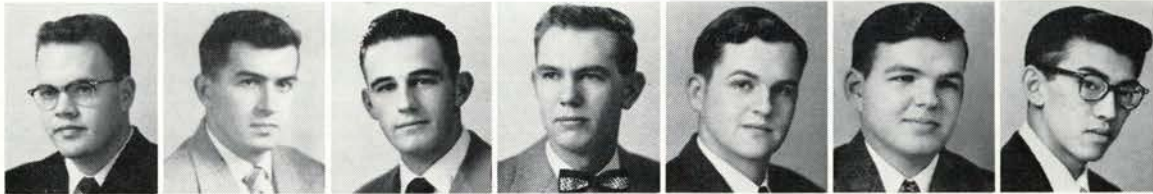

Homecoming found Buxton Hall men working hard on a sign which was to win first place for the independent men's living groups.

Buxton Hall participated in intramural sports and was present when the awards were handed out to receive the horseshoe pitching championship.

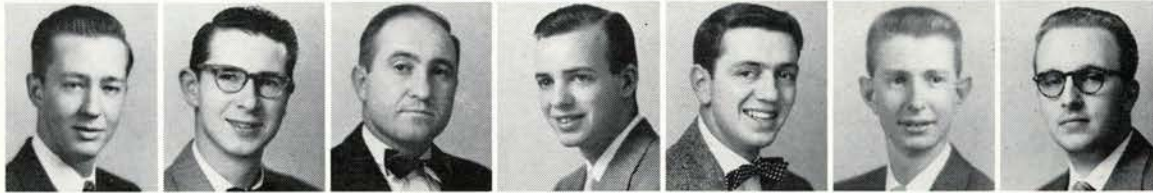

In spite of the high cost of meat, members and dates look forward to a steak fry each spring term.

CAMPUS CLUB

A fishing trip to Newport was an outstanding event spring term for the students of Campus Club.

Several of their house activities include a spring formal with an oriental theme, and a fall square dance, "Graveyard Grapple," at the Firmont Grange.

A fireside preceded by a treasure hunt, and a ski trip to Hoodoo Bowl were among the winter activities enjoyed by all.

Cauthorn Hall's members participate in almost all intramural sports, but they are most interested in major sports such as football and baseball.

Though no traditional dance is held annually as is customary in OSC, the living group members plan a dance to meet the occasion demanded when they feel that one is needed to liven up the campus.

CHI
PHI

Autumn Inn was the theme for Chi Phi's fall term dance this year. Open house, exchange dinners and serenades were also on the social schedule throughout the year.

In the sports field Chi Phi participated in both intramural and inter-collegiate sports with emphasis on football, basketball and baseball.

The men of Chi Phi are also encouraged scholastically. Last fall term they placed tenth among fraternities.

Davenport House began fall term by participating in several social functions, including exchange dinners and firesides. Of special interest was an open house.

The members have shown an interest in sports with a large turnout for intramural football, basketball, and skiing. Membership in the Oregon State Mountain Club is also noted.

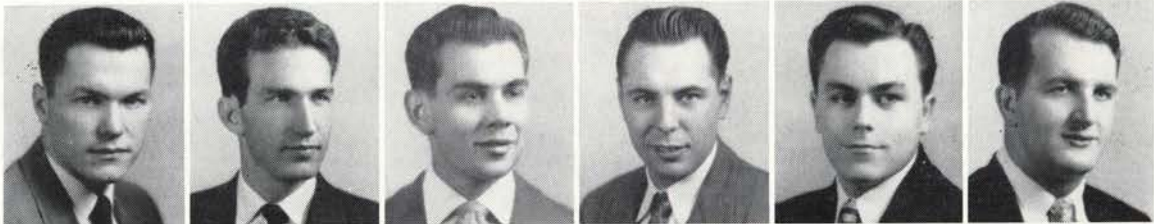

Support was given to the annual Co-Hop. Spring term found interest high in the inter-coop picnic and also a house picnic.

DELTA CHI

To promote good will the Delta Chis hold an annual neighbor-guest dinner. Part of initiation is devoted to community service projects, and a Christmas party is given each year for underprivileged children.

Athletics are of importance at the Delta Chi house. The boxing championship has been held by the Delta Chis for four years.

Outstanding in social life is the annual dance, One Night in Hell, which must be entered through a darkened tunnel representing a devil's head.

Delta Sigma Phi members had a full social schedule this year. The pledge dance, annual Carnation Ball, and a Sailors' Ball highlighted the three terms.

Interest in extra-curricular activities is high with good representation in the band and chorus. Sports are not forgotten as Delta Sigs are found on the varsity track and football teams and participate in intramurals.

Occasional exchange dinners and firesides brought a welcome relaxation from studies.

DELTA

A chance to show off OSC to all delegates west of the Mississippi was given by the Delts this year when they hosted the Western Division Conference.

Each year they eagerly anticipate the first snowfall which brings about a friendly snowball fight with neighboring Phi Delt.

The Delta Tau Delta house has been recently redecorated on the interior and has been admired at the various dances and dinners.

Delta Upsilon's social calendar is varied and full. The barn dance fall term, costume dance winter term, and the flower formal spring term, at which the chapter house rooms are enclosed in flowers, keep the DUs busy.

Third place was won in the Homecoming sign contest, and at Christmas a party was given for the Farm Home children.

Athletics are not forgotten by Delta Upsilon and this year they played off the intramural football champions.

GATCH HALL

Gatch Hall, which is composed almost entirely of freshmen, has been outstanding on the OSC campus in many ways. Most commendable is their record of the highest GPA in central dorm last spring.

Not all of their time was spent intellectually, however, and Gatch Hall took an active interest in the social side of life.

Dances, firesides, and exchange dinners have been sponsored by the members, and plans for the future include other functions.

Hawley Hall's Halloween dance and exchange dinners kept the social schedule full for fall term.

Among the honors received by the hall was the Main Dormitory top award for the best men's living group.

The main event of spring term was the Steak Fry held at Colorado Lake, and of course, lots of exchange picnics and firesides.

HAWTHORNE MANOR

Spring term Hawthorne Manor had the highest grades for independent men's groups.

Creative ability was shown in the Homecoming sign which won second place. In addition to individual hall social events such as picnics at the coast and dances, Hawthorne Manor had a part in planning the annual Co-Hop.

Participation in intramural sports was good with the teams ranking at the top.

A new venture in international friendship was launched at OSC this year in the creation of International Center. Students from the U.S., Burma, Formosa, Iran, Greece, Netherlands, Gold Coast, Okinawa, and Egypt have had an opportunity to live and study together.

Informal dances, forums and discussions, displays, and open houses have proved a source of information regarding the different cultural and social backgrounds. Fields of study followed are electrical engineering, agricultural economics, economics, and math.

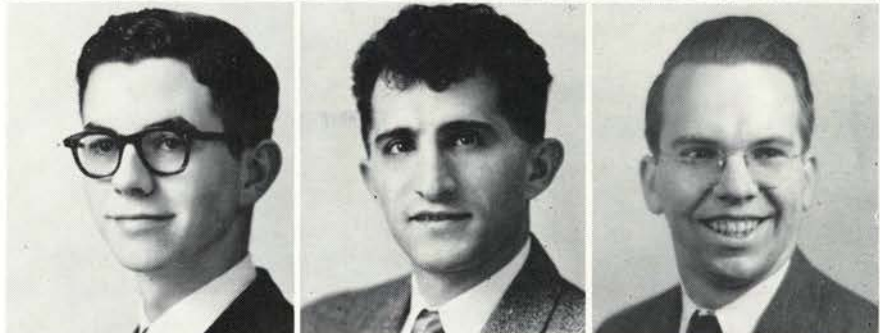

Students under the State Department Plan are going back to their original countries this year, but those on their own will continue their education at OSC.

JEFFERSON HALL

Jefferson Hall members seem to be skilled in more than one type of athletic activity since they claim League J Championship in football and League H Championship in badminton for fall term.

Homecoming was participated in enthusiastically by Jefferson Hall and third place was won in the sign contest.

On their list of services to others comes aid to an European war orphan.

From the social to the athletic, Kappa Delta Rho was well represented this past year.

Fall term the KDRs held a formal dance with Holiday as the theme, and Bum's Rush, an original costume dance was held winter term.

KDR participates in all campus sports and this year took to the court with a powerful basketball team as defending intramural champions.

KAPPA
SIGMA

Kappa Sigma initiated the fall social season by honoring the pledges with a dance, the Old Oaken Swing. With the coming of winter term, not only did they look forward to the basketball season, but also to their annual Barbary Coast Ball.

With an atmosphere of sports prevailing spring term, the baseballers were out to defend the coast championship nine. At the same time, lettermen greeted Kip Taylor's first call for spring football.

Kappa Sigs are found in numerous campus activities, and are prominent in politics.

Lambda Chi Alphatraz holds open house every winter term for its prisoners and their unsuspecting dates. Alphatraz is Lambda Chi Alpha's annual costume dance.

Fall term the Lambda Chi's won the interfraternity championship in badminton. Their inventive genius took first place in the annual noise parade held Homecoming weekend.

Each year Lambda Chi chooses a sweetheart whom they christen the Crescent Girl, but deep down in their hearts they love Brenda, their Great Dane mascot, best.

LOCKWOOD HALL

Lockwood Hall, a men's boarding house, participates in many campus activities. A good turnout in intramurals brought recognition to the basketball team.

Rather than organized group activities, the members pursue individual interests and are active in the Pistol Club, Camera Club, Inter-varsity Christian Fellowship, and various church groups.

