

TOWN Sports, Tours, ROTC Drills Will Highlight Dads Weekend

Some 12,000 copies of today's Daily Barometer will be sent to the lineup in the 16th division where he drove another unbeaten Beaver Woods, in a challenge match.

Davis Jumps To 130
Frey's strained knee is if it is ready for action.

Senior Lightweight M...
Davis should return to lineup after a week's rest in the 130-pound class where he will be replacing Colburn.

No matter what the change it looks like the Beavers have to stave off the Central lightweights and come back strong in the middle and upper weight classes as they are to claim their title season win.

Probable Oregon State lineup with season record included:

123 - Ken Larsen (3-4)
130 - Murril Davis (3-5)
137 - Sam Jones (3-4)
145 - Phil Frey (3-1)
152 - Kim Snider (7-3)
160 - Jerry Chapin (11-3)
167 - Jim Vandehy (4-4)
177 - Jim Blackford (4-4)
Hwy. - Jess Lewis (12-10)

afternoon and Saturday in the Memorial Union, according to Jim Blake and Mary Condon, co-chairmen of registration.

During registration each dad will receive a traditional bamboo cane with an orange stripe for each year he has attended Dads Weekend at OSU. Talons and Thanos will assist with registration.

Dads may also contribute to the Dads Club scholarship program at registration by purchasing an annual membership for $5 or a lifetime membership for $15.

Sports Events
Athletic events scheduled for the weekend include varsity basketball with University of Washington Friday night and with Washington State University Saturday afternoon.

Also on the sports program will be wrestling with University of Oregon and rugby with University of Washington Saturday afternoon; and intersquad crew competition Saturday morning.

General admission tickets are still available for the two basketball games. However, these will go on sale to the general public Feb. 19, according to Dean of Men Dan Poling, so students should buy tickets as soon as possible.

For dads and students who would rather not attend the basketball games Friday night, an MU Movie, "Heroes of Telemark," will be shown in the Home Economics auditorium.

An MU Open house later that night will feature a campus slide show (Here's a chance to get a campus tour without walking!), a slow dance and games.

Dean's Meetings
Dean's meetings will be held Saturday afternoon this year.

Here is "an excellent opportunity for dads to learn about the educational philosophies of each of the schools on campus," stated Cooper, and a chance for them to meet their sons' and daughters' professors.

Both dads and students may attend the Dean's meetings.

Luncheon
Colonel Sander's Kentucky fried chicken will be a new addition to Dads Weekend at the Saturday luncheon in the coliseum.

On the luncheon program will be a drill by the Army Sponsor Corp, a women's ROTC auxiliary; musical selections by the "Uncalled For," a singing group of four members of Delta Gamma sorority, and by the Chorales, an OSU choral organization; and a performance by the OSU Pep Band.

Speakers for the luncheon will be OSU President James Jensen and Dads Club President Hansen.

Tickets for the meal will go on sale Feb. 22 in the Activity Center. "It is important to buy tickets early," emphasized Cindy Banzer and Cheryl Osterbert, luncheon co-chairmen.

A participation trophy will be given for the living group showing the greatest interest. Alpha Chi Omega has won the trophy for several years past.

Chosen on the basis of the dad who came the farthest, the dad attending the most Dads Weekends at OSU, the oldest dad, the past Dads Club president and the dad with the most active OSU students, the Dads Club will be crowned at the luncheon.

Dads Club
Newly elected Dads Club officers and directors will be installed at the Dads Club meeting Saturday morning in the MU.

Although no registration fee is required for Dads Weekend, any money received will be used to increase the Dads Club scholarship fund. This year 22 full-tuition ($369 each) scholarships, totaling $8118, were given to OSU students by the club.

Recipients of this year's scholarships will be presented at the meeting, according to Hansen.

In addition to these scholarships, the Dads Club allocates a minimum of $1000 to the Dean of Men's office for emergency aid. The club has also deposited $9000 in the OSU Student Loan Fund which, with the 12 and a half to one matching funds, has created more than $187,000 for low interest loans.

"Since 1956," stated Hansen, "the OSU Dads Club has provided a total of $80,455 to 268 deserving students."

Present Dads Club officers are Lee Hansen, president; Ralph Floberg, vice president; Waldo Taylor, secretary; and Les Copenhagen, treasurer.

Other Events
Two receptions in the MU main lounge are planned for the weekend. One will be hosted by the MU Hospitality Committee Saturday morning, the other Saturday afternoon by the Freshman Class and Rook Rousers.

Also Saturday afternoon, the Army ROTC Cadet Corp with the "Black Bayonets" will drill in the Armory.

Tours of the OSU water laboratory, radiaton center and computer center may also be included.

Many individual living groups are making special entertainment plans for their dads. Open houses, talent shows, and other informal events are slated.

Fathers of residence hall students will be treated to a "dorm" dinner Saturday night.

General Committee
On the Dads Weekend general committee under Art Cooper, chairman, are Barbara Grant, assistant chairman; Christi Lindauer, general secretary; Cliff Bradshaw, deans meeting and tours; Donna Kettler, evaluation; Rich Gordon, finance; Steve Waker, hospitality and guests; Jan Meyer, housing and living groups; Cindy Banzer and Cheryl Osterbert, luncheon.

Others are Rich Shimomura, MU Program Council representative; Bill Huhta and Sue Rohrbough, planning; Judy Griswald, programs; Steve Downs and Sue Phelps, publicity; Jim Blake and Mary Condon, registration; and Dean Dan Poling, advisor.

President Urges Dads Attendance

Dads and daughters have a chance to spend a wonderful weekend with them on March 1 and 2 as their special event. As president of the OSU Dads Club, I urge you to attend and participate in all events.