Social functions were enjoyed as a relief from ever-present school work.

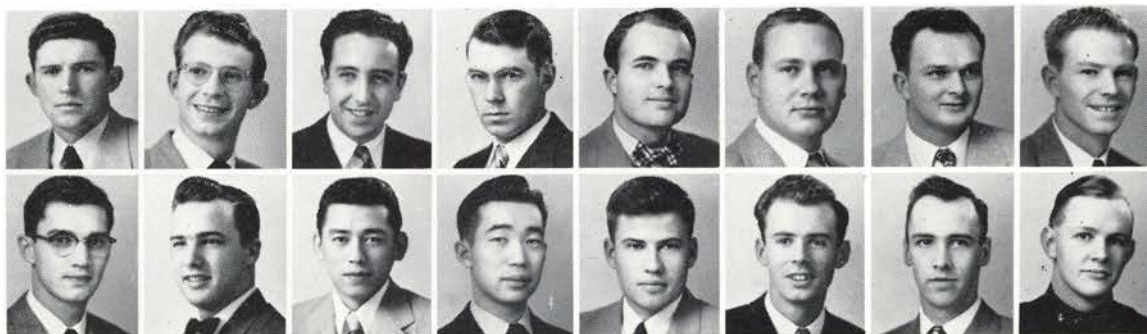

Holding the all-school intramural football championship for four years is McNary Hall's claim to fame that is not easily beaten.

After losing the all-school championship this year, they still retain the independent championship which they have held for five years.

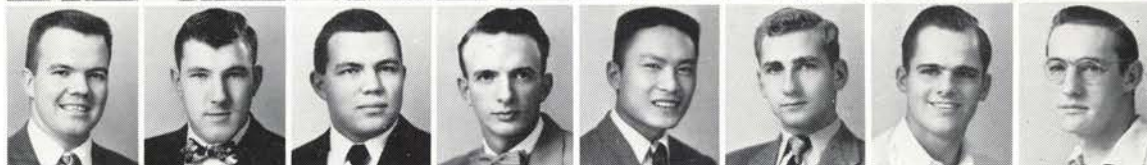

McNary's athletes are found in campus and social activities as well, and have contributed many leaders to the AIS.

PEAVY HALL

Peavy Hall has the distinction of being the largest men's living organization on the OSC campus.

They produced an independent intramural track team and had 100 per cent participation in the blood drive last spring.

The Homecoming sign contest brought the third place prize to Peavy Hall. Social life was not neglected and members supported exchange dinners and the winter term dance in Central Dorm.

Phi Delta Theta ended its 1951-52 school year with a variety of events including exchange picnics and firesides.

Fall term brought the annual Phi Delt barn dance, and winter term a costume ball. In the sports field they placed eight members on the NCAA championship team, while track held four others. One man won the javelin throw in the PCC.

In intramurals, the house won the softball championship and the football trophy.

PHI
 GAMMA DELTA

Grass skirts were worn by everyone at the annual Phi Gamma Delta grass skirt dance. Carrying out this tradition the Figis also participated in the Homecoming parade wearing their grass skirts and black makeup.

Fall term the Figis contributed 100 per cent to the Campus Chest Fund and placed fifth among fraternities for grades.

Activities of spring term were an Easter breakfast and participation in the interfraternity sing.

Newest addition to the Oregon State College fraternity system is Phi Kappa, who is in its second year on this campus.

Members are noted for their dogged softball team, and unfortunately, heavy contributions to the U.S. armed forces. House interest is high in horn hunting.

A Roman Catholic fraternity, the Phi Kaps are active in the Newman Club.

Of interest to the Phi Psis each year is the presentation of a leadership award which is given to an outstanding upperclassman. Contributions to community, college, fraternity, and the RDTC program are prime considerations.

Intramural participation is high in tennis, baseball, football, and basketball. The Phi Kappa Psi social calendar is complete with dances, exchange dinners, and firesides. Of special interest is the Skid Row Squeeze, a waterfront atmosphere dance held annually spring term.

Nationally nicknamed the Skull House, Phi Kappa Sigma holds an annual Buccaneers' Ball centered around this theme.

Contradicting their nickname the Phi Kaps are among the fraternities replacing hell week with help week for initiation.

Oregon State's chapter is well regarded nationally after receiving the Phi Kappa Sigma finance award.

Phi Kappa Tau philanthropy consists of supporting two foreign students each year and 100 percent contribution to the blood drive.

Intramurals play an important part in the lives of the members. They have been in the Greek semifinals in football and volleyball champions for the last two years.

Dances, banquets, and the Northwest Phi Tau Conclave which was held last spring, have filled the social schedule.

Spring term brought to the Phi Sigma Kappa house their annual house mothers' banquet for all campus hostesses. Also held this term was the traditional Floral Fantasy formal.

With good representation, the Phi Sig songsters won fourth place in the interfraternity sing.

A bid of 136 percent to the campus chest brought Miss Martha Morton, assistant dean of women, to the Phi Sig's for an evening's entertainment.

Each year Pi Kappa Alpha holds a tri-chapter meet at the coast. This get-together with the other two chapters from Oregon provides an opportunity for getting better acquainted and many fun-filled hours.

An outstanding event of fall term is the Hobo Hop with burlap and straw predominating.

Pi Kappa Alpha received the Mortar Board Ball certificate for having the greatest percentage of house members attending the dance.

Each spring Pi Kappa Phi holds its annual Rose Ball. For this large formal dance the men select a queen whom they consider the fairest coed on campus.

In the field of sports the Pi Kaps competed in all of the major ones.

At present all members are working on the clearing and landscaping of the lots adjoining the chapter house.

POLING HALL

Being somewhat intellectually inclined fall term, Poling Hall members rated tops in scholarship for the men's dormitories.

All the members were not bookworms, however, for Poling Hall not only won the intramural touch football league, but also led the entire campus in Sigma Delta Psi participation.

With all this activity members still had time for social life which included an impromptu picnic at Sulphur Springs.

Each winter term Sigma Alpha Epsilon holds its annual Thanksgiving formal. A turkey dinner at the chapter house starts the evening off before adjourning to the Country Club for dancing.

Last spring the SAE's captured the doubles in intramural golf, were finalists in the softball tournament, and the swimming team placed second. A concrete basketball court which the fellows built furthers enjoyment of sports. The newest member is Mac, a huge St. Bernard mascot, whose real name is William McKinley V.

SIGMA CHI

As a reward for their active interest in sports, the Sigma Chi's won the 1952-53 Intramural Swimming Contest. They hold the title of last year's individual all-school skiing champions.

Again, this house excited the Oregon State students with their annual Sweetheart Ball, and the contest for the Sweetheart of Sigma Chi.

An item of interest is the remodeling of their downstairs recreation room.

Entrance to the Sigma Nu fall term barn dance was gained only through a tunnel of hay ten bales deep.

At Christmas time a children's party was held with the Farm Home children being treated to dinner and entertainment.

The King's Feast, a dinner-dance symbolizing the days of knights, was held winter term, and spring term brought the annual flower formal.

One of the most colorful and unusual dances is the Sig Ep annual Firemen's Ball. This affair is complete with a two-story slide and pajama costumes.

Fall term brought a prize for the best Homecoming sign. Spring term the Sig Eps came in third in the interfraternity sign and won the crew trophy.

Outside projects were giving Christmas gifts to the Farm Home and donating to a summer camp program.

The men of Sigma Pi are particularly proud of their scholastic achievements. Last year they ranked fourth among all the fraternities and this year second. In the field of sports, volleyball is first, with basketball running a very close second.

SIGMA PI

Sigma Pi's annual Orchid formal is the object of much anticipation on the part of the members and their dates each spring term. Winter term, the pledges of Sigma Pi plan and put on the dance.

For two years in succession the Teke's have won the Nickel Hops contest for the best attendance record.

Each spring term Oregon and OSC jointly hold the annual Carnation Ball on one of the two campuses.

Occasional spare time for this active group was spent with Pierre LaPue, a pet skunk, who received a great deal of attention from the fellows.

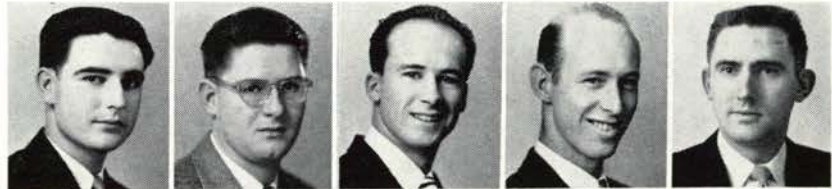

Last spring term Theta Chi again held their annual softball game with the University of Oregon chapter. They participated in softball intramurals and were runners-up in the league.

Not to be outdone in the social circle the Theta Chis held their Red Ox Stampede, as well as other dances and exchange dinners.

Contributions to the blood drive and Campus Chest Fund were 100 percent.

THETA XI

With an active interest in intramural sports the Theta Xis brought home the Rifle Team trophy last spring term.

Washington and Oregon chapters visited the OSC campus for the regional convention, and the annual Theta Xi Roman Romp, well known for decorations and costumes, was the biggest and best yet. Social events included the pledge dance fall term and a formal ball winter term.

Theta Xi interests are many and varied with good representation in Pershing Rifles and the glee club.

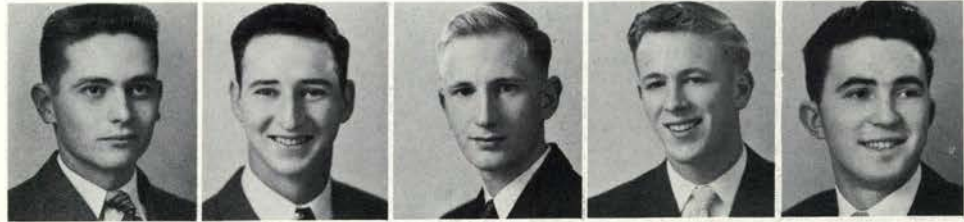

Weatherford Hall began the year out right by supporting the Campus Chest 100 per cent. In intramural sports they held their own and entered the finals in several events.

The annual roof-top dance, Lunar Lookout, was the outstanding social event.

Spring term brought a few unexpected showers caused by water bags which were rumored to have come from the fifth floor balconies of Weatherford.

PERSONALITIES

Personality knows no season or clime. It appears in all places, positions, and periods. And Barbara Lindfors has captured for permanent record some of the photographs of campus notables at work and in their odd, carefully-guarded snatches of relaxaton.

PATTY DAUM in fishing togs made good bait for the photographer, although it looks like she should trade that straw hat for an umbrella. Perhaps she's trying to hook a date for the Mortar Board Ball.

"Ah, this it is a great news, I teenk," says the tough hombre DICK DAVIS. In spite of the apparent length of his story and the size of the cigarillo pile, he resembles a reporter.

Known about campus for her Canadian humor, JEAN MacDONALD'S pin-up girl seems to be good Queen Bess. If she survives that cigar smoke, perhaps she'll be on time for the coronation.

NIHAL DE MEL looks like he's quite contented working with nuts and bolts and things. At least that grin on his face should mean something. Maybe the car belongs to someone else.

Actor and equestrian D. LAWRENCE VAN ETTEN seems to have gotten a little turned around when he mounted, but maybe it's just that he is astride a horse of a different direction.

Check the size of delivery boy JACK SAL-ING's foot as he sleeps under a moss-covered tree. Is he just waiting to put out the early edition or has his foot become too much to carry around?

Sliding merrily down the Tri-Delt bannister is none other than DONNA K. SPARLING, woman about campus. Undoubtedly she has a plan to cope with the post at the end of her descent.

Underneath that tall top hat, high-stepping PEGGY ROBB swings her cane while practicing a routine with which to lead AWS members. Maybe she imagines she's wielding a whip.

Old Dog Tray is evidently rather bored with the proceedings, while at a second glance it is clearly evident that HOWARD NEAL will be getting a big bang out of it sometime soon.

"Happily married ever after" are ADA and DICK LOFTS who do manage to keep fairly busy with studies, activities, and housekeeping.

CAROLYN "COCO" COLBY, a busy career woman, chews bubble gum and drinks cokes for entertainment while writing a Baro article and typing a term paper. She is surrounded by her many admirers who are relegated to this secondary position while Coco pounds her typewriters for an evening's relaxation.

A touch of Hollywood right at OSC is KATHIE RAFFETTO. Known for her work in speech department productions, Kathie's friendly smile brings some of that California sunshine to the campus.

Science senior JOAN COUNTRYMAN gets ready to inject a guinea pig with a secret formula which she is hoping to patent soon as Joan's Jivey Junk.

Gamma Phi prexy ALICE LEHMAN finds that balloons and confetti not only get the MU ballroom decorated but cut down on the exercises department.

Tall or short, they're both good sports. And when the 'littlest man on campus,' DAMON MINTO, stands back to back with WADE HOLBROOK, we see both the "long and short of it." Damon is seen at boxing bouts or as coxswain on the varsity crew, while "Swede" spends many hours at basketball.

On the move with the traveling talent show or has Glenda's violin playing been too much for PAUL FILLINGER? In either case, Paul seems to be quite at home perched on top of the boxcar.

Coeds bloom forth to enjoy spring sunshine all over campus, although Waldo has the advantage of overlooking Coleman field. Sunshine or rain, the time has at last arrived for beach trips and fun. Books just don't fit very well into any picture of spring.

Dancing is fun for the faculty members who were the honored guests at the Twirl. Everyone who attended had a full evening of relaxation.

Students Fete Faculty With "Turnabout Twirl"

Children were no problem for those who wished to engage a baby-sitter for the evening. The service was free and was handled by the students.

The annual Turnabout Twirl is given to thank the faculty for their co-operation as chaperones for student functions. In reverse for this dance the students act as the chaperones, baby-sitters, and hosts and hostesses.

A group of students, the official chaperones of the evening, sit on the sidelines and discuss the new and unfamiliar capacity. The Turnabout Twirl is an annual event at Oregon State college.

Seniors Entertained At Beaver Preview Weekend

A group of eager Rooks burn their "green." This annual Senior Weekend feature marks the advancement of all classes one level higher.

During the contests between the Rooks, Rookesses versus the Sophomores, male and female, the main feature is the women's football game. The Rookesses won a 6 to 0 victory with the scoring play featuring a naked reverse. The bone-crushing contest was viewed by two thousand.

Senior Weekend started off with a bang at 5 p.m. Friday, April 25. From all over the state future Beavers poured onto the campus to receive a taste of college life.

631 men and 620 women registered for this big event. They were entertained with shows, exhibits, a picnic, dates, and a dance.

Among the interesting exhibits were some sponsored by the dramatic department, the chemistry department, the music groups, journalism projects, and the ROTC units.

After the guided tours were over, after the big talent show and dance, the weekend was over and the guests started returning home.

A group of Beavers and future Beavers watch the Saturday afternoon activities on Lower Campus. Rooks and Sophs entertained with a tug-of-war, a football game, and the "burning of the green."

The Sophomores heave valiantly, but the Rooks proved to have too much "pull" in the big tug-of-war. Other events of the afternoon were the picnic on lower campus, songs by the winners of the Interfraternity Sing, and the introduction of the new ASOSC officers, Thanes, and Talons.

Mothers arriving for big weekend are quickly registered at the Memorial Union information desk.

The seating around the speaker's table included Student Body Prexy Donn Black and his mother.

Students Entertain Mothers During Big Weekend

Like other Mother's Weekends in the past, the banquet luncheon in the Memorial Union ballroom was one of the main events of the session held.

Mothers Feted With Weekend

Oregon State blossomed out in its own version of Mother's day and entertained all of the moms during a special weekend set aside for this purpose.

During this time they viewed a talent show, attended a special matinee of the college play, dined at the big Mother's weekend banquet, and held business meetings of the Mother's club.

After church on Sunday morning the mothers began to slip away and by four in the afternoon another magnificent weekend was put to rest.

More than one hundred women were honored at the twenty-ninth annual Women's Honor assembly. Awards for outstanding college achievement were given under the sponsorship of AWS.

A solemn procession of Mortar Board members marked the tapping of 15 outstanding junior women into the organization. This honorary is one of the highest honors an OSC coed can hope to attain.

Military ROTC Units Parade

Armed Forces Day was celebrated on the campus by the annual Spring parade of the ROTC units. The parade included units of the Air Force, Signal Corps, Corp of Engineers, Infantry, Artillery, and the Midshipmen of the Navy. Led by the ROTC marching band, the parade went down Jefferson Street, through town, and back up Madison to pass in front of the reviewing stand.

New Stadium Built for 1953

Through the contributions of many Oregon State alumni and OSC supporters, a new football stadium is in the process of construction for the start of the 1953 season. The field and facilities will be completed during the summer, and it is hoped that the 1953 football season will feature the homecoming game inside its walls. The stadium will seat some 25,000 in its first stage.

President A. L. Strand, on the left, and Athletic Director Roy "Spec" Keene stand by the sign on the site of the new gridiron stadium. Located close to parking facilities, it is easily accessible.

Giant machines excavate the new stadium site which will be finished this summer. The exceptionally dry fall enabled all primary work to be completed before the winter rains.

The stadium, completely excavated, waits for the field and concrete stands. It is built in the fashion of the Stanford Bowl.

SPRING SPORTS

Cotton dresses and pink noses, sports shirts and new crew cuts deck the grandstands as enthusiastic Beavers join in the familiar spring cry to "kill the umpire." Staters everywhere enjoy the sun as they cheer for their favorites in baseball, track, crew, golf, tennis.

Varsity Baseball

The outlook for the '52 baseball club at OSC was not bright when Coach Ralph Coleman assembled his diamond hopefuls together last Spring. The Beavers successfully defended their ND championship for the second year, however, and went on to play USC for the PCC championship. The Beavers won two out of a three game series . . . winning 12 to 10 in the first game and taking the nightcap by a narrow 5 to 4 margin.

Ralph Coleman's nine next took on Fresno State for the NCAA district 8 championship. Orangemen took the opener 2 to 1. The Staters' power at the plate resulted in another victory . . . this time by 8 to 4. The team then entered the Western regional playoffs at Omaha, Nebraska where they scheduled powerful Duke. They were swamped 18 to 7. The following day saw the Oregonians lose 10 to 1 to the Univ. of Texas.

Beaver third baseman Cub Houk rounds first base on his way to second after rapping a long double to right field. Houk was a top notch hitter as well as a capable third baseman.

First sacker Jay Dean awaits the pitch. Dean was a big cog in the lineup.

OSC's team makes tracks for finish line as Idaho's Sweeney shows form which took first place in the 220-yard low hurdles. Beaver cindermen Chambers and Lowry came through to finish second and third in the event, but the Vandals pulled through with eight other firsts to win a 74-56 decision over the Staters.