We have chosen the theme "Out for Dad" and have worked hard in planning a very exciting and hospitable weekend for our entertainment.

You must not miss the opportunity to spend this weekend with our sons and daughters for a better understanding of wholesome academic and life at Oregon State University.

You may register on Friday afternoon and Saturday in the Memorial Union foyer.

The Oregon State University football team will play the University of Washington on Friday night and Washington State University Saturday afternoon.

Be certain to attend the OSU Dads Club meeting at 10 a.m. Friday, in the MU ballroom. The newly-elected Dads Club officers and directors will be installed. The 22 recipients of the club full-tuition ($369) scholarships will be presented. Dean Dan Poling will introduce OSU deans, faculty and administration. President James Jensen will make the welcome address.

There will be an open house in the main lobby of the Memorial Union Friday afternoon after 3 and Saturday morning at 9. Coffee and pastries will be served. Parents and sons and daughters will have a chance to visit together.

Do not overlook the luncheon, meeting and special entertainment by student talent Saturday noon at Gill Coliseum.

Saturday afternoon you will have the opportunity to meet your sons' and daughters' professors at the dean meetings for the various schools.

Dads, this is our weekend, so let's participate and enjoy the hours with our sons and daughters and become better acquainted with their activities and life at the rapidly expanding Oregon State University. Let's make this the best Dads Weekend to date.

Sincerely yours,
Lee R. Hansen,
President, OSU Dads Club

Teachers Meet

Oregon State University will host the state chapter meeting of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese, Saturday, Feb. 17.

The program will include "The Preparation of the Foreign Language Teacher: Some Problems and Solutions." Featured speakers are Odette C. Ricard, assistant professor of French, and Walter I. Lusetti, assistant professor of Spanish.

Sessions are scheduled for Memorial Union 211 following the group's noon luncheon.

Chorus Scheduled To Appear Here

The Yugoslavian Branko Krsmanovich Chorus, conducted by Bogdan Babich, will appear in concert Monday night at 8 p.m. at Gill Coliseum.

The concert is sponsored by the OSU-Corvallis Music Association.

The Coliseum doors will open at 7:30 p.m. OSU students will be admitted free with their student body cards.

The Branko Krsmanovich Chorus, a mighty ensemble of 80 voices, has traveled the world over.

They made their first tour of North America in 1960, and returned for second and third tours in 1961 and 1965.

On their present tour, their fourth, the artists are singing in 67 cities across the nation.

A continuation of the famed Oblich Choir, founded in 1824, the Branko Krsmanovich Chorus is one of Europe's oldest, most distinguished vocal groups.

The chorus is today the most important of three cultural wings of the Association for Art and Culture at Belgrade University.

Its personnel numbers 40 men and 40 women aged 18 to 30. They are undergraduate and graduate students, most of whom are in the fields of art, science, or medicine.

Babich, the conductor, is generally given credit for the ensemble's widespread success.

Born in 1921, he attended classes in composition and conducting with Franja Dukan and Kreshimir Baranovich, and

Rep. Packwood To Speak Today

Packwood told an audience in Baker last Monday that "it's time for the destruction of the myth that Wayne Morse is unbeatable."

Packwood has said he will tap the state's no. 1 resource, "the talents and time of concerned citizens," in his widespread campaign.

"In our challenge for the U.S. Senate, we will mount a citizens campaign with 30,000 working volunteers," he says.

Packwood will talk to Prof. William McClenaghan's political science class at Cordley Hall 160A at 1 p.m. in addition to his appearance at the Student-Faculty Forum.

He has also scheduled appearances with local radio and newspaper media, and will speak to the Modern Problems class at Corvallis High School.

Packwood was elected to the state legislature in 1962, heading the entire ticket of both Republicans and Democrats in his election district, and is now in his third term in the House of Representatives.

In his six years in the legislature he has been Chairman of the Elections and Reapportionment Committee, Chairman of the Local Government Committee, vice-chairman of the State and Federal Affairs Committee, and a member of the Labor and Management Committee and the Rules Committee.

In 1964, Packwood and former Secretary of State Howell Appling, Jr., joined together in a controversial and very successful effort to recruit and train able young Republicans to run for the Oregon Legislature.

Packwood and Appling are generally given credit for the overwhelming legislative successes of the Republicans in that year.

In 1965 Packwood called and hosted the first Dorchester Conference, and they have continued in 1966 and 1967.

The Dorchester Conferences bring together Republican leaders from throughout the state of Oregon to discuss and propose solutions to the problems facing Oregon and the United States.

"The Dorchester Conference of Republicans makes no money, has no big name political speakers, is still experimenting with format — and it is a spectacular success," United Press International has said of Packwood's brainchild.

Packwood was born and attended grade school and high school in Portland. He graduated from Whittemore University in 1954 where he was president of his fraternity.

He then attended the New York University School of Law as a Root-Tilden Scholar. There he was student body president.

After finishing law school in 1957 he served as a law clerk to former Chief Justice Harold Warner of the Oregon supreme court.

Packwood was born into politics. His great-grandfather, William H. Packwood, was a member of Oregon's constitutional convention in 1857.

When Packwood was elected chairman of the Multnomah County Republicans in 1960, he was the youngest urban county chairman of either political party in the United States.

He held that position until 1962 when he ran for the legislature for the first time.

In the 1963 session of the legislature Packwood was its youngest member. He was re-elected in 1964 and 1966.

In 1967 he was selected one of the Three Outstanding Young Men in Oregon for his "outstanding record of service to the state both in politics and in community affairs."

Dean of Men Dan Poling discusses Dads Weekend plans with Art Cooper, general chairman and Bob Grant, assistant chairman. Activities for the weekend, March 1-3, include varsity basketball games with University of Washington and Washington State University, a special luncheon Saturday, a Dads Club meeting, Dean's meetings, MU open house and many others. ACU Tourney At OSU Now Regional competition in five activities highlights the Regional Games Tournament being held on the Oregon State campus Feb. 15, 16 and 17.