Varsity Track

Oregon State's 1952 track squad was lacking in depth and inexperienced for the most part. Hal Moe took over the reigns of head track mentor for the first time last year and faced the tremendous job of developing a formidable team around the nucleus of a few returning lettermen. Moe depended heavily upon performances of Merv Brock in the sprints, Ralph Sutton in the javelin, Duane Eby in the shot put and Lyle Dickey in the pole vault.

In the first ND duel meet of the season Idaho's Vandals outclassed the Beavers 74 to 56. As was expected the only first places the Orange thinclads garnered were in the dashes, shot, pole vault and javelin. This first meet more or less typified State's track performances throughout the season. To be sure there were some standout performances from up-and-coming newcomers, but the big point-getters for Oregon State remained the same throughout ND and PCC track competition.

Varsity Golf

The varsity golf team had an average season last year winning half their matches. Although they finished last in the Northern Division, they were capable of playing top flight golf.

Coach Jim Barratt is more optimistic about the '53 team. He lost only one man, Captain Keith Osborn, through graduation and will have four returning lettermen to form the backbone of his 1953 club. Bob Eade and Bill Kessinger, both two year lettermen, will return with Bill Sundstrom and Ron Grabler who won letters for the first time last year. Barratt is depending upon two notable newcomers to bolster his veteran squad. They are Roy Strand, 1950 State Junior Champ, and Darrell Grything, transfer from the College of Puget Sound.

Another bright note in State's golf fortunes was the enrollment of three promising freshmen. They are: Bob Donnelly, Oregon State junior champ; Bill Mallory, captain of the Lowell High golf team in San Francisco; and Jerry Cloninger, a promising newcomer from Caldwell, Idaho.

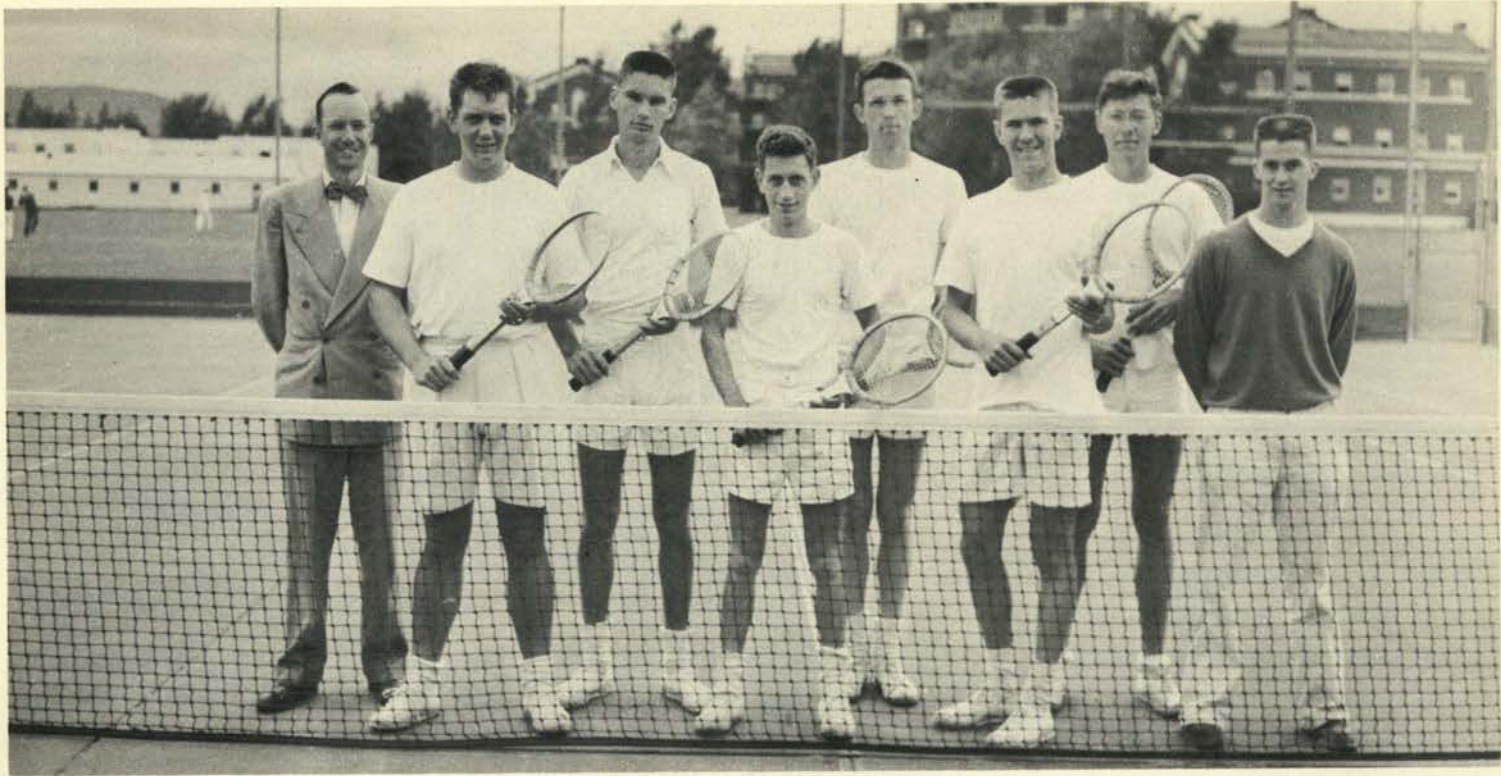

Bill Sundstrom will be a key man on Coach Barratt's squad next year.

Senior Bill Kessinger figured prominently in many of Oregon State's victories last Spring.

Pete Carter, sophomore, reaches for a low one during a practice session.

The Oregon Ducks downed the Beavers twice this year . . . the first time since 1943. This was perhaps the only sad note for Coach Irwin Harris's team however as they finished the season with a creditable record.

Hopes for a better team next year are rather low as the Orange racqueteers lost two of their finest players, Don Megale and George Allison, via graduation.

Four new tennis courts will be available to the team by next season. The better facilities for tennis players will undoubtedly coax some fine high school prospects to Oregon State.

Harris predicted the University of Washington, perennial northern division champions, to cop the tennis title again next year.

Sophomore Ed Dey demonstrates the form that established him as one of OSC's finest tennis players. Dey and Pete Carter will be the mainstays on next year's team.

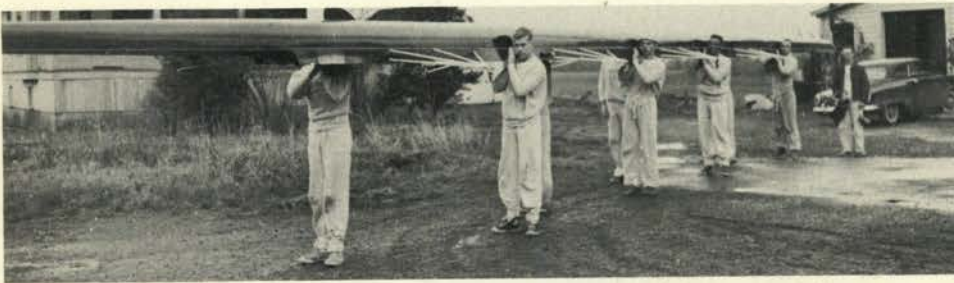

Rowing Club Sponsors Crew

Under the sponsorship of the Oregon State Rowing Club, the Beaver crew participates in a large-range program of intercollegiate competition. One of the biggest events of the year for the varsity crew, is the Newport, California regatta, where they participate against other crews from the Pacific Coast Conference.

CLASSES

Each fall a new class takes its place at OSC, and each spring the seniors bid reluctant goodbyes to its familiar surroundings. Leona Burgoyne, section editor, records here our growth as Staters, under the leadership of those who help us prepare to take our places in the world.

The noisy Beaver babies will have very few troubles unless Don, in the lead, gets too absorbed in blowing bubbles. Pictured above are the Freshman Class officers: Don Chervin, President; Ward Kelley, Treasurer; Don Davis, Sergeant-at-arms; Marilyn Miller, Secretary; Violet Wong, Vice-president.

Green Ribbons, Bubble Gum Aid Freshmen Begin Beaver Career

Picking up "paws paws," taking tests, and remembering to wear Rook lids and green ribbons, the large enrollment of Beaver babies was introduced to OSC. After the nightmare of their first registration, they soon became busy with activities, sports, social life and studies. Al Finch and Jerry Thomas were co-chairmen of the Homecoming bonfire, while frosh girls served coffee and doughnuts to the fellows who successfully guarded the fire from destruction by the "southern branch." The Rooks donned their best clothes and manners for the winter term dance, "Midnight in Central Park," chairmaned by Grady Richards. The newly re-organized Rook Rally Squad helped cheer freshman teams throughout a successful year. A class picnic spring term ended an eventful year at OSC.

Fall term finds sophomores carefree and gay. With Dick in the driver's seat they were soon on their way. Officers above are, (back seat) Margaret Lance, Secretary; Bruce McGregor, Sergeant-at-arms; Donna Barton, Vice-president; (front seat) Norm Huchen, Treasurer; Dick Berger, President.

Looking for ways to create spirit and interesting meetings is sophomore class prexy, Dick Berger.

Spirited Sophomores Roll Along; Show Strong Loyalty to OSC

Since getting into the swing of college life, sophomores can be found in most major activities. Oregon State became more aware of the class of '55 as they accepted and successfully completed many projects. "Stormy Weather," the annual Sophomore Cotillion, was planned by co-chairmen Pat Seidler and Gil Bateson. Frank Elliott and his Moonlighters played for the dance which was held in the M.U. Ballroom. For publicity a song contest was held between the living groups and was won by Gamma Phi Beta. Thoughts then turned to spring and Sophomore Weekend. Mary Lou Langland and Joe Ellington were co-chairmen of the activities which included a car rally, picnic, beard contest, and the annual Sadie Hawkins race. With finals completed, the sophs were ready to begin next year as upperclassmen.

The tired, mature juniors relax and sigh, "My how we've changed! We wonder why?" Pictured above are the Junior Class officers: Bob Estoup, Treasurer; Kathleen Johnston, Secretary; Joan Hobart, Vice-president; John Marshall, President, and Bill Sundstrom, Sergeant-at-arms.

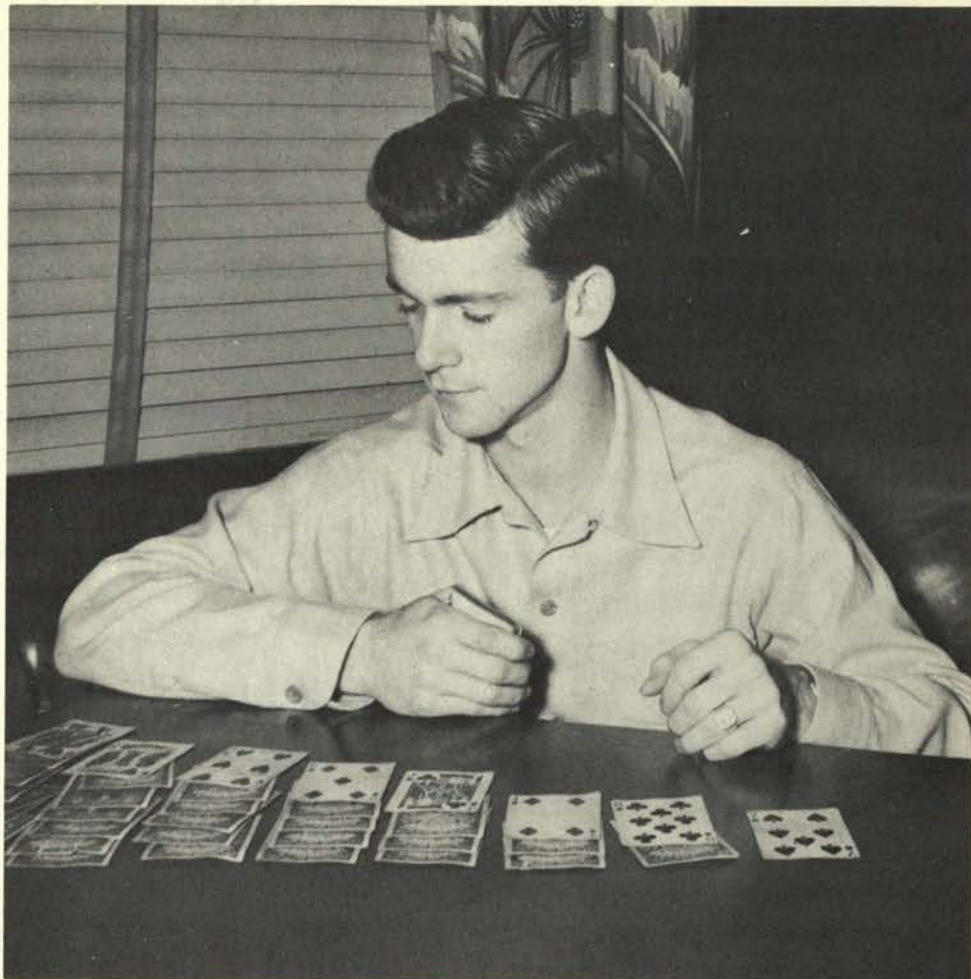

Junior class prexy, John Marshall, prepares himself just in case "pasty face" happens to drop in.

Juniors Active In-Betweeners; Soon Will Fill Seniors' Shoes

At the end of the school year, we find the exhausted juniors relaxing after a busy year. They found that activities, sports, and coke dates left little time to study or relax. During spring term elections, juniors were chosen to fill the positions vacated by the class of '53. The major activity for the year was the Senior Ball. The theme of "Coronation" gave a regal atmosphere as the junior class honored the graduating seniors. Joan Hobart and Duane Bodtker were co-chairmen of the dance held in the M.U. Ballroom spring term. In three memorable years at OSC, these upperclassmen have grown into the standards and traditions which have been carried out through the years. Next fall they will take their places as seniors.

Our aged seniors have survived the four-year test. We wish them much happiness and of everything, the best. Senior class officers: Barbara Owens, Vice-president; Lynne Timmerman, Sergeant-at-arms; George Frisbie, President; Kal LeMaster, Treasurer; and Ann Williams, Secretary.

After four years of Oregon State and this game of solitaire, senior prexy Frisbie says, "I'm beat!"

Years at State Fill Thoughts as Carefree Days End for Seniors

The seniors will soon be talking about the "good old college days" and thinking of the events packed into four busy years at OSC. As green freshmen they learned the campus traditions and took charge of the Homecoming bonfire, winter term dance, and a spring term talent show. As sophomores these Beavers sponsored the annual Sophomore Cotillion, "A Little Bit of Heaven," and participated in Sadie Hawkin's Day and the all-class picnic. Activities, sports, social life, and studying seemed to take many hours of the day as they prepared for their senior year. In these four years, the "old timers of '53" have contributed their varied abilities to help make a better Oregon State. When commencement is over, the class of 1953 will carry with it many pleasant memories of their days as Oregon Staters.

Backstage activity in the College Playhouse requires a full staff of regular student workers. Here the production crew sets up flats for one of the many performances held in the auditorium.

Students Active In L. D. Program

Activities outside of class keep students studying in lower division and other schools busy with plays, speech contests, publications, and music groups. Sponsored by the departmental staffs within the school, these activities are open to any student.

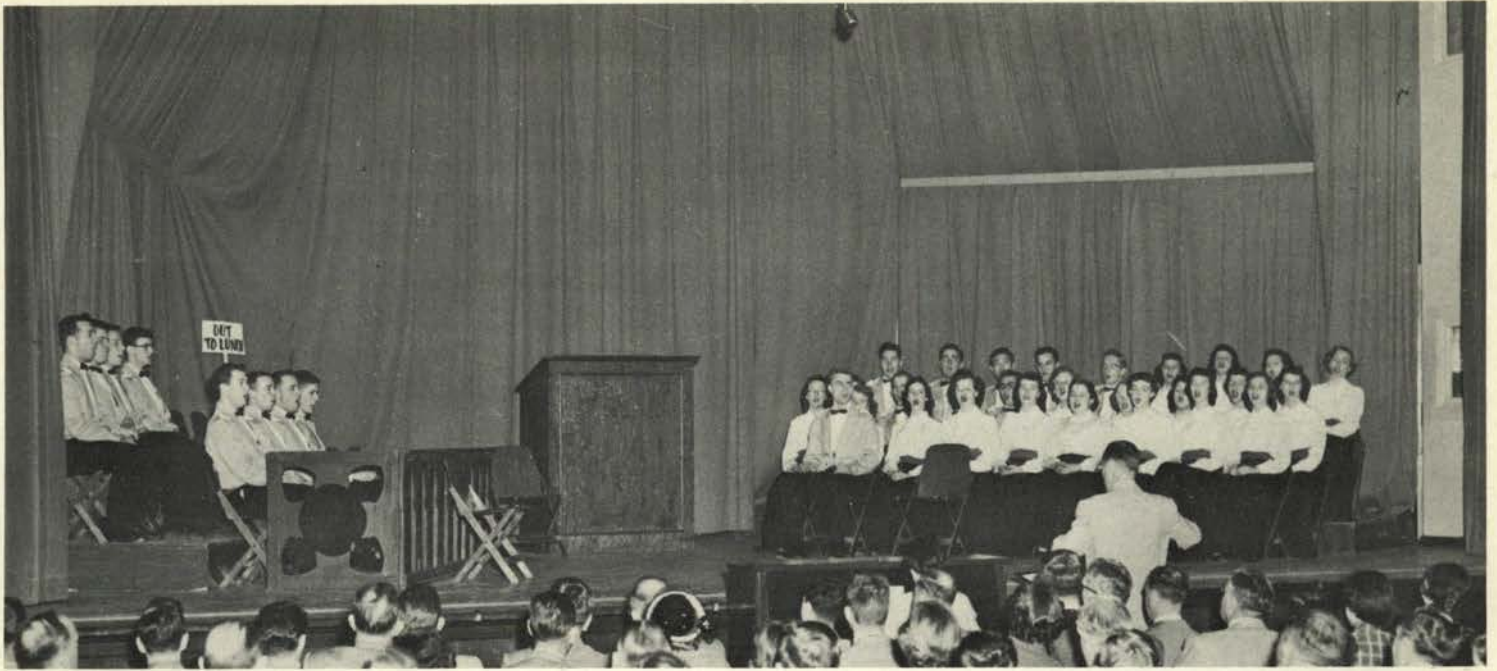

Many hours are spent rehearsing for a play, practising for a concert, and preparing for publication before the final product is presented to the OSC public. In many of these activities, class credit is given that may lead to a minor in that particular department.