Sponsored by the Recreation Committee of the Association of College Unions — International, the tourney features men's and women's competition in bowling, table tennis, chess, bridge and billiards. All competition is slated for the Memorial Union.

According to Dewey Fitzgerald, Memorial Union Building Manager and in charge of the tourney, 24 schools of the tourney, 24 schools will be represented at the two day meet. Colleges and universities from throughout Oregon, Washington and Idaho are entered, along with a team from the University of Alberta, Alberta, Canada.

Play-offs for berths on the Oregon State team entered in the tournament began in December, with play-offs in the billiards competition.

Competition begins Friday morning and concludes with a banquet Saturday at noon. Viewing of the tournament is open to the public.

Dr. David King 'Honors' Presents Censorship Talk

Dr. David King, director of the University Honors Program and an associate professor of history at Oregon State University, will be the featured speaker at the weekly TGIF meeting today at noon in the West Ballroom.

King will discuss the needs and possibilities of the development and expansion of the honors program at OSU.

He will point out what other schools are doing and have done in building their honors program, and compare their successes with possibilities at OSU.

Also discussing the problem with King will be Bob Orahood, president of the OSU College of Honors, which is part of the University Honors Program.

Deadline Set For Program

Application deadline for Oregon State University's $500 Bartholomew Journalism Intern-Scholarship for 1968-69 has been set for March 15, according to the OSU journalism scholarship committee.

The scholarship program, now in its second year, was established by Frank Bartholomew, OSU alumnus who is chairman of the board of United Press International. The fund is a memorial to his mother, Kate L. Bartholomew.

The intern-scholarship includes a $500 cash award spread over three terms, plus selected intern training in the student's chosen area of journalism. OSU juniors Tom Brown, Madras, and Boyd Levett, San Mateo, Calif., received awards for 1967-68.

OSU journalism students who will be sophomores, juniors, or seniors next year are eligible to apply. Details on submitting the application letter are available from the Journalism Department.

The intern scholarship awards will be based on merit and promise of professional accomplishments. Need will be a secondary factor.

Directing the intern-scholarship program is a journalism faculty committee composed of Sam H. Bailey, Gwil O. Evans, and Harold C. Dorn, chairman.

Beaver Benefit

Beaver Benefit, the annual all-campus charity drive, will begin Monday and continue through Friday.

'Adding Machine' Featured Tonight

The University Theatre's production of "The Adding Machine" will begin its second weekend tonight.

Certain time is 8:15 p.m. at Mitchell Playhouse.

Tickets for tonight's and Saturday's performance may be purchased at the Mitchell Playhouse box office from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

"The Adding Machine" tells about Mr. Zero, who after twenty-five years as an office clerk is replaced by an adding machine.

Mortar Board

Tickets for the Mortar Board Ball will be on sale next week Monday through Friday from 10 to 3 p.m. at the MU Ticket window. Cost per couple is $2.50 with proceeds going toward scholarships for OSU women.

Sickening

So far this year, Oregon servicemen in Vietnam are being killed at the rate of one each day. Thirty-two Oregonians have lost their lives in Vietnam through mid-February while since the war began, 231 Oregon servicemen have died. If the 1968 death rate continues, the figure is apt to reach 230. Of course, these are not pleasant facts, but the recent news involving the family who just lost their son in Vietnam is disturbing.

Last Tuesday, the Harvey Rowdens of Springfield, Oregon, learned that their son, John, 21, had been killed with the Marines Feb. 10. John was the second Rowden boy to be killed in the Vietnam conflict. The Rowden's first son, James, 21 at his death, was killed with the Marines two years ago.

And now their third son, Douglas, 19, has been ordered to report March 13 in Portland for his draft examination.

"I feel we have donated enough to the Vietnam cause," said Harvey Rowden, who will fight to keep him from being drafted. "I don't know what they could do," said Col. Leonard Hicks, Oregon Selective Service director in Portland. "I understand he is not their sole surviving son." The Rowdens have a fourth son, Malcolm, 19. The law provides that a sole surviving son cannot be drafted.

Hicks later added, "I'm sure our manpower officer will look at this carefully and see what we can do. We are compassionate, but it is a federal law."

Col. Hicks, this federal law makes us sick and so does the untimely action of the Selective Service in notifying the Rowden's third son.

And, worse yet, the Oregon draft board and how they handled the Douglas Rowdens reflects the administration's stubborn thinking in the Vietnam War.

Do You Live Off Campus?

If you live off campus, then you realize that finding adequate housing takes more time and effort than finding a spot on campus. It is a hit and miss proposition and often the result is not completely satisfactory. Problems may arise concerning housing which a student never anticipated.

The student and off campus housing has recently become an area of concern for the ASOSU Student Senate and has precipitated an ad hoc committee to investigate the dilemma. Preliminary investigation study has been made and ASOSU Senate is now in the process of printing a questionnaire which will be distributed to all off campus dwellers. The purpose of this questionnaire is to gather valuable information about the off campus housing situation in the Corvallis area. This information will be tabulated and then presented to the student in a booklet form. Questions will be asked on all areas that a student looking for off campus housing would run into. Questions concerning rent, leasing arrangements, state of repair, conditions, utilities and their costs, services, restrictions, landlords, other pertinent information will comprise the bulk of the questionnaire. These answers will then be tabulated so that all students will be able to have the data when searching for off campus housing. Along with this, there will also be included information on what costs the lessee is liable for, leasing laws, model leases, steps to watch when renting, what the landlord is responsible for, rules and laws on discrimination, plus directions for any legal or other problems that may confront one looking for this type of living unit.

The success and validity of this booklet depends greatly on the quality and number of responses from off campus students. The booklet can only be printed and made available if the full cooperation of those receiving the tonnaire will be mailed to off campus dwellers next week, Feb. 19-23, and must be returned to the designated spot by March 1 at 5 p.m. If enough response is gained, this information will be printed and passed on to the student. Too, applications are being accepted in the Student Activity Center for committee members of the ad hoc committee on off campus housing. Participation in this phase of the study is also needed for their responsibility will be administering the questionnaire and editing the booklet.

There is much student discontent with the present status of off campus housing in many university communities around the country. Oregon State's student senate seems to be on the right track and we hope that they will receive the cooperation necessary to make this project a valuable one for the student.

Chairman Dads Weekend

'Time Out For Dad'

Dear Dads:

Your sons and daughters at Oregon State University are looking forward to another fulfilled weekend with their Dads on March 1 and 2. If you haven't already done so, I hope that you will start making plans to attend the 35th annual Dads Weekend at OSU. The theme we have selected for the weekend is "Time Out for Dad" and we're hoping you will do just that — take some time out from your cares and come to OSU for an enjoyable weekend.

A variety of activities await your arrival. Athletic events include basketball games with Washington and Washington State, wrestling with University of Oregon, and rugby with University of Washington. Other activities include coffee hours and receptions, talent shows, sport films, dancing, games, etc. A special luncheon in Gill Coliseum Saturday will feature Kentucky fried chicken.

One of the most informative aspects of Dads Weekend will be the dean's meetings and tours. The dean's meetings offer an excellent opportunity for you to learn about the basic educational philosophies of each of the schools on campus. In addition, you will have a chance to tour many of the campus facilities of special interest.

Although there are many activities planned for the weekend, we hope you will make a point to participate in those of special interest to you. We hope to see you here for Dads Weekend. Remember, "D-Day" is only two weeks away so make your arrangements now for your weekend at OSU.

Private Drab

And The Famous Victory

"I see where we moved off Hill 875," said Corporal Partz, reading from a newspaper on his lap as he cleaned the toenails of his right foot with a trench knife.

"Which one's that?" said his friend, Private Oliver Drab, 378-18-4454, without much interest. "They all look alike to me."

"What?" snapped Captain Buck Ace, for he had overheard and his military moustache was bristling. "You mean to say, soldier, that you've forgotten Hill 875 so soon?"

"Was that the kind of pointy one, sir, where we liberated a couple of chickens?" said Private Drab hopefully and he scrambled to his feet and saluted. "I remember that one."

"For your information, Drab," said the Captain coldly, "Hill 875 is where the 173rd Airborne wrote one of the most glorious chapters of this war. They captured the summit on Thanksgiving after five days of bloody fighting for every inch of that hallowed ground. And though they took nearly 500 casualties, still they pressed on to the top."

"Oh," said Private Drab thoughtfully. "I wonder why."

"Because it was there," said Captain Ace simply. "It was their job to take it and they took it. What a proud moment. How would you like to have been one of those survivors who reached the top?"

"Yes, sir, I'd of liked to been one of the survivors," said Private Drab, nodding. "But what I mean, sir, is why go to all that trouble to take a hill we don't want? The paper here says now we've got it, we're giving it up."

"Let's see that," said Captain Ace, grabbing the newspaper. "Well, I think the headquarters spokesman explained it pretty well. See, he says here, 'No hill is that critical to hold forever. There are plenty of hills in that area.'"

"Oh," said Private Drab. "Why didn't we take one of those?"

"Because the enemy wasn't holding them. We wanted Hill 875 because the enemy had fortified it. Now they fortified it because they knew we'd want it. So it was costly to take it. But now that the enemy is no longer holding it, naturally we don't want it. Thus having taken it, military strategy dictates that we give it up. After all, it's no good to us."

"Yes, sir. But if we'd decided in the first place that it was no good to us, we wouldn't of wanted it and they wouldn't of fortified it and wouldn't..."

"The reason you'll never make a soldier, Drab," said the Captain contemptuously, "is that you just don't have a military mind."

"Well, maybe the Captain's right," Private Drab said when he'd stomped away. "But I still don't see this fighting and dying for something you know you don't want."

"You got to look at the big picture, Oliver," said Corporal Partz philosophically. "Hill 875 is a symbol."

"You mean because it was a famous victory?"

"Nope. I mean that what goes for Hill 875," said Corporal Partz, wiping his knife on his pants, "goes for this whole lousy country."

Play Review?

To the Editor:

Would you please have the kindness to print the following review which appeared in the Corvallis Gazette-Times Saturday, Feb. 10, about the University Theatre's production of "The Adding Machine" and was written by Barbara Holde?

"In directing the University Theatre's production of 'The Adding Machine' which opened at Mitchell Playhouse last night, E. S. Cortwright has taken full advantage of the strengths of the Elmer Rice play."

"While it may be true that a 1968 audience is primarily interested in this expressionist play because of its important place in the history of the American theater, it would be a mistake to think of 'The Adding Machine' as an antique which may have charm but has outlived its usefulness."

"To anyone who has even felt a slave to a contraction of steel and iron, Rice's theme seems quite relevant. And in this production, with the help of a strong cast and Alex Wallace's highly inventive sets, Cortwright has demonstrated that 'The Adding Machine' still holds moments of genuine theatrical excitement."

"Most of this excitement occurs during the first four scenes of the play. It is here, while Mr. Zero is still alive in his mechanistic society, that the expressionist forms enhance the theme of the play. The opening scene is a monologue by Mrs. Zero, and Jody McCoy carries this very well. She creates an empty but oppressive room. The atmosphere is defined also by the blank stare of Mr. Zero that is echoed by the blank stare of the naked lamp bulb dangling above the bed."