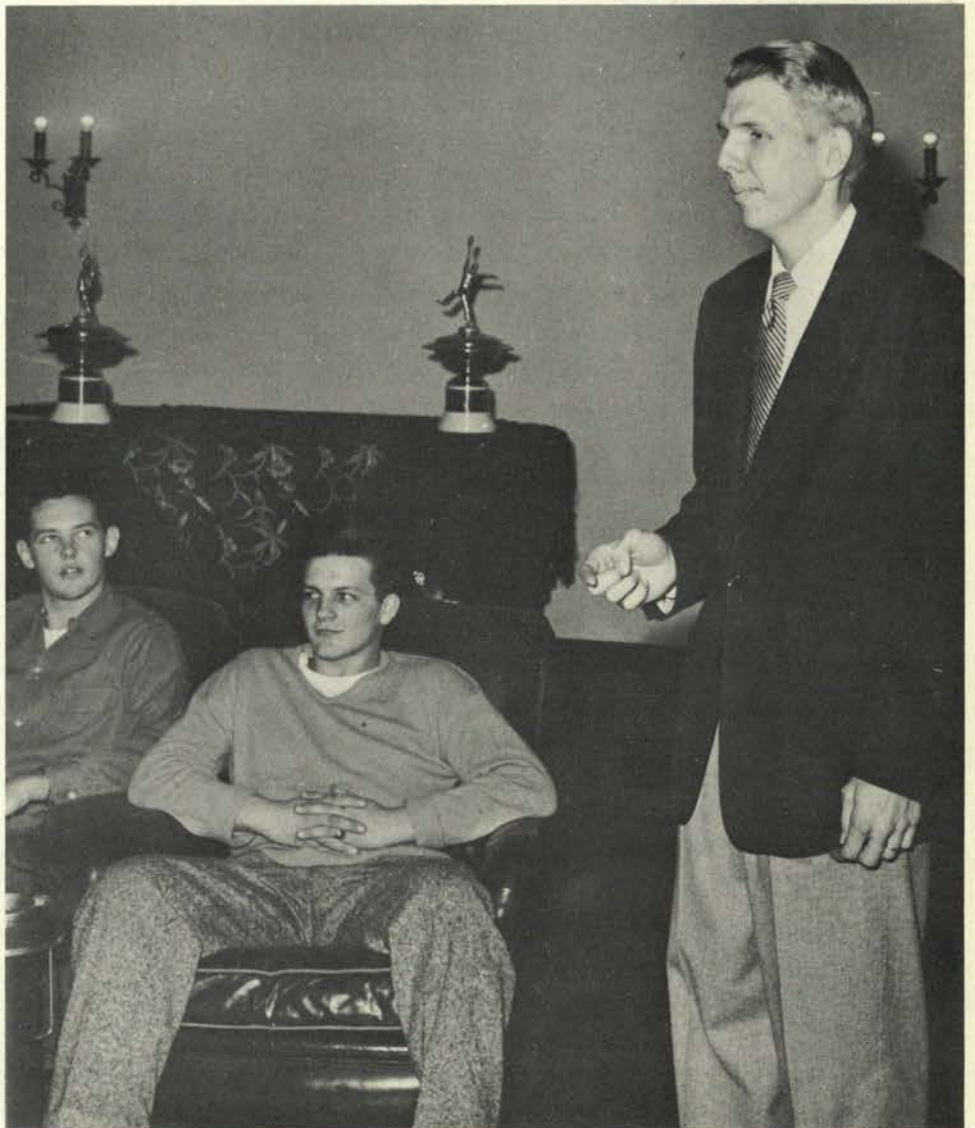

Waiting backstage for the cues that will send them onstage are members of the cast of one of the six dramatic productions presented annually.

Controlling the lighting and effects for each play in the Playhouse is a student assistant. Production crew works with top quality equipment.

Among many of the other varied activities in the school of Lower Division is music in many forms. The a cappella choir is pictured above in their production of the comic operetta, "Trial by Jury." Other music groups include the band, orchestra, Madrigal, glee club, and the marching band of ROTC.

The social sciences receive full attention in Lower Division. Such subjects as psychology, religion, history, geography, and philosophy offer a wide range of interesting courses for the students.

The journalism department is also included in the extensive liberal arts program of the L.D.

Ralph Colby, Dean of the Lower Division of Liberal Arts, enjoys tuning his viola, which he plays in the Oregon State Symphony Orchestra.

Lower Division of Liberal Arts

Social Science Building

For the undecided student entering Oregon State College, the Lower Division of Liberal Arts is the ideal division in which to enroll.

Students in Lower Division pursue a two-year course in liberal arts, which provides courses in English, modern languages, music, speech, journalism, history, economics, arts and architecture, philosophy, religion, psychology, and sociology.

Two years in Lower Division makes a student eligible for a junior certificate which will admit him to upper division work in a major curriculum or transfer to another institution.

Students of Lower Division put up a new display of paintings in the entrance of Kidder Hall. Work is done by both students and faculty members, while other exhibits are brought in from other campuses.

Participating in various speech activities throughout the state are the members of the OSC student platform organization which includes the director, Mr. C. N. Harris, and the student members Dale Thomas, Connie Pysher, Evelyn Claussen, Margaret Colegrove, Pat Roche, and Gene Ellis.

Student Platform and Extemp Offer Rivalry

Students interested in a variety of speech activities satisfy their desires by becoming members of the extemp squad, which is directed by Mr. C. R. Winger. During the year, the squad participated in a series of varied speech activities, and attended contests at Denver, Los Angeles and Tacoma. Under the direction of Mr. C. N. Harris, the student platform service is organized to offer students opportunities for appearing before audiences within the state. Mr. Thurston Doler is assistant to all groups.

AND FURTHERMORE!!

Members of extemp are, first row: Stuart Beals, Glenda Mann, Donna Mock, Marie Shepardson, Marvin Black; second row: Mr. C. R. Winger, director; Robert Miller, Dave Jabusch, and Harry Carpenter.

Oratory, Debate Teams Enter Many Contests

The Oratory Squad under the direction of Dr. Earl W. Wells participates in many contests throughout the West. Known from Montana to California, the squad this year has garnered two firsts, a second, and three third places. The debate team had an eventful year under the direction of Mr. Paul X. Knoll, participating in numerous contests of various types. Members of the team must be well-versed in current problems and spend many hours in research and planning before debates.

NROTC Students Learn Navy Way

The Naval Reserve Officers Training Corp is one of the three major branches of the service offered to students at Oregon State. The NROTC program gives the college midshipman a basic education in naval subjects, as well as preparing him for a regularly prescribed field of learning. A student may graduate with an officer's commission in either the Navy, Naval Reserve, Marine Corps, or Marine Corps Reserve. Regular NROTC students are selected from nation-wide competition, and receive their books and tuition yearly.

This may not be the type of map that they use in the Navy, but it illustrates the use of the coordinates to eager Navy and Marine midshipmen.

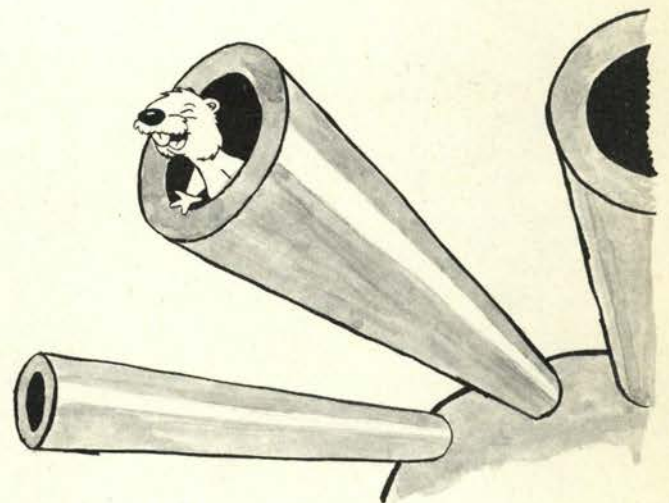

Colonel Christancy Puckett is commanding officer and professor of military science and tactics.

Army ROTC Big Military Unit

The Army ROTC program at Oregon State is one of the larger military setups on the campus. With recent developments in the world peace problems, this branch of the United States military training has grown by leaps and bounds, just as the other ROTC units at Oregon State have shown great gains. The OSC program is headed by Colonel Pickett. Special training fields are Signal Corps, Infantry, Engineers, and Field Artillery, which complete the list of major subjects offered by the service branches at Oregon State College.

Want to learn how to field strip a M-1 rifle? That's what these ROTC cadets are receiving instructions in at the armory ordinance supply room.

Air Force ROTC Trains Airmen

The largest ROTC unit at Oregon State is the Air Force branch of the Armed Forces. Students in the Air Force can graduate from OSC with an officer's rating in the reserve Air Force, or with a commission in the regulars. The recent rise of air power to world prominence has created a need for the growth of the Air Force Officers Training Corp. The Air Force program is handled by Colonel Rex Beach. The detachment moved its headquarters to the coliseum during the past year, and classes are now taught there under the supervision of several officers and non-commissioned Air Force men.

Colonel Rex Beach is the professor of air science and tactics and AFROTC commanding officer at OSC.

Air Force cadets who are interested in flying can be found conferring with the many officers of the detachment who have won their wings. The AFROTC program is primarily interested in pilots.

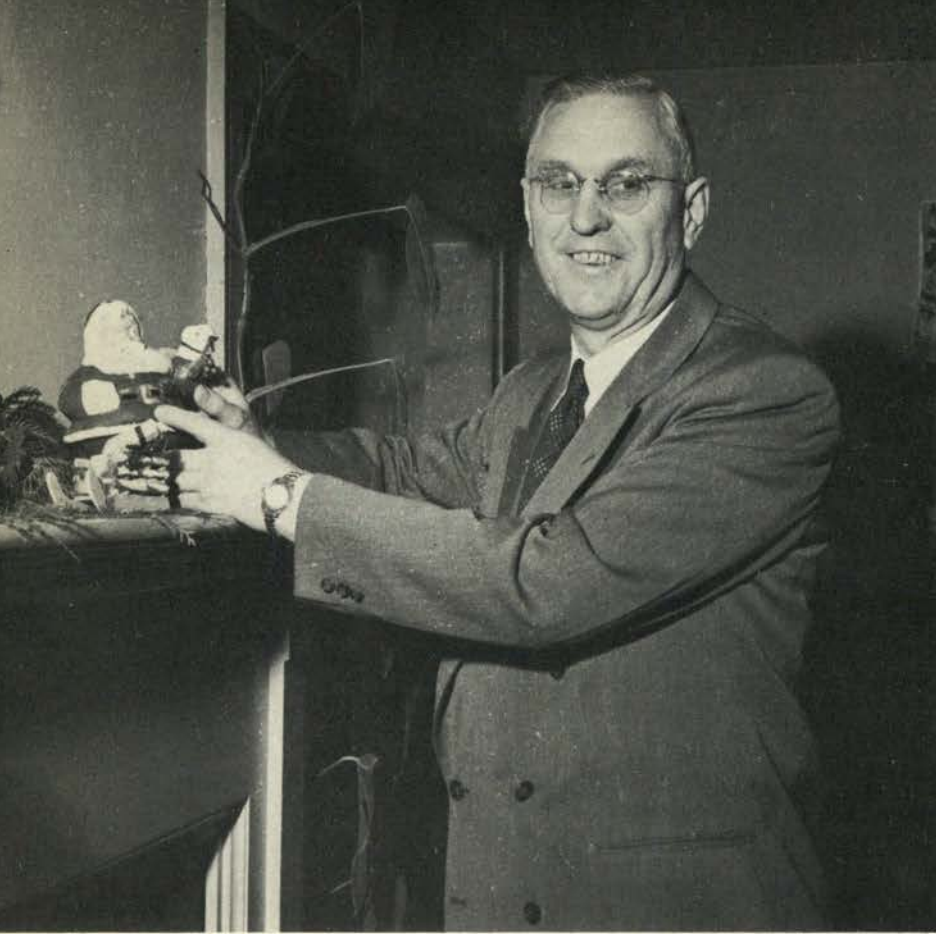

Once a week, regardless of the weather, the members of the various ROTC units drill. This drill instills military discipline, courtesy, and emphasizes the exercise of command and military procedure.

School of Agriculture

Agriculture building

The number of fields of concentration offered by the School of Agriculture enable students to acquire a diversified education. The curriculum offers agricultural economics, education, and engineering, animal, poultry, and dairy husbandry, fish and game, food technology, horticulture, and veterinary medicine.

In addition to the wide scope of the curriculum, the extension program is of great importance. The staff members maintain offices in every county of the State and give advice and specialized training in all phases of agriculture and home economics. The 4-H Clubs are also included in the wide program of the agricultural field.

School of Business and Technology

Future business executives seldom realize that the Oregon State College School of Business and Technology is the only business school in the country that prepares its students to enter both advertising and management in industry for wholesaling and retailing.

The student is prepared to enter a field of administration and management through the combination of major work in business with minors offered by the technical schools on the campus.

The business education and secretarial science division of the school provide training for positions as secretaries and teachers in secondary schools.

F. R. Zerán, Dean of the School of Education, catches up on the latest news. Dean Zerán is also director of the Oregon State summer session.

School of Education

Concerned with preparing teachers for the high schools of Oregon and with the promotion of high standards of secondary education is the major objective of the School of Education.

In planning its curricula, the School of Education has recognized three qualifications for a good teacher; mastery of the subject matter, an understanding of child and adolescent psychology, and of professional problems and techniques, and a broad and liberal education.

A placement service is maintained by the school to aid qualified graduates in locating teaching positions in the secondary schools of the state.

W. F. McCulloch, Acting Dean of the School of Forestry, finds a soft chair relaxing after returning from a day touring forestry projects.

School of Forestry

Forestry Building

The School of Forestry on the OSC campus has many aims other than making its men first-class foresters. In training the men for their respective professions, the department keeps in mind they will be community members.

There are three major fields of work: forest management, forest engineering and forest products. These include far more than the titles indicate and keep the men with the red ties in a whirlwind of activities which involve the instruction and activities on campus. The red ties worn by men of the forestry department have grown to be the badge of a hard working friendly bunch of fellows.

Home Economics Building

“Best in the West” is the School of Home Economics at OSC. A large curriculum of many varied courses gives the graduating student a good background to step into a competitive field.

The three different programs include: one for the future business women, one for the student who is going to make homemaking her career, and one for the transfer student, or for the Lower Division student who has chosen this field to continue her studies. Sewing, cooking, decorating, and child care are made easier and more fun under the excellent guidance of the home economics staff.

School of Pharmacy

George E. Crossen, Dean of the School of Pharmacy, pauses for a moment to glance at pictures of one of the art exhibits in the Memorial Union.

Pharmacy Building

New equipment and a five-year in place of a four-year course is turning out fine Oregon State pharmacy students. The extended course was added only a few years ago as it has been in other colleges throughout the country. There are many areas of practice and room for any of their ardent followers in the ivy covered halls at Oregon State.

The training includes theoretical as well as practical experience, both of which are necessary to earn that title of an OSC pharmacy graduate.

School of Science

F. A. Gilfillan, Dean of the School of Science, takes time out to examine a German stein from his prized collection of rare possessions.

Physics Building

Living in the age of the atom makes everyone realize the importance of the field of science. The Oregon State College School of Science provides the scientific foundation for the fields of biology, chemistry, physics, botany, geology, and mathematics upon which each professional school is built. The well-known reputations of the Schools of Engineering, Forestry, Agriculture, Pharmacy, Home Economics, and Business are evidenced by this excellent foundation.

The acquisition of an electron microscope, a seismograph, a large spectrometer, and a cyclotron have been recent additions to the research program.

Oregon State Creed

*I believe in Oregon State
Builder of men and women
Seeker after truth,
Organized for the service of a great commonwealth.*

*I believe in her traditions,
A heritage from the deeds and dreams of yesterday;
In her sportsmanship and honor,
A reality with the students of today;
In her aspirations and ideals,
The assurance of a magnificent tomorrow.*

*I believe in her democracy
And her far-reaching bond of Beaver brotherhood;
And I realize that since she has accepted me as a Beaver,
I too am a guardian of the Beaver spirit;
If I degrade myself I degrade her;
As I honor myself I honor her.*

*I therefore pledge to her, my Alma Mater;
My loyalty, my love, and my devotion.*

Graduate School

H. P. Hansen, Dean of the Graduate School, relaxes at home by reading to his three youngsters. Many students earn graduate degrees annually.

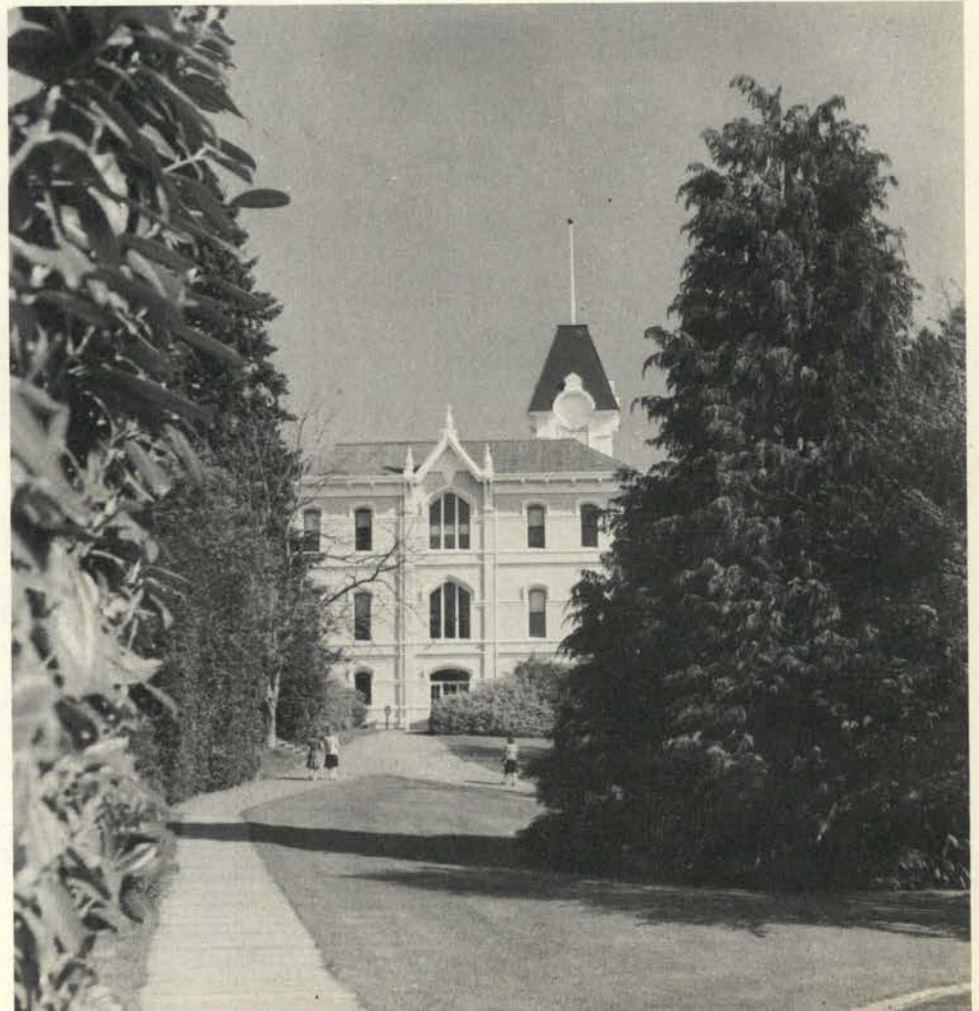

Benton Hall

For those interested in widening their education, the Oregon State College Graduate School provides an opportunity to complete the development of the scholar and inspire him on a plane of original thinking.