"Ralph Bradley's interpretation of Mr. Zero is an effective one. He succeeds in the difficult task of portraying a 'spineless, brainless, boob' with whom we can have sympathy. He and Susan Page as Daisy Devore work well together in both the office scenes and the scene in the Elysian Fields. Miss Page's change in voice tone at the end of the sixth scene is a wonderful touch.

"The party scene in Zero's living room is the high point of the evening. Here the set, the stylized movements of the actors, the meaningless conversation (foreshadowing Ionesco) combine to give credence to the expressionist's theory that one arrives at reality by abandoning realism."

"If Rice had been able to maintain the vigor of this scene throughout the rest of the play, 'The Adding Machine' might indeed be a great play rather than merely an interesting one. But from the vantagepoint of 1968, the play's weaknesses become apparent. While the first four scenes have power and purpose, the last three suggest that Rice had trouble deciding where the play was going. He begins to sound preachy. The humor seems forced. He introduces new characters for a questionable thematic purpose."

"But these are faults of the play itself, not the University production. I doubt if any cast or director could overcome them. This cast and its directors have succeeded in minimizing the faults and emphasizing the strengths of the play so that the production is well worth seeing. It will be on again... Friday and Saturday, Feb. 16 and 17.

Is there such a shortage of Barometer staff members that one cannot be spared for the coverage of winter term's main university theatre performance? Or is the Barometer waiting for the closing performances this weekend? It seems that there was ample coverage on most of last weekend's activities (i.e. the Anti-Military Ball, both BB games, and the Junior Weekend).

To the Editor:

In reply to the letter of Mr. De Groot (Fencing Feb. 14), to assert that the gassing of the Anti-Military Ball did not show the stupidity of the militarists, but rather that of the anti-military.

The fact that the Anti-Military Ball was supposed to promote peace did not stop its enemies from using violence against it. Likewise, a non-militant foreign policy would not more promote peace for this country than it did for the Anti-Military Ball.

Had the organizers of the Anti-Military Ball posted guards outside the windows, the Ball would have gone much more peacefully, and if the United States would take a more militant stand in foreign affairs, our enemies would stop stealing our ships and starting "wars of liberation" against us and our allies.

To The Dads

Dear OSU Dads Club,

I would like to take this opportunity to give you a special thank you for the tuition grant I received from you this year. It has meant more to me than just a chance to continue my education — it has meant a chance for me to grow as an individual through the experiences that can come from a college life.

I have come in contact with so many walks of life that give me a broader view of the experiences he can on to others.

Most of all you have given me an inner inspiration to work and trying to do something I believe in, knowing someone else is doing behind you, backing up, is encouraging.

Hopefully, someday I will be able to help someone else who you have helped me.

BARBARA ASMERVIG, editor

See You Then, Dad

Editor's note: Since this edition is being sent to all dads, we asked that these letters be written as an extra welcome. The author of the first is a sophomore in sociology. The second letter was written by a junior in civil engineering.

Dear Dad,
Well, here are tickets for the basketball games. I hope they will be a special incentive for you to come for Dads Weekend. Oh, our seats are in the third row — from the top that is. Keep in mind that last year I couldn't even get tickets!

Besides the basketball games, wrestling matches and rugby, there are lots of other things planned. Bring your comfortable shoes because we'll have a lot of walking to do if you want to attend the dean's meeting, open houses and everything we missed last year. It should be a good chance for you to find out for yourself what I've been telling you about what Oregon State is, beyond a University.

You know the dorm food I've been telling you about? Well, here's a chance to taste it for yourself.

Mom wrote me and said you'll bring a suitcase of the things I need. Tell her to leave out the sandals; I can get them when I come home for spring vacation. (Bring an umbrella, you can never count on Corvallis weather — that's an understatement!)

Lennie's father wants to meet you, so instead of eating here before the game Saturday, we thought the four of us could go downtown to a restaurant. What do you think?

When I look around and see all the girls' dads who can't come or, worse yet, don't want to, I'm really glad I have you so close and anxious to visit. That must be part of the reason I love you!

With love,
Your daughter

Dear Dad,
Yes... I'm still alive and well in Corvallis.

No... I haven't broken my writing hand, yet. Yes... I have plenty of stationery and stamps. No... they haven't discontinued mail service out of Corvallis, yet.

To be honest, I've been so busy preparing for your stay on Dads Weekend, that I haven't had time to do much of anything else. All sort of good times are planned for us, and it will be a good break before buckling down to study for the term, uh, I mean finals. Aside from the basketball games, wrestling and rugby matches, luncheon and program, MU Open House, intrasquad crew race, dean's meetings, tours, receptions, and living group tours, time is available for us to become closer and better acquainted.

I was a little slow on the motel reservations, Dad, so you now have a reservation for my bed for the weekend. It should be cozy for all of the dads on the sleeping porch, and I know you'll find it a worthwhile experience. Never fear, though, I did change the sheets. It was a little difficult getting the Christmas tree needles completely out, but I got the remnants of the shaving cream cleaned up with no problem.

At any rate, March 1, 2, and 3rd should be a great weekend, and I'm looking forward to having you down. Stay well, and above all, have a safe trip.
Your studious son

Male Dilema... What To Do About Miniskirt

By BERNIE GOULD

One of the problems facing the American male today is what to do about the miniskirt. Most of us males are a bit leery of the skirt. But when Miss Miniskirt glances back at us, we look away hurriedly. That's where we make the big mistake, being embarrassed.

Above all, she'll be furious. We shouldn't sneak, we should stare. And if Miss Miniskirt looks our way, we should stare even harder. She may sit more primly on the subway or bus seat opposite us. She may even try — though it's probably a losing battle — to jerk her skirt down lower.