To give the student an opportunity for advanced training and specialization in technological fields of his profession and vocation, to encourage independent thinking, to train him in a wide variety of fields and to stimulate and develop his scholarship is the goal of the Graduate School.

Students from many corners of the world are attracted to Oregon State College by the high quality of advanced training available here.

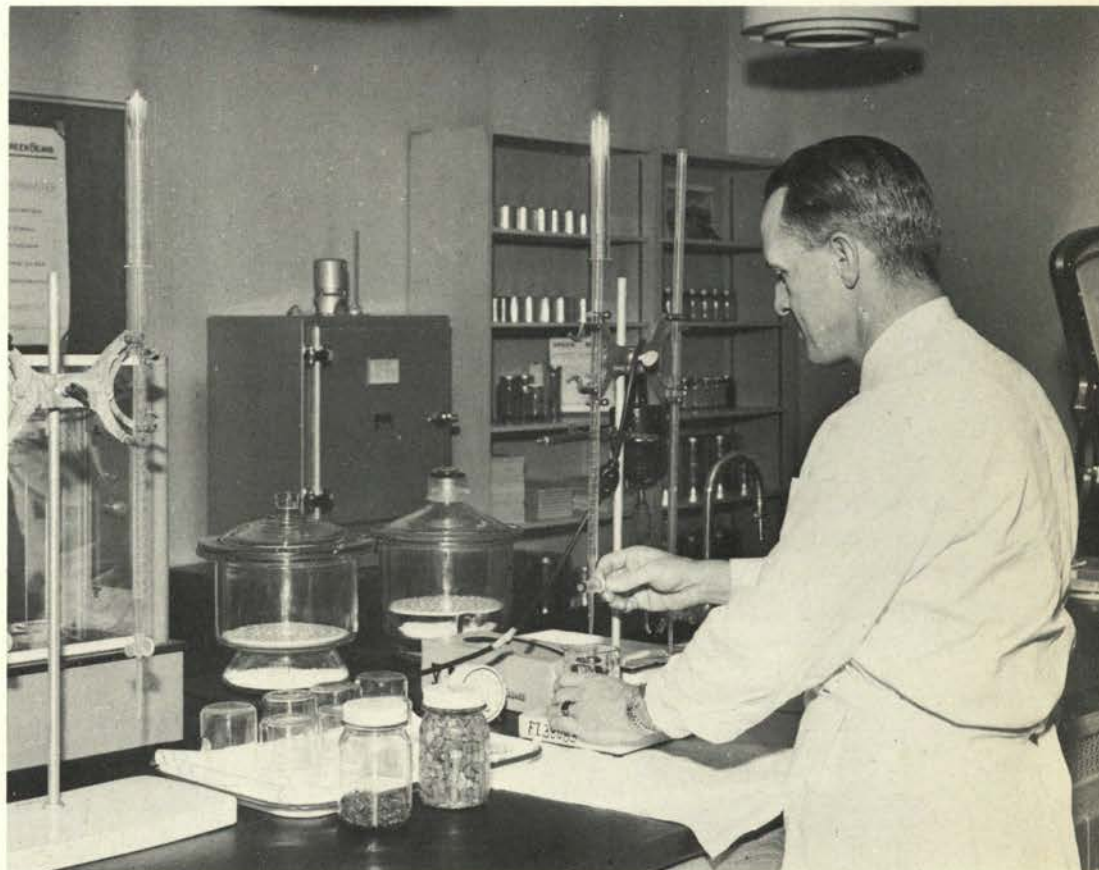

Attracted by the fine School of Home Economics at Oregon State, many graduate students carry on experimental work in the labs.

Experience in arriving at scientific conclusions through individual thought is provided by extensive laboratory work on campus.

A brand new building provides a modern setting for advanced experimentation in food technology. Improvements for the future are continually being worked toward in all areas of graduate work.

A job on the Beaver always sounds like great fun,
Then all of a sudden, the work is begun.

They give up their coffee and leisurely cokes
And layouts and copy must come before jokes.

But all through the long year a loyal crew
Seemed to find just the right things to do.

Assistant Editor JEAN GERVIN deserves only the best
For her help in putting this Beaver to rest.

RUTH CEREGHINO has spent her time well
As the faculty section will surely tell.

DICK COYNER recorded our events at State;
Much fun at college his section relates.

While BETTY SHIDELER and KATHY AYSTA, too,
Helped to keep our Dick from feeling blue.

DON SUMP gets the prize for picture-taking,
And KATHY MILLER for appointment-making.

NANCY NELSON peeked through windows and doors,
To get new info for living group lore.

The sport section seemed like a pretty big chore
Until BILL STRADER stepped through our open door.

BARBARA LINDFORS looked out for personalities,
While LEONA BURGOYNE brought originality.

A new addition with JIM RONNE came,
A clever fellow — Benny Beaver by name.

Loyal indexers worked to the very last,
Two BARBARAS and POLLY were really very fast.

To BARBARA HAMMOND goes our gratitude,
For helping us through our final week blues.

In the manager's office slaved GLENDA COTTON,
Who's managerial staff cannot be forgotten.

MARY ANN RANDS and BOBBY GREENDALE
Were responsible for the job of book sales.

IRWIN PEARSON sold pages to fill our book,
A job which much time and patience took.

MARY MEE, CAROL ERICKSON, and JOAN RINTOUL
As office managers were a very busy crew.

Our special photographers at HISE and BALL
Saved our weary staff from many a fall.

Last, but not least, or all our lifesavers
ABBOTT, KERNS AND BELL and the BEAVER ENGRAVERS.

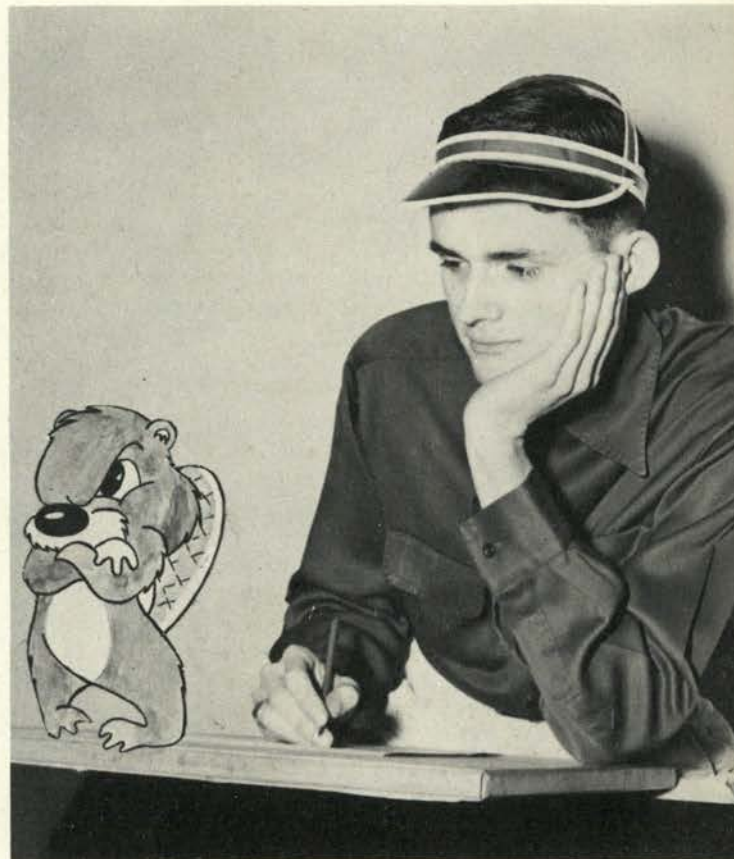

Many more are the names that should appear here,
For their hours of help throughout the long year.

So to all who have spent an hour or two
The Beaver staff especially thanks YOU.

Index staff Barbara Custer; Barbara Luebke, editor; and Polly Helwig had tedious job of collecting names and proper page numbers of Beaver faces.

Beaver Staff Receives Praise For Work Throughout Year

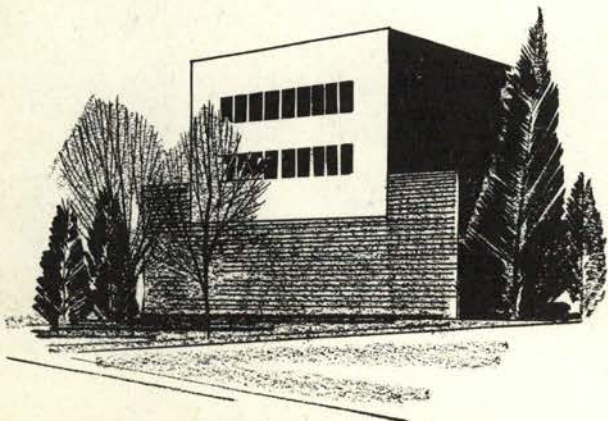

Quietly contributing Benny Beaver and his antics from behind his drawing board was Jim Ronne whose imagination helped the staff with originality.