Furious that we stared, at a portion of her anatomy that she left uncovered purposely so we would look her way.

Isn't that just like a woman? The point is that men — some of us, at any rate — have developed guilt complexes over these miniskirts. We're deathly afraid of being caught staring. And subconsciously we hate the miniskirt because it makes us feel uncomfortable.

University Transit Committee
An ad hoc committee to study the University Transit System is being formed. Applications for this committee are available in the Activity Center. Due date is Feb. 18.

Off-Campus Housing
Applications are available in the Activity Center for the new housing review board to survey off-campus housing. Applications are due Feb. 16.

MU Crafts Committee
Applications are now available in the Activity Center for the MU Crafts Committee. Anyone interested is encouraged to apply or contact Laura Raab, chairman.

Bus Passes
Bus passes for the remainder of the trial operation period of the university transit system may now be purchased for $1.50 at the student activity center.

Increased sales in the tickets the past week have made the reduced rate possible. The trial period allows students to see if the transit system will be a benefit to them.

Moms Weekend
Applications for Moms Weekend committee chairmen, general secretary and committee members are now being accepted in the Activity Center.

Entertain Dads!
Entertainment is needed by the MU Special Events Committee to perform at the Dads Weekend Open House. Interested persons should apply by noon, Friday, Feb. 16, in the Activity Center.

ASOSU Transit Committee
Applications are being accepted in the Student Activity Center until Friday, Feb. 16 at 5 p.m. for members of the ASOSU Transit Committee and the Housing Committee. The Transit Committee will work on the transportation problem to and from campus. The Housing Committee will be involved in compiling the housing questionnaire and providing information for off-campus students.

OSU Hosts Ducks In Final Home Meet

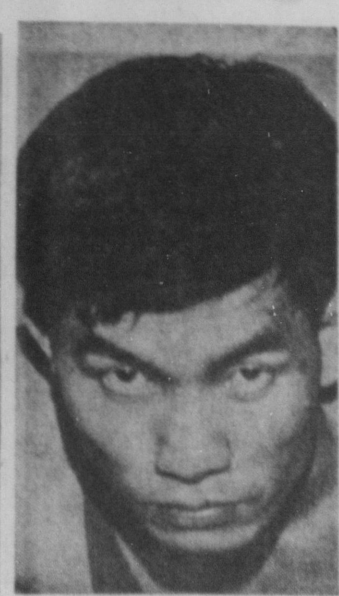

By BOB ALLEN
Assistant Sports Editor
The ranked Black Bears of Oregon State find two water skiing, hiking, mountain climbing, and tomorrow night as Sheryl finds pleasure in dancing, art work, singing all sports.

Four Standouts Gone
Losses off last year's team were 167-pound Fred Fairbanks (fifth in the nation and Pacific-8 champ), 137-pound Ralph Kunkel (PAC-8 champ), 152-pound Irv Roller (third in conference), and 160-pound Paul Adams (third in Pacific-8).
Only returning finisher is 115-pound Jim Yamamoto who was also third last year.
Combo Leads Cougars
Yamamoto has moved up to 123 this year and is leading the team along with heavyweights Harold Surplus. The junior lightweight was undefeated early in the season as was Surplus. The upperweight flash may move down to 191 when they face the Beavers tonight, however.
Other top Cougars include Spokane junior Fred McGinnis at either 130 or 137.
Brothers Add Strength
Another top upper weight man, in addition to Surplus, is 177-pound Tom Lees. Early season reports show that he had suffered only one loss. He is part of a brother act that includes letterman Henry who wrestles a weight below Tom. Both may be in action tonight.

OSU Favored But...
Oregon State is rated a favorite in this meet.
Saturday's renewal of the Civil War with rival Oregon may be different.
The Beavers already own one win over Oregon this season, a hard fought 26-13 victory at Eugene. But Duck coach Art Keith and many Oregon followers felt that the win was a fluke.
Thomas' terrors will have a chance to prove otherwise tomorrow evening.
Powerful Lightweights
Oregon has possibly the best lightweights in the conference

John Miller
Best Of 7 Sophomores

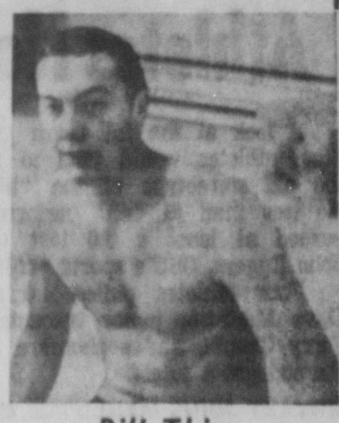

Masashi Saito
Seeks Revenge Tomorrow

Japanese standout Masashi Saito was downed by Beaver Steve Woods 2-1 on a controversial stalling call last time out and will be seeking revenge.
Three other sophomores are Eddy Dunn at 177, Tim Willmarth at 191, and Henry Muller in the unlimited class. They have compiled impressive records to date.
Muller was handed his first and only season loss by OSU's Jess Lewis in their initial meeting last month.
The Ducks are expected to sweep the lower weights but are weak in the middleweights where OSU is potent. The upper weight divisions are a tossup as of now, with the exception of the heavyweight class where Lewis is being given the nod.
Oregon State's lineup is as yet unannounced, according to Thomas, because of injuries.
Matches begin at 7:30 both nights and will be full 11-man meets because of conference rules.

Winklers' Tankers Set For Northern Battles

Oregon State's varsity swimming team, fresh off a pair of dual meet victories last weekend, will travel to Washington this weekend to challenge Washington State and Central Washington.
The Beavers will meet the Cougars in Pullman tonight at 7:30, then will travel across the state to meet CWSC at Ellensburg tomorrow afternoon.
OSU's tankers, who have broken a number of team and personal records this year, defeated Puget Sound and University of Pacific of Stockton, Calif., last weekend.
The Beavers will be led by sophomore sensations Garth Huffaker and John Josephson and senior co-captains Dan Zenor and Craig Eisenbeis. Zenor won four firsts in the two meets last weekend.
Huffaker has set several varsity records for the Beavers this season, as has the versatile Josephson. The two will be taking part in a full slate of events again this weekend as the Beavers work toward the conference championships at the end of this month.

Bill Thias

OSU Ruggers

Oregon State's ruggers will see their first home action as they play host to the University of Victoria this Saturday.
Following last week's 8-3 loss to the University of Oregon Ducks, the Beavers will be looking to get on the winning side of things.
Although strong forward play kept the Beavers within Oregon territory for almost the entire second half, a fine break by ex-Duck footballer Roger Smith gave Oregon the win.
Game time this Saturday is 2:30 p.m. following a 1 o'clock B game.

Matmen Rip Cats; Earn Coast Diadem

Oregon State's inspired dual meet win of the season and captured the West Coast dual meet title.
Only losses to two of the next three opponents can deny the Beavers the dual meet crown.
Ken Larsen turned in his best performance of the season when he decisively senior Mike Turner 11-5. A six-point first period paved the way to the win.
Murril Davis fell to Larry Brown in the 130-pound class 7-1, but it was the last breath for Eric Beardley's Wildcats.
Sam Jones, making his first varsity start made it an impressive one by dumping Gary Nako for a fall in 1:38 of the second round.
Phil Frey, Kim Snider, and Jerry Chapin all won on decisions for OSU to put the match out of reach.
Frey stopped Gary Mogenson 15-1. Snider decked top-rated Ron Seibel 20-2, and Chapin eased past senior Bill Rackley 5-1.
Central's Lamoin Merkle registered his 54th straight win by beating Jim Vandehy 11-1 and Dennis Byrnes stopped Bill DeJager 8-6.
Jess Lewis completed the Beaver win by spilling Dave Coffman in 1:33 of the first round for his tenth pin of the year.

Amateur Wrestling News

First year man John Miller lost his first match of the year last weekend to Eastern Oregon's John Kruesi. He'll be set to battle at either the 115 or 123-pound post tomorrow, according to Coach Keith.
Mailloux Challenged Sanders
Rick Mailloux has two losses on his record but one of those was a close setback at the hands of the world's second best at the 130-pound class, Rick Sanders of Portland State.
Brent Merrill fills in the 'Murders Row' at 130 or 137.

Playoffs Slated To Pick IM Table Tennis Champs

Matches are now in the final rounds for intramural table tennis doubles championships.
Fifty-one teams originally entered the competition in A, B and C leagues. Teams play for the best two out of three games.
The team of Hudson and Daryousk clinched the Residence Hall and Independent A division championship by topping Siegal Hagall in three games.
The duo had a perfect record in previous rounds, beating Yarl Ilix Yar and the team of Schenk and Baker. Both matches had identical scores of 21-13, 21-11.
Davenport House came out on top in the Coop A division, winning all three games in a match against Beaver Lodge.
Phi Kappa Psi meets Beta Theta Pi for the Fraternity A championship this week.
Phi Kappa Psi beat Acacia with the best two out of three in an early round, putting them in reach of the championship.
Beta Theta Pi took Phi Kappa Tau 21-15 and 21-19 in the second round and gained their

Thomas Heads Coaches Clinic

Wrestling coach Dr. Dale Thomas has been invited to head up wrestling clinics in Wyoming and Washington for this summer, it was disclosed yesterday.
Wyoming's clinic will be held Aug. 1-2-3 and will include the top wrestling coaches in the state present to receive instruction. It will be Thomas' second appearance at that state's wrestling school.
The Washington state high school coaches association will be hosting the Beaver mentor in June where he will lead the grappling program.
Thomas performed the same task in Pennsylvania fall term.

SYMBOL DEPLETION

We've almost lost a good word, and we hate to see it go.
The movie industry may feel the same way about words such as colossal, gigantic, sensational and history-making. They're good words—good symbols. But they've been overused, and we tend to pay them little heed. Their effectiveness as symbols is being depleted.
One of our own problems is with the word "opportunity." It's suffering symbol depletion, too. It's passed over with scant notice in an advertisement. It's been used too much and too loosely.
This bothers us because we still like to talk about opportunity. A position at Collins holds great potential. Potential for involvement in designing and producing some of the most important communication systems in the world. Potential for progressive advancement in responsibility and income. Unsurpassed potential for pride-in-product.
That's opportunity.
And we wish we could use the word more often.

Collins representatives will visit your campus this year. Contact your College Placement Office for details.

Rosy Reviews

OSU Fall Grades Show Athletes Not Dummies

A look at the fall term grade point averages of Oregon State athletes would tend to make one wonder from where the old stereotype of the "big, dumb athlete" ever came.

Four athletes pulled 4.0 grades. Senior football captain Dave Marlette, junior trackster Dick Evans, senior wrestler Jerry Chapin, and sophomore baseballer Les Stephens earned the straight-A total.

ENYART JOINS MARLETTE ON DEAN'S LIST... Other top-ranking graders were Bill Enyart (3.76), Jerry Belcher (3.50), and Jim Scheide (3.33).

Basketball players on the list are reserve center Gary Wilken (3.25), senior guard Bob Franz (3.06), and junior guard Mike Markham (3.0).

Top man from the Beaver golf team is divot ace Steve Smith, who compiled a solid 3.87. Other top golfers are Jay Pindexter (3.50), and Jay Henry (3.40).

Those are only some of the 51 Beaver 3-pointers. Who says all athletes are dumb? Oregon State officials would disagree.

Both the Bruins and Trojans had trouble in Corvallis last weekend, but their squeaker wins kept them far in the lead.

Washington State gained a split in the Bay Area, and now stands 4-3. Most of the rest of the league is tightly bunched below the 500 mark.

Hopefully, the return of Vance Fritz will bolster the line-up but the Bruins are always tough at home with 12,000-plus avid LA rooters cheering them on.

The Bruins will be magnificent if they can even come close to matching last Friday's performance. Expecting them to do so is asking far too much.

OSU Set Deliberate Pace... The Bruins, who came within an eyelash of sending the Bruins home with their tails between their legs for an unheard of second time in one season, forced the "Ukes" from their run-run style of play.

Hoop Squad Jets To LA With Six Starters

By RANDY HAMMERICKSEN Barameter Sports Writer

Jan. 13, 1968 marked the end of the perfect UCLA Bruins, but the beginning of an even better UCLA basketball team.

Vic Bartolome and Mike Markham Two Of The Six Beaver Starters?

It was on this night in Houston's Astrodome that Elvin Hayes and the Houston Cougars snapped the 46 game winning streak of the powerful Westwooders and turned the collegiate basketball world upside down, as they grimly held off the furious final charge of the Bruins for a 71-69 triumph.

Tremendous Talent... The long string of victories compiled by what must be considered college basketball's greatest assemblage of basketball talent, was to last from the end of the 1966 season, through last year's perfect 30-0 mark, and up to this momentous and disastrous jaunt into the state of Texas.

It was a night in which the giant of giants, star center Lew Alcindor learned how to eat a basketball, and it was also a night in which coach Johnny Wooden, the mastermind of this powerful basketball machine, stated, "This should make us a better basketball team."

Four Straight... The Bruins, fresh off of four consecutive victories since the Houston ambush, the latest two victories coming over Oregon and Oregon State, are now readying themselves for rematches with the two clubs.

Hot Shooting... Oregon State, which singled the Bruins at 48 per cent from the floor against UCLA's pressing and tenacious defense, had the crowd up and down during the entire 40 minutes of blistering action.

Alcindor Tough Inside... Alcindor, who currently sports a 27 points per game average, is tough to stop once he gets his hands on the ball.

Brins Like Fast Pace... The actual purpose of the press is not to steal the ball outright, but to speed up the tempo of the game to where the Bruins will blow you right

Warren Quarterbacks Team... Warren, a 5-11, 155 pound senior from South Bend, Indiana, is the quarterback of the team. He is an excellent ball handler and can score big when called upon.

Brins Complement One Another... The Bruins have the kind of club in which each player can complement the other. They have the big man underneath, that cannot be matched up by one man, and the shooters and drivers to run the opponents right out of the game.

So what do you do? The stall almost worked last year but the 10-second penetration rule has almost eliminated that tactic. You can hope they are cold, but even if they are, they will get up so many more shots than you will, that you will probably come out short of points.

Perfect Basketball... To beat this team a club must play perfect basketball. The team must shoot for a high percentage. It must also avoid costly turnovers that the ball-hawking Bruin press and overall defense produces.

Tonight, Oregon State will take on the Southern California Trojans in the Los Angeles Sports Arena. The Bruins virtually gave away the first game between the two clubs, losing in the dying seconds after leading through the whole contest.

Oregon State, with the return of Fritz will be able to match up with the Trojans and if they can hit, should cause USC some troubles. The Bruins will probably employ their zone defense against USC that proved so effective last week.

USC Tough Outside... USC's bread and butter rests in their outside shooting ability. Paced by 6-7 forward Bill Hewitt, the Trojans like to get the ball up as quick as possible.

The Trojan backcourt also boasts tremendous firepower in Steve Jennings and Mack Calvin. Center Ron Taylor (7-1) makes all of these deadly shooters double tough because he can force the defense to him and then feed off, or else set effective screens with his monstrous frame.

Fritz Welcomed Back... Oregon State, with three straight losses, will be out to halt that losing streak tonight. Fritz will, of course, be welcomed back, and the Bruins have also found that they have some depth at guard in Gary Carroll, Mike Markham, and Dave Moore, who all turned in clutch performances last weekend.

After being downed by Portland, the Bruins appeared to be "easy pickins" for the likes of two powerhouse basketball teams such as UCLA and USC. Both clubs came down here expecting relatively easy ball games from both Oregon and Oregon State. The Bruins proved to be a surprise.

Valenti Pleased With Squad... Valenti was pleased with OSU's overall effort over the weekend, even though the Bruins Valenti is unsure as to what he might try as a strategy goes against UCLA. The Bruins have a very impressive record against both teams last week, but Valenti still hasn't decided if he will zone one of them this week.

"We must take into consideration how effective man to man defense has been. We haven't decided type of defense we will use and we may make the just prior to game time."

OSU Shooting .478... The Bruins, as a team continued their torrid shooting last weekend. They have now made 294 shots in 625 attempts from the field for an outstanding 47.8 team shooting percentage.

Fritz Tops Scores... Junior guard Vince Fritz continues to pace the point parade with 25.9 points in 15 games, a 17.3 average. Fritz returns to action following a virus infection that sidelined him last weekend against UCLA and USC.

Center Vic Bartolome, who is rapidly developing into a top notch center is second in scoring with 19.6 points in 16 games, a 12.3 average. Vic has scorched the nets on 80 of 124 shots taken from the field for a blistering 64.5 shooting percentage.

Gary Freeman ranks third in Beaver scoring averaging 10.7 points per game. Freeman has connected on 77 of 141 field goal attempts, a 54.6 percentage and also leads the club in free throw percentage, converting 28 of 33 from the charity line.
